$100,000 Construction Job Underway

Work Rushed On Dining Hall Project

The first major step in the college's post-war building program is well along now with the construction of an addition to the dining hall estimated to cost "nearly $100,000" completely equipped.

Although no completion date has been set, it is unlikely that the dining hall will be ready for use before January, 1950.

Excavation on the site adjoining the present dining hall on the east side of Oneida Hall began in June. However, a delay in the arrival of steel in July slowed up construction in spite of the general contractor's rapid progress in getting the building started.

In addition, it was found necessary to nearly completely rebuild the present laundry building. New walls were constructed to carry the weight of the north side of the new construction.

Fireproof Stairway Built

At the same time, work was being rushed on the fireproof stairway between Brumbaugh and Oneida Halls in order to have the passageway clear before the opening of college.

The new, red-brick dining hall addition is a two-story, T-shaped building. On the main floor is a modern dining hall 95 feet by 33 feet, an enlarged serving room, a Campus Leaders Consider Confab 'Most Successful'

Plans for extensive student activity in all phases of the undergraduate program were formulated during the week-end when upperclass campus leaders gathered for the annual three-day Leadership Conference at the scenic Camp Kanesatake, near Spruce Creek.

Approximately 50 BWOCs (big wheel on campus) and faculty advisers returned late yesterday afternoon after what was considered one of the "most successful" meetings in the 23-year history of the pre-college conferences.

A joint student-faculty dinner at noon Sunday followed by the presentation of resolutions was the climax of the confab. Results of the conference will be submitted to college administration leaders for consideration. (Complete coverage of the conference will appear in a later issue of The Juniatian.)

An orientation opened the Leadership Conference Friday evening. This was followed by conferences on general activities and another on underclassmen. A camp mixer concluded the evening.

Conferences on social activities and special issues featured the Saturday morning session. The publications meeting was held in the afternoon and a discussion on athletics in the evening. Vespers were conducted by the Rev. G. Wayne Glick, instructor in Biblical Studies.

A camp sing, morning worship by President Ellis, dinner with the faculty, a conference on religious activities, and the meeting to act on resolutions completed the get together on Sunday.

APPROVED AND ACCREDITED

Juniata is on the approved list of the Association of American Universities, the American Chemical Society, and the American Association of University Women. The college is accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and is a member of the Association of American Colleges.

75th ANNIVERSARY

The college year just one year from now, 1950-51, will be observed as Juniata College's 75th anniversary year.

Mrs.-----Not Miss For Newlyweds On J. C. Faculty

There's a bumper crop of "Mr. and Mrs." among the faculty.

Since the college closed last Spring, there have been four marriages involving six members of the faculty. And you'll have to be careful to say "Mrs." instead of "Miss" now to at least three of the newlyweds.

Three of the marriages took place in June. Evelyn L. Edkins '44 and Dr. Raymond T. Davis, Jr., were married on June 8 in the Roxbury Methodist Church Johnstown. Mrs. Davis is instructor in elementary education and Dr. Davis is assistant professor of chemistry.

Jane Miller '38, assistant professor of home economics, was married to Dr. Kenneth W. Crosby, also a member of the faculty as assistant professor of history, in Lititz on June 26.

Dr. George B. Clemens, who joined the faculty this summer, and Dorothy Jane Metcalfe of Washington, D. C. (both class of '36) were married in Washington on June 9.

Latest addition to the married set is Prof. Charles L. Rowland, professor of music, who was married on August 22, to Mrs. Luella Fogelsanger Breitigan '26, a former member of the Juniata faculty. The wedding took place in the Church of the Brethren in Huntsdale, Pa.

Earlier in the Spring term on March 31, Mary Ruth Myers '38, assistant professor of music, became the bride of Attorney Richard W. Linton '34 of Huntingdon, in the Stone Church.

185 New Students Greeted At Opening Assembly Today; Orientation Program Begins

President Calvert N. Ellis welcomed to Juniata College this afternoon the Class of 1953—some 167 freshmen and women—and signaled the opening of the three-day orientation program.

Augmenting the 167 frosh was a contingent of about 18 transfer students coming in with advanced standing.

The President greeted all newcomers in Oller Hall and introduced the deans of his administrative staff to them. However, the formal opening of the college does not take place until the all-College Convocation next Thursday at 9 a. m.

There wasn't quite as much need to jam everyone into the last available corner today as the post-war boom in enrollment has tapered off. Actually the College will begin its 74th year with a few less students than in 1948 and with keen hopes that the small college traditions will continue to prevail.

Fewer GI's Enrolled

The number of veterans is diminishing—only 18 are listed as GI's—and the presence of the "high school freshman" was much more evident this afternoon.

The incoming class is an intelligent class, too! According to statistics from the admissions office, 106 of the new students were in the "top third" of their high school.

Men outnumber women 115 to 70 in the new group and only five are listed as married this year. Resident students dominated the so-termed "day student" 156 to 29.

The Class of 1953 hails from eight states and the District of Columbia. Also represented are China, Korea, Honduras, Lebanon Norway and the Gold Coast to supplement Juniata's family of "ambassadors of good will" from overseas.

Convocation Set For Sun. Morning

Dr. Vernon F. Schwalm, president of Manchester College, North Manchester, Indiana, will be the speaker at Convocation services of the College at the Stone Church of the Brethren next Sunday Sept. 25 at 10:30 a. m.

President Schwalm was graduated from Manchester in 1913 and obtained a Ph. D. from the University of Chicago in 1916. Before he assumed the presidency in 1941, he had been professor of history and dean at Manchester, and president of McPherson College, Kansas.

Class Of '53 To Register Tomorrow

Juniata's Class of 1953, supplemented by more than 15 transfer students, will register for the Fall term tomorrow morning, Tuesday, Sept. 20, in Carnegie library in two designated groups.

Registration for Group B (includes persons whose last name begins with letters I to Z) will be held first from 8:30 to 10 a. m. Group A (includes persons whose last name begins with letters A to H plus all football candidates) will register from 10 to 11:30 a. m.

A corps of registration guides will be on hand to direct all new students—freshmen, transfer and special—through the proper channels of their initial registration. Faculty advisers in all departments will consult with students and aid in formulating the program of study.

As part of the registration procedure all students will be photographed. No student's registration will be considered complete unless that student has been photographed.

Incoming veterans will go through the regular registration procedure, but in order to expedite their entrance into college either under Public Law 346 or Public Law 16 they must have a certificate of eligibility which will be presented in the Office of the Registrar.

Payment of fees does not take place at registration, but will be handled in the Treasurer's office, main floor of Founder's Hall.

Founded on April 17, 1876, Juniata College is the oldest of the Church of the Brethren colleges. This is the 74th year.

The purpose of the founders was to provide a school in which children of the Brethren would receive a scholarly education in an atmosphere of moral and religious emphasis.

So, from the very beginning, Juniata's teachings have been based on Christian principles. A frank effort has been made through the years to motiviate each student to develop his best talents, to honor God and to serve his fellow men.

Only 3 In First Class

When the college was founded, Prof. Jacob M. Zuck met three students in a small room on Washington Street in the west end of Huntingdon. This institution moved to its present campus, known as College Hill, 1879.

Founded as "The Brethren's Normal School and Collegiate Institute," it took in 1896 the name of the beautiful Juniata river which flows around Huntingdon within easy walking distance of the campus.

There have been six presidents in Juniata's history: James Quinter (1878-1888); Henry B. Brumbaugh (1888-1894); Martin G. Brumbaugh (1894-1910 and 1924-1930); I. Harvey Brumbaugh (1900-1911, acting; 1911-1924); Charles Calvert Ellis (1930-1943) and Calvert N. Ellis, who was inaugurated in October, 1943.

COLLEGE HAS 40 ACRES

The entire Juniata campus contains slightly more than 40 acres, 26 of which are used directly for college purposes.

Roundup Of College Year Discloses Varied Activities

With nearly nine months stretching mysteriously before them, members of the Class of '53 might well ask what goes on outside the classroom here on College Hill. Last September the Class of '52 faced the same unknown. Here, in a brief roundup of last year's campus events, is how they found life in their first year at Juniata.

FALL

With mixers, teas and guided tours, 180 freshmen were welcomed into the Juniata family, but only after donning the regulation dinks and namecards. Twenty-three freshmen were among the nearly 50 candidates who reported to Head Coach Bill Smaltz for football drills. The result: the best team in Juniata's 25 years of football. All campus clubs began meeting, enticing freshmen into their groups, and planning their calendars for the year.

A Cappella Choir tryouts resulted in 24 new vocalists for Prof. Rowland, many of them freshmen. Likewise, Mr. Brammer formed a new college band which appeared at the Juniata games and Friday pep rallies. Classes were shortened for football games, and the Indians rolled over four straight opponents.

The Masque presented "The Swan," the students picked a Homecoming Queen, the frosh and sophs battled it out in a tug-o-war, and the J-Club semi-formal was a great success—all on Homecoming Day.

The whole college closed shop one day and hiked off to the woods for fun on Mountain Day. Basketball drills began, and touch football and bowling started the intra-mural program of 12 sports.

When Twirp Week rolled around the gals had to corner fellows for dates, and a Sadie Hawkins Day party was the climax. Freshmen were getting better acquainted in Monday assemblies. Each class competed for dramatic honors in All-Class Night. The music department started its series of recitals given by both professors and students. The International Relations Club was bringing foreign diplomats to discuss world affairs.

WINTER

The debaters were off on a busy season arguing the question of federal aid to education. A road company presented "Hamlet" on the Oller Hall stage, and the Huntingdon Community concerts began, students being admitted by their activity card. Home basketball games were held Wednesday and Saturday nights downtown. Christmas social life

EXHORTATION TO THE CLASS OF 1953

"YOU ARE to be free for four years from the care of winning bread."

Such was a statement once directed to an incoming freshman class by the president of a university in his welcoming address.

For some of you of the class of 1953 that implication may be absolutely correct. For many others—those of you who will pass your college days as dish washers, snow shovelers, or furnace tenders—this will not apply.

True you may not be "winning bread", but all of you are "winning for yourselves an education."

INVOLVED in this often pleasant but sometimes tedious task of "winning" education is the problem of avoiding substitutions for three essential requirements—brains, hearts and courage.

Only a Wizard of Oz would attempt to use a college diploma in place of brains. Only a Wizard of Oz would try to substitute freshman numerals or a varsity letter for courage. Only a Wizard of Oz would replace a heart with club pins or honorary keys.

As you enter into your new college world the futility of the "Wonderful Wizard" will become apparent to you.

Brains—not a diploma—will be needed to make the most out of your college days.

Courage—not a varsity letter—will be needed to facilitate your work in the class room, on the athletic field, or in your personal life when things look the blackest.

A heart—not pins or keys—will be needed to aid you to develop into a good Juniatian by winning and keeping friends.

TODAY approximately 190 of you have arrived in Huntingdon eagerly expecting that the best four years of your lives are now beginning.

During your four years here (or less, if you adopt a speed-up program), you will not only have the best social and intellectual conditions available, but you'll get an actual preview of what real life is. And in that preview of real life you will find that there, too, brains, courage, and a heart form a core of life.

Don't follow in the footsteps of the brainless scarecrow, nor of the heartless tin woodman, nor of the cowardly lion.

Set your goal and use that brain, that courage, and that heart of yours as you undertake the task of "winning" an education.

You can't expect to become fully prepared for life's real game. But you will have the best four years of your lives and no matter how much you put into your undergraduate years nor how much you get out of them, the "best four years" will leave a remarkable imprint in your path of life.

EDITORIALIZING

by Bob Smith

Whether you freshmen know it or not, you are in the most enviable position on campus. Without a doubt you will be the center of attraction in life at Juniata during the next few months, and quite likely throughout much of the entire year ahead.

Immediately, of course, the upperclassmen will survey your ranks for 1) attractive young ladies with smiles that say "hello", 2) musclemen for Coach Smaltz's latest class in How-To-Beat-The-Tar-Out-Of--Susquehanna, and 3) the "brains" in your class.

But while only a few may immediately draw our attention, practically every freshman will sooner or later fit into this group or that engaged in all sorts of activities. Fortunately, campus life at Juniata is broad enough to allow you some choice in picking your extra-curricular activities and at the same time limited enough to allow you a chance to become familiar with campus life in all its aspects.

Because this is so, you will soon come to know and cherish the friendly intimacy of Juniata's small campus. You will be drawn into its social life almost as rapidly as you will be plunging into its academic life.

While you may feel that you are more or less on display before the upperclassmen, the important thing to keep in mind is that your newness here is a great asset to Juniata. For you bring with you new ideas, new suggestions and new eagerness for carrying them through. You give us the added push we so often need in order to change and grow in keeping abreast of collegiate developments.

Upperclassmen, you know, have a sad tendency to bog down and accept campus life as they have come to know it, the bad with the good. Improvements must very often spring from a live wire freshman class that comes bounding in from many schools, whose programs and activities vary considerably.

You came here presumably because you felt that Juniata has what you need. Well you have what Juniata needs, too: your ideas, your energy, your devotion, and you.

We welcome you not simply out of politeness but out of the realization that from the Class of '53 will emerge mne and women destined to guide the course of affairs at Juniata College. Because of its size, Juniata can offer this opportuntiy to all of you. And because of its democratic policies, it will offer it to you.

So begin today to set your sights and your aim will be true.

WE WOMEN

Once again the women of Juniata unite to welcome a new group of freshmen. Here you are, coeds of the class of 1953, all with that wide-eyed exclamation mark stamped on your faces. Ah, it's good to see you.

It's good to see your enthusia-sm, your interest, and your ambition. You've all come to conquer the campus, in one way or another, and some of you will succeed.

You will succeed, that is, if you go about it right. If you set out to see things clearly and to judge them fairly. If you name yourselves a goal and work for it without being sidetracked by superficial things.

And you may meet a lot of things and people who will do their best to sidetrack you. Social life is a necessary part of your college, but it is not the primary purpose.

The clubs are a phase of college life, for those who want them, but college is still college without a club membership. The collegiate slang expressions and mannerisms that you can easily pick up may dazzle the homefolks on your vacation, but they only amuse the upperclassmen.

What people will think of Juniata coeds from now on is up to you. You represent a transfusion of new blood into the coed population. Just what that transfusion will bring, whether new strength or merely decay, depends on you. It is in your power to bring with you your ideals and make them part of the standards of the College. Or you can mold yourself into just another Juniata coed indistinguishable from the others.

But no matter what you choose to do with your college career, you are freshmen for the next year—under our guidance, protection, and possible influence. So we welcome you and wish you the best in Juniata.

H. C. P.

DR. MORLEY MAYS
Dean of the College

Dean's Message

Juniata welcomes you to a thousand days of high adventure. It is an adventure in learning and living unlike anything you have known before. You will find it most rewarding if you will observe two obligations which fall upon those who have the privileges of this adventure.

One is your obligation to the past—an obligation to honor, by your devotion to the tasks at hand, those who have built this college out of toil, sacrifice, and prayer.

The other is an obligation to the present—an obligation to carry to a confused world the kind of enlightenment and ideaiism which education at Juniata can give you.

I can assure you that if you will undertake the program of a college education in this spirit you will find it the most helpful and the happiest experience of your life.

MORLEY MAYS
Dean of the College

Button Frosh !

Customs To Prevail On Thursday

"Button Frosh!"

And with that command, more than 150 freshmen shall lift their dinks from their heads much in the manner of tipping one's hat.

And that ain't all.

Beginning Thursday, all freshmen will don customs which include the green dink, regulation name card, bow ties (for men) or one green and one yellow sock (for women).

The Scout (that's your freshmen handbook) will be stuffed into pockets because upperclassmen have the habit of requesting a freshman to produce it—or maybe to recite the college songs and yells.

Until the zero hour comes, freshmen will be permitted to roam the campus freely. But when Thursday morning rolls around, the class of 1953 can forget about such things as walking across the diagonal walk from Student's Hall on front campus and using the front steps to Founder's Hall. Yet, they must remember such things as the dink, name card and Scout.

But it is all done in a friendly spirit with one aim—to aid the freshmen in successfully getting into the swing of things at Juniata.

Eight Appointed To Faculty This Year

Curriculum Is Valuable Development

Juniata's educational program, now well established after 11 years, is considered one of "the most valuable developments in higher education."

The general plan provides that every student shall gain a large fund of information as well as a clear understanding of the place his studies hold in the broad field of learning, according to the catalog. It further states: "He must also acquire certain fundamental skills to aid him in applying his knowledge before he deserves to hold a degree and to take his place in the world among educated people."

Harvard Does It

As an indication that the program is now widely recognized as successful, all freshmen entering Harvard this fall will take at least one course in general education. This is a step in the faculty plan adopted in 1945-46 (Juniata's plan began in 1938) to make general education courses a regular part of the college work for all students.

Beginning with the freshman class entering Harvard in 1951, all students will be required to take elementary courses "in the three great fields of learning—the humanities, the social sciences, and the natural sciences."

The greater part of the first year's work at Juniata is devoted to introductory courses in the three "Divisions of Study." Three well-planned courses in the first term, one in each division, serve to integrate for the student the work of the various departments in which he will later study.

Catolog Statement

The catolog, on page 15, points out: "By this means also he gains a sympathetic understanding of studies which he himself may not wish to pursue, but which may be of primary interest to his fellow students in the college."

new dishwashing room and storage area for dishes. The hall will be equipped with a public address system when complete.

The basement plans call for a new kitchen 80 feet by 33 feet, a small dining room 20 feet by 16 feet, office space, and additional facilities for refrigeration and other kitchen requirements. Most of the present kitchen is being altered for storage space.

Roundup of Year

was highlighted by a pageant and a formal in the gym. The frosh elected permanent officers, and everyone went home for two weeks vacation.

Spiritual Emphasis Week was marked by nightly discussions on religious problems of the students' choice. The choir made its tour of western Pennsylvania. Four freshmen were among the 19 named to the Dean's List. Juniatians contributed over $2,000 in the annual Juniata World Service Fund drive.

"Sweethearts" was a terrific success, as were the Mills Bros., a ballet troupe, and Cornelia Otis Skinner as they appeared here.

SPRING

Campus elections had campaigners working overtime. Chem students visited industrial plants in the Pittsburgh area, and the Ministerium motored to Washington. A queen and her consort were elected to rule at the May Day festival, during which Anderson's fairy tale, "Thumbelisa," was presented to a crowd of over a thousand.

The golfers, after winning 16 straight, lost their first match in two years but came back to win the Western Maryland Invitation Tourney. Parties, dances and recitals rounded out the year's social calendar.

Acting Dean Is Member of Legislature

Eight new faculty members have been appointed as replacements on the Juniata College staff for the coming year, 1949-50, Dean of the College Morley Mays has announced. The instructional faculty now numbers 48 members.

D. Raymond Sollenberger '25 of Williamsburg, a member of the House of Representatives in the Pennsylvania State Legislature, has assumed the duties of acting dean of students in the absence of Dean J. Melvin Rhodes '38 who has been granted a leave of one year to recover from his serious illness.

The state legislator from Blair county will direct the student personnel and placement work in his administrative position. In addition, he holds faculty status by teaching several sections of the freshman course in "The Mind."

Dr. Clemens Returns

Another Juniata alumnus who has returned to the faculty is Dr. George B. Clemens '36, who will serve as assistant professor of modern languages. Dr. Clemens returned to the college in June when he began instructional duties during the Summer Term. An instructor here before the war, Dr. Clemens received a degree of doctor of philosophy from the University of Pennsylvania in June.

Selected to assist in the department of modern languages as an instructor is Miss Elizabeth S. Bibb of Lake Bluff, Ill. A graduate of Radcliffe College, Cambridge, Mass., in 1944, Miss Bibb has done further study at the University of Illinois and Harvard Summer School. She has taught at Salem Academy, Winston-Salem, N. C., tutored at Lake Forest Academy, Lake Forest, Ill., and has been a graduate assistant at the University of Illinois.

Miss Helen L. Fisher, New Philadelphia, O., is a new instructor in home economics. She was graduated from Wittenberg College in 1937 and received a master's degree from Columbia University in 1944. Mis Fisher has been a high school teacher; food supervisor for the U. S. Navy; nutritionist for the Emergency Food Commission, New York; and home demonstration agent for the Rochester Home Bureau.

Succeeds Mrs. Suhey

Succeeding Mrs. Steve Suhey as instructor in physical education for women is Miss Jane E. McCormick of Beaver, Pa. A graduate of Beaver High School, Miss McCormick received a bachelor of science degree in physical education from the Pennsylvania State College in 1949.

Miss Marion B. Thomas, Ocala, Fla., has been appointed instructor in music. She was graduated from Oberlin College Conservatory, Oberlin, Ohio, in 1948 and received a master's degree in music at the University of Michigan this year. Miss Thomas had done private study with Alberto Jonas of New York.

In Science Hall, Alexander S. Bartha of Chicago, Ill., has been named instructor in biology. Born in Budapest, Hungary, Mr. Bartha was a graduate of Illinois Institute of Technology in 1947 and received a master of science degree from Northwestern University this year. He has been an assistant in research for the Illinois Department of Public Health; a laboratory technician for the U. S. Army medical department; and worked in the public health laboratory, Oak Park.

Another Chicago man, William F. Conner, 1235 E. 58th St., also has been added to the staff as instructor in sociology. He will take several sections of Nature of Society and conduct English conferences. Mr. Conner is a graduate of the University of Chicago with a master of arts degree in sociology in 1949. He also attended the University of Nebraska and Loyola University of Chicago.

INDIANS PREPARE FOR SEASON'S OPENER

44 Move Into 3rd Week Of Grid Drills

Football drills for the 44 candidates for the 1949 edition of Juniata's grid team moved into the third week today under Coach Bill Smaltz in preparation for the season's opener with Westminster here on October 1.

Already "Meteor Mike" Dzvonar, the Indians' brilliant tailback who gained state-wide recognition last year, has served notice that he is going to help spark the Warriors to perhaps their greatest season. Dzvonar scored twice in the first period of the first scrimmage.

Hopeful, but not over optimistic, Coach Smaltz claims "we'll press hard for as good a season as last year," which turned out to be Juniata's best in 26 years of football with four victories, one tie and two defeats.

The emphasis this year again is on building a strong forward wall. The Indians rated 14th in the nation among small colleges in rushing defense last year by allowing only 96.7 yards per game. They ranked second in Pennsylvania in total defense and rushing defense.

Fifteen lettermen have returned, but the squad will miss seven others, including four linemen and two blocking backs who backed up the middle from the the 1948 team.

Still remaining from the formidable nine are nine men who have won letters. The centers are Dave Croft, who gained Little All-America honorable mention, and Jerry Africa. Returning guards are Aldo Bonomi, Coy Hicks, Keith Smail, and Guy Wentsler. Holdover tackles are Cecil Jackson, and all-State honorable mention, and Joe Thomasberger. And the only letter-winning end from last year is George Smith.

Teaming up with Dzvonar in the backfield are his pass-catching partners, Phil Chabody and Julius "Squeeze" Long, both lettermen at wingback. Dick Young, a center last year, and Bill Wilson, who lettered two seasons ago, are working at quarterback. Mike Mervis is the returning fullback.

In addition, nine men who saw previous service as reserves are back on the squad. That leaves 20 newcomers, most of them freshmen, to balance out the 1949 team.

ENDS: Bill Bolt, Gloucester City, N. J.; Mervin Metz, Huntingdon; Bob Morrissey, Baldwin, N. Y.; Bob Reese, Ambridge; George Smith and Bob Smith, Huntingdon brothers; Gordon Stroup, Bedford; Bob Wagoner, Johnstown.

TACKLES: Don Brumbaugh, Saxton; Victor Ciccozzi, Monaca; Cecil Jackson, Huntingdon; Ken Kyper, Huntingdon; Bob Monahan, Berlin; Gene Shaffer, Huntingdon; Joe Thomasberger, Jonnstown; Bill Waryck, Aliquippa.

New Basketball Coach Appointed

Juniatian

VOLUME XXVI Huntingdon, Penna. SEPTEMBER 24, 1949 NUMBER 2

Arnold Greene Takes Over; P. M. Snider to Coach Track, Head Physical Ed. Dept.

Juniata College has a new basketball coach, a man who is an accomplished athlete, musician and doctor of dentistry, Dr. Arnold Greene of Huntingdon. He replaces P. M. Snider, who remains as Chairman of the Department of Physical Education and track coach.

DR. ARNOLD GREENE

The background of the new basketball coach is studded with achievement in three sports, football, basketball and baseball, as both player and coach.

Quarterback At Pitt

A graduate of Huntingdon High School, where he played varsity football, basketball and baseball, Arnold Greene went on to football fame at the University of Pittsburgh under the late Dr. Jock Suthland. There in 1934-35-36 he quarterbacked some of Pitt's best teams in the days when his teammate Marshall Goldberg was a national football hero.

The following year he received his doctor's degree and began his coaching career as freshman backfield coach at Pitt. From 1938 to 1941 he coached the varsity backfield in the Fall and played professional baseball for Durham, Harrisburg and Albany in the Summer.

Entered Dental Corps

Dr. Greene entered the dental corps of the Army Air Force in 1942 and rose to the rank of major before being discharged in 1946. In the army he coached the basketball team at Walterboro, S. C., which in 1944 won the service championship for Southeastern United States.

Since resuming his practice in Huntingdon he has coached the local American Legion basketball team on which many Juniata athletes played during recent years.

Serving As Assistant Coach

Dr. Greene is now serving as assistant football coach at Juniata. Because of his interest in the College and his agreement on style of football with Head Coach Smaltz, Dr. Greene has been assisting Smaltz ever since the Penn State passer took command of football here in 1947.

In his third field of endeavor, music, the doctor does not lean toward either Bach or bebop. He once had a weekly radio program over WHUN called "Jazz You Like It," which indicates where his chief interest in music lies. And he expresses that interest best on his electric guitar, especially in informal sessions with local musicians.

Date Not Definite

The new basketball coach has not set a definite date for opening court drills but says he is anxious to see what sort of material he will have for the season that opens in early December.

Harmony Was Conference Keynote

Senate Reconsiders MayDay;Musical Issue

The biggest issue tackled by Leadership Conference this year involved three of the biggest events on the College calendar: May Day, All-Class Night and the all-college musical.

First of all, it was reported at the conference that there has been much dissatisfaction among the women students concerning May Day in recent years. Their complaints have arisen from the very nature of the pageant as well as the inefficient manner in which rehearsals and preparations were conducted. Morale was lowered by the feeling of obligation that most girls felt to appear in May Day whether they wanted to or not.

Pageant Eliminated

The conference, after discussing the issue at length, resolved to eliminate the May Day pageant but to keep the coronation ceremony, which could be made more elaborate. In addition the musical would be held the evening of May Day providing a more significant performance and at the same time virtually freeing the crowded college calendar of a big event.

All-Class Night was then given a comfortable spot on the calendar in March, where the musical was formerly scheduled.

Johnson Presents Arguments

Arguments against this new arrangement were presented, after the conference to campus leaders by Professor Donald S. Johnson, who was head director of last year's musical.

Prof. Johnson pointed out that:

1) Many of the people who ordinarily appear in the commencement oratorio would want to appear in the musical, and since rehearsals would conflict, they would not be able to appear in both.

2) That the orchestra would have to rehearse for both productions simultaneously.

3) Miss Doyle would not be on campus during one week of rehearsals because of a speaking tour, and that she would have to prepare a commencement play at the same time.

4) That comprehensives would foil the seniors who wanted to take part in the musical as well as present an extra burden for the faculty directors.

Senate Changes Mind

In a meeting Thursday night the Senate took up the matter and decided to recommend to the calendar committee that the musical be given its original date, March 18, that All-Class Night be held Dec. 10, and that May Day become a production opportunity for freshmen women, who could prepare for it in gym classes under the direction of Miss Jane E. McCormick.

The Senate re-convened the Leadership Conference delegates Thursday afternoon to explain the issue and their decision.

Formal resolutions appear on page two in the form presented to the administration this week. Three are repeats from last year. Last year the conference drew up 30 resolutions and 24 were carried out. The Juniatian will follow up each resolution and report on the action or inaction that follows.

Auditions Completed

Auditions for the Chapel Choir have been completed and rehearsals will begin in the near future, according to an announcement by Professor Donald S. Johnson.

It is expected that these rehearsals will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays at 10 a. m. in Oller Hall.

The Choir is open to all students. However, no student is permitted to participate in more than one choir during any given year, although he may be in both orchestra and band in addition to one choir.

Pres.GivesResolutions Favorable Reception

In the process of thrashing out campus problems and passing resolutions, this year's Leadership Conference has been described as the "most successful" and the "most harmonious" conference since the war.

Students left the campsite at Kanesatake feeling that their three days in conference had been successful and harmonious. The 50 students present were not divided into factions working for special interests as semed to be the case in past years.

There was, however, healthy debate on the big issues such as the idea to combine the all-college musical with May Day, the faculty policy on grades and cuts, and the presentation of athletic awards.

Success Dependent On All

But, as Senate President Jack Padgett reminded the Leadership Conference, the success of their efforts at Kanesatake depended not upon the resolutions passed but upon how effectively they were carried out by the faculty and administration and the student leaders.

On Tuesday the final resolutions (as found on page two) were presented to President Calvert N. Ellis by the Resolutions Committee and "were received very favorably," according to Chairman Gene Roddy.

The resolutions next go to the faculty and then back to the Senate.

CHOIR BEGINS WORK SOON

The completed roster for the A Cappella Choir will be released next Friday and work will begin the following Monday according to Prof. C. L. Rowland.

Oral tryouts will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in Oller Hall.

This year marks the 18th season for the mixed group, which sings primarily without accompaniment. In addition, it marks the 30th year of working with Juniata choirs and glee clubs for Prof. Rowland.

Jeans,NoCorsage, Rule For Tonight

Corsages will not be in order, but jeans and similar clothing suitable for the activities of a barn dance will be the thing for tonight's festivities in the gym.

In accordance with an ancient and iron-clad custom of Juniata, the program will begin promptly at 8:15 p. m., promises Betty May, Senate chairman of social activities.

Adding a note of freshness and originality to the party will be several surprises. These, however, must remain a secret until this evening.

The entire campus citizenry are invited to attend.

Rockwell Appointed Chem. Dept. Head

President Calvert N. Ellis has announced the appointment of Dr. Donald M. Rockwell as chairman of the department of chemistry to succeed Dr. Norman J. Brumbaugh effective with the opening of the Fall term Sept. 22.

Dr. Rockwell, a professor in the department now, is also director of research activities at Prismo laboratories in Huntingdon. He has been a member of the Juniata staff since 1932.

In succeeding Dr. Brumbaugh, who retired in June after 24 years as chairman, Dr. Rockwell takes

Murphy'sOpen House Set For Tues. Night

The annual Juniata Open House Party at the G. C. Murphy Co. store in downtown Huntingdon has been set for Tuesday evening, Sept. 27. Ask a fellow student who attended one of these parties. Fun! I'll say.

Murphy's gives a party to all Juniata students and faculty each year. Business? No, just fun! The store is open one evening for your inspection and entertainment.

You are invited to come for a good time—enjoy eats and refreshments, singing, dancing. And be sure to join in the competitive games for prizes. Each student will receive a souvenir and a door prize number upon entering the store. Don't lose your number.

Two beautiful door prizes will be awarded to one lucky girl and one lucky boy—and there will be 15 or 20 minor prizes too. So don't miss it fellows and girls. Set aside the evening and visit Murphy's Juniata Open House Party on September 27.

A Survey

Workers, Travelers, Students - Juniatians All

by Lorena Hebrank

Beneath the hustle of a new Fall semester, the crowds of students at the bookstore and College offices and the greeting of old classmates, there remains a certain nostalgia over the Summer months just passed.

Students at hundreds of colleges and universities are returning from Summers spent in working and traveling or from special classes. The members of the Juniata family can well be proud of the profitable and cultural Summer months spent by a great majority of its students.

Some 50 Juniatians boarded trains and buses or automobiles and spent a pleasant Summer traveling to various points of interest. Joe Hammond, whose moniker is etched on a namecard, hitchhiked to Texas and back.

Atlantic City, Chicago, Canada and New England seemed to be the most visited sites for traveling Juniatians. Perhaps the most extensive trip was made by the campus quartet, who covered over 4,000 miles within the boundaries of good old Pennsylvania.

Ruth Kimble, Jill Woodring, Mary Ankeny, Doris Mickle, Bud Kreider, Francis Townsend and Dick Hollinger were among the great majority of students who worked in various resorts as waitresses or busboys. Eight persons worked as attendants in mental hospitals in Maryland, Ohio and Indiana.

Harold Bowser, James Oliver, Coy Hicks and Paul Good became more fully acquainted with the wiles of Mother Nature on the farm.

YW OFFERS CHURCH GUIDES

In order to aid new students in finding their favorite church in Huntingdon, members of the YW CA wil be available in the Social Room Sunday evening to act as guides. Groups will begin leaving the campus at 7 p. m.

Summer schools demanded the close attention of many students. Juniata drew most of them, but others went off to N. Y. U., Seton Hall, Elizabethtown, California, U. of P., Edinboro and Middlebury.

There are, of course, always the few fortunate ones who claimed they just loafed all Summer to the tune of a wonderful time. Ed Marschka, Marian Fry, Lois Garver or Tony Segalavich can give you inside dope on that.

Whether your traveling this Summer amounted strictly to trips back and fourth across the lawn behind a mower, or your most exciting experience occurred when someone swiped your suntan oil, Juniata extends a hearty welcome to the "old timers" and the new class of 1953.

(Editors Note: Later issues of The Juniatian will carry further articles on the experiences of individuals during the past Summer.)

TWO OF FACULTY PROMOTED

Two members of the faculty were promoted in rank at the end of the College year last Spring. Herbert A. Miller, in economics, and Jack D. Brammer, in voice, were advanced from instructors to assistant professors.

Indians Look Good In Scrimmage With Penn State

by Bob Volpitto

Bill Smaltz's football Indians look good! That's the consensus of opinion at the moment, especially among those who saw them score first against Penn State's third team in a practice scrimmage Wednesday.

Bringing his three full teams back from State College and the scene of his own college football glory, Smaltz could conjure over many interesting observations during the informal scrimmage. Only a knee injury to Bill Wilson marred the afternoon.

The scrimmage, first of all, showed that the passing combination of Mike Dzvonar to Phil Chabody will undoubtedly again be a potent factor in the Juniata attack this year.

Secondly, the line showed up as all-powerful on the offensive and that it would be a tough forward wall to bater through.

Reserve Strength Adequate

And reserve strength was found to be quite adequate in the Indian's second and third string backfields as well as up in the line. Men like Don Howett, Harry Campbell, Joe Mulligan, Jerry Africa, Joe Dobal, Bill Bolt, Pat Lampone, Dick Young, Squeeze Long and Orlando Loschiavo will develop into priceless aids.

Gene Shaffer, a reserve guard, started with the first team in the absence of Aldo Bonomi who is out with an injured knee. Aldo was not in uniform.

Howett Passes

Though the Lions outscored the Indians 25 to 6, J. C. had its bright spots. Howett proved himself quite a passer, even though smeared several times because of the lack of receivers, and a tough man to elude in the secondary defense. Squeeze Long looked more like himself as he hauled down Abbott, of State, on the one yard line after both led a long and fast chase.

With cooperation from the forward wall, Meteor Mike Dzvonar clipped off several line crashing gains netting first downs. Mike showed his old fearless determination. Mike Mervis, despite a pulled leg muscle, also looked worthy of being Smaltz's starter at fullback.

Bill Wilson has solved the quarter back problem set up by the graduation of co-captain Don Everhart. Dick Young, a converted center, gave promising indications of an excellent reserve at this post.

Touch Football to Start Next Wed.

An intramural sports calendar was announced today for the Fall semester by "Duck" Snyder, Chairman of Athletics. Six man two-hand touch football will open September 28, followed by a horseshoe tournament beginning October 3, soccer (if desired) commences October 10, plus bowling, a cross country run, basketball, and ping pong.

The plan also includes boxing, wrestling, and the annual interclass track meet. These activities will open after the Christmas vacation.

After the Spring recess, softball and tennis will be scheduled.

Alumni Notes

Dan Sell, '48, former Senate president, is now enrolled at the University of Chicago in the graduate school of international relations.

TOMMY

Upperclassmen, please whistle three choruses of Foghorn Vaughn Monroe's "Gigolette" for the next few sentences (what follows is strictly for the uninitiated)

Dear Frosh: Let me introduce myself: Thomas Q. Hawk. Remember that name, for I will haunt your steps. Among the gossipgathers I know no peer. Winchell winces when my name is mentioned and Pearson pales, for he knows my predicting ability is not 80% accurate as is his, but an unequaled 99 and 44/100% pure truth. No one on campus knows who I am so tread carefully, for I'm always there waiting for that choice bit of information on who's going with whom, what couple has parted forever and what the boys in the back Lodge room are doing. Want proof? Heed this:

Don Robinson seems to have been the first to claim a freshman for a date. Helen Maust was the lucky damsel.

The Carper twins (Janet and Janice) caused a ripple of appreciation in their matching red and green outfits. But I, sartorial dandy that I am, weep unashamedly at the sight of those mismatched socks.

Give your congratulations to the following males, who have taken unto themselves a helpmeet: Fred Keen, Walter Bush, Chick Dillon, Bob Mohr, Lake Clemmer, George Kobulnick, Bob Morrissey. There must be more, but I've been temporarily blinded by their frau's diamonds. Freshman girls should have no trouble deciding what boys to make eyes at—the married men are the only ones wearing rings in their noses.

Don Johnson and Bill Wright were seen in Ilene Altemus's room on Wednesday, and what's more she gave them a kiss! Aw you beat me to it, you knew all the time that those kisses were candy (dry your eyes Lois Robinson and Margie Seidel) and the boys had gallantly carried her suitcase to her room. It took both of them to lift it, for she had brought along a dozen bricks which she finds useful to toss at the howling swains (Not to be confused with Bill Swaim) outside her window. A handy idea.

Tommy notes that the summer months have not cooled the ardor of Bill Murray for Doris Quinnell, Johnny Comerford for Doris Eichelberger and ohmygoodnessyes Jack Padgett and Kiity Long, Quayton Stottlemeyer and Lisa Savino, Keith Binkley and Vera Compton, Joe Bernier and Bennie Metcalfe, Robert Lowery and Elsie Beard, Howard Long and Pat Zug. (gasp gasp gasp) Hilton Hines and Jean Bailey, Mary Blaylock and Marian Fry. There! I just about gottem all.

Dunno whether this couple is new or not but Bernie Helterbridle and Lorena Hebrank were seen strolling Thursday evening.

Those paper plates are a novelty—gives one such a feeling of having lived dangerously after passing them around the table with no mishap; however Tommy isn't growling. Miss Mathias and her crew are having a lot of inconvenience to cope with until the new addition is finished and Tommy has to hand it to them for doing such a good job. The cakes are familiar, but ohhh how I love 'em.

"Give 'er a go!" is our cry again. Our football team met Penn State's third team and from all reports, made a great showing. For details read the sports page. More power to you fellas.

Guess that's enough for the present. Hold your breath, you might be in next week. Can you wait? And lookout tonight!

With much affection,
Tommy

Faculty And Local Churches Plan Receptions, Welcomings

Churches Greet Students Wed.

Fulfilling an annual custom, the churches of Huntingdon again this year will hold welcoming programs for the students of Juniata College on Wednesday evening, October 5. Each student is invited to attend the program of the church of his choice and to get acquainted.

No specific time is set, but the churches were invited by the Ministerium Association of Huntingdon to mail invitations containing full information to Dean Edith Spencer. These will be posted on Founders bulletin board.

Among the programs listed were included the following:

The Christian and Missionary Alliance Church will hold a reception in the church parsonage, 500 11th Street at 9 p. m.

The Abbey Church (Evangelical and Reformed) plans a reception in Assembly Hall at 7:30 for all Evangelical, Reformed, and Congregationl-Christian students.

The Fifteenth Street Methodist Church has scheduled a program with refreshments from 9 to 10:30 p. m.

The First Methodist Church will prepare a supper and entertainment from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m.

A party at the home of either Mrs. Jewett Henry or Mrs. John Wald will be held for all Lutherans by the St. James Lutheran Church. Cars will pick up students near the bus stop at 8 p. m.

The Stone Church plans a reception for all Brethren and their friends between 8 and 9 p. m.

The Evangelical United Brethren Church will serve supper to students at 6 p. m. This is by invitation only.

Contest Planned By 'Mademoiselle'

Mademoiselle Magazine has announced a contest to select 20 guest editors for the August college edition.

By fulfilling the following conditions the contestant may try for a position on the college board from which the guest editors are chosen.

1. Submit a report of two double spaced typewritten pages on any phase of campus life.

2. Submit a snapshot plus complete data on home and college address, class year, college major and minor, other interests and activities, and paid or volunteer jobs held.

3. Mail all material to College Board Editor, Mademoiselle, 122 E. 42 Street, New York 17, N. Y., postmarked no later than midnight November 1, 1949.

4. Only undergraduates available to work as Guest Editors from June 5 through June 30, 1950 are eligible.

Guest editors are selected from the college board on the basis of three assignments given by the magazine during the year. They are paid a regular salary for their month's work, plus round-trip transportation to New York City.

Each guest editor will take part in a full calendar of activities designed to give her a head start in her career. These will include interviewing a celebrity in her chosen field to get advice on education and training needed for success, as well as field trips to newspaper offices, fashion workrooms, radio stations, stores, advertising agencies, and printing plants.

'New' Gym Finished

Resolution number five under social activities, "Resolved that the administration purchase paint for the gymnasium, labor to be provided by students," was fulfilled this week by student effort.

A new and rather awe-inspiringly fresh beauty was revealed as soap plus water plus elbow grease was applied to the walls. Defying rickety ladders and working all afternoon and late into the night, the student workers added cream paint.

The official unveiling of the new gym will be Saturday night at the faculty reception.

Faculty Reception Set For Tonight

Although freshmen and other newcomers to the Juniata campus have, by this time, come into contact with several members of the faculty and administration, they will be given an opportunity to get better acquainted tonight in the gym.

To Promote Friendly Relationship

This is the date set for the annual faculty reception which is designed to promote a more friendly relationship between student and faculty members. Beginning at 8:30, the reception will be a formal affair.

Acting as hosts and hostesses for the evening, President and Mrs. C. N. Ellis, Dean and Mrs. Raymond Sollenberger, Dean and Mrs. Morley Mays, and Dean Edith L. Spencer will receive.

Faculty Sponsors Program

Highlights of the reception will be a short faculty-sponsored program, which will be followed by a grand march. During the latter part of the evening there will be refreshments and dancing.

Under the chairmanship of Dean Spencer, the following committee is making final arrangements for the evening's program: Dorothy Clemens, Jane Miller Crosby, Donald S. Johnson, Helen Kiracofe, Frances J. Mathias, and Dean Sollenberger.

Tentative Plans Laid For 'Voice of Juniata'

"The Radio Committee has formulated a number of tentative plans for programs to be broadcast over WHUN during the coming year, and we anticipate a successful season," reports Hilton Hines, committee chairman.

Continuing the policy adopted late last year, the committee will ask each campus organization to prepare and present two or more programs during the year. Once plans are underway, it is intended to schedule programs well in advance.

IMPORTANT MEETING TUES.

An All-College meeting will be held in Oller Hall Tuesday at 10 a. m., in order that students may fill out class cards for the registrar's office. Attendance is required.

LISTENING HOUR DELAYED

Listening Hour, a Sunday afternoon program of the best in recorded music, is expected to be revived in the near future, according to Miss Marion Thomas of the music department. Its start has been delayed by the non-arrival of the necessary equipment.

Dream Comes True As Halls Visit Seats Of World Culture

By Dave Armacost

All aboard for London, Oxford, Stratford-on-Avon, Edinburgh, Paris, Geneva, Florence, Milan . . sounds like a dream, doesn't it? Well, it was a dream for Dr. and Mrs. Hall until they boarded the S. S. Marine Tiger bound for Plymouth, England and the Old World.

The Halls traveled on the vessel as members of the ship orientation staff under the program of the American Friends Service Committee Student Exchange. Of the ship's complement of 576 passengers, one hundred and seventy-seven were students.

Abroad ship Dr. Hall served as program director and Mrs. Hall became hostess-librarian. Activities at sea included the publication of a ship newspaper, "The Tiger Rag", language study, panel discussions, and lectures. "You are the foreigner now" was the central theme. Miss Phyllis Joyce, English actress, aided the students in putting on a ship show.

"City of Mellow Charm"

Two weeks were spent in London. Dr. Hall calls this "a city of mellow charm." It is de-centralized and spread out. "Of the countries we have seen England is in the toughest straits." Thhe English people are only allowed 23 cents worth of meat and 3 pints of milk per week. Dr. Hall pointed that although the diet is ill-balanced and monotonous no one is starving. In France and Italy, comparatively speaking, meat is plentiful. "Both Italy and France are making a good recovery; they have a correct balance of trade and agriculture. Britain is finding it difficult to understand that she is a third-rate power."

Visit Points of Interest

In England our globe-trotters inspected Windsor Castle, the Tower, Westminster Abbey, Oxford and the Canterbury Cathedral. They visited Stratford-on-Avon and took a trip into Scotland. Particularly of interest to Dr. Hall was Derbyshire County, England, where his grandfather was born.

Crossing the continent the travelers' next important stop was Geneva, Switzerland and the Quaker International Service Seminar. The Theme of the seminar, which was actually held at Versoix about fifteen kilometers from Geneva, was "Sociological Aspects of Nationalism." About sixty persons-forty students and twenty staff members-attended the seminar. Among the student group eighteen nationalities were represented. Students from Pol-Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Austria, Madagascar, and Indonesia. Dr Hall lead a seminar session on "Seeing the world Through Textbooks".

Observed Striking Contrast

Dr. Hall observed "a striking contrast between the carefree faces of American students and the care worn faces of European students." Seminar sessions were long and language translation consumed much time. The official languages in use were English and French. Practically all of the German and Scandinavian students spoke English but the Americans and the French spoke only their native tongues.

The seminar group spent one day at the Palais des Nations, the place where the League of Nations spent its declining years. Now it is the European home of the United Nations. The world travelers attended two committee meetings of the Economic and Social Council of the UN.

Able to Follow Speakers

With the help of "brilliant interpretors and the system of simultaneous translations of speakers in French, English, Russian, and Spanish", Dr. and Mrs. Hall were able to follow a word or two behind the speakers.

From Geneva the students of world affairs traveled to Italy and Florence and Milan. They visited the Baptistry, the Campairle, the Santa Maria del Fiore, the Uffizi Gallery, and the Pitti Palace.

Dr. Hall calls Paris "the most beautiful city I have seen." The Halls spent over a week here enjoying "the cosmopolitan charms of Paris"—the sidewalk cafes, Notre Dame, the Arc de Triomphe, the Louvre, and the Luxemburg Gardens.

Caught in Demonstration

In this fashion center, which Dr. Hall compares in beauty and planning to Washington, D. C., the travelers were caught in a Communist demonstration. On the Rue de Rivoli, scene of great events in French history, Communists paraded chanting "Nous voulous la paix" or "We want peace" and singing la Marseillaise.

Politically, France is stabilizing her government and currency. There is a policical truce between the center parties.

Studied Quaker Report

The Halls sailed from Le Havre on August 6 arriving in New York on August 16. On the return trip the students discussed Europe as seen by the American and as seen by the European. They also studied the Quaker Report on American-Russian relations.

Great Book Colloquim To Be Continued

A group of 16 faculty members organized a colloquim last spring for the purpose of discussing the more substantial books of recent times. Dr. Morley Mays, leader of the organization, stated that it will be continued this year.

According to Dr. Mays, books with provocative ideas are selected for reading and group discussion. A colloquim on John Henry Newman's "The Idea of a University" will be held this fall. No other books have as yet been selected for the rest of the school year.

The organization is purely voluntary, it was stressed by Dr. Mays, and has only two requirements for membership: (1) reading the books; (2) participating in the discussion. "It is anticipated that the reading and discourse upon the works in question will provide a basis of communication in terms of lively ideas for the mutual enrichment of all members," he added.

'Berkley Square' To Be Masque Fall Production

A combination fantasy-drama entitled "Berkeley Square" has been chosen as the Fall dramatic production to be staged by the Masque. Tryouts will be held Monday afternoon under the direction of Miss Esther M. Doyle, who will direct the play.

Tryouts for the fall dramatic production, "Berkeley Square," will be held Monday, October 3, in Founders Chapel from four to six p. m. Everyone is invited.

Those interested in joining a committee or crew should contact Lois Esaley.

Following the precedent set two years ago by A. A. Milne's "Dover Road," the Fall presentation will be done in arena style. This means that both players and play-goers will be onstage at the same time, actors in the center surrounded on three sides by their audience. The advantages to this method of presentation are the large number of productions possible and the small amount of scenery necessary.

Requires 15 Characters

The play requires 15 characters. In addition, a large number of people will be needed for behind the scenes work on committees or crews.

Balderston's script contains a fantastic plot which begins in the the present but retrogresses back to the 18th Century. It was chosen by a reading committee consisting of Marvin Blaylock, Lois Esaley, Don Norris, Margaret Roop, and Corena Sollenberger. Copies are on reserve in the library for those interested in reading scenes before trying out.

Males Dominate; 648 Students Here

A two to one ratio in favor of the males exists on the Juniata campus, 1949-50 enrollment figures from the Registrar's Office reveal. Total registration is 648,of which 418 are men, 230 women.

This same ratio holds true for all classes of students, except specials. This group has only nine men to 12 women.

As for the GI's out of 174 veterans only 24 are at Juniata for the first time. The number registering is decreasing more every year.

Norway, Africa Represented

The freshman class gained 165 of the approximately 185 new registrants. The remaining 20 are transfers or specials. Among the group registering for the first time are students from Norway,Africa's Gold Coast, and Honduras, Central America.

The greatest percentage of the students are rooming at cloisters (280 men) and founders (185 women). However, a number will be living off-campus (129 men, 33 women).

Juniata's enrollment for the first period of the Summer Term totaled 282 with men outnumbering the women 191 to 91. There was a drop to 227 for the second period.

TRIBUNE EDITOR TO SPEAK

William G. Averitt, education editor of the New York Herald Tribune, will be the featured chapel speaker Wednesday. Monday's program is to be handled by President Calvert N. Ellis, while Dr. T. F. Henry has been scheduled for Friday.

Mr. Averitt is expected to arrive Monday evening, and will spend several days on campus. He will meet with the class in advanced composition Tuesday.

Will they miss you when you're gone?

by Bob Smith

"You know who I miss? Dotes Bell. It just isn't the same here without Dotes." That's what the girl was saying to her friends at the table the other day in the dining hall. It's the sort of simple tribute that we all would like to feel will be paid us by our classmates after we leave Juniata.

Yes, many of us miss Dotes, whose uninhabited cagerness spiked every group she entered with a certain impish joviality. And most of us miss someone or other who won their diploma and moved on toward higher conquests. I certainly do.

A Pair of Queens

Then there was the wounded warrior, Dick Stever, whose shyness off the playing field belied his tremendous courage and spirit during the game. Or Fran Mitchell and Mary Lou Cannon, a pair of queens you could bet on in any game.

More than a few miss, as I do, the gravely intense Jim Gittings, whose greatest wrong to date has been the silence he has hung between himself and his J. C. friends.

And only we staff members who remain can fully appreciate how much The Juniatian misses Jess Garber, the lumbering, reliable ex-editor who learned so well the teachings of the Master, Bill Engel; Harry Ball, the handyman with the Speed Graphic; and Richard Burton, the dapper ideaman who thought skiing was the national pastime.

Then there was the bebopping concertmeister, Glenn Cave, and the barrel-voiced choir president, Cassel Coffman. And I miss the delightful hummingbird qualities of Betty Finnegan, who was never to busy to go from one thing to a dozen more, and the elfin innocence of Mary Phyllis Gibbs.

Nor will I soon forget the modest Warren Groff, who, with his inquiring mind, elevated ideals and strength of convictions, was probably the man most worth knowing among those who were seniors last year.

Could Add Many

Many more Juniatians could be added to our list—somewhat sarcastic Sam Woodring, the logically vindicative Gunther Ruff, or hard striving Otis Jefferson—and all of them would be remembered. Fewer, however, would be genuinely missed, for those who are truly missed are only those who have given of themselves to you or to me in our campus life together.

The ones who are missed by us may not have set the world afire, but their interest in, and devotion to, people and projects on our campus have helped tremendously to make college life a social experience as well as an academic one.

Paper Plates

Paper plates are great!

My knife grates dully against them every time I hack at my meat.

My fork grates raspingly across them every time I pursue a pea.

My spoon grates harshly on the bottom of my cup as I stir my coffee.

Yes, paper plates are grate!

That is, of course, if you like picnics.

If you don't like this big picinc we're having, too bad.

That is, of course, unless you can afford two bucks a platter at the Koffee Shoppe or even 60c at Skips, or don't like to eat.

If you like this parade of the paper plates, too bad.

We go back to the glazed clay kind next week.

Personally, I'll miss them.

I'll miss the modern designs on Miss Mathias' linen where these papyrus platters have drained the sauer kraut of its juice.

I'll miss the way one side of my plate bounces into the air every time I stab at my butter on the opposite edge. (Anyone want to buy a new white shirt with pea green polka dots in front . . . . neck 15 . . . very reasonable).

Sure I'll miss them, and don't you scoff.

But I don't mind. Mountain Day is not far off.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

I would just like to point out that if everyone was as enthusiastic and cooperative as the students who painted the gym this week and those who provided the materials, all the resolutions we drew up at Leadership Conference would soon be accomplished. Those that worked in the gym getting the job done set a good example for everyone else in the matter of getting this year at Juniata off to a good start.

Editorial Reply:
Amen!

The Editor

You'll carry memories of this social year as long as you remember Juniata. And if you want to be missed or even remembered, then give yourself to the year ahead. Give your ideas, your devotion, your time and your loyalty. It will mean a lot to Juniata, and to you.

TOMMY

Don't shudder, kiddies! Tommy, the man who sees all, knows all and tells everything, is back in stride again. If you see your name in this column, don't be surprised. You won't get away with anything; the eyes of Tommy are upon you. It'll come out sooner or later.

Tommy was attracted to the Gym, Saturday night, by wierd noises that seemed to come from that direction. At first he thought the A Capella choir was having its debut, but on closer observation he found that the Gym had been turned into a barnyard. There were horse collars, ploughs, lanterns, and a good part of the student body, (Tommy discovered after the straw had settled).

I hope that Betty Longwell won't object, but wasn't that Charlie Barklow she had in tow Saturday night? Tommy saw Jim Streiner and Audrey Campbell plowing a mean furrow. Too bad, Jim McClain, that you didn't win the prize for having the most corn, but Peggy Senior is a nice kernel, n'est-ce pas? Tom Gates knows how to separate the wheat from the chaff—he was seen with Dotty Hummer. Seen promenading around the hall were Holmes Ulsh and Ginny Tyson, followed by Dave Armacost and Joan Clutts. Another couple horse-collared by Tommy was Harry Campbell and Jane Abel. Hats off to Betty May and her Social Committee for providing the students with an interesting form of divertisement.

After the brawl was over the dancers meandered down to Skip's for a change of atmosphere. Seen around were: Lloyd Mauck and Martha Petre; the couple with the far away look, Barbara Lape and Bob Wagner; Joe Beyer and Carol Shoemaker.

Incidentally, Gretta Madden, we know who Jocko Sykes is, but will Shirley Butler tell us who her lovey-dovey Riggs is? Who knows, it may turn out as well for Betty Savine and Joe Mulligan. Had any luck yet, Betty?

We heard that Ed DeHart came back to school early to fix his room up. We are glad that you got your work done in time to meet Shirley Erikson, Ed. That's what I call looking them over! Other people were eager to get back early too! Too eager! Bangs Keller even forgot to bring back George Gauglar's picture, but, judging from the way Bangs has been getting around, she may not need it. What do you think, George? Lets hope that Jay McGrath and Susan Bieber don't have the same trouble.

Two traditional couples of the week were: Donna Huston and Bill Cheslock; Carol Trotter and Ken Wener.

Sunday morning brought a few new couples out on Juniata campus: Don Robinson and Mikki Monks were headed for church as were Mary Lou McKee and Vernon Beam.

REVELATION OF THE WEEK!!! Janice Carper now knows that it is Tom Shoemaker who plays the organ at the Stone Church.

Tommy hopes that he will see you all at the football game Saturday afternoon and at the Faculty Reception Saturday night.

Until next week, adieu.
Be careful what you do,
Tommy is watching you!

Please, Girls, Linger Longer

by Jack Freymuller

September 22 marked the end of a Summer recess that for some of us was particularly enjoyable and for others dull and uneventful. Ours was interesting, we will say that much. A resort photographer leads an interesting life, lots of parties and so forth.

However, we ran across the results of the Juniatian survey the other day and found that some of our fellow citizens worked at Summer occupations that for interest or unusualness eclipsed ours by a mile.

One C. Moose listed his work as "cleaner in a cheese plant." We don't understand, Mr. Moose. The cheese or the plant?

And then Carl Curry labored as a mushroom farmer in Hershey, Pa. How does one farm mushrooms, Carl?

We wondered whether Janet Teramot really enjoyed her work, for she had this to say, we quote: "Long Beach, cleaning (ugh!) rooms".

Down On The Farm

We think Flora Jane Baker deserves some sort of recognition for driving a tractor on the farm this summer so we nominate her for the title of "Miss International Harvester 1949".

We must admit though, that we were somewhat puzzled at what we read on Bob Mohr's survey sheet. In the blank space after the "worked" question, Bob wrote "Taxidriver in Phila.. and Got Married!" Then under "additional comments" Bob added, "Great experiences . . . I heartily recommend them". Thanks for the recommendation, Bob. Sounds interesting.

Lots of Loafers

A general break-down of the results of the survey show that a large number of Juniatians did little or nothing in the line of gainful occupation during the summer if we can regard the large number of checkmarks in the blank space after "loafed" as truthful answers. What does that indicate, Mr. Wissler?

We regard, quizzically, the fact that about nine people sought and found employment as attendants in mental hospitals. Hence this gem of advice to incoming freshmen, "don't go to too great lengths to understand your classmates." Before we leave the subject of Summer employment, we find it necessary to ask this question about one answer we read on a paper. "Just what were you doing in Budapest, Hungary, Chabody?"

From our first day on campus this year, we had heard many favorable reports concerning the arrival of a goodly number of pretty girls here as freshmen and transfer students. We thought this interesting and promptly laid plans to confirm these reports at the earliest possible chance.

Accordingly we hastened to the Social Rooms but to our consternation found it practically empty. From there we moved to Skip's with no different results. Frankly puzzled, we reflected, over a cup of coffee, possible answers to this dilemma. The solution was simple enough, when we heard a disgruntled student seated on a stool next to us mutter, "How's a guy going to ask for a date if he never get's a chance to talk to 'em." There it was; simple as ABC. The girls just weren't making themselves available.

Now we aren't suggesting that all women students maintain a steady pace up and down Founder's Hall; we merely advocate an occasional appearance where they can be observed. Study the bulletin board just a little longer than usual or dally over a letter in the post office. Little observances like these may go a long way towards establishing lasting friendships. So think it over, girls, and smile.

Ten Years Make A Big Difference In Life At Juniata

Students were not allowed to walk past 15th Street without special permission from their respective deans. An administration official who was an undergraduate at the time describes a terrifying experience of walking with a girl and finding to his consternation and dismay that he had reached Fourteenth street. Needless to say, the guilty couple broke all speed records for the hundred-yard dash on their way back on limits.

Smoking was taboo from the pink apartments to 15th Street. It was a daring student who touched pipe to lips before leaving this boundry. Skip's at the time was a dangerous spot for those sneaking a cigarette, since anyone caught with the evil weed in that august establishment was subject to immediate suspension.

The co-eds, before the advent of Miss Spencer, were magnanimously allowed to remain out of their rooms (but within the pink apartments-Fifteenth street peripheral area) until the delightfully sinful hour of eight o'clock. The 10:30 hour was a monthly privilege, to be enjoyed only by upper-class women who had conducted themselves with reasonable decorum throughout the previous month.

Until the doctor told me
The danger of a kiss,
I considered kissing you
The nearest thing to bliss:
But now I know biology,
Sixty million bacteria,
And I thought we were alone.

Injuries Hurt Juniata's Chances Against Westminster Today

Fishing Still Good As Hunters Await Small Game Season

by Walton Nimrod

If you left your rod and reel at home because you thought that the Juniata area offered little or no fishing, let me set you straight. Your writer has just returned from the stream bulging with first-hand information, not to mention wet feet, an empty creel and a hungry stomach.

For the next two weeks, fishing will be first on the sportsman's calendar. All well and good, you might say, but where is this fishing? Stone Creek, well known for its trout, also holds a good bit of pickerel and bass in the lower reaches. Just ask Prof. Rowland how last week's pickerel tasted.

For bass fishing, the Raystown Branch of the Juniata River is by far the best in this area, both below and above the dam.

Surface Lures Good At Night

This leads us to the type of bait to be used. We have found that in these waters surface lures work well only at night. However, at one time or another they can be taken on almost any type of underwater lure or live bait. The season lasts until Nov. 31, so why not try your luck?

Most sportsmen's eyes are now turned toward hunting with the approach of cool weather. Small game season opens in full force on Nov. 1 for rabbits, pheasant, grouse and turkey. The first season to open is for woodcock and doves on Oct. 10, followed by ducks on Oct. 21.

Your writer has done a little pre-scouting and has found the overall picture favorable. Many turkey have been seen in this area; rabbits are as plentiful as usual; pheasants are very scarce; several ducks have been spotted while fishing. But after thoroughly combing our favorite haunts, we are convinced that the migratory woodcock has not yet arrived in Huntingdon County.

Anyway you look at it, there is good reason to be enthusiastic about the hunting season just ahead.

14 Teams Enter Football League

Fourteen teams have registered for the Intramural Touch Football League that began Wednesday. They are the following:

Crusaders, Locals, Bullets, Trojans, Maulers, Cookies, Jay Birds, Mountain Men, Burn's Home, T-Bolts, Sky Pilots, Flashes, Dark Horses, Killers.

Enemy Scores

Only one of Juniata's coming opponents won a game last Saturday. Grove City, Haverford, and Hartwick were not listed as having played.

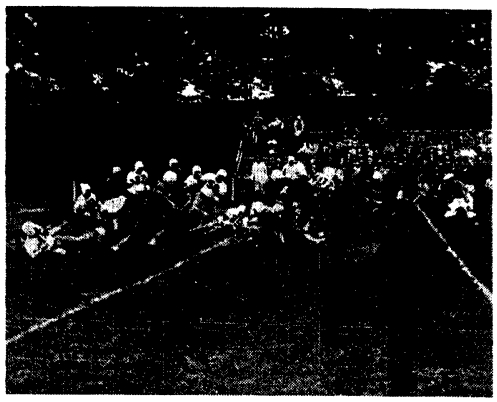
A Reminder



Here is the scene of the crime—the ambush the Indians were unprepared to fight off last year against the Titans of Westminster. Here they got stuck in the mud, were stunned, wounded, while a halfback named Dick Wharton ran rings around them and led Westminster to a 20 to 0 triumph. It was the Indian's worst setback of the season from the standpoint of surprise but it sent the Indians into the winning form that saw them trample their next four opponents. But today is another story.

Aldo Bonomi

Bonomi, Wilson Doubtful Starters; Dzvonar, Jackson Elected Capts.

By Bob Volpitto

Juniata Indian fans might well see one of the better games of the season when the Titans of Westminster tangle with JC today at College Field.

Coach Smaltz is anything but optimistic. All seven linemen that aided the Titans to a 20-0 whipping of the Indians in '48 are back with a season's experience under their belts. Westminster has discovered by this time the weaknesses that earned them a 21-0 whitewashing at the hands of Slippery Rock last Saturday.

Coach Mel Hetzler's boys work out of a T-formation, and use a two platoon system. By employing free substitution, Westminister is capable of having seven men to alternate on offense and defense.

About the only weakness noted was the fact that the squad from New Wilmington was unable to control the breaks. In the contest with Slippery Rock, Westminster was in excellent scoring position three times, but a pass interception, a fumble, and a fifteen yard penalty prevented their doing so.

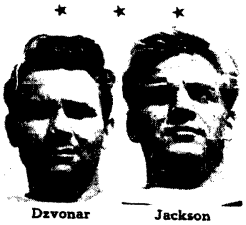
In most respects, Coach Smaltz —who saw the Slippery Rock game—said that the Titans appeared stronger in all departments over last season.

Burley guard Aldo Bonomi may not be in the starting lineup due to a serious knee injury. A brace is being ordered, but will not be ready for at least three weeks.

Another injury is the result of Bill Wilson's misshap during the scrimmage at Penn State last week. Bill, a tough, smart blocking back, also may not be in the starting eleven. Although Wilson has not played since 1947, he was shaping up as a strong segment in the bulwark of the Indian attack.

"The end situation is critical," stated Smaltz. Bob Morrissey has two pulled leg muscles, plus a battered hip. Last year's reliable George Smith will be on hand in this department, but there is no adequate replacement should he be put out of action.

As Coach Smaltz put it, "We will have to play top-flight football to win."



Dzvonar Jackson

Mike Dzvonar and Cecil Jackson were last night named co-captains of the football team in an election conducted by their teammates. The squad first voted unanimously to name co-captains and then proceeded to pick Dzvonar and Jackson as their leaders for the coming campaign.

Dzvonar will start today at tailback, the position at which he has starred for the Indians during the past two years. He is a 25 year old senior from West Aliquippa.

In two seasons with the Indians, Meteo Mike has personally scored 77 points and thrown a number of touchdown passes to his mates. In addition to being the team's best passer, he has led all ground gainers on the team for two years, kicks the points after touchdowns and kicks off.

Jackson will start today at left tackle, a switch from his position at right tackle last year. He is a senior, married, and resides in Huntingdon.

After transferring from Penn State, Jackson had to wait until his junior year to join Smaltz's gridiron gang. But when he did he won a permanent job at tackle. He is both fast and hefty, an ideal combination on the football field.

Both Dzvonar and Jackson last year received honorable mention after the season by the Associated Press. Dzvonar made their all-state third team and Jackson won honorable mention.

WHUN To Carry All J. C. Games

All of Juniata's football games this Fall will be broadcast by WHUN, both the home and away contests. Although some Juniata games have been aired in recent years, this is the first time that the entire schedule of grid battles will be broadcast.

News of WHUN's decision on this matter is being especially well received on College Hill this year because of the very nature of the Juniata schedule. Although four games are at home, the three away games are at such distances from Huntingdon that comparatively few students would have been able to follow the team.

The Hartwick game next week is being played in Oneonta, N. Y., which is nearly 300 miles from the College. The Haverford game site is some 200 miles distant and Moravian's home field in Bethlehem is about as far.

Work is being rushed to completion in the construction of an addition to the press box at College Field to provide more spacious accomodations for both press and radio representatives. The new box will be twice the size of the old one when the addition on the east side is finished.

Murphy's Party Attended By 250

More than 250 students joined in the festivities at G. C. Murphy's Open House Tuesday evening. Sixteen came away with a substantial remembrance in the form of a prize.

The program included dancing in the aisles, group singing accompanied by pianist Marjorie Seidel, and refreshments consisting of soft drinks, nuts, cookies, and potato chips.

At the close of the program, the boy and girl holding the lucky numbers each received a door prize of a handsome travel bag. The winners were Ardelle Hemming and Berkey Smith.

Another high spot among the evening's events was a treasure hunt. Prize winners in this contest included Lois Robinson, Dick Hollinger, Howard Long, Vernon Beam, Bob Champion, Don Robinson, Charles Towns, Chuck Allison, Ned Rankin, Mary Lou McKee, Bill Dickson, Bob Frain, John Sims, and Bob Witchey.

Even those unable to capture a prize were not left empty handed. Everyone attending the open house was given a souvenir package of stationery and envelopes.

BASKET PICNIC HELD TUES.

A basket picnic designed to give day students a chance to get acquainted with the women's house committee as well as with each other was held Tuesday in the Women's Day Student Room.

Graduate Record Exam To Be Held Four Times In '49

Special to the Juniatian

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 10—Tests of the Graduate Record Examination, required of applicants for admission to a number of graduate schools, will be administered at examination centers throughout the country four times in the coming year, Educational Testing Service has announced. During 1948-1949 nearly 15,000 students took the GRE in partial fulfillment of admission requirements of graduate schools which prescribed it.

This fall candidates may take the GRE on Friday and Saturday, October 28 and 29; in 1950, the dates are February 3 and 4, May 5 and 6, and August 4 and 5.

Since the GRE is not required by all graduate schools, ETS advises each student to inquire of his prospective school whether or not he is expected to take the test and, if so, on which dates.

The GRE tests offered in these nation-wide programs include a test of general scholastic ability, tests of general achievement in six broad fields of undergraduates study, and advanced level tests of achievement in various subject matter fields. Candidates are permitted several options among these tests.

Application forms and a Bulletin of Information, which provides details of registration and administration, as well as sample questions, may be obtained from advisers or directly from Educational Testing Service, Box 592, Princeton, N. J., or Box 2416, Terminal Annex, Los Angeles 54, California.

A completed application must reach the ETS office at least two weeks before the date of the administration for which the candidate is applying.

40 B. A., 131 B. S. Degrees Awarded

A total of 171 baccalaureate degrees—the largest in the history of the College—were conferred during the past academic year of 1948-49, according to records in the office of the registrar.

Forty of the degrees granted were bachelor of arts; the remaining 131 were bachelor of science. Men outnumbered women 116 to 55 in the graduating class.

The degrees were conferred by President Calvert N. Ellis at the three Commencements as follows: Mid-year (January), 3 B. A., 15 B. S.; June, 23 B. A., 72 B. S.; Summer Term (August), 14 B. A., 44 B. S.

The degree list at the Summer Term just completed was the largest for any of the 24 Summer graduations at the College. This occurred in spite of a drop in total enrollment for the session. When Summer Term opened in June there were 282 enrolled compared to 308 in 1948.

NEW SECRETARY IN P. R. O.

Miss Yvonne Beaver of Huntingdon, is assistant to Harold B. Brumbaugh in the Public Relations Office. She succeeds Miss Daphne G. Rudy, a member of the staff since 1927, who resigned to accept a position as assistant registrar at LaVerne College, LaVerne, Calif.

ENGAGEMENT CALENDAR

An engagement calendar illustrated with photographs of campus scenes will be available for 1950 through the Alumni office. Orders are now being taken at $1 each for the Women's League of Juniata College.

POSTWAR PLANNING

As a result of an extensive study by a Postwar Planning Commission, the college has launched a Million-Dollar Fund for a long-range rehabilitation and construction program. To date approximately $400,000 has been subscribed.

11 Prospective Queens Picked; Royal Election Set For Mon.

Lucky Girl Becomes Queen For-A-Day; To Be Honored At Game And J-Club Frolic

Polly Bane, Vera Compton, Lois Esaley, Gladys Gehman, Sarah Keller, Kitty Long, Mary Lou McKee, Lois Miller, Doris Quinnell, Connie Sherman, Elma Stine--- among them is a Homecoming Queen, waiting to be chosen by the student body at the polls Monday.

The election of Miss Homecoming III is sponsored by the Juniatian. The results will be announced in next week's special Homecoming edition.

The girl elected will rule over all Homecoming Day activities. Among other privileges, she will be the guest of The Juniatian at the football game with Susquehanna and will be presented at the coronation between halves.

To Be Guest Of Honor

At the invitation of the J Club, she will be the guest of honor at the Homecoming Dance. She will attend the Senate Breakfast at the Penn Koffee Shoppee as the guest of the Senate.

The candidates were chosen on personality, attractiveness, participation in extra-curricular activities, and an elusive something defined only as "having the qualities of the typical American college girl."

Only sophomores, juniors and seniors were considered by the nominating committee.

Biographies Given

For the convenience of the voters, The Juniatian presents brief biographies of the candidates:

Polly Bane, '51, is vice-president of her class. She was born in Burlington, West Virginia, and is a home economics major.

Vera Compton, '51, is an active Masque member, and has taken part in the activities of the radio committee. Another West Virginia gal, she lists her home as Arlington.

Lois Esaely, '50, is Senate Chairman of General Activities. A citizen of Hanover, Pa., she is interested in the Masque, radio, the Y. W. C. A., and W. A. A. She is an English major. She was student co-ordinator for "Sweethearts" last year.

Gladys Gehman, secretary of the class of '51, comes from Windber, Pa. She is a home economics major planning to teach,

Eleven queens have been selected by the staff of the Juniatian, one of them to be the students' choice for Miss Homecoming III. For your approval and admiration as arranged by Photographer Ed Dehart, they are "Bangs" Keller, Connie Sherman, Elma Stine, Mary Lou McKee, Vera Compton, Doris Quinnel, Lois Miller and Gladys Gehman (in the window), Polly Bane, Kitty Long and Lois Esaley.

Paradise Furnace To Be Site Of Mountain Day

Wednesday is Mountain Day.

No classes will be held on that day. Instead, the entire student body, as well as faculty and administration members and their wives, will travel to Paradise Furnace for some eight hours of picnicing, hiking, and athletics.

This location completes the four year cycle maintained by the College in traveling first to Spruce Creek, then Greenwood Furnace, followed by Whipple's Dam.

Buses will be provided for students who have no other means of travel available. A check will be made in chapel Monday to determine the number of buses needed.

The event will be postponed until Thursday, should rain interfere, according to Professor Paul Yoder, chairman. Others on the committee are P. M. "Mike" Snider, Betty May, and "Duck" Snyder.

Touch football and a student-faculty softball game, as well as volleyball and badminton will be on the activities schedule. Anyone owning badminton sets, horse shoes, or other outdoor game equipment are invited to bring them.

Refreshments will be served at noon at Paradise Furnace. The dining hall will be closed. However, food will be served in the hall in the evening as usual.

Seniors Have To Apply By Friday For Grad. Exam

Applications for the graduate record examination must be received in the office of Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N. J., on or before next Friday, according to Dean Morley Mays.

He added, "Any member of the Senior class contemplating graduate study should learn from the institution he expects to attend whether or not results of the examination must be submitted along with other admission credentials."

Copies of both the application and an information bulletin will be available in the Dean's office.

The test will be given at Penn State October 28 and 29, 1949. In 1950, it will be given February 3 and 4, May 5 and 6, and August 4 and 5.

It will consist of three parts: an aptitude test, a series of profile tests, and an advanced test.

Paper Offers $5 In Dorm Contest

A prize of $5 will be presented by The Juniatian to the group creating the most original and appropriate campus decoration for Homecoming Day.

A number of rules for the contest have been announced.

1) There will be nine residence groups for the contest: Geiger House, Founders, Brumbaugh, Oneida, the Arch and wing of Cloisters, the East and West wings of the Lodge, the Village, and the Faculty Club.

2) Exhibits may be placed near the respective residences or any prominent place except front campus.

3) No crepe paper may be used.

4)The contest will close at 9 a. m., Saturday, October 15.

5) After the official closing time of the contest, exhibits will be judged on the basis of originality and pertinence to both football and Homecoming.

Vera Compton, Don Norris To Lead 'Berkeley Square'

Vera Compton and Don Norris will play the leads in "Berkeley Square" when the Masque arena play begins it week-long run Nov. 14.

Selected for the part of Tom, the perfect scoundrel, is Phil Chabody. Janet Boland, a junior transfer student, will appear as Kate, the sophisticate.

Thurman Grossnickle as Mr. Throstle and Peter Mayer as the the frequently inebriated Duke will both have comedy roles.

Others in the cast include Elma Stine as Marjorie, Margaret Roop as the Duchess, Phyllis Link as Mary Anne, Gene Roddy as the Ambassador, Betty May as Mrs. Barwick, Corena Sollenberger as Miss Barrymore, Ruth Reid as the Maid, and two freshman fellows: Bob Champion as Major Clinton and Chuck Barklow as Lord Stanley.

About half of the cast members have appeared in former Juniata productions.

Invited To A Reading

Members of the cast and the understudies are invited to a reading of the play tomorrow at the Faculty Club. It will begin promptly at 5 p. m. Those who plan to attend are asked to notify Miss Esther Doyle. The group will also hear a broadcast of "Berkeley Square" over the Prudential Hour.

To date this play has brought out the largest turnout for try-outs in the history of Juniata dramatics, and the committee wishes to extend its thanks to everyone.

It was stressed that it isn't always the individuals who read best who are finally chosen, but those who fit best the character as created by the dramatist.

McClain Finds Eight 'Guilty', Passes Sentences

by Marge Seidel

The scene is Court Room C on the night of October 4. Lights are dimmed. Judge McClain and the jury await the trial with solemn faces. Across the hall in Cell B we find the trembling "guilty" awaiting their fate.

Beiber, Borden, Link, Wenger, Brumbaugh, Sikes, Raphael, and Newcombe—all present and accounted for. Conspicuous in their absence, two of the summoned are promised additional consequences. One by one, those present are led before the court members.

Third Degree

Through the feeble light of the sombrous room, we see the "guilty" take the stand. Questions and orders begin flying simultaneously from all directions. "Do you know what offense you have committed? . . . Who are the deans of Juniata College? . . . Do you know the Alma Mater?. .. Yell the pep cheer!"

And then the fatal moment arrives. With horror-stricken faces, the "guilty" receive statements of their punishment from the lips of the court members.

"Carroll Borden, you are ordered to collect all Coke bottles in the girls' dorm by 1:30 every day." . . .

"Sue Beiber, you will carry your Scout in a waste paper basket, wear no make-up, and report to the gym at 1:30 on Saturday" . . .

"Don Raphael, you are to tie your dink on your head with a red ribbon and also decorate your wrists with red bows."

FOUR STUDENTS APPOINTED

Four students have been appointed to the athletic committee operating under the direction of the Chairman of Athletics, "Duck" Snyder. The Senate for-

They are Hilton Hines, Stan Welch, Bob Volpitto and "Squeeze" Long.

Moonlight Hike Set For Tonight

by Lorena Hebrank

Take a crisp Autumn evening, sprinkle with moonlight and song, and add a liberal dash of laughter. That's the recipe for the wonderful time to be had at the WAA hike on Saturday night. Gladys and Bob Mohr will be waiting over at the gym around 8:15 to conduct you on this flight into the night.

Remember those old blue jeans and saddle shoes you wore while painting the gym? They'll be just the proper dress for this occasion. A certain location in the wilds of Lion's Back has been selected as the ultimate destination where a bright fire, food, and entertainment will be offered to the weary vagabonds. (that's you.) It promises to be a lot of fun.

Oh yes, my friends, it gets cold and damp this time of the year. What's that old adage about a word to the wise, etc.

Connie Sherman is the chairman of entertainment and Janet Neikirk has been wondering all week "how to get all that food away up there."

Library Opens Mon. At Brumbaugh House

A lending library will open Monday at 1:30 p. m. in the east browsing room of the I. Harvey Brumbaugh house, according to Miss Glenora Edwards.

A library staff member will be on duty each afternoon, Monday through Friday, from 1:30 to 4:30. Books may be borrowed for a charge of four cents per day. There will be a minimum charge of twelve cents.

Current fiction as well as non-fiction will be offered. (See page two for list of several titles now available.)

Homecoming

It's hard to know whether the enthusiastic spirt that goes with Homecoming is the result of no classes on Saturday or pre-football game excitement but it all adds up to the most festive, flamboyant weekend of the year.

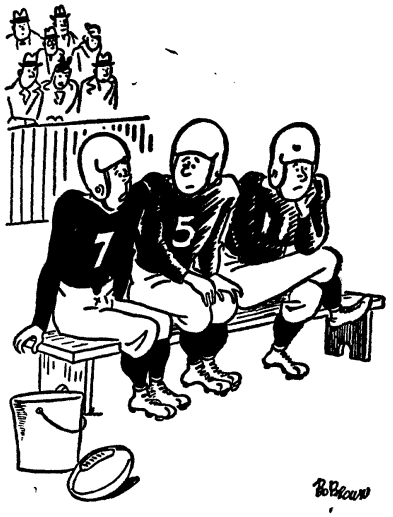
First, there is the football game—the central theme around which the weekend's gradeur is molded.

Second, there is the Homecoming Queen, who will be presented between the halves at the game and be the guest of the "J" Club at its frolic Saturday night.

Then there is the big decoration contest to determine which group of students can best combine ideas and talent to trim our campus with spirited displays.

And of course the sophs and freshmen will have their three battles to decide who pins their class numerals on Lion's Back.

It sounds wonderful. And it will be if we take full advantage of the day off from classes and realy dig in to make it so. We don't go to class on Saturday because it is a tradition not to. But it is also a tradition to build a Homecoming Day that will be memorable for you and me and all the grads who will be coming home next weekend.



"Three years on the bench and my poor mother worries for fear I'll get hurt playing football!"

FASHIONS

For Men

We had intended to write a bit this week about the newer styles in men's clothes, but had forgotten and it wasn't until we beheld Dr. Will, looking as chipper as a bluejay in a resplendent outfit consisting of a gray suit with gray shoes set off by a red bow tie and white shirt, that we remembered the job to be done.

It's always well to begin with shoes so we suggest you visit the shops downtown and ask to be shown something in cordovan, preferably the wingtip style. This shoe will match any ensemble, bar none, and distinguishes the wearer as a man of taste.

Try Striped Ties

Ties are next and we have found that the striped Repp silks (or club stripe) are due for an increase in popularity among men who like color in their clothes. These ties have a diagonal one-inch stripe that asserts itself yet never distracts attention from the rest of the ensemble.

One of the finer inovations in shirtmaking, we believe, was the addition of a celluloid stay to collars. This eliminates the need for starch and that uncomfortable dressed-up feeling when wearing a starched shirt. Check your wardrobe and see if you need a new shirt or two and then follow up on these suggestions.

White shirts are a must for a college man, we feel, with French cuffs a desirable feature. In either oxford cloth or broadcloth they form a basic part of a good ensemble.

What About Socks?

One of the most neglected items of a man's wardrobe is the sock; this being understandable because they are obscured for the most part by the trouser leg. Yet nothing can upset a good appearance more than a pair of ill-fitting, discordant socks. We strongly recommend the purchase of calf length hose to whom these sentences apply. Plain colors in an English rib are classics in dress.

The Circuit Rider made in informal survey among the women of his acquaintance regarding the type of suit they liked best and discovered that most preferred gray flannel. Wise women. They recognize the basic color and material for any wardrobe. The single or double-breasted model is just right for any occasion. So, hurry up . . . there's lots you're missing. Get downtown and check up on what's new. It may solve lots of problems.

J. F.

And Women

Isn't fall the season in which we all look over the "old wardrobe"—the one which we just purchased on beginning our college career, that is—and wish we hadn't fallen prey to the talk of the smooth saleslady when we bought this suit or that skirt? "Gee," we say, "that sure will look like Grandma's when I expose it beside one of those sharp new checked courderoy jackets I saw Pat wear the other day."

However, in the opinion of most coeds, she who went all out for tweeds and the "neat" as well as the "new look" last year, is right in there again this season, only more so.

Short Hair In Style

Last year the girl with one of the new short haircuts was an oddity on J. C.'s campus. We'd venture to say that a good 70 per cent this year have found that the long flowing mane was a terrible nuisance and wouldn't return to the pins and the curlers for a date with any one of our football stars. Besides, did you notice how trim the residents of the women's dorm looked at convocation with thir neat hairdo and small, chic hats.

Upon passing one of the nicer shops downtown this week, we noticed a window display of those nice tweedy sweaters that look well with everything. There're just the addition you need to give that plain colored skirt a distinct flair. There're fun to knit for yourself, too.

Saddles Unsaddled

Did you notice the strange absence of saddles this term? Saddles seem to have finally given way to soft suedes and crepe soles, which are ever so less clumsy. We heard one student from Cloisters say to a female who had worn dress shoes (with the right ensemble, of course) to dinner—"I wish more girls would bother to dress when they come to the dining hall in the evening. It makes a fellow feel like he's associating with women, as well as coeds."

It really isn't expensive, girls, to look neat and keep up with the major trends this season. A few basics will do wonders for your wardrobe, so borrow Charm, Vogue, or Glamour from the Library and then choose your neat look.

Letter To The Editor

I try to conquer this frustration—but the truth is I'm shaken, frazzled and angry from trudging over to Faculty Club and always finding the Bendix full and other harried individuals waiting around to capture the machine.

The lone Bendix now in operation is woefully inadequate to meet the needs of faculty and faculty wives, students and students' wives. The machine chugs away all day and into the night and still fails to keep up with the demands of the waiting bundles.

Having the Bendix installed was a fine service provided by the administration and we appreciate it, but now that so many in our College community are using the machine there is an urgent need for more of them. Can't something be done about installing other machines, say one in Cloisters and two in the girls' dorm? One machine in operation and all of the College community trampling one another in their desire to use it leads to frustration not just in one individual (me) but to everyone else involved.

Please, somebody, do something!

Harried Harriet

EDITORIAL REPLY

Something can and will be done to curb your washday worries. Business Manager Paul Friend reports that within the next few weeks two more automatic washing machines will be installed in the laundry in the basement of the girls' dorm.

The Bendix which was in operation there last year had to be removed during the Summer because of alterations necessitated by the construction of the dining hall addition. No hot water pipes were available in that area for Bendix operation, according to Mr. Friend.

As soon as the construction schedule permits the Bendix will be reinstalled and a new Laundramatt will be installed at the same time.

As for the possibility of installing additional machines in Cloisters or in The Lodge, Mr. Friend reports that present hot water generating facilities make this impossible. Even without laundry machines hot water is often at a premium in both those dormitories.

At present the same difficulty has arisen in the Faculty Club, for the constant use of that Bendix has often let its occupants with insufficient hot water.

When the three machines are all in operation the laundry situation will probably be satisfactory for everyone. The two machines in the girls' dorm will be for students and the Faculty Club machines for faculty members and the wives of students.

TOMMY

Hello Again! This is Thomas, resting up his corns from the Faculty Reception, getting them in shape for the Moonlight Hike, Hawk who wonders what game "Mike" P. M. Snider will bring along on the Moonlight Hike, Saturday Night. Does tree climbing appeal to you, kids?

After the "ring around the rosey" turned into a dancing marathon, Tommy noticed that there were quite a few alterations in the social set-up, such as Gretta Madden and Fred Dodge. We're sorry, Gret, that we read the name-card backwards last week. Andy Endrusick was seen cruising around with Helen Wentzler, Ann Weber seemed to have her own way with Nick Bruno, they even survived the "cutting in". John Simes emerged from his shell and was seen doing a box step with Mikki Monks. Fred Stauffer and Josephine Chiodi could not elude Tommy's observance, nor did Bob Rotz and Jane Abel.

Scoop of the Week!!! Tommy rates Bob Frain as the most versatile operator on campus. His diary would read: Took Joan Clutts to dance; made plans for Wednesday night with Lois Easley; keep Janice Wenger in mind for future reference. Its amazing what Lifebouy can do for one!

Tommy was surprised to see that some of the old stand-bys had acquired new companions, viz. Jack Buckle and Janet Neikirk, Keith Binkley and Della Fulton, Howard Long and Helen Maust.

Jeanie Link has been getting around lately. Bob Yoho escorted her back to the dorm, Saturday and she has been seen lately with Philips Carr.

Congratulations to Dr. Binkley, who did such a fine job of Em Ceeing Saturday night, and to all the other faculty members who were instrumental in making the party a great success. For a minute, Tommy thought that Dr. Davis was going to dunk his sleeve in the punch bowl.

The Saturday game brought back several old students to J. C. Such as: Betty Kiracofe, Dick Stever, Stan Wray, Jim Uits, Jim Brumbaugh, Matt Hiney, and Slim Boyer. Ah! those old memories!! There should be a few new memories, too; from the look of expectation that was seen in the eyes of Wheaton Pierec and Art Allen.

Gadding about on campus: Tommy has noticed Bill Swaim being nice to Gloria Amitull; Carol Shoemaker and Phil Kulp together in Church; Marjorie Peightel and George Newcomer poring over books together; John Weisel and Nancy Stephens, the long and short of it; Little butterflies Joyce Grove and Lucille Snyder flitting from flower to flower. Ain't that enough? Anyhow Tommy will be back here next week with the same line. Maybe he'll have learned your name by then. Keep hoping!!!

New Titles In Lending Library

The new lending library to be opened in the I. Harvey Brumbaugh House will offer both current fiction and outstanding works of non-fiction. Among the titles are the following:

Bowen, Elizabeth. "Heat of Day." This is a story of London after Dunkirk. The plot centers around the characters Stella Rodney and the two men who love her.

Burke, Billie. "With A Feather On My Nose." An amusing account of the theatrical career of the author and her married life to Florenz Ziegfield.

Short Stories

Foley, Martha. "The Best American Short Stories of 1949." The outstanding magazine stories of the year are brought together to suit most literary tastes. For the first time in literary history we find many short-story writers on American campuses.

Gannett, Lewis. "Cream Hill." An old house in Connecticut is woven into a simple American story that will leave the reader with a feeling that as long as Cream Hill survives there is still hope for the world.

Graves, Robert. "Watch The North Wind." This popular author presents a fantasy on life in New Crete, a Utopia of some distant age. It provides the reader with enjoyment and a taste of education.

A New Kimbrough

Kimbrough, Emily. "It Gives Me Great Pleasure." This entertaining account of the author's lecture tours will refresh your memories of the thoroughly enjoyable tales of Emily Kimbrough and Cornelia Otis Skinner, "Our Hearts Are Young and Gay."

Morley, Christopher. "The Man Who Made Friends With Himself." The charming style of Mr. Morley comes alive after six years to give you a picture of the reflections after death of a literary agent.

GRAD RECORD EXAM

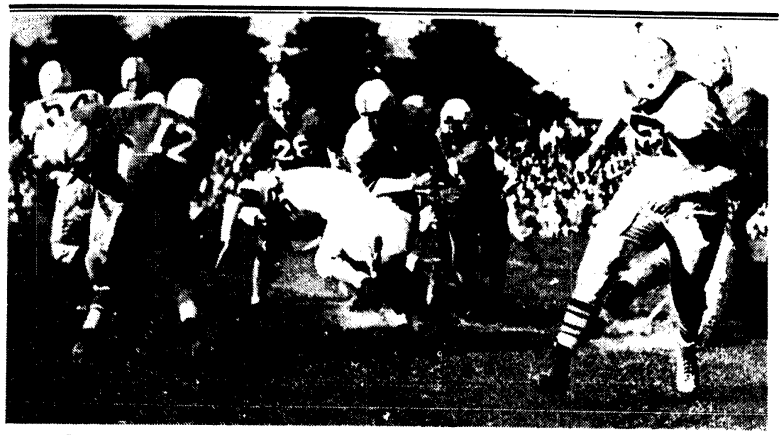
This latter test is chosen by the examinee and is "designed to measure the student's achievements in his major field of study.

Profile tests "cover broadly the content of the general undergraduate curriculum in colleges of arts and sciences."

The aptitude test is "designed to measure general scholastic ability at the graduate school level."

Indians Battle Hartwick Under Arclights Tonight At Oneonta



It was this up-through-the-middle running that won Mike Mervis ground gaining honors in last Saturday's contest with Westminster. "Mauler" Mike gained a total of 77 yards with an average of 4.5 yards for each time he carried. Mike Dzvonar gained more yardage but on one play lost 14 yards when he dropped back to pass and was smothered by Titan lineman. In giving credit for Mervis' offensive yardage one must not neglect to mention the huge holes that Juniata's forward wall opened for him all afternoon.

Warriors Have Perfect Record In Four Clashes with Hartwick

Juniata's Indians will be playing Hartwick tonight under the lights at Oneonta, N. Y. This will be the fifth meeting of the two clubs since 1937.

Hartwick has only scored six points in their four losses to Juniata. Passed performance means nothing in this case. These two teams have not clashed since 1940, when J. C. whitewashed the Warriors 20-0.

Under newly appointed Coach Benz, Hartwick held Brooklyn College to a 14-6 count last week.

Tonight's game will not be broadcast as orginially announced by radio station WHUN. The broadcast was cancelled due to a commitment by the Huntingdon station to carry the Pittsburgh Steeler's game.

Though defeated, the Benzmen looked exceptionally strong against their highly favored opponents.

The Warrior line averages 195 pounds, but speed and deception is the main Hartwick attack out of a modified T-formation. The success of these crafty tactics is highly favored as the Smaltzmen were unable to practice under the lights.

More J. C. Injuries

Coach Smaltz this week commented on the very good showing of Dick Young at the blocking back position. It looks as if Dick will again replace Bill Wilson in the starting line up. Aldo Bonomi will also be used sparingly. Both Wilson and Bonomi have ailing knees.

Inuries were few and not too serious during the Westminster contest. Fullback Mike Mervis suffered the painful loss of his two front teeth and is now wearing temporary caps.

A favorable aspect for Juniata is Hartwick's loss of their key left halfback, Rog Bauman, who was their leading ground gainer in '48. Bauman suffered a broken arm, and will be out of action for some time.

Hartwick football is noted for its wide open tactics. This, plus the arc light situation, should provide an interesting contest.

Three Unbeaten In Touch Football

Only three teams remain in the unbeaten circles after one week of season play in the intramural touch football league.

The Locals and the Jay Birds each racked up a 25 point margin to defeat their respective opponents thus capturing the decisive margin crown for the week.

The Standings:

Jay Birds	1	0	1.000
Trojans	1	0	1.000
Bullets	1	0	1.000
T-Bolts	2	1	.667
Locals	2	1	.667
Flashes	1	1	.500
Cookies	1	1	.500
Sky Pilots	1	1	.500
Mt. Men	1	1	.500
Crusaders	1	2	.333
Killers	0	1	.000
Maulers	0	2	.000
Burns' Home	0	3	.000

Three-year letterman Dave Croft is only one of seven married men on the 1949 football squad, but he is the "biggest family" man on the team. Last week his wife presented him with a daughter the day before the Wesminster game. But with a game of football to be played the next day, Dave was able to confine his celebrations to passing out stogies to his buddies. After all, this was his second venture into fatherhood.

The only other father on the team is Bill Wilson, who has one son to his credit. The other benedicts are Co-Captain Cecil Jackson, Bob Morrissey, Ken Kyper, Joe Dobal and Frank Stasenko.

Indians Win On Extra Points, 21 to 18

Blow 21 - 6 Lead In Final Quarter

The Juniata Indians unleashed a powerful offensive that paid off in touchdowns against the Titans of Westminster College last Saturday afternoon on College Field.

Juniata's scoring ace "Meteor" Mike Dzvonar, ran twice from within the five-yard line to score two touchdowns and threw a scoring pass to Julius "Squeeze" Long in the right flat where Long raced across the goal line with the third touchdown. Dzvonar's place-kick, with Phil Chabody holding, was good for the extra point on all three tries and provided the margin of victory.

1st Quarter

Juniata threatened twice in the first period when, with Mike Mervis and Dzvonar gaining with ease through center and tackle, the Indians reached the six and fifteen-yard stripe of Westminster. However, on both occasions, fifteen-yard penalties for holding threw the home team and apparently stalled the drive.

2nd Quarter

Scoring in this period was early, when, after George Smith recovered a Titan fumble, the Indians rushed twenty yards for a touchdown with "Meteor" Mike going off-tackle from the two-yard line for the six points.

SCORES OF OPPONENTS

With Juniata opening its season with a bang by beating Westminster to the tune of 21-18, their future victims met with disaster. The following scores are of Saturday October 1, 1949, with the exception of Haverford College which opens its season today against Ursinus.

Hartwick 6, Brooklyn College 14
Susquehanna 27, Wagner 41
Dickinson 6, Grove City 25
Moravian 13, Scranton 32

Dzvonar's kick for the extra point was good and the Indians took a 7-0 lead.

Juniata's second touchdown came as a result of the Titans turning to an aerial attack, having found the Indian's line too tough. "Squeeze" Long intercepted an intended jump pass by Carl Barthelson, Westminster passer, and Juniata took possession of the ball. Mervis went through center to the 28, Dzvonar ran off-tackle to the 20, and after a five-yard penalty, Dzvonar threw to Long in the right flat, from where Long raced for the touchdown. Again Dzvonar's kick was good.

Westminster threatened late in the second quarter when Barthelson's pass to Wharton was good for 36 yards. Time ran out on the Titans before they could capitalize on this drive, however.

3rd Quarter

Westminster began a drive toward the Indians' goal early in the third quarter, which found Dick Sylvester crossing for a touchdown after a 16-yard run around his left end. Barthelson's kick was not good.

The fighting Indians retaliated swiftly when, after Dzvonar's 31 yard runback of the kickoff, Mervis and "Meteor" Mike, running spinner plays through center and off-tackle, brought the ball down to the Titan two-yard line. Here Dzvonar ran inside tackle to score. The "Meteor's" kick was again good for the extra point.

4th Quarter

Westminster's second score came early in the fourth quarter when, with the ball on the Indian's 23 yard-line, Sylvester broke through the center of the Juniata line, reversed his field and raced 23 yards to score. On the try for the extra point, the pass from center was no good and the ball was grounded.

In desperation, the Titans opened up their aerial attack late in the fourth quarter. Barthelson threw one pass good for 29 yards and promptly threw another from the 22 yard line to Wharton in the end zone for the third Titan touchdown. The try for the extra point was no good, however, and the score stood at J. C. 21, Titans 18.

Lack of Pass Defense

Lack of an adequate pass defense and in insufficient number of reserves were the main factors behind the close score. The tiring Indians just couldn't cope with the two-platoon system employed by Westminster. Several new J. C. performers showed up well, notably End Mervin Metz and blocking back Pat Lampone.

Score by Quarters:

Westminster	0	0	6	12—18
Juniata	0	14	7	0—21

Good Bird Hunting Nearby

by Walton Nimrod

According to many, including our president. Autumn is the best season of the year. Hunting is one of the best ways to enjoy nature's beauty at this time. Both the scenic beauty and hunting that are enjoyed in this area are among the foremost in the United States. If you keep this in mind the next time in the field, I am sure your hunting experience will mean much more to you.

If you are at all like me, you are already eager to do some hunting. So let's make a suggestion: try crow hunting. The wily black marauder will provoke the very best skill which is in you, and at the same time you will do a service to the local farmers.

Choice Hunting Spots

It is not my policy to reveal favorite hunting spots, but in this case an exception is in order. My three favorite haunts are the farmlands adjoining the loop road, the land bordering the ridge road, which offers a breath-taking view, and the hills behind Lions Back.

Monday Initiates Season

As mentioned last week, Monday will initiate the dove and woodcock season. Since many of you come from areas where these first-rate birds are scarce or non-existant, a word as to habitat and characteristics.

The dove is frequently found in corn and stubble fields and occasionally in trees bordering these fields. The woodcock is usually found in brushy marshland, since this type of cover contains the insects and worms on which this bird thrives.

Both Are Tough Targets

Almost any hunter is able to recognize the dove since it closely resembles its near relative, the pigeon. But not everyone is familiar with the woodcock. It is a brown bird about the size of a quail, whose outstanding features are stubby wings and an extremely long beak.

Provide Difficult Target

Because of their erratic type of flight, both of these birds provide an extremely difficult target. However, when flushed, they seldom fly far, thus offering the hunter the possibility of a second chance.

This year the hunting license fee has been raised from two dollars to three dollars and fifteen cents. If you plan to start Monday you had better see the town clerk at once.

'Program Very Intelligent' Says Herald Tribune Editor

by Dave Armacost

"Your freshmen program is very intelligent—you are far ahead of your competition, if other colleges kick about integration courses, it is a reflection on them not on Juniata; the 'responsible press' is accurate in so far as is humanly possible; advertisers have no influence on newspaper policy—these are some of the significant statements made by William G. Averitt, education editor of the New York Herald Tribune, in a discussion with the advanced composition class on Tuesday.

"Education," emphasized Mr. Averitt, "is probably one of the most important subjects to be interpreted," a viewpoint which he candidly admits is not universally shared by his associates.

Outlines Operation

In a frank and friendly manner the newspaperman outlined the operation of a metropolitan newspaper, explained how policy is determined and discussed futures in journalism. Mr. Averitt practically took the students into an imaginary conference with the managing editor and the editorial staff.

At the managing editor's conference the foreign editor, the city editor, the national editor, the photo editor, and the Washington editor present cases for having their stories featured on the prominent first page spots. After the arguments are presented, the editors with a "general air of imperial wisdom" select the favored stories.

No Effort To Dictate

Before lunch the dozen or so editorial writers assemble and decide what news should be interpreted. According to Mr. Averitt, there is no effort on the part of newspaper heads to dictate what should be written and how. In determining what presidential candidate to sponsor the editors hold what is comparable to a "bull session". The owners are in on this.

Mr. Averitt tells of one editor who lacks only the Toga to give him a "Roman Emperior-ish" appearance. Then, of another editorial writer, who is constantly using the word "vieable" in his editorials. "None of us would use the word," laughed Mr. Averitt, "We wouldn't want to deprive him of it."

The "lead" editorial, that is, the editorial to the extreme left on the editoral page, is read by up to 50% of your readership.

'Responsible Press' Is Accurate

Commenting on the accusation that newspapers are not telling the whole story about affairs in Europe, the writer concluded that the 'responsible press' is accurate. He said a difficulty may lie in the fact that young men are needed for the strenuous job of reporting foreign news. These men may be without the experience and mature judgement that an older man would have.

"Good journalism," set forth the visitor," is trying to tell the exact story. Interpretive writing is valid only so long as the writer keeps faith with the public.

Concerning newspaper policy, Mr. Averitt feels "that you gain if you take a stand." He does not think highly of "A & P" papers which buy their features and editorials from a syndicate.

Future Gloomy

"Futures in journalism look gloomy. The newspapers are singing the budget blues." Mr. Averitt sees no hope here until we have a balanced economy. "The only jobs on the metropolitan papers are those of advertising salesmen." However, he pointed out that the small "dailies" have a large turn-over in personnel and are usually less effected by nation-wide business trends.

Mr. Averitt feels that the small paper is the place for young journalists to start. Here you become familiar with all operations of a newspaper.

Office Vacancies Now Being Filled In Three Clubs

Graduation or inability of members to return to Juniata has created vacancies in the offices of the Camera Club, the Tycoon Club, and Volunteers.

George Layman, vice-president of the Camera Club, plans to call a meeting in the near future to fill the office of president. It was left vacant when Floyd McDowell was graduated in June.

Charles Dillon and Pat Miller were elected vice-president and secretary-treasurer respectively at a Tycoon Club meeting held Tuesday. They replace Forest Wilson and Mary Faye Hannum Glass, who were graduated. Professor Willis Wissler was again elected faculty advisor.

At the same meeting, Richard Coffman, Jr., president of the club, appointed Al Bohn chairman of the steering committee and placed George Layman in charge of publicity.

Automatically Becomes President

Neither the publicity chairman, George Francis, nor the president, Dave Lewis, of Volunteers returned to Juniata this year. In this organization the vice-president, Mildred Rosenberger, automatically becomes president. Louise Cray is temporarily filling the office of publicity chairman. An election will be held soon to fill these posts.

Y. W. C. A. LISTS OFFICERS

The Juniatian inadvertently omitted the officers and committee chairmen of the Y. W. C. A. when preparing the campus directory.

The officers are president, Edith Roberts; vice-president, Doris Harvey; treasurer, Mary Lou McKee; and secretary Connie Sherman.

Committee chairman are Dot Humphries, music; Ruth Kimble, social service; Jill Woodring, publicity; Dot Lehman, world service; Doris Mickle, program; and Joanne Stayer, day students.

Radio Series Starts With Homecoming

Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. will mark the opening "Juniata on the Air" program in the radio committee's series for 1949-50.

Sponsored by The Juniatian, the first program will be devoted to Homecoming. It will be followed on October 19 by a Lambda Gamma presentation.

Slated for the near future are several other programs, including a production of Alpha Beta Gamma on November 9, an A Cappella choir program of Thanksgiving music November 23, and a talent show November 16.

The talent show will be produced by the radio committee with the winners of an all-campus amatuer night to be sponsored by the social committee.

Dr. Crosby Finds Habana City Of New And Old

"You can hardly believe that in one hour you could come to a civilization so at variance with our own," reported Dr. Crosby in describing the Crosbys "honeymoon" excursion to Habana, Cuba in June.

DR. KENNETH CROSBY

Habana is a city of about 70,000 people. There is a contrast between the old and the new here. The streetcars are a romance in themselves. Philadelphia sold the old horse cars to Habana."

The city is an "architect's paradise." Buildings represent all styles and are painted all colors of the rainbow.

"In Cuba a man must be quick and agile of body," stressed the history professor. "The traffic moves at an astonishing speed in typically narrow streets." There is apparently little or no traffic regulation. However, there are few accidents.

Buses slow up and the man hops on. During rush hours passengers stand on bumpers. "The Cubans use their horns more than their brakes. At an intersection everybody blows his horn and keeps on going."

Climate Surprising

Although Cuba is a subtropical country, "the climate is surprising—the heat is modified by the trade winds and the evenings are reasonably comfortable."

While in Habana, both Dr. and Mrs. Crosby enrolled at the University of Habana. Unfortunately, Mrs. Crosby was unable to finish her courses because of sickness.

The University, according to Dr. Crosby, is modern and offers preparation in all of the professions. Dr. Crosby observed "that the students, by and large, are more mature than American students."

Although bull fighting is not permitted in Cuba, there is "wild betting on cock fights and the fast, dangerous game of Hai-alai. Baseball and basketball are the major sports.

"Loud and Venal"

"Cuban politics are loud and venal," Dr. Crosby stated. The candidate for mayor had a sign stretching across the harbor with letters three fet high.

Cuban unions are strong and require that Cuban employers hire a certain percentage of Cubans.

For those who measure success in gold, Habana is the place to go. Dr. Crosby reports, "more fantail cadillacs than I have ever seen."

Gladys Gehman Homecoming Queen

Juniatian

Juniata College Student Weekly

VOLUME XXVI Huntingdon, Penna. OCTOBER 14, 1949 NUMBER 5

513 Cast Ballots For Miss Homecoming III

The record number of 513 Juniata students voted themselves a Homecoming Queen early this week. She is Gladys Gehman, a junior majoring in home economics.

The new Queen will be named Miss Homecoming III at a special recognition ceremony which will precede the Homecoming Day football game between the Juniata Indians and the Susquehanna Crusaders.

'Communism vs. Christianity' Topic of Commission Talks

Communism vs. Christianity.

That will be the general subject of the first program of talks and discussions to be sponsored by the new Religious Planning Commission on campus next weekend.

The program will begin in chapel on Friday morning with a talk on the challenge of communism for Christianity. The speaker, Luther Harshbarger, has recently been in Austria where he had first hand experience with Communists.

Discussion groups will be the next part of the program. They will be held Sunday evening in the homes of a number of faculty members.

Students planning to join these groups to listen and discuss the problem will be asked to sign a posted sheet during the coming week.

Other Programs Coming

Subsequent programs sponsored by the Religious Planning Commission will deal with practical problems that fall in the four areas covered by the Commission, namely, social responsibility, world relatedness, Christian heritage and personal and campus affairs.

The challenge of communism obviously fits into the world relatedness area, which is headed by Peter Mayer. The next program will probably deal with problems concerning sex, marriage and the engagement period. It is planned for December.

One of the chief aims of the whole program is to "emancipate the word religion" from the narrow connotation ordinarily given it on campus, according to Prof. Wayne G. Glick, advisor to the commission.

The idea is to discuss problems from the standpoint of Christianity, since this is the foundation upon which most of our students profess to stand.

Juniatian Receives 1st Class Rating In Press Contest

For the second successive semester The Juniatian has won First Class honor rating from the Associated Collegiate Press Critical Service.

The Juniatian was one out of 22 college weeklies in the 500-999 enrollment class to receive this rating. Of the approximately 80 papers entered in the competition, only four earned the highest honor, that of All-American.

Papers were judged on news coverage, newspaper style, typography, make-up, feature material, and editing.

Good To Excellent

The College Weekly was rated very good to excellent in all phases of newspaper work except editorial page makeup and feature material.

Covering trustee's meetings, tapping outside news sources, developing the human interest story, copyreading and proofreading, and developing a harmony among types are some of the areas in which The Juniatian has been judged weak.

According to A. C. P., "the system of rating seeks to create within the school a year-to-year effort to improve the quality of the school publications—to establish the ideal of improvement."

I.R.C. Program Plans Disclosed By Comm.

At a meeting of the steering committee of the International Relations Club held yesterday morning in Students Hall, plans were disclosed for coming programs.

Next Thursday at the first meeting of the year, Dr. Ernest Hall will talk on his trip to Europe. The Constitution will also be presented at this meeting for ratification.

"The Economic Consequences of the Devaluation of the Sterling Block," is Professor Willis Wissler's topic for the November 3 meeting.

Harshbarger to Speak In Chapel On Friday

Luther Harshbarger, Executive Secretary of the Christian Association of Penn State will be the featured chapel speaker next Friday. He was formerly connected with the war prisoner relief program of the Y. W. C. A.

In addition to his chapel engagement, he will act as preparatory speaker in a series of discussions on the challenge of communism which will be held in faculty homes Sunday, October, 23.

President Calvert N. Eills will speak at chapel Monday; the Wednesday program will be in charge of Dr. Edgar S. Kiracofe.

'Fashion' Theme Of Radio Show

"Fall fashions for the average citizen's budget" will be the theme of Wednesday's "Juniata on the Air" radio program.

The program is to be presented by the Lambda Gamma club under the direction of a committee headed by Martha Zeigler.

"Sixteen local stores and fashion shops, as well as a number of fashion magazines, have been checked for latest information on what people are wearing," Miss Zeigler added.

On The Air Wednesday

Juniata on the Air is presented each Wednesday over WHUN from 8:30 to 8:55 p. m. Programs are prepared by various campus organizations under the direction of the Senate Radio Committee. Hilton Hines is chairman of the committee.

The first program of the season was presented last Wednesday by The Juniatian. It was devoted to Homecoming Day events.

The cast included Margie Alleman, Mike Dzvonar, Jack Freymuller, Dr. Arnold Greene, Dot Hummer, Cecil Jackson, Bob Smith, P. M. "Mike" Snider, and Jim Streiner.

Queen Gladys emerged victorious over her nearest rival among the 11 candidates by a margin of 30 votes. This is the first time in the history of the Miss Homecoming elections that an underclass Queen has been chosen.

To Reign Supreme

Miss Homecoming III, according to tradition, will reign supreme over all Homecoming Day activities. She will attend the Senate Breakfast at the Penn Koffee Shoppe Saturday morning as the guest of the Senate. In the afternoon, she will be presented by The Juniatian at the game. And in the evening, she will be guest of honor at the Homecoming Dance at the invitation of the J Club.

Candidates for the royal office were chosen on the basis of personality, attractiveness, and participation in extra-curricular activities. (See "The Circuit Rider," page 2.)

Rally Opens Full Weekend; Closes Saturday With Dance

Homecoming activities include a rally and parade tonight; tomorrow night the J Club frolic will be held in the College gym at 9:15 p. m.

Frosh Elect Frain Temporary Chairman

The freshmen elected Robert Frain as their temporary class chairman at a meeting in Oller Hall Monday.

Candidates were nominated in the various psychology classes under the direction of freshman adviser Prof Alfred M. Goetschius. Three students were chosen from each of these classes.

Fifteen students were thus put up for office. Five committee members were also chosen. They are Ronald Cherry, George Newcombe, Philip Norris, Patrick O'Donnell, and Tony Segalavich.

Tonight at 7:15 the Juniata sports fans will meet in front of Founders Hall to boost the Indian braves on to victory over the Crusaders.

The pep rally will begin with cheers, followed by the introduction of the co-captains, Jackson and Dzvonar. Fred Shamlian will serve as master of ceremonies.

Upon distribution of the torches, the band and the enthusiastic rooters will parade down Moore St., over to 18th, and below Geiger House to the practice field, for more cheering and the burning of the Crusader. After the refreshments have been served, there will be a special surprise event to bring the evening to a climax.

J-Club Sponsors Dance

Saturday night the J Club will sponsor the annual Homecoming formal in the College gym.

Beginning at 9:15 p. m. there will be dancing to the recorded music of leading bands. An athletic atmosphere accented with blue and gold will predominate, according to Bill Murray, general chairman of the dance.

Center of attraction for the evening will be the beauty of them all — the Homecoming Queen III, Gladys Gehman. Sometime during the evening she will be crowned and presented with a gift.

Also taking part in the program will be several members of the football team.

Preceding the J Club dance, a program of light entertainment has been arranged. A variety show of off campus talent will be presented in the gymnasium from 8:15 to 9:15 p. m.

Bateson to Head All Class Night

Juniata's 13th annual All Class Night will be presented Saturday evening, December 10, 1949. This year the chairman of All Class Night is William Bateson.

This year's senior class, regarding this event as their last chance for winning the prize, has chosen as class chairman Margaret Roop whose ability, they hope, will bring them the coveted trophy.

The junior class has elected Phil Baughman and Hilton Hines as co-chairmen for the All-Class Night skit.

Jim Streiner is the sophomore All-Class Night chairman.

Bob Frain, chairman of the freshmen class, reports that no chairman for All-Class Night has been selected as yet.

In addition to electing a chairman, each class will be expected to select an advisor, two ushers, and a technician to help with the All-Class Night Activities.

Classes should plan to have their skits completed as soon as possible. Before skits may be used, they must be submitted to Dean Spencer, Dr. Donald M. Rockwell and Bill Bateson, general chairman of All-Class Night activities, for approval.

Last year's All-Class Night featured fine presentations from every class. The prize, however, went to the Senior class for their skit entitled "That Whosoever Believeth" which was directed by Cassel Coffman.

Royer Sees Possibility Of Campus Band

"With more response from the student body, a good dance band could be started," declares Holmes Royer, who is attempting to revive such an organization.

It is to be a campus band and is to provided music for various school functions. Students from all classes are invited to join the band, Royer added.

He stated that he was confronted with a few obstacles which are keeping him from having the band completed at present. The main obstacle is that not enough musicians to balance a small dance band have expressed interest.

To complete the band, Royer stated, a pianist and several saxaphone players will be needed.

WANTED-- New Building or New Faculty?

What do you think is more important to you as a student—the building in which your classes are held or the faculty members who conduct those classes?

To state the issue more clearly, which would mean most to your education: the spending of several hundred thousand dollars for some new campus buildings, such as a gymnasium, or the spending of a smaller amount to overhaul the faculty, paying the good members what they are worth to insure a longer stay at Juniata and replacing the weak members in all departments.

Both, of course, are expensive. And if you cannot afford them both, then which would you prefer—better buildings or a better faculty?

Your opinion on this issue is important, and so The Juniatian plans to seek the opinions of everyone in our campus community on this matter and then publish the results as analyzed and summarized by members of the editorial staff.

Many Other Issues

This construction-faculty issue is only one of many on which we will sound you out. We will try to select timely, significant problems that concern most of our readers. Such issues as:

Would you agree to have your activities fee raised in order to provide for a better, more elaborate Alfarata than is now possible considering the way the old fee is losing ground against rising production costs?

What courses would you like to see added to the Juniata curriculum? And why?

Do you think the program of social events and activities on campus is too crowded, too light, too limited, too stereotyped, or just about right? And what changes would you suggest?

The Juniatian, we realize, must never become the mouthpiece for anyone, either deliberately or inadvertently. It is perhaps inevitable, however, that editorial opinion will not always represent the opinion of the majority in our community. Nor should it, necessarily.

But since it is healthy to know what the majority thinks on any given issue, we will conduct these surveys and hope that you will take them seriously. The results can be most valuable to the Senate, the faculty, the administration, and the students in shaping the policies and programs for Juniata in the months that lie ahead.

Masque's Arena Production, 'Berkeley Square', Recalls Very Successful Hit, 'Dover Road', Two Years Ago

by Marian Otsubo

Those of you who saw and loved "Dover Road" here a few years ago are no doubt eagerly awaiting the opening of "Berkeley Square," another arena production.

"Dover Road," you will recall, was a tremendous hit. It was done when the rage for theatre-in-the round, ring, circular, central, or arena staging—whatever you choose to call it—was just beginning. As a result, Juniata College received mention in that aristocrat of theatrical magazines, Theatre Arts. As of now, it seems safe to say that the form is definitely here to stay.

Look Into History

Let us go back now and look a little into its history. We know, from books, about the choral space in the Greek theatres, the wagons employed in medieval times, the apron of the Elizabethans, and other practices of other periods. The Russian theatre, namely Okhlopkov for the Moscow Realistic Theatre is often given credit for the modern use of the arena style, but in truth they were developed independently in several countries.

Margo Jones Credited

Margo Jones, famed directress, can be credited for the recent trend towards central staging in this country. She secured the concert hall on the State Fair Grounds in Dallas, Texas, and engaged Jo Mielziner, who is to Broadway what George Parsons was to J. C., and had him create a new theatre interior which would be adaptable to as many types of plays as possible.

She presented scores of diverse plays, against the advice of people in the know, her experiment proved to be a great success, and her Dallas Theatre soon became the talk of the theatrical world.

Presented Great Plays

Contrary to popular opinion that plays of a serious nature would not fare well under this technique, Miss Jones has successfully presented works by such masters of dramatic art as Ibsen, Shakespeare, Wilde, Williams, and others. Since then, theatres all over the country have adpoted this method and have done a wide variety of plays.

That arean staging is so firmly established in the United States today, we have only to thank the far-sighted and brilliant Miss Jones, pioneer of them all.

Intimate Contact Possible

One of the distinct advantages to this type of staging is the contact possible between the actors and the audience. It all makes for a stimulating and refreshing change from the conventional form. To the actors, it is a definite challenge, for it affords' no opportunities for cheating. Instead, they must at all times be on the alert and strictly in character.

In "Dover Road" the audience, the players and the photographer were all cozily settled on the stage of Oller Hall in true arena style. In this scene are Vera Compton, who has the female lead in "Berkeley Square." Thurman Grossnickle, who will also appear in this year's show, and Ed Crist, '48.

Another point in its favor is that as no sets, as such, are used, it is the most economical method possible. Also, when the interest lies prominently on particular qualities of certain characters the arena should be the most effective method of presentation.

Should Be Perfect

"Berkeley Square" should be a perfect vehicle for central staging, as the sensitiveness of Peter and the mystical qualities of Helen are significant aspects of this drama. (As an added attraction, refreshments are generally served after the performances, followed by dancing.)

At this time, according to Miss Doyle, "the actors, always full of ham, can be congratulated and applauded to their hearts content."

How To Pick A Homecoming Queen

by Jack Freymuller

Before the start of the annual Homecoming game, the ceremony of the coronation of Juniata's Homecoming Queen will be staged before hundreds of Juniata alumni and students. At that time the results of the election held last Monday will disclose the students choice of their "typical" co-ed.

To us, the word "typical" covered a multitude of meanings, so we thought it might be of some solace to the voters if we sort of explained at length the meaning of the word as used in the consideration of candidates.

Factors Considered

First of all, the factors in the selection of the aspirants was the combination of personality and disposition. Many times this question was asked, "Is she usually cheerful and does she have a ready smile?" This was considered important because friendliness and a hearty welcome are the underlying themes of Homecoming weekend: with many old grads returning to live again for a day their college memories.

The second, but by no means most important, factor was that of personal attractiveness. This was based more on an impression of neatness and good taste than on physical perfection for it was thought by the committee that mere beauty was meaningless unless complemented by the good sense of the candidate.

The Juniata Ideal

A third factor was that of participation in college activities to some degree. Miss Homecoming III is actually the personification of the Juniata ideal: the girl who is active in extra-curricular activities as well as those scholarly.

The aim of this piece has been to show the difficulty of choosing likely candidates for the honor and also to list the requirements posted by the committee in order to enable them to arrive at the conclusion of their efforts with a suitable number of prospective Miss Homecomings. We heartily commend the committee on a fine piece of work.

An Encounter Related

Every year, with the arrival of new students on our campus for the first time, one comes in contact with at least one person who seems to be doing his level best to become unpopular. There are various reasons for this, but before we begin to examine them, we want to tell you about one encounter we had with an individual at meal time one day.

We were wolfing down a particular tasty meal this day and we gradually became aware of the nature of the remarks this character was passing out freely to his tablemates. With the help of a few choice smiles, he was likening some students who had incurred his displeasure to animals of the barnyard. Being keen students of critical methods ourselves, we listened intently to what he had to say. With a disdainful smile at his plate he would wither some innocent little co-ed with a biting remark that for sheer brilliance was remarkable.

Another Mencken

Fearing lest he should direct his sarcasm in our direction, we lowered our head and pondered his case in silence. Evidently we had in our midst another Mencken or Shaw. What could have transpired to cause this apple-cheeked collegian such bitter dis-illusionment? Perhaps it would be well for us to see Jim McClain and suggest a lessening of strict freshman regulations. But then, hadn't we seen other freshman laughing gaily while performing some outlandish penalty. This was indeed a mystery worthy of the talents of the psychology department. As we left the table at the end of the meal we caught one final glimpse of the haughty one elbowing his way past a group of our simple-minded fellow-plebeians.

This incident had a decided sobering effect on our thoughts for the rest of the day and convinced us that some word of counsel to persons like this was imperative. Therefore, pay close heed, all whom the shoe fits: Never take anything but your work and your beliefs too seriously.

TOMMY

Hi, Gang, here I am again, reporting from my observation tower to bring you the latest in campus happenings. If I've not included you in this week's column, don't feel bad. It's lack of space, not lack of information.

First, I must apologize. It seems I linked Howard Long with Helen Maust, but it wasnt so. Apparently good intentions don't count. Next time, finish your call, Howard.

Speaking of links, have you noticed these combos? Carr and Link, and Felix and Link? Of course, the first is Jeanne Link and the second is Phyllis Link. Incidentally, there is no family link between them.

Scoop of the Week! Norman Gerri must be sick. If not, why so much interest in that nurse visiting from Altoona?

My nomination for Bachelor of the Week goes to one of the quietest guys on campus—Wesley Perkins.

Predictions for the Homecoming Dance: Look for Mike (Metcor) Dzvonar and Lucy (Nightingale) Snyder, Phillips (You lucky girls) Carr and Nancy (Steve) Stephans, John (Dagwood) Weisel and Betsy (Blondie) Diveley.

Mr. Goetschius, check your classes! Don Raphael is about to be psychoanalyzed by one of the female of the species. Could it be Janet Wenger?

With all these alumni on campus tomorrow, you'll probably note Chuck Gionetro, Doats Bell, Jack Hallman and Sam Woodring floating around to mention just a few. Tommy wishes to welcome all of you alumni, and he hopes you have a grand time. Above all, he hopes you remember the times he had you in his little column.

What couple was seen together last Sunday in church? In Skip's? In the library? In love??? Oh, yes, Joe Bernier and Bennie Metcalfe.

It has come to my attention that some of the freshman girls have already started to import the home-grown variety of male. Judy Shanabrook and Kathy Plank both had their boyfriends from home up to see them last week-end.

Jack Middour and Carole Hagen have been seen by yours truly several times. I wonder if this is the start of another romance on our campus. Time will tell.

My little effort would not be complete this week without a note of congratulations to the football team. They are really turning in some masterful performances. Let's all get behind them so they'll show the Susquehanna Crusaders what a good team can do. After all, Hartwick knows, as does Westminster, so why should we show exception to the Staggs.

Rumor has it that John Terbaugh and Helen Wentzler are seeing eye to eye. Could be. If so, remember you saw it here first.

Cutest sight on campus these days is the long line of girls practicing cheerleading. Oh, if it only weren't for these afternoon classes.

Faith and begorra, the Irish have done it again. As one Irishman to another, lit me congratulate Patrick O'Donnel for his wearin' o' the Greene (Carrie Lou that is). Keep up the good work me foine bucko.

With this, Tommy heads back to his tower to check his binoculars, astrology charts, and little black book. See you next week. Until then, this is the watchbird watching you.

HOMECOMING: A Festive Weekend Of Many Traditions

Survey Shows That Other Colleges Have Varied Programs

By Jim Streiner

"Homecoming—not one tradition, but many."

This statement not only describes the day which has become one of the more notable on Juniata's annual calendar. It is equally applicable to the first major event of the year on the campuses of many another American college.

A survey of the publications of several nearby institutions reveals that all traditionally celebrate a Homecoming Day, usually sometime in October. The survey also shows a definite similarity between many of the customs on other campuses and those at Juniata.

Traditions Standard

There appear to be four traditions which are more or less standard. These are the election and crowning of a Homecoming Queen at a football game with an arch rival, the final struggles which mark the end of freshman initiation and the beginning of friendship between all classes, a decoration contest for displays in the spirit of the day, and a formal dance in the evening which serves as a climax.

Each of these is a tradition in itself. Each is a part of the larger tradition of a day in which alumni return to visit "their College." And all are a part of and help develop that undefined something, "School Spirit."

Built Around Theme

Most of the colleges surveyed build their Homecoming program around a theme, as is Manchester College at North Manchester, Indiana. Friendliness is to be their

At Manchester, this theme is carried out especially in the decorations contest. Oak Leaves, student publication of the college, has this to say:

"Stressing a spirit of friendship and good sportsmanship, the basis for judging will be how well the display welcomes alumni, welcomes football opponents, shows friendly spirit, and shows originality."

Other features of Homecoming at Manchester are a nursery for children of visiting alumni, presentation of several events under the direction of various clubs including a play in the evening, and meetings of the class of '39, who will return especially for the day.

Expanded Activities

Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pa., has expanded halftime activities to include "a parade of rival college bands and a float built by the interfraternity council," as well as the queen's coronation and awarding of display contest prizes.

In addition, Westminster will hold a carnival Saturday evening, with various clubs sponsoring booths. Later, an orchestra dance will be held.

Festivities at Thiel College, Greenville, Pa., will be built around the football game, but will have "Tag Day, tug-of-war, pins, ballons, streamers, skits, and a parade" in addition.

The Tag Day is designed to raise funds for Homecoming expenses; the tug-of-war is to be staged between the frosh and the sophs, a stream between them serving as both a boundry and an incentive.

Also big events on the Thiel campus: All-Class Night; a "gigantic" (in the words of The Thielensien) bonfire; a "longer parade than ever before; "and the coronation of a queen."

It is interesting to note that a three minute nomination speech must be given for each candidate for this royal office.

Another college using the soph-frosh tug-of-war as part of October activities is Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Pa. P. S.—the sophomores won.

Girls' Halls Plan Table Decorations

Footballs and megaphones which appeared on dining hall tables last week marked the beginning of a regular decoration program for the year under the women's house committee ruling.

Beginning with first Brumbaugh, the members of each hall and each girl's dormitory will take turn in helping with the program. The planning and placing is under the supervision of hall presidents.

Student Is 'Arrested', Hunts Wild Horses, Sketches America on Summer Trip

by Ekkehard Eickhoff

(Editors Note: At my request Ekkehard Eickhoff here relates some of his experiences in his first extensive trip through the United States. A native of Berlin, Germany, he came to this country just a year ago to complete his undergraduate studies in history. He is the author of a book of poems and has written a history of seafaring. Having had two years at the University of Berlin, he will be graduated at Juniata in January.)

Originally I had only intended to go down South to see famous old New Orleans when my seven rich and wonderful weeks in Brethren camps were over early in August this year. But the fortunate sale of some of my paintings on the way down was to extend my excursion to an unexpectedly wide swing around the country, leading me to Louisiana, El Paso, San Francisco, Seattle, Victoria, and Chicago and Elgin, Ill., and home to the Juniata campus.

Still dazzled by the old world beauty of the French quarters of the city of New Orleans and the aristocratic outlook of the romantic old Teche country along the Louisiana coast of the gulf, I was soon overwhelmed by the tremendous vastness of the West when the Greyhound bus started out on the long trip through Texas.

No Mexican Visa

Arriving in El Paso I learned that it would be a hopless and vain effort to apply for a Mexican visa. Even if granted, the necessary procedures would require at least six weeks time. So I boarded a streetcar and went over the border to Ciudad Juarez. There I spent two days sketching the people and interesting buildings rather than the landscape, which could not boast anything in advantage of the American side of the Rio Grande, and went home undisturbed after a further excursion into the countryside of Chiuahua.

Santa Cruz River attracted my curiosity.

The next noteworthy expedition took me into the Papago Indian reservation, south of Tuscon, Arizonia, where an old Spanish cathedral right between the desert mountains around the

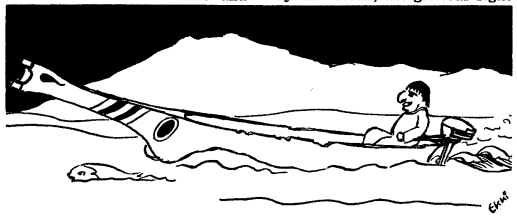
Since there was no public transportation available, I had to work my way out by loading a truck and had still a good deal to hike through the desert in some nice Arizonia sunshine, as hot as it can be in August. But I was richly rewarded for my troubles. There was a fine Spanish church building with towers and cupola erected in the 18th century by three Franciscan monks and the Indians out of mere adobe and without the use of any beams or girders.

Looming in shining white out of the reddish plain, with the life of a modest Indian village around and always some riding horses tied to the church well, the building is a magnificent monument and signifies the last functioning mission of all the historic stations in the American Southwest.

On To California

After a visit to some Arizona pueblos, I touched the Brethren college at La Verne, California, Los Angeles and Hollywood. Ignorant of the fact that the garden of California has grown on an enormous irrigation system (instead of benefiting from some non-existent Pacific winds, the moisture of which might rain down on California before the Sierras and the Rockies, as I had assumed) I was deeply moved by the spectacle of these enormous efforts of cultivation and the bounteous returns achieved.

San Francisco impressed me as the most beautiful city I got to see this Summer: The stainless white of the towering buildings crowning the steep hills between bay and ocean; the glorious sight of the two bridges; the natural setting and atmosphere of a modern harbor mixed with the unique characteristics of Chinatown and Fishemen's Wharf were appreciated as much as the old fashioned cheerfulness of those peerless cable cars.



But the deepest experience was still to come: the snow capped mountains and glaciers, the green islands and sounds of northwestern Washington and British Columbia. Once more copying my Mexican expedition, I entered Canada at an insignificant place on Vancouver Island, venturing over on a ferry steamer from the San Juan Islands. From there I proceeded to Victoria, B. C., another reminder of the old world on the Pacifc coast of Canada.

'Arrested' in Canada

It was not until I had thoroughly enjoyed the place that I was "arrested" for lack of proper papers, when I tried to buy a Loat ticket to Seattle. The Canadian officers were most friendly and courteous and regretted deeply to have to throw me out after so superficial a visit to their beloved home town.

The incident had the desirable result that I was forcibly placed on the ship which I had just intended to board, without my having to buy a ticket. With a cordial handshake the officer wished me good-bye.

After this I travelled out to the Makah Indians at Cape Flattery, the most remote reservation in the States. Here, under a friendly hospitable people, hardly touched and certainly not spoiled by tourist business, surrounded with the magnificent beauty of both mountains and sea, I found all the thrill I was so busily looking for.

Lived Among Indians

To go out fishing in the ocean in an old painted dugout (propelled by an outboard motor, of course) seemed more exciting but less enjoyable than I had expected, even on a sunny, "quiet" day. Meeting a couple of bears right on the road in the forest at 9:30 in the evening is an experience likely to give one that famous movie feel, especially if you have neither a gun with you nor have ever seen a bear alive except in the Berlin Zoo.

Later I went with the Indians for catching their half wild horses in the uninhabited valleys on the western coast of the peninsula and was taken along on a successful bear hunt. At my last evening at Neah Bay two native boys invited me to come with them for the amusements of the night. Out on the shore I watched their dances and finally participated in their ecstatic, melodius bone games around the campfire, the adequate description of which would require a treatise of more than moderate size.

All through these days I had sketched and painted happily and made only half-hearted efforts to convince myself of the desirability of starting out on the trip home, so that at last there was nothing to be done but to rush back in a 60-hour bus ride from Seattle to Lake Michigan.

A little later I came back to Juniata deeply impressed by the vastness and beauty as well as by the enormous resources of the country, and, above all, by the open friendliness of its people from all walks of life.

Amos Alonzo Stagg, Grand Old Man Of Football, Still Looking Ahead After Fifty-nine Years Of Coaching

by Dick Westervelt
Susquehanna University

Selinsgrove, Pa.—Amos Alonzo Stagg, the grand old man of American football, lounged leisurely in one of the pieces of overstuffed furniture in the home of his son, Amos Jr., along faculty row, Susquehanna University. Surely there was nothing about this strong sun-tanned face which immediately impressed you with greatness. He did not look like a man who had been coaching football for 60 years and who had entered hihs 88th year on this earth.

And when he spoke, you were again forced to stretch your imagination to believe that the grand old gentleman was well started in his 88th year. He rattled off dates and rambled on about football experiences with the enthusiasm of a school boy.

And what experiences!

Baseball Came First

Odly enough for a man who has become so linked with football, Amos Alonzo Stagg's first fame came through another sport, baseball. Probably his first great athletic thrill occurred when after many wearying months of experimenting with an outcurve, then an innovation to the game, the curly headed 14 year old Stagg ran excitedly into his mother's kitchen. "Mamma! Mamma! I've got it," he yelled gleefully.

Always intent on self improvement, Stagg developed his assortment of curves at Yale University where he pitched the Eli to five championships. His fame grew by leaps and bounds. A half dozen National League professional teams sought his services. "The greatest man in America today undoubtedly is Pitcher Stagg," a paragrapher wrote in 1888. He also found time to play end on Yale's eleven and was selected on Walter Camp's first All-American football team in 1889.

Although he has since become a much sought after public speaker, upon his graduation he abandoned his original intention of becoming a minister because he felt he was not cut for pulpit orations. Instead he felt that he could influence others to Christian ideals more effectively on the athletic field than from the pulpit.

Career Began In 1890

Stagg's career as a coach began in 1809 when he coached his first football team at the International Y. M. C. A. College (now Springfield College) in Springfield, Mass. There were only 42 students in the school, but he performed the remarkable feat of developing a team from a handful of players that was capable of defeating a number of New England colleges. On November 25, 1890, the young coach accepted the position of Director of Athletics of the newly created University of Chicago. In a day when whiskers and mustaches were as much standard equipment as helmets and cleats, today, Stagg led his Chicago gridders against such teams as Northwestern, Michigan, Purdue and Illinois.

Amos Alonzo Stagg

Under Stagg's able leadership, great teams and players were turned out with clocklike precision. 1889, Chicago came into its first championship overpowering such teams as Northwestern 76-0, Minnesota 29-0 and Wisconsin 17-0. In the years that followed, the Maroon of Chicago became the terror of the "Big Ten," and Stagg and his men the toast of the nation.

Refused to Retire

In 1933, Stagg reached the retirement age at Chicago but refused to take his well earned rest. Instead, he accepted a position as head coach at the College of the Pacific in Stockton, Calif. The public was delighted with the razzle-dazzle style play he brought to the West Coast; the opposition was puzzled, and as a result many a big time football factory found themselves in the embarrassing position of being on the short end of the score with the little western college.

In 1934, with a record of nearly a half a century behind him, the Grand Old Man was voted the number one coach of the year in the annual Scripps-Howard poll of grid coaches throughout the country.

This will be Mr. Stagg's third year as advisory coach at Susquehanna University where he has found a host of friends and admirers. On Saturday, October 22, Susquehanna is planning a gala "Stagg Day" for the man who at eighty-seven is still looking ahead, and still getting a terrific kick out of life.

Senate Offers Program For Extra Instructions

A tutoring program is now being set up by the Senate for the benefit of students who feel that extra instruction in some particular study would be to their advantage.

In this new approach to an old problem, upperclassmen with good scholastic records would be volunteering their time to aid students who requested special instruction.

This program, designed primarily for new students, will be carried out by the Chairman of Women's House, Elma Stine, and the Chairman of Men's House, Joe Beyer. Interested students are requested to inquire of these two Senators for further details.

A Short Short Story

I CAN REMEMBER

by Carol Cook

It's been almost nine years now since Bobby died. It's funny how I can remember so plain.

I was just a kid in the fourth grade and Bobby and Billy were just starting to school. I remember Bobby was sick a lot that Fall and missed a lot of school. We've still got the twins' workbooks in the hall cabinet upstairs; Billy's is filled, but Bobby's has empty pages in it.

I can remember when Bobby got awfully sick in February. He coughed a lot, and Mother let him stay downstairs in her and Daddy's room. One day the county nurse came. She said maybe he had whooping cough. But when she came again Saturday, he was better and she said no, it wasn't whooping cough, and he would be well enough to go back to school on Monday. But Sunday when he went to church he got sick again and Mother had to bring him home.

It's funny how I can remember so plain. I remember when I came home from school the next Tuesday and no one was there. They'd taken Bobby to the hospital where he was operated on. The doctor said Bobby had mastoid and meningitis. People having these diseases together usualy don't live.

I knew this. I don't know how I learned it—a kid usually isn't told these things—but I knew. And I remember that I didn't believe that that was what would happen to Bobby.

There was behind the garage an old chicken coop with three roosts. Billy and I found it one day. We told Bobby. When you get well, Bobby, we'll clean it up. There's a little box for you and one for Billy and one for me. But we never did clean it.

Some days Mother went to the hospital and some days Daddy went. There was a Jewish man in the room with Bobby. He said he wouldn't eat any of the food the nurse brought him; he'd only eat the food his wife brought from home. But sometimes when he thought no one was looking, he'd eat some of it. That's what Mother told us; I didn't go to the hospital until Saturday.

Saturday afternon it was when I went and saw Bobby and his room and the Jewish man. Bobby was all pale, and there was gauze around his head. It had to go all around his head to hold the bandage in place behind his ear.

I remember Mother and the doctor were worried because Bobby wouldn't eat much of the food the nurse brought him. He wouldn't even drink milk. We told him, "You've got to eat, Bobby, so you'll get well." There was another boy who had mastoid, too. He rode around the corridor in a wheel chair. We told Bobby, "You must drink your milk, Bobby, so you can get well like that other boy." But Bobby didn't eat.

But, then, the other boy didn't have meningitis, too.

That Saturday afternoon I remember seeing Bobby and his bandage and the Jewish man and the boy riding in the wheel chair. And for awhile I stood on the landing and watched some children coasting down a hill beside the hospital.

The next Tuesday afternoon I was home from school when our neighbor came over. He looked upset. "Bobby's dead." he said. It's strange I can't remember what I did then, but yet I can remember all those other things.

Like when we went into town a couple of days later and bought him a suit to wear in the coffin. It was a blue suit and we only got one. That seemed funny because we used to always get two suits alike: one for him and one for Billy.

For a few days Bobby's body lay in its coffin in the living room. It was in one corner and all around it were flowers. One day I went in the room when no one was around. I wanted to look at him. He was awfully white, and there was just a little bandage behind his ear. Then I touched him. Suddenly, I got scared. He was hard, and I didn't understand very well.

Then, at the funeral we all sat up front, me and Billy and Mother and Daddy, and the people sat in back of us. I cried all the time; I couldn't stop. Then the people walked past Bobby in his coffin and we left.

It's funny how I can remember so plain things that happened then. It's been almost nine years now. And I was just a kid. But I can remember.

Sadie Hawkins Did It..... And So Can You, Girls

by Eleanor Formwalt

Get set girls—the breathlessly-awaited Twirp Week will start on Sunday, October 16.

For newcomers who aren't familiar with the term, a definition will be gladly given. (What have we got to lose, girls?)

Twirp Week is a seven-day period during which the men sit back and let the girls take the initiative. On campus there will be many "Lil Abners" either rarin' to go or else as bashful as "Little Boy Blue."

In any event socially-wise girls will find men stationed at the men's dorms to see that every male is delivered into the hands of his date.

Alpha Beta Gamma Suggests

As an aid in planning dates the Alpha Beta Gamma has these suggestions for you girls. The "Daisy Maes" can take their dates to church on Sunday morning. (After all, the fellows have to catch a glimpse of the minister before they are lassoed!)

In the afternoon the couple can walk down leave-strewn paths. Singing will be a main attraction in the Social Rooms between 7:30 and 8:30.

After a little studying on Tuesday night the girls might take her "man" down to Skip's for a coke or a cup of coffee.

Wednesday Is Big Date Night

Wednesday is the mid-week big date night. Many couples will probably go to the movies downtown. An evening of frivolity is planned for the gracious gals and their bashful bucks in the W. A. A. room on Thursday night.

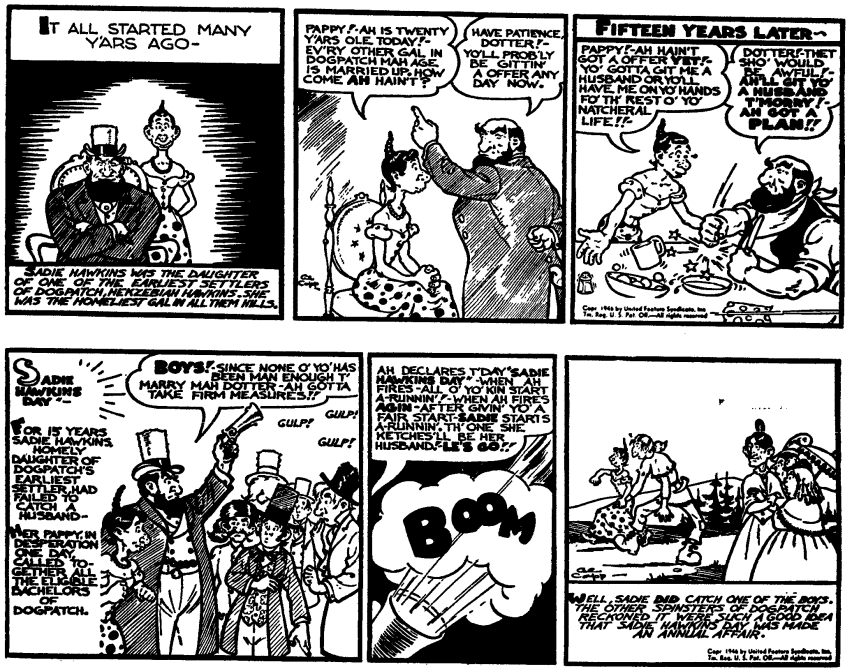
The pep rally on Friday will be a very appropriate time for those shy girls to make a conquest.

They can edge over and subtly persuade their prospects that they want a coke. Then they can ask them, if they haven't already done so, for a date for the gala Gypsy Carnival, which will climax Twirp Week activities.

Count Your Gold

Lets get into the spirit, girls! Start counting your money now, for you can't depend on shmoos to furnish the cash. It's a real well-known fact, 'though, that they would come in handy to keep stuffing your escort's starved stomach.

Just remember if Sadie Hawkins did it, you can too!



Indians Trip Hartwick, Face Razzle Dazzle Staggs Tomorrow

Iroquois Smothered At Oneonta, 26-6

by Mike Scialabba

Playing away for the first time this year, Juniata collected its second straight victory of the season at the expense of the Hartwick Iroquois at Oneonta, N. Y.

The Indians rolled up a tremendous rushing margin of 388 yards to 58, which explains their 26 to 6 victory.

Juniata kicked off to Hartwick but finding themselves unable to cover any territory, were forced to punt. Taking the pigskin on their own 24 the Indians rolled 76 yards to a touchdown, with Mike Dzvonar slicing over from the four. Later in the same period, Dzvonar shook loose on a 21 yard scamp to tally, but was called back because of a clipping violation.

Smith Scores

In the second quarter, Dzvonar passed to George Smith for 20 yards and another touchdown. Dzvonar converted to make the count 13-0.

Although Juniata was outweighed in the line by their opponents, the Iriquois were unable to spring a runner through the Indian forward wall.

The Indians dominated the entire first session of the game. Late in the second quarter Dzvonar smashed over from the 2 to put Juniata in front 19 to 0. Mike's try for the extra point was blocked.

Hartwick's only offensive strike came in the second half on the opening kickoff, when McGinnis took the long boot on the 10 and returned it to the 25, where he handed it off to halfback Roger Bauman, a 9.9 sec. sprinter. Bauman struck up the sidelines, past the J. C. bench and headed for pay dirt, a total run of 90 yards. Hartwick then trailed 19-6.

Mulligan For Mervis

Joe Mulligan, a capable freshmen fullback, smashed over for the last Juniata touchdown on a two yard buck with Dzvonar's place kick give Juniata a 26-6 tally which remained for the rest of the contest.

The final quarter was played almost entirely by subs. Don Howett, "the Dutchman," showed the fans some fancy running by rolling up 88 yards in 11 attempts.

Joe Mulligan played most of the game at fullback, replacing Mike Mervis who was injured in the second play of the game.

Lew Bradley, Hartwick's ace passer, was unable to play due to an injury last week, and the Iroquois only completed one of five passes. But, still, the Indians were on the warpath and were completely unstopable.

Frosh, Sophs Ready For Contests Sat. To Determine Superiority

In the game that will help decide whether or not freshmen dinks come off this week or not, the freshmen and sophomore men will battle it out tomorrow morning at 10 a. m. on the touch football field.

The sophs, led by Ed DeHart and Jack Rothenberger, feel that they can repeat their winning performance of a year ago when they won as freshmen.

The frosh, however, are not a group to be taken lightly. The frosh co-captains Bob Combes and George Newcomer are confident of a victory inasmuch as their team is loaded with talent from the high school football ranks.

Topic of Conversation

Tomorrow's game has been the main topic of conversation with many of the men of both classes since school began.

The sophs, feeling that the frosh have gotten somewhat out of hand in past weeks, are out to put them in their place.

The frosh, on the other hand, are convinced that three weeks of dink wearing is quite enough.

Tomorrow morning at 9:30, the freshman girls will pit their skills against those of the Sophomores in the annual hockey battle. The freshman team co-captained by Anne Kirk and Jo Pentz faces an undefeated team of last year captained by Virginia Tyson.

This game, which is one of the big events of homecoming weekend will help determine whether or not freshman regulations will hold forth for another week.

Although the Freshmen have been practicing many hours, they have strong opponents who also want very much to win. Not only do the sophomores want the regulations enforced longer, but they have a reputation for excellent hockey playing which they want to uphold.

Sophomore Roster

Those girls who will don their shin guards and help keep the sophomore title are as follows: Ruth Reid, Joanne Sharp, Clare Nolan, Kay Wright, Joyce Grove, Norma Jean Sinclair, Virginia Tyson, Vicky Scarles, Carol Custer, Connie Sherman Janet Neikirk, Miriam Smith, Margie Moore, Lorry Pfeiffer, Bobbie Werner, Lois Miller, Phyllis Kulp, and Lois Robinson.

The freshmen who have hopes of tripping up this challenging team are Jean Staude, Anne Kirk, Jo Pentz, Kathie Plank, Doris Mason, Janice Lehman, Dot Taylor, Rhoda Clemmer, Joan Clutts, Hope Rise, Carol Hagen, Jean Brown and Nancy Shiffler.

Summer Accident Nearly Blinded Scrappy Coy Hicks

by Chuck Allison

A near tragedy occurred to one of Juniata's star guards this past summer. Courage and quick thinking prevented Juniata's football team from receiving a serious loss of one of its best lineman.

Coy Hicks, while working this past summer as a sprayer in an orchard on Warriors Ridge, had encountered what might have been a serious accident. On June 9, Coy returned to the storage shed intending to refill his sprayer container. Inside the shed he unexpectedly tripped over a hose that was lying across the floor. Unable to catch himself, Coy fell face first into a solution of dehydrated lime.

With eyes burning and partially blinded Coy rushed to a nearby pump and began to wash his eyes out.

The employer, after a lapse of time, returned to the shed to see what was delaying Hicks. Finding what had happened, he immediately secured a bottle of milk and began to wash Coy's eyes. Doing the best he could, the employer then rushed Hicks to the J. C. Blair Hospital.

Immediate observations by the doctors led to the belief that the vision of the left eye would be lost. Later observations revealed that a scar had formed over the eye and would gradually clear up as time passes under careful treatment.

Today with the aid of glasses Coy is able to attend classes normally. Beside classes, Coy has more than showed his ability on the gridiron this season.

George Smith joined Juniata's "touchdown club" last Saturday night against Hartwick when he caught one of Mike Dzvonar's passes. Dzvonar, who scored twice himself against the Iroquois, leads the team in scoring with 29 points.

Susquehanna Tricky Opponent; Wilson Sidelined For Season

by Bob Volpitto

Juniata's annual grudge game with Susquehanna will be featured at College Field tomorrow. "We couldn't have picked a better opponent for our Homecoming contest," added Coach Bill Smaltz.

Both teams will be at full strength, barring any scrimmage injuries, and the fans can expect to see the best game of the season. It will be "razzle-dazzle football at its peak," as Smaltz put it.

Susquehanna is noted for its radical tactics. Almost all of their offense will be centered about one plan of attack; passing. Coach Smaltz estimated that, according to past performances, the Staggs will only run the ball about a dozen times.

Five seniors, plus a triple threat sophomore named Palkovich, will attempt to vamp the Indians. Palkovich weighs in at 175 pounds, and is noted for his speed and power playing.

Again the two platoon system will be employed against the Smaltzmen. The defensive line is composed of men weighing from 170 to 225 pounds. Coach Amos Stagg's offensive squad is lighter, as power playing is seldom used.

Susquehanna's offensive attack is know as The Stagg System. It cannot be dubbed as any of the conventional line-ups. All that we know is that it features two fast moving flankers.

"Don't let Stagg's age fool you," Smaltz commented. "He's not conservative, in fact he is extremely the opposite.

The Staggs however are not known to just dash around with reckless abandon. Quite the contrary. He plays the game scientifically. By the use of a stop watch, Coach Stagg knows just what to expect from each man. Every play is executed with split second timing.

Juniata injuries are not serious enough to prevent any one from playing. Aldo Bonomi's knee also saw action last Saturday. Mike Mervis' knee will stop the rough fullbacks entering the game with the starting eleven.

Should Mike be sidelined, Smaltz can easily rely on freshman Joe Mulligan from Monaca City. Joe took over the fullback spot at Hartwick after the first few plays.

Hot weather may prove a problem. Coach Smaltz is relying on top reserves like Don Howett, Joe Dobal, Dick Young, Keith Small, Gene Shaffer, Jerry Africa, "Squeeze" Long, Pat Lampone, and Mulligan. Unless the score makes it imperative that Smaltz keep pushing the first team, he will send these men in to relieve the regulars.

Indian pass defense allowed Hartwick to complete only one of six attempts. One of the incomplete five was intercepted. Passes, if you recall, bothered the Indians in the Westminster game.

Juniata will attempt to keep a two game win streak intact. As for a perfect season we again turn to Smaltz, who stated, "We will have a perfect season if we win the next five games. We play one game at a time: from Saturday to Saturday."

When You Say That, Better Smile Pardner

Juniata is making quite a name for herself in small college football—and, incidentally, quite an impression.

The Iroquois, official football program of Hartwick College, uses these words to describe the Indians: "unbeaten, onrushing, fire-breathing, teeth-pulling, flesh-tearing."

In Indian lingo the program calls Juniata "one of the most-feathered tribes." It warned the Paleface fans that they could "expect a dense air of arrows with the swiftest, most artful Iroquois horsemen of many battles buffalo-riding one of the nation's less vulnerable small college fortresses, Juniata."

"Long-Lasting and Illustrious"

This sentiment concluded the article—"It is a pleasure for Hartwick College to pass the peace pipe to Director of Athletics Mike Snider and the Juniata Indians, with the fervent hope that this new Warrior athletic relationship . . . will be as long-lasting and illustrious as the Indian folklore of the regions these two schools represent.

Broken Knee Cap Benches Quarterback

No contest is won or lost without its price, so it is with the gridiron.

It was announced yesterday that Blocking Back Bill Wilson will be out of action for the rest of the season due to a knee injury suffered last September 22 during the Penn State scrimmage.

At first the mishap was dubbed as being either a bruised cartilage or a bone chip by the club physician, Dr. William Patterson. Ice, followed by heat treatments, was applied in an attempt to remedy the injury.

The Indians had lost the ball to State and on the Nittany Lions' third play of the scrimmage Quarterback Wilson sensed a reverse. He cut over and was hit from behind. Grimacing with pain, Bill was assisted from the field.

Wilson saw only limited service in both the Westminster and Hartwick games. Coach Smaltz is expected to continue Dick Young as field general.

X-rays were taken Thursday and it was determined that the kneecap was broken. Last evening a cast was applied.

As a result of his efforts during the 1946 and '47 campaigns, Bill became a two-time letterman in football.

Jay Birds, Burns' House On Each End Of Standings

A never-say-die Dark Horse team came from behind a 13-6 count to go on to be a true-to-name Flash six. The Horses, though yet unbeaten, lost the league leadership to the Jay Birds, who have a perfect four wins and no losses record.

Names seem to mean very little this year. The Killers and the Maulers, two brutally sounding titles, share the cellar with Burn's House.

The standings as of Thursday morning:

Team	W	L	Pct.
Jay Birds	4	0	1.000
Dark Horses	3	0	1.000
Bullets	2	0	1.000
T-Bolts	4	1	.800
Trojans	3	1	.750
Cookies	3	1	.750
Flashes	2	1	.667
Mt. Men	3	2	.600
Locals	3	2	.600
Sky Pilots	2	2	.500
Crusaders	1	4	.200
Killers	0	3	.000
Maulers	0	4	.000
Burns' House	0	5	.000

JUNIATA OPPONENTS

With Juniata doing it again last Saturday by beating Hartwick 26-6, her future opponents were stymied. The only exception was with Susquehanna who finally broke into the win column after two losses.

Susquehanna 34, Lycoming 6
Dickinson 13, F & M 13
Haverford 14, Ursinus 14
Grove City 7, Geneva 13
Moravian 6, Albright 33

It may be of interest to note that Westminster has yet to win a game. They tied Theil 7-7 last Saturday.

Who in the crowd doesn't remember, and still talks about, Phil Chabody's 65 yard TD run against Susquehanna last year?

Last season we copped a 14-6 victory from the Staggs. We even got a day off to celebrate. Remember?

Glicks Meet Stork; Result: 7 lb. Boy

Versatile Wayne G. Glick, professor of Biblical studies, became the proud father of a seven pound 11 ounce boy early Sunday morning. When the stork arrived, Professor Glick was "sitting it out by the phone."

When asked if he wanted a boy, the young father emphasized, "I'm satisfied—but I would have been willing to take another girl."

John Theodore, who is named after Professor Glick's grandfather, will find his three year old sister, Martha Sue waiting for him when he and Mrs. Glick arrive home from the Blair Hospital on Saturday.

Virginia Born

Both Mr. and Mrs. Glick were born in the State of Virginia. Professor Glick in Bridgewater and Mrs. Glick in Mineral, Virginia.

Both were schooled at Bridgewater College. Mrs. Glick, who is a registered nurse, took her preparatory work there.

In 1939 they met each other at the event of a Chinese lecturer. Professor Glick doesn't know whether it was "love at first sight" but he does say, "I saw her on the street and liked her."

Came in '48

The Glicks came to Juniata in the Fall of 1948. Professor Glick had just graduated from the University of Chicago with a Bachelor of Divinity Degree.

Already taking his added responsibility seriously, "papa" was interviewed between washerfuls in the Faculty Club basement.

Those who attended were Doris Harvey, Dot Humphries, Ruth Kimble, Dot Lehman, Mary Lou McKee, Edith Roberts, Connie Sherman, Joan Stayer, and Louise Woodring.

Marjorie Allen, staff secretary for the Student Christian Movement attended the conference to explain the purpose of her organization and the relation between it and the Y. W. C. A. She also helped the group plan the year's program.

The Juniata Y. W. C. A. is a branch of the Student Christian Movement.

Faculty Attend

Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Crosby, Mrs. Morley Mays, and the Rev. John C. Middlekauff were able to attend part of the conference also.

A report on the group's decisions will be presented to the members at a meeting Sunday. Among future plans agreed to is a Christmas party for underprivileged children.

DOCTOR WEST SPEAKS

Dr. William West, Juniata alumnus and now girl's physician at the College, was speaker of the evening at the initial meeting of the Scalpel and Probe Club Wednesday.

His topic was antibiotics, defined as "organisms which tend to injure or destroy life."

Dr. West was graduated from Jefferson Medical School after receiving his degree here.

Following the talk, the club held an informal session as refreshments were served.

CHEMISTS HOLD MEETING

On Wednesday, October 5, The Central Pennsylvania Chemical Society held its monthly meeting on the Juniata Campus.

The program began in the afternoon, as the visitors were shown through the respective laboratories. After a dinner at The Penn Koffee Shoppe, the group assembled at 7:30 for the meeting in Oller Hall. Guest speaker for the evening was Dr. Walter G. Frankenberg.

Dr. Frankenberg, who is the director of Research Laboratory of the General Cigar Company in Lancaster, Pa., specializes for the most part on the static and dynamic chemistry of tobacco leaves.

(Editors Note: To facilitate more complete coverage of the activities of campus clubs, The Juniatian again begins this column devoted exclusively to club activities. It is suggested that club presidents appoint a publicity chairman to pass on to the news editor all information of past, present and future doings.)

Library Holds Auction Of Books Next Week

Joseph Knitzer, former violin soloist with the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, will be a guest on Juniata's campus Wednesday, October 26 ,under the auspices of the arts program of the Association of American Colleges.

In addition to speaking in chapel Wednesday morning, Mr. Knitzer will visit classes in the history of music and the arts and humanities. Also he will conduct a master class for violin students.

Highlighting the day will be Mr. Knitzer's concert in Oller Hall at 8:15. The program, which is open to the public as well as students, will include a violin sonata by Beethoven, "Concerto in G minor," Bruch; "Etude for Violin Alone", Leysens; Igor Stravinsky's "Pastorale;" "Variations for Violin and Piano", Herbert Elwell; and "Ruralia Hungarica", Ernest von Dohnonyi. The violin virtuoso studied under Louis Persinger and attended the Institute of Musical Art and the Julliard Graduate School.

Judging from the various awards which Mr. Knitzer has received for his work, there is widespread recognition of his artistic ability.

In 1934 he was the winner of the Walter Naumberg award. The following year he won a $1,000 prize offered by the National Federation of Music Clubs and the Shubert Memorial Contest.

Has Been Soloist

Mr. Knitzer has appeared as soloist with the Cleveland Orchestra as well as other leading orchestras in the nation. He has been heard several times on such programs as the Kraft Hour and the Ford Sunday Evening Hour.

With the exception of a period in the Intelligence Division of the U. S. Army, Mr. Knitzer has been head of the violin department of the Cleveland Institute of Music since 1941.

Under the auspices of the arts program of the Association of American Colleges, Juniata has previously had Carl Weinrich, organist; Ernest Wolff, tenor; and John Kirkpatrick, pianist.

Known to all Juniata students as college organist, chairman of the music department, and director of the Chapel Choir, Professor Johnson has also been represented in Huntingdon community events.

Besides playing for such local programs as All Club Night and Church Brotherhood Night, he has given organ recitals in St. Joseph, Missouri; Dallas, Texas; the New York's World Fair and Phythian Temple, New York City; Allentown; Reading; Kutztown; Mount Union; and Altoona.

Prof. Johnson is a graduate of New York University where he received both a Bachelor's and a Master's degree. Christian Choral School and the Julliard School of Music were the scenes of his post-graduate study.

Recognized In Magazine

In the October 1 issue of "The "Diapason," an organ guild magazine, Professor Johnson was given recognition under the column entitled "Programs of Organ Recitals of the Month". The complete program for Sunday was listed in that article.

The organ compositions which Professor Johnson has chosen for his recital will proceed as follows: "Fantasy and Fugue in G minor", Bach; "Carrillon", DeLamarter; "Choral II in B minor", Franck; "The Primitive Organ", Yon; "The Little Red Lark", Clokey; "Copper Country Sketches", Weaver.

To Play New Suite

This last selection, expected to be the outstanding feature of the program, is a new suite for organ composed by a nationally known composer, Powell Weaver. It is made up of three numbers: "Iron Mountain," "Laughing Water," and "The Lake," all extremely colorful and descriptive.

The suite was written a little over a year ago in a cabin on the shores of Lake Superior near Ontonagan, Michigan.

Chapel Speaker Initiates R.P.C. Program Today

Luther H. Harshbarger, executive secretary of the Penn State Christian Association, initiated a week end of discussion with a chapel address "Communism's Challenge to Christianity," this morning.

The newly-created Religious Planning Commission is sponsoring this discussion of Christianity and communism under the area of world relatedness.

LUTHER H. HARSHBARGER

According to Peter Mayer, chairman of this phase of the R. P. C., the purpose of the discussion is "to give students a chance to discuss the problem which is one of the most important issues of our day."

On Sunday night those students who have signed up will go to the homes of participating faculty members to discuss this problem. It is rumored that refreshments will be provided.

To give them additional background on the subject, participating faculty members have the booklet "The Challenge of Communism to Christianity." This is a series of reprint articles dealing with the varous aspects of communism and the Christian answer.

Participating Faculty

Among those faculty members who are participating in the discussion are Drs. Crosby, Dubbel, Rockwell, Mays, Henry and Fulmer, Miss McCrimmon, Miss Doyle and Professors Glick and Goetschius.

The program of the Religious Planning Commission whose aim is to "emancipate the word religion" from the narrow connotation that is usually given it, is planning programs in three other areas. They are Christian heritage, personal and campus affairs, and social responsibility.

A program concerning the problems of sex, the engagement period, and marriage is tentatively scheduled for December.

Spiritual Emphasis Week will emphasis the area of Christian heritage. This is scheduled for the second week of the spring semester.

Fourth Founders Cops $5 Prize In Display Contest

In spite of rain, campus residents turned out in full force to compete for the $5 prize in the Homecoming display contest. Eight groups answered the challenge to prepare before the deadline Saturday morning.

Fourth Founders and Annex felt their efforts were well worth while for they triumphantly walked off with The Juniatian prize money. A cotton smoke signal "Welcome Alumni" curling from a victorious Indian campfire greeted visitors on campus and won the unanimous approval of the judges. An honorable mention was awarded to the display set up by Fourth Brumbaugh on Oller Hall lawn.

The alumni judges Mr. Earl Dickey, Mrs. Harold Paulson, and Miss Anne Catherine Maloy based their decision on originality and pertinence to both Homecoming and the football game.

BUS TICKETS ON SALE

Tickets for bus transportation to the Haverford game are now on sale in the public relations office, according to Miss Yvonne Beaver, secretary to the Director of Public Relations.

The price of the round trip ride will be $4.88. At least 30 students must register some interest, however, before final arrangements will be made.

Buses will leave the campus at 6:30 a. m., and will return by midnight the same day.

Admission Tests Set For Nov. 12

The first of this year's series of law school admission tests will be given at Penn State November 12, according to Dean Morley Mays.

Seniors planning to attend law school after being graduated are advised to inquire of the school of their choice whether applicants are required to take this test. This practice is becoming more widespread, Dean Mays added.

Application blanks and copies of the information bulletins may be obtained from the Dean's office. The application blanks must be returned to Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N. J., on or before November 2.

Other dates on which the test may be taken are February 25, April 29, and August 12, 1950.

Seniors To Take Test

A number of seniors planning to enroll in medical or dental schools next year will take the medical college admission test tomorrow at Penn State, under the auspices of Dr. H. C. Will. This test may also be taken January 16, 1950.

The medical test will consist of four examinations of general scholastic ability and two achievement tests.

Carnival To Climax Twirp Week Saturday

As a climax to Twirp Week, a gypsy carnival will be held in the gym this Saturday evening. The carnival is scheduled for 8:30, and girls may call at Cloisters for their dates between 7:45 and 8:45.

It has been suggested that the appropriate dress for girls would include skirts, blouses, bright scarves, and jewelry suggestive of the gypsy costume.

Varied amusements are being planned for the evening including a fortune-teller, a musical program, and social and novelty dancing.

AUCTION CLOSES TONIGHT

Final bidding on books at the Library auction must be done by 5:15 p. m. this evening. Students may pick up their selections after that time.

Roster Of Chairmen Of Skits Completed

With the appointment of Bob Frain as freshmen class chairman Monday, the roster of class chairmen for All Class Night was completed.

Bill Bateson, general chairman, has announced that all scripts must be submitted for approval by November 1. In addition to Bateson, those who must approve the scripts are Dean Edith Spencer and Dr. Donald M. Rockwell.

Each class will be permitted to practice at least once in Oller Hall before the curtain rises December 10. A limit of 22 minutes has been set for each skit from the time scenery goes on stage to the time it is removed.

'Berkeley Square'

Experienced Cast Given Credit For Good Beginning Of College Arena Production, 'Berkeley Square', By Doyle

by Marian Otsubo

The other day, Miss Doyle was overhead to say that "Berkeley Square" had the best beginning of any play in recent years. Judging from this remark, it seems safe to say that the Masque will soon be able to chalk up another hit.

The cast can be given a large share of the credit for this optimistic report. Most of the members have had considerable experience at some time or other, and this may account for the ease with which they fell into their respective roles.

Don Norris, who won the coveted and exacting role of the hero, Peter Standish, may rightly be termed an old hand at the game, having played Corin in "As You Like It", and Freddie in "Pygmalion."

Selected for the part of the heroine, Helen Pettigrew, is Vera Compton who will also be remembered for her previous roles. She appeared in "Pygmalion," "Dover Road", and last year's commencement play, "The Happy Journey".

By an odd coincidence, Vera and Thurman Grossnickle, who is Mr. Throstle in the current production, seem to be paired together rather frequently. In "Dover Road", they were supposedly going to elope together, and in "Berkeley Square," they are an engaged pair.

Janet Boland Plays Pettigrew

Janet Boland, a sophomore transfer student from Mary Washington College, will be one of the newcomers to the Oller Hall stage. She has what is generally called the "other woman" type of role, that of Kate Pettigrew, the cool, poised, sophisticated woman of the world.

Chuck Barklow, a Navy vet from Lewistown, has the challenging role of Tom Pettigrew, a spoiled, nasty, thoroughly contemptible fellow who cannot undertake adult responsibilities. Barklow, a freshman, has appeared in numerous plays in high school.

Appearing as Lady Anne Pettigrew, mother of the three—Helen, Kate, and Tom—is another freshman, Phyllis Link. Having played the mother of five in her senior play, "The Youngest", we would say that she is well qualified for her present role.

Margaret Roop Familiar

Margaret Roop, as the Duchess, is, of course, familiar to all of us, having played leading roles in "The Swan" and "Pygmalion." She has also handled directional assignments for minor productions.

Cast as the Duke is Peter Mayer. This role calls for a German accent, which he should have no trouble at all in "affecting."

Stine, Roddy in Cast

As Marjorie Frant, Elma Stine is more familiar to the devotees of musicals, having appeared in "Americanza" and "Sweethearts," In the part of the ambassador is Gene Roddy, who will be remembered as Father Hyacinth in "The Swan" and the stage manager in "The Happy Journey."

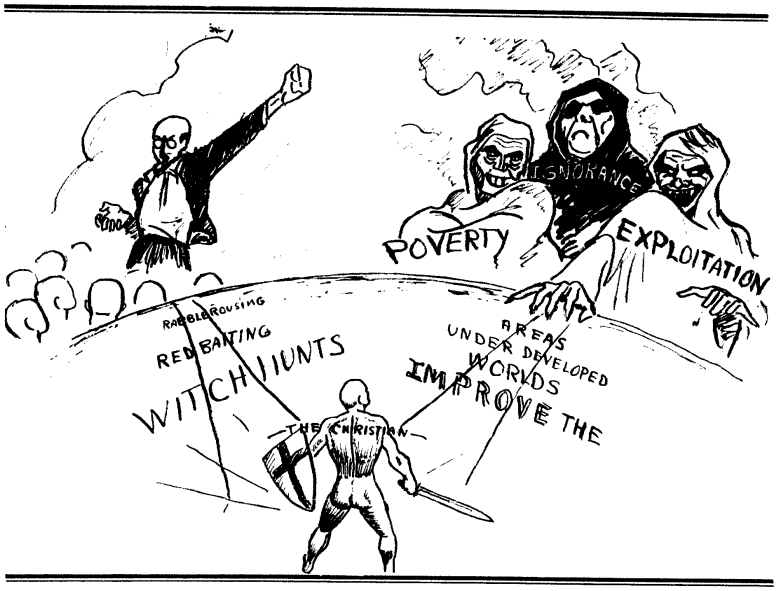
Communism --- Its Challenge To Christianity And You

What is the challenge of communism for you?

If your name is Eugene Dennis, the challenge is to promote the activities of the Communist Party in the United States. And according to the charges brought against you and 10 of your comrades in Judge Harold Medina's courtroom, your challenge has been to take orders from the Kremlin, and advocate overthrow of the United States government.

If your name is Norman Thomas you are convincer that "the most successful answer to communism cannot be war" but that "part of the answer must be the perfecting of our own democracy."

If your name is John C. Bennett, you are convinced that the nature and success of communism is due "to the failures of Christians" and to "the moral failure of the churches."



Letter to the Editor:

Concessions Policy Needs Clarification

To the Editor:

The concessions committee has the problem of deciding the fate of several enterprises on campus.

The principle involved seems to be the fundamental American one of the encouragement of the individual with the ingenuity and foresight to operate a business for his own profit.

Several individuals have petitioned the committee for the right to sell hot dogs and ice cream in the men's dorm. These are necessary services and the students would find them convenient.

I take no issue with the fact that concessions for selling articles and services to the College community are first the jurisdiction of the clubs.

However, if no club wishes to carry on the business, then, in my opinion, if the business is legitimate, the committee should license individuals to provide the service that is needed. This licensing should be on the same basis as clubs and should be reviewed periodically.

Furthermore, it might be a good idea for the committee to license other enterprises on campus that are conducted by individuals concerning which there have been no questions as to a profit motive.

Communism, then, is a term which has many meanings for many people. Today many people think of it in terms of Russia's completely dominated business and industry; others think of it in terms of restrictions on civil liberties; and others are concerned about its atheism.

This Involves Us All

This weekend students at Juniata will be discussing and thinking about communism's challenge to Christianity. And, inasmuch as we call ourselves Christians, this is an issue which involves all of us.

Because of its revolutionary nature communism challenges not only Christianity but the very stuff of western culture, namely, capitalistic free enterprise and democracy itself.

Its challenge to free enterprise is to produce an economy that will never again slide into depression nor depend upon war contracts for prosperity, as the Communists have charged. Capitalism must deliver the goods by guaranteeing job-security and a living wage to all workers.

Its challenge to democracy is to promote and preserve civil rights and indivdual freedom in order to guarantee social and racial equality to all men, not just white gentiles.

The Crucial Test

Its challenge to Christianity lies in both economics and politics as well as the spiritual realm, for Christianity is not just another area like domocracy or capitalism. It is a kind of human behavior that permeates all areas of living, and therefore communism's challenge to it is the most crucial test of all.

Pointing up the issue in its various aspects is John C. Bennett of Union Theological Seminary in an article, "Christianity and Communism," quoted here at length.

"In writing about Christianity and communism it is important to think of both as they are embodied in institutions and actual human behavior and not to contrast the best in the Christian faith with the worst in communist practice.

Communism Is Appealing

"Communism is the Marxist dream of a classless society that is wholly just and rational; but it is also what the communist parties do around the world. The rulers of Russia and the communist leaders in other countries are far removed from the best in historical Marxism but it must never be forgotten that the greatest strength of communism is its appeal to people, to exploited and neglected people who are won to it because it does carry for them the promise of economic justice.

"Christianity is the gospel of Jesus Christ, the biblical faith that finds some expression in all the churches. But Christianity is also what Christians have made of it; and one of the things that they did make of it, when communism as a modern movement was born, was a spiritual sanction for the reactionary and unjust institutions of society.

"In contrast to Christianity at this point the communist protest has had real validity. It is one aspect of communism which Christians should remember that came as a judgement upon the churches. Its very atheism is in part the result of the moral failure of the churches . . . .

No Critics Allowed

"My chief contention in this article is that Christianity always points to the sources of its own correction while the aberrations of communism are inescapable because of its profound misunderstanding of human nature and its lack of any transcendent source of criticism upon a communist society . . . .

"Communism from Marx though Stalin—in spite of great differences between Marx and Stalin—is a faith in a new world that can only be brought to birth when capitalistic institutions and their psychological and cultural roots are destroyed. This faith becomes for them the justification for all of the ruthlessness that seems necessary in the course of the revolution and of the long drawn out dictatorship which followed it in Russia and will follow revolution wherever Communists gain power.

"There is no racial hatred in communism and this means that the enemies whom Communists seek to neutralize or destroy have no mark upon them . . .

Two Battlegrounds

"There are two conflicts between communism and Christianity which I shall now emphasize.

"(1) Communism exalts the classless society and promises that it will bring complete redemption. It teaches that there is no God above this movement and it has no understanding of the persistence of human sin within . . . .

"This belief in communism as an absolute movement of redemption develops a form of complete human self-sufficiency that is incompatible with the Christian understanding of man's dependence upon God. It precludes any transcendent judgment upon the communist society . . . .

"This lack of criticism is present now and we have the spectacle of an idealism that promises a world that will need no police but is unable to keep its own excessive use of police under control . . . .

A Far-off Utopia

"(2) The second point of conflict between Christianity and communism is in the attitude of Christians and Communists toward persons. It may be true that in their far-off Utopia the Communists expect the individual person to come into his own. Certainly the early Marxist attacks upon capitalism were in the interests of personal freedom.

But communism now is known by its practices during the period of the revolution and during the period of the dictatorship of the proletariat. In Russia and in country after country where Communists have gained power communism shows itself as a terror against persons who oppose it. Opponents are no more than obstacles to be removed; they are not persons to be redeemed.

"These differences between Christianity and communism come to a head whenever Communists seize power in a nation. Dictatorship is clamped down upon the nation and there is an end to criticism. Communists will use any method to coerce the minds and consciences of all who oppose them. And they have the naive belief that after their work is completed freedom will return spontaneously. But the institutions of freedom are tender plants and they do not grow easily anywhere, least of all in soil prepared by communist terror.

The Tragedy Of It All

"The tragedy of it all is that communism began as a moral protest against injustices in both feudal and capitalistic societies. It met a spiritual need that the Christian Church had failed to meet. It still draws many conscienteous souls who are outraged by social wrongs and it gives them a total conception of life that makes more sense to them than any other which they have encountered.

"And yet because it has no transcendent faith to preserve it from idolatry and from uncritical fanaticism and because it has no real understanding of the dignity of the person or of the meaning of personal freedom, its revolutions lead to a new order of oppression with no promise of release. All this came about in large part because Christians did not see until too late the revoluntionary demands in their own faith."

So What?

Knowing all this, what is the answer for us Christians? Witch hunting? Red-bating? Flag-waving, vote-getting Congressional inquisitions? Or is it benevolence, practical humanitarian policies between men and nations, and the implementation of Christian love?

Certainly we can't stand at the crossroads for long. And obviously we had better start stepping down that right road while we still have a choice, and spend less time looking under the bed for Communists. For if we are as successful as a positive program of dynamic Christianity can be, we'll have the Communists looking under the bed for us. In any case, true Christians have no other choice.

TOMMYHAWK

Tommy is glad to see all your bright, cheery faces scanning these lines. You know, I'm gratified that my column is so quickly turned to as each of you obtain your copy of The Juniatian. Is it a guilty conscience that causes everybody to try to find out if he or she is mentioned? Again I repeat, Tommy sees all, knows all, and tells plenty. So if you've been romantic this week, maybe you are mentioned here.

It appears that my predictions for the Homecoming dance were correct. And I noticed a few other couples there, too. I noticed Harry Yates enjoying himslf with Ginny Yohn. They seem to be a nice couple. Harry Wood seemed to enjoy the evening too, but, of course, Elma Stine would make anyone's evening a nice one. Ragnhild Gravlie had George Smith lassoed, but this wasn't the first time I've noticed them together. Oh, those two blonde heads together attract so much attention. Sherwood Cordier and Mary Tipton were there, too. Mary must really have charmed him to drag him away from his studies. If this had been the first time, I would blame it on luck, but she had him with her on Mountain Day, too. Mervin Hershey was seen by yours truly with Betty Longwell. I could go on indefinitely.

The Homecoming dance was fine. Tommy enjoyed it very much, both as a chance to get away from his arduous tasks and to escort a very lovely damsel of his choice to an evening's entertainment. Then, too, I'll never forget the look on Bill Wright's face (and probably mine, too) when he lost his shirt to a stranger. However, thanks, J Club for a swell evening.

Question of the Week: Why were there so many fellows who preferred a movie to a chance to dance last Saturday night? The picture couludn't have been that good. Didn't they realize how many girls would love to go with them? Or are they shy??

It looks as if Jim McClain and Peggy Senior aren't as compatible as before. And is Phil Chabody giving John Buterbaugh a run for his money regarding Helen Wentzler? Also, what happened between Betsy Dively and John Weisel? Maybe I should ask Frank Dolce.

It was a nice gesture by the school to give us October 29 off from classes to go to the game at Haverford. Tommy hopes that as many of you that can go, will go. After all, I have to find who likes whom some way. It is true that Twirp Week helps, but couples seem to be always changing.

Well, chilluns, this is Thomas saying farewell for another seven days, but I'll be around to jot down names and occasions. Remember, you can't be sure who I am, so take care. Until next week, then, goodbye.

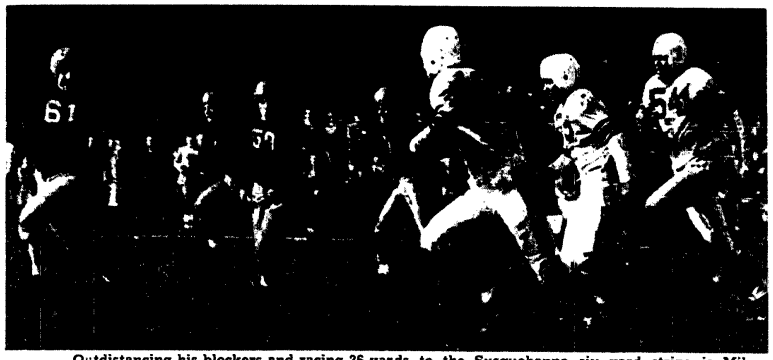
Improved Red Devils Seek Revenge Against Indians Tomorrow



Outdistancing his blockers and racing 36 yards to the Susquehanna six yard stripe is Mike Dzvonar, the second highest scorer in the state. Only Gabriel of Lehigh, with 60, has more than Mike's 50. Last week he scored 21 points and had a net gain rushing of 131 yards.

Dzvonar Scores Every Point As Indians Win Third Straight, 21-13

by Jack Freymuller

Hampered by a muddy playing field that slowed up their running game, the Juniata Indians won out over a tricky team from Susquehanna University by the score of 21-13. "Meteor" Mike Dzvonar, the Indian scoring ace, by scoring all his team's points, increased his total number of points to 50, surpassing already his season total for last year.

First Quarter

The Indians wasted no scoring opportunities in this stage of the game as they marched from their 25 yd. line straight down the field for the first touchdown of the game. With Mike Mervis, despite an injured knee, plunging through for successive first downs, the Indians reached the 19 yd. line of Susquehanna where Dzvonar raced through right tackle for the touchdown. The "Meteor's" kick with Phil Chabody holding, was good for the extra point.

Susquehanna surprised the fans by creating their own breaks when, on an attempted pass by Dzvonar from within his 20 yd. line, the ball was knocked from his hands and the fumble recovered by a Crusader on Juniata's 5 yd. line. Chet Rowe took a spread formation pass to right from Bob O'Gara to score around right end. Don Wissinger's kick was good.

Juniata threatened again in the first period when Dzvonar ran back the kickoff 52 yards to the Susquehanna 5 yd. line. However, the drive bogged down at this point in the face of a dogged Susquehanna defense.

Second Quarter

Juniata opened the second quarter with a determined drive that reached the 6 yd. line of Susquehanna before a stalwart Crusader line threw the drive into reverse gear. Susquehanna could make no headway against rugged Juniata defense led by "Squeeze" Long, and Juniata took over possession of the ball after the Crusaders punted out.

Chabody made a first down, followed by a Dzvonar pass to George Smith, Juniata left end, who then took another pass from Mike Mervis to advance the ball to the 14 yd. line of Susquehanna. Dzvonar attempted another pass, but finding his receivers covered, raced around right end to score. Again Dzvonar's kick was good for the extra point.

Susquehanna came back strong to score when, on an O'Gara pass, the receiver was pushed by a Juniata defender and the ball was put in play on the 1 yd. line of Juniata. From here, quarterback Earl Bernstine rushed over for the Crusaders second touchdown. Wissinger's kick was no good.

Second Half

Juniata opened the second half with a touchdown drive that saw Joe Dobal, freshman fullback, performing brilliantly before the home crowd for the first time. With Dobal and Dzvonar cracking the Crusader defense for large gains, the Indians reached the 14 yd. line of Susquehanna where, on a buck lateral, Dzvonar rounded right end to score. Dzvonar's kick was good for the extra point.

Against the spread formation employed by the Staggmen, the Indians countered with a spread defense which worked well. "Squeeze" Long was outstanding in this defense, breaking up many of the pass plays and runs used by the Crusaders.

THREE OPPONENTS WIN

While Juniata kept bowling the opposition over with regularity, her future enemies were recovering from their previous setbacks with a bang. With the exception of Haverford, all scores were of the lop-sided nature. They were as follows:

Dickinson 35, Ursinus 0
Haverford 0, Drexel 46
Grove City 27, Hiram 6
Moravian 32, Hofstra 7

Frosh Doff Dinks After Beating Sophs In Football, Tug-O-War; '52 Wins In Hockey

Freshman can put their dinks in mothballs now.

The winning of the freshmen-sophomore tug-of-war on Tuesday clinched the two out of three wins that the freshmen needed to free them from wearing the green and yellow chapeaux. They won the football game 18-0.

Tuesday's fracas was hard fought and twice the sophomores were pulled into the water. The first victory was ruled illegal because, in their eagerness to win, the freshmen had tied the rope to a tree.

In the second tilt, the freshmen were again sucessful.

THE WHITEWASH JOB

The freshmen class defeated the sophomores in the annual freshmen-sophomore touch football game Tuesday by whitewashing them 18-0.

The frosh showed great strength from the start. They were able to score their first touchdown in the first quarter on a pass from Bob Combes to Joe Mruk which covered 22 yards. The try for the exrta point was unsuccessful.

In the second quarter the freshmen again scored when on a reverse play Gerald Walker took the ball and raced 15 yards for the second "TD." Francis "Buzby" Townsend's try for the extra point was blocked by the sophomores. The frosh dominated the whole quarter as the sophomores were unable to gain ground.

In the third quarter the freshmen were forced to kick after they received. Then the sophomores took over and went to the 20 yard line.

Newcombe Goes For TD

Later the frosh took over again and after several successful passes by Bob Combes, George Newcombe got one on the 20 yard line and went the rest of the way for the third tally of the game. Once again the try for the exra point was no good.

In the fourth quarter the sophomores threatened at the frosh 20 yard line. This was the result principally of a run back by Jack Rothenberger. A TD was stopped as the frosh intercepted a pass and then got the ball out of dangerous territory.

Lead by their captain, Ginny Tyson, the sophomores battled out a 3-0 victory over the freshmen in this annual hockey classic on Monday afternoon.

Gaining their first goal halfway through the second half and then racing in for two more in close succession, the sophomores proved that they are still a championship team. Scoring the first two goals was Ginny Tyson with Joyce Grove making the third.

Though the freshmen were on the lower half of the score, their playing, especially in the first half, saw Captain Tyson worrying about the outcome of the game. With both teams determined to win it was touch and go and the first half ended 0-0.

Truly a spectator's game, there was no lack of excitement from the first whistle till the final. The freshmen cheering section was strong and kept morale up until the very last.

Atlantic Picks J. C.

The Juniata Indians will be the probable winners over Dickinson in the game tomorrow, according to the Atlantic football ratings for the week ending October 23.

Juniata is rated at 37.2 which means that judging from past performances she has been 4.1 scoring points stronger per game than Dickinson, with 33.1.

Future foes of Juniata, Haverford, and Moravian have a rating of 19.9 and 27.7 respectively.

Rules Changes Cost J. C. Over 200 Yards In 'Illegal' Penalties

by Chuck Ailison

Final scores of any football game rarely show how the game was really played. They never show the possible touchdowns that were prevented through football's greatest evil, the penalty. In the three games thus played by Juniata this season, there have been at least three to five touchdowns prevented due to penalties. Although they have had no ill effects as to the outcome of the games, they have created a serious thought as to why they occur.

The most frequent of penalties placed against Juniata has been illegal use of hands and delaying the game. Although these seem trifling to the eye they involve 15 and 5 yards respectively which no team, inspite of how good it is, can afford to donate to the opponent in a game.

A Breakdown

In the Westminster game, Juniata was given 7 penalties which amounted to 85 yards lost.

The Hartwick game produced 7 more set-backs resulting in 75 yards being paced against them.

Finally, against Susquehanna the team was put back 9 times totaling 93½ yards. The ½ yard resulted from Juniata being penalized 5 yards for backfield in motion when they were on the one yard line.

All these put together total 23 penalties which amount to a lost yardage of 253½. To top it off most of the penalties occurred when Juniata was in scoring territory.

In an explanation of these penalties, it has been revealed that the most serious of these, the illegal use of hands, is resulting from a recent change in the football rules. The second offense, delaying the game, is mostly due to the new ruling of making it an automatic time out when the ball changes hands from the offensive team to the defensive team. The team receiving the ball is off on its timing temporarily and eventually being penalized.

The new ruling which is causing the Indians such terrible losses, however, is the "clarification of illegal use of hands in blocking." In the past it was possible for a player using a shoulder or chest block to supplement it with the hand or forearm and inflict considerable punishment upon his opponent even though he could be penalized for illegal use of hands if he wasn't careful. Now in order to eliminate this practice "the hand, in a shoulder or chest block, must be in contact with the body during the entire block and at no time may the hand be locked."

Players Must Change Ways

After reading this new change, it is easy to see the difficulty encountered by the football players this season. The old method of blocking an opponent has been in use for a number of years and the boys playing the game now are finding it very tough to switch to the new idea rapidly.

However, the Indian coaches are drilling the boys on grasping their jerseys with their hands as they go to make the initial contact and all through the carrying out of the blocking assignment. This new method should show some improvement in the game this coming Saturday.

Fast Huntingdon Halfback Sparks Dickinson; J. C. Injuries Mount

Dickinson's Red Devils will tangle with the Indians on College Field tomorrow under the brilliant playing leadership of halfback Gerry Miller.

During the Ursinus game last Saturday, Miller, a Huntingdon product, scored 22 points in Dickinson's 35-0 whitewash.

No department is too big for Gerry. In the third quarter the fleet-footed back dashed 42 yards for pay dirt. Later he made other scoring runs for 20 yards each in the third and final stanzes.

The Indians 23-6 win last season was the result of demoralizing breaks. Cece Jackson's blocking of a punt began the series of disheartening situations. A safety added three more points to the already widening J. C. margin.

Run Out Of 'T'

Little is known about the Red Devils, as last week's contest was not scouted. All that can be reported is that they run out of a T-formation, and that the two platoon system will be employed by Coach Ralph Ricker's boys.

Passing composes close to 40 per cent of Dickinson's offense. Coach Bill Smaltz was pleased to see his Indians rushing Susquehanna's aerial attackers in the second half. If such plunging continues, little can be feared from short ground biting passes.

Down to Third String

"We're down to our third string fullback," commented Smaltz. Regular Mike Mervis is out now with two serious knee injuries, and frosh newcomer Joe Mulligan suffered a dislocated elbow in the game last week. Neither is expected to start on Saturday.

End Bob Morrissey drew praise from Smaltz for his showing against the Staggs. The end situation seems to have cleared up to a certain extent, Smaltz said.

Will Require Operation

The latest report on Bill Wilson's fractured knee has it that the injury will require an operation in order to wire the damaged joint into place.

Three Teams Still Unbeaten In Touch Football League

Two teams were voluntarily dropped from the Intramural Football League this week. With the Mountain Men and the Maulers out, twelve teams remain in competition for the league leadership.

The Dark Horses regained the top slot as last week's league-leading Jay Birds tied the now third place Bullets.

The standings as of Wednesday morning:

Team	W	L	T	Pct.
Dark Horses	4	0	1	1.000
Jay Birds	3	0	1	1.000
Bullets	3	0	1	1.000

Dove, Woodcock, Ducks Spotted

by Walton Nimrod

I wonder how many of you ardent sportsmen were in the field this week for dove and woodcock. My guess is that very few of you left your studies for some relaxation! However, that was acquired on Mountain Day, which just seems to intensify that "hunting drive" present in so many of us. Why suppress it? You can't fight nature.

Since you did little or no dove or woodcock hunting, let me tell you of my experiences while in the garb of Nimrod.

Monday dawned bright and early but rather warm for hunting. However, the thrill of the first day refused to leave my mind and I knew it was time for action.

Having arrived at my favorite haunt, between and after classes of course, and tramping for what seemed hours, a covey of six to eight dove rose beyond my range, flew on, and landed in the brush across the creek.

One Down

Not desiring to be outwitted I continued after them in hot pursuit, this time approaching with caution. Suddenly they rose, six of them, but only five continued flying. Had I more than a single barrel, the score may have been greater.

That was the only covey I could raise that day, but there are more dove in the vicinity along Stone Creek just waiting to be flushed. I also sighted a few lone woodcock but far beyond shooting distance. However, that proves that the migratory "timberdoodle" is back in this section of Huntingdon County.

Ducks Spotted

Since I saw some ducks I thought you readers would be interested. The season begins today, you know, and its good to have a few plans. Stone Creek is the most accessible for most of us, and it has a number of local as well as migratory ducks. Practically any stretch beyond Huntingdon has a duck or two, especially those long, broad pools. The stream affords much natural cover for the ducks and few hunters seem to frequent these habitats.

Of course, if you wish to travel farther, try the unpopulated upper reaches of the Raystown. Or visit the Aughwick Creek which empties into the Juniata below Mount Union. If, however, you fail to get your limit in ducks, don't be completely discouraged. Just take your casting rod from the trunk, a few plugs and bring back some "lunker" bass. Bass fishermen usually fare well with weather changes such as we are now having, and it seems to me that a good bet would be to take your fishing equipment along. If you prefer live bait, take along your minnow net; bass just love minnows.

Freshmen Initiation Is Now Just A Memory . . . . .

by Carol Cook

It's all over now—but it was fun while it lasted, wasn't it. Wasn't it?

Perhaps the now bedinked freshies wonder why all these goings on called initiation, hazing, etc. fell to their lot. They were not to make the frosh feel like the scum of the earth when compared to those high and almighty individuals called upperclassmen. Nor were they to make them bite the dust under 20 lashes of the whip. Instead, as Jim McClain, chairman of underclassmen explained, there was a definite, constructive purpose behind the wearing o' the green dinks, and that was to help the new students become orientated into college life.

The emphasis was placed on orientation rather than initiation. For instance, the wearing of the dinks made the freshmen class a unit. One knew that the fellow with the brown curly hair under the dink was not an alien, but a fighter for the cause.

And the name cards, well, anyone but a pinhead would know that these were for purposes of identification, as well as introduction. (Need more be said?)

Contains Valuable Information

And the little blue books called Scouts, well they contain all kinds of vital information which may come in handy one of these days when one is trying to remember the last line of the Alma Mater, or some such important thing.

The idea behind the most high and dignified freshmen court was to keep this orientation among the students and not involve the administration except when necessary in extreme cases.

The most honorable members of this court were representatives of the classes called seniors and juniors. There were eight seniors and six juniors on this year's tribunal. The most noble sir, Jim McClain, was the presiding judge.

Furthermore, some of the punishment meted out to the poor unfortunates was constructive, such as the work assignments and the wearing of signs advertising coming advents.

Bangs and Pigtails at Ursinus

But if you freshies think you had it rough, lend an ear to the plight of the greenies of Ursinus College. Pigtails were the vogue among the girls, and bangs, parted in the middle for better visibility, among the fellows. Tin cans dangled from shapely female waists while fellows lengthened the life span of their razor blades by shaving only the right side of their faces.

Things looked even brighter for the frosh of Westminster College, especially during the three days cleverly called "Hell Week". During this time these frosh were incognito with their various outfits, a different one for each day.

Short Pant Leg and Skirts in Style

For example, the proper dress for freshmen women on Friday was plaid skirts with hemline above the knees, clashing sweater, green ribbon around the neck, and a suitcase for carrying things. For the fellows, the style was two pairs of trousers with the outside pant leg rolled up to the knees, dress shirt worn backwards with matching clock.

The red-bowed frosh of Dickinson carried umbrellas to class, while the infant students of Moravian paraded, with a special police escort, through Bethlehem in various and assorted styles of pj's.

But, as we said before, there was a purpose behind it all, and it was fun, wasn't it? (Chuckle! Chuckle! Gasp!)

Stewart Speaks To Tycoon Club; Masque Members Go To Penn State

Mr. Samuel Stewart, a lawyer from Huntingdon was the speaker at the meeting of the Tycoon Club on Tuesday, October 18, 1949. A graduate of Juniata's class of '26, Mr. Stewart was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania law school in 1931.

With "Law Related to Business" as his topic, the speaker mentioned such things as kinds of law, the objectives of law, and why we have law. Discussion followed at the end of the meeting.

Professor Willis Wissler is the faculty sponsor of the Tycoon club. The president is Dick Coffman, Jr., vice president, Chick Dillon, secretary-treasurer, Pat Miller.

MASQUE GOES TO STATE

Penn State's Center Stage will be the scene of a Masque theater party tonight when a group will travel to see Tennessee William's drama, "Glass Menagerie."

Members of the cast of "Berkely Square," as well as others unable to attend tonight, will see the play tomorrow evening.

The cast is particularly interested in the fact that both the Center Stage production and that of Juniata will be done in arena style.

Those planning to travel to Penn State by bus tonight are asked to meet on Founders Porch at 6:15.

JUNIATA STUDENTS ATTEND

Last week-end five Juniata students attended the Fall area conference of the Middle Atlantic Region Student Christian Movement at Camp Michaux, near Carlisle, Pa.

Delegates from the College were Dave Kennedy; Peter Mayer, as a member of the Senate Religious Planning Commission; Mary Lou McKee, Y. W. C. A. treasurer; Edith Roberts, president of the same organization; and Kay Wright.

Christianity and Communism Discussed

The conferenct dealt with the issue of Christianity and communism, and was considered of particular value by the Juniata delegation because of the faculty-student discussions to be held this week-end on the same subject. (See stories on pages 1 and 2.)

The delegation also met Luther Harshbarger, religious activities director at Penn State, who spoke at Chapel here today.

JOHNSON RECITAL

Bach's "Fantasy and Fugue in G minor" will open the program. In this selection dramatic contrasts of loud and soft passages produce superb results.

Following this will be the lovely "Carillon," in which the sweet-toned organ chimes are used, and the second of Cesar Franck's three great Chorals for Organ. This was once described by Joseph Barnet as a "minature life of Christ: the advent of the Divine Redeemer, His passion, His cross our only salvation, and His triumphant Resurrection."

Presents Two Short Works

Before the rendering of the final suite, two short works will be presented. They are Pietro Yon's humerous "The Primitive Organ" and Joseph Clokey's charming arrangement of an old Irish tune "The Little Red Lark of the Mountain".

Bob Champion, who enacts the role of Major Clinton, the suave and debonair soldier, is another frosh who was very active in high school dramatics. Betty Longwell will play the part of the sedate and correct English housewife, Mrs. Barwick.

Corena Sollenberger as Miss Barrymore, and Glen Felix as Lord Stanley, are both old-timers, while Ruth Reid, as the coquettish maid, is a newcomer.

Senate Appoints Student Chairmen

Selects Sollenberger And Coffman

Corena Sollenberger and Richard Coffman, both seniors, were this week selected by the Senate for two of the biggest jobs on campus, student manager of the all-college musical and chairman of the J. W. S. F. drive, respectively.

The selection of both students was made after two weeks consideration and deliberation by the Senate on the nature of each job and the qualifications it demands.

As student manager of the musical, Miss Sollenberger will be chiefly responsible to the student body for selection of the musical to be staged this year, selection of the cast, appointment of committees and arousing student enthusiasm for the show.

Miss Sollenberger will be responsible to express student opinion and viewpoints while in consultation with the faculty directors, Prof. Donald S. Johnson and Miss Esther M. Doyle.

In addition, Miss Sollenberger will work with Lois Esaley, Miss Doyle's student assistant. Miss Esaley was student coordinator last year for "Sweethearts," a position comparable to Miss Sollenberger's present one.

The title student coordinator was changed to student manager at Tuesday's Senate meeting in view of changes in the duties of the student holding that position.

The new manager of the musical has been a Masque member for the past three years and last year had the starring role in "The Swan" presented in the Fall. She is vice-president of the F. T. A., active in the Y. W. C. A. and is majoring in psychology

As chairman of the Juniata World Service Fund campaign scheduled for February, Richard Coffman wil take complete charge of the annual drive to raise money for various worthy causes, such as the World Student Service Fund, the Foreign Students Aid Fund, the Red Cross and the funds for Brethren missionaries.

Coffman, a resident of Huntingdon, is majoring in business administration. He has been president of the Tycoon Club for the past two years and was last year elected to the Honor Society.

The prize money will go to the best double and single rooms for both men and women.

News Bureau, Registar's Office Consolidated

"Forced to consolidate . . . in an effort to carry on with a minimum of confusion and a maximum of output"—these are A. William Engel's own words to describe his recent move to combine the two offices which he heads: the news bureau and the office of the registrar.

No longer can smiling Bill be found at his old stand in the basement room beneath Founders Hall; only the publications such as "The Alfarata," "The Scout," "The Indian," and The Juniatian remain here.

Under the new setup, Engel will handle all sports publicity as well as the work of the registrar from the office of the registrar on Founders Hall. Miss Gwen Nyce will act as part-time assistant, and will be in charge of a major share of all news releases, especially for local and area publicity.

This office will prepare the "Alumni Bulletin" (in co-operation with the alumni office) and will collect college material for "The Gospel Messenger." However printing of programs for college affairs should be channeled through the public relations office.

Information for other campus publications, such as The Juniatian, should go directly to the publications office, formerly Engel's office.

Beyer Names Committee

Representatives to the men's house committee of the Senate have been announced by chairman Joe Beyer.

Representing Cloisters will be the following persons:

Arch—president, Al Fletcher; second floor vice-president, Rex Hershberger; third floor vice-president, Harry Frye.

Beyer has also inovated the practice of appointing representatives for the student group now staying at private homes. Those appointed were Ed DeHart, Ray Hollinger, Galen Keeney, and Jack Rothenberger.

The faculty representative to the committee will be Dean of Students D. Raymond Sollenberger.

"The purpose of these representatives is not to act as 'policemen,'" Beyer emphasized, "but rather, to receive and care for student complaints and suggestions, report maintainance needs, and assist in preserving a general atmosphere conducive to study."

He added that the Lodge, due to its temporary structure and the consequent necessity for extra care in keeping noise to a minimum during study hours, is a problem the committee is particularly interested in.

An Interview

Knitzer Smashed First Fiddle, Now Plans His Programs Like A Menu

by Marj Seidel

If anyone had told Joesph Knitzer at the age of five that he would someday become a famous violinist, he would have thought it a very funny joke. At that time his father presented him with his first violin; but the little boy wasn't too appreciative. In fact, he smashed it!

Two years later he decided to try violin lessons, and at the age of 17 he advanced to the point of giving private instructions himself. Today the thought of Joseph Knitzer becoming famous has changed from a joke to a reality!

Mr. Knitzer is head of the violin department of the Cleveland Institute of Music. Along with these teaching duties, he is engaged in tours from six to eight weeks throughout the year. This does not include the isolated concerts which take him from Cleveland only a day or two, but sometimes as far as 250 miles away. Incidentally, he is always accompanied by his wife; however, Mrs. Knitzer was unable to come on this tour because of illness.

Traveled to Keuka College

From Juniata Mr. Knitzer traveled to New York State to present a concert at Keuka College. On Sunday he is scheduled to play on an NBC broadcast in Detroit. Whenever in that vicinity, he appears on this weekly program.

Mr. Knitzer believes in the saying "Practice makes perfect." While in Cleveland, he practices diligently for six or seven hours each day. On tour he says he is "lucky if he gets to practice a half hour."

A New Experience

"Each concert is a new experience" for this talented musician. However, he does prefer appearing as soloist with a symphony orchestra rather than presenting personal concerts. According to

Tutoring Program Working Says Stine

"They said it wouldn't work but it has, and it will become a vital activity of J. C. if the students simply declare their needs," says Senate member Elma Stine in reference to the new Senate tutoring program.

It is her job, in co-operation with Joe Beyer, to arrange for a competent student tutor to help students who have expressed a desire for aid in their courses.

Initiated at the beginning of the present year, the program has already helped scholars lagging in Spanish and sight singing. Under the present system, the student arranges through the committee for convenient times and places to meet with the tutor to quietly discuss and remedy the the problem.

Committee In Final Meeting Broadens Concessions Rule

The Concessions Committee, consisting of Dean Sollenberger, Dr. Rockwell, Elma Stine, and Joe Beyer, held its final meeting last week to determine the nature and amount of concessions to be granted to clubs and individuals.

According to the constitution of the Juniata College Student Association, " a concession is defined as a grant by the committee to sell a commodity or render a service to students, or at student activities, the derived money of which is to be used primarily for the benefit of the entire student body."

Financial Need Was A Factor

The committee tried to keep this rule in mind in considering concessions. A few individual ones were granted only because they rendered service and because those obtaining the benefits needed the money to support them in college.

Respectve of these rules, the following concessions were granted: candy to be sold in the Men's Day Student Room, the Lodge, and Cloisters by the IRC; cokes in the Men's Day Student Room by the Chemistry Club; hot dogs in the girl's dorm by the Alpha Beta Gamma; candy in the girls dorm by the Kat Club; cokes in the girl's drom and freshman name tags by the WAA; hot dogs in Cloisters and popcorn at the football games by the Dunkard Club; and sandwiches in the girl's dorm by the Women's House Committee.

Others granted were: to the J Club, cokes in Cloisters and the Lodge, "The Indian," booster tags, and girls' Juniata mittens; to the YWCA, address books, aluminum ware, and hot dogs at football games; to the Lamda Gamma, corsages for Homecoming and Parents' Day, peanuts at football games, apples in the girls' dorm and Christmas cards.

Individual Concessions Awarded

Individual concessions were: to Francis Townsend and Paul Schroeder, ice cream in the lodge; to Lorena Hebrank and Doris Mickle, Avon Products in the girls' dorm; and to Jay McGrath and Bob Sames, hot dogs in the Lodge.

We Need More Discussion Nights !

by Bob Smith

The student-faculty discussion groups last Sunday night were a great success. This is true, I believe, because of the appeal that a bull session normally has (and these had a minimum of bull) and the pertinence of the topic, "Communism's Challenge to Christianity."

Nearly 100 students entered the 10 groups set up in faculty homes, certainly a very heartening turnout when you consider the press of other activities and the usual unpopularity of "serious" extra-curricular activities.

Students Concerned

Such a turnout indicates the students' concern about the menace of Communism as well as indicating the popularity of informal discussion groups to wrestle with problems of this sort.

Actually it amounts to a hearty endorsement of the program anticipated and planned by the new Religious Planning Commission. And considering the reception its first program got, possibly the only change we might suggest at this point is that the Commission sponsor more than just four of these popular discussion nights, as tentative plans now call for.

$200 Set Aside

The administration has wisely provided $200 for obtaining stimulating speakers such as Luther Harshbarger. The choice of Mr. Harshbarger was obviously an excellent one, but it is unfortunate that he was restricted to a brief chapel talk in which he could barely get warmed up and students could not fire questions at him.

Nevertheless, with one good program under its belt, the Commission will now be able to procede more confidently knowing how to be more effective.

Letter to the Editor:

How About Trying Cafeteria Style

To the Editor:

The new addition to our little dining hall is nearly completed. The alleviation of our recent meal-time crisis seems imminent. However, I am of the opinion that both the physical and functional aspects of the Juniata dining system could be improved. Therefore, I am going to take issue on a "'cafeteria-style' versus 'family-style'" argument. Here are my reasons for backing the former, and they are basically the result of three years of grazing duty on Oneida Hall cuisine:

(1) "Family-style," though indispensible to the family, causes confusion when over 200 students are bent on entering the dining-hall and finding their proper seats at the same time.

(2) There are enough schedules in the life of a student without the unnecessary addition of an exact eating schedule. "Cafeteria-style" would provide some leeway for the student in beginning his repast. It would also eliminate undesirable "waiting" or "rushing" during meals.

(3) For obvious reasons, "cafeteria-style" would cut down on waste. The student would take only the food which he wanted to eat, and that which he left would be preserved on a steam-table for someone who wanted it.

(4) Foods and beverages which should be served hot, such as eggs, toast, vegetables, soups and coffee, would be kept hot on the steam-table until they were served to the student.

(5) By eliminating the step of serving, "cafeteria-style" would offer more efficiency and less time consumption. The familiar waiting for the door to open and lapse between courses are evidence of this need.

(6) Students would not be thrown together awkwardly under the pretense of enhancing college social life. Students are usually mature when they reach the college level, and therefore they should be able to conduct their social life under their own impetus and intelligence. The unfounded idea that packing eight total strangers into one dining group is helping the student socially, impresses me as being not only immature, but ridiculous. "Cafeteria-style" would place the pleasure of promoting sociable relations on the individual, where it should be and where it is in all other walks of life.

In addition, "cafeteria-style" would make our meals here at Juniata a pleasure and not a necessary evil.

I wish that The Juniatian, in performing its primary duty of representing the interests and ideas of the student body, would conduct a research of other colleges which have incorporated "cafeteria-style" within recent years. Facts on the economic and social implications of conversion may provoke some thought where it counts. In the meantime, I promise the "Impatient Seven" to improve in the epicurean art of bolting.

Christians Must Improve To Meet Commy Challenge

It's not so much the challenge of communism that we have to fear but the failure of Christianity to face up to the problems of the world's people and furnish them with the security and zeal that they seek.

The students who attended the Religious Planning Commission's discussions on Communism's challenge to Christianity, on Sunday, feel that the root of the problem is the failure of Christianity in practice.

It was pointed out that the communist is materialistic with a purpose while the Christian is materialistic without a puurpose. Moreover, that communism stands for group sharing of the profits while Christianity generally sanctions individual profit. Also that the Christian church has too long sanctioned reaction and blocked social and economic improvement.

The consenus of opinion of the groups was that Christianity has lost that zeal and driving purpose which it had at its beginning.

To meet communism's challenge Christianity needs to redefine its principles. We need to be clear in our own minds what Christianity is. Christian scholarship and the presentation of academic data through a "Christian bias," should be functions of a Christian college such as our own.

Christianity must face up to the world's problems and take steps to improve conditions.

Circuit Rider

by Jack Freymuller

Twirp Week being over, those of us who held our breath until we were "twirped" may now release same and return once more to our usual routine. It seems to us that Twirp Week was for the majority of the upperclassmen a period of loitering in public places with no appreciable results.

We overheard many comments directed at the attitude of the coeds toward "twirping," and to be brief, they weren't favorable. Typical of these was: "I guess I know where I stand now."

Now girl's, don't you think that you could have done better by the male members of the student body? How else could this situation be construed by John C. Juniata other than complete indifference towards dating? We know that is not the case, but what if this thought should insinuate its ways into the mind of the average man on campus? The results would be disastrous. Imagine! No dates for the big dance or the football game! You wouldn't want that to happen, would you?

We suggest you take immediate steps to forestall any retaliatory action on the part of the men. Heed the advice previously offered in this column: be friendly, be seen often, and smile!!!

LAMENT

Could I but gather all the sunshine
That shines from out your hair,
And share it with the sorrowful,
Their fortune would turn fair.

Could I but gather all the stars
That shine within your eyes,
And give them to the miserable,
Dark clouds would leave their skies.

Could I but gather all the love
Within my heart for you,
And give it to the unloved,
This world would be like new.

Could I but gather all of these—
These precious little things,
And present them with a friendly heart,
The poor ones would be kings.

But, alas, my dear, it can't be done,
No matter how I try,
These things will be but mine alone
Until we both shall die.

Here's Thomas, you guilty people, ready to tell everyone of his faithful readers the news of who twirped whom and vice versa, Those guilty may read no further, unless, they are interested in knowing who else is guilty. Thomas, sad to say, must reveal his list of culprits, as the editor of this news sheet is anxious to have an article to fill this space. That is the only motive for my actions.

The Gypsy Carnival was a great chance for me to find out what you want to know, and it was fun, too. Clyde Johnson seemed to enjoy entertaining us, and it was enjoyable to listen. And what did you think of our campus trio? Rather nice, eh, what? They sang nicely, too. Elma, Jo, and Lucy, we thank you muchly.

Phil Chabody and his Flo were there, and did he ever look happy. Oh, my, yes. Ann Kirk twirped Don Howe. Good looking couple, I thought. Clair Shaffner looked very nimble jitterbugging with Doris Orner.

Clarence "Shorty" Isenberg was apparently having himself an evening of fun with Audrey Campbell. Our singer mentioned above, Clyde Johnson, not only enjoyed singing, but also in the company of Dottie Humphreys.

Jay McGrath was also seen by Tommy with none other than pretty Barbara Lape. And lest I forget, the McIntyre Boys, Ralph and Gilbert, were invited by Greta Madden and Lois Esaley, respectively. Don Sikes was noticed dancing with Cecelia King at the Carnival, but then he has been seen with Janice Lehman several times since.

Here's some real news for you people. Tommy has noticed one of our most fervent bachelors of late has gone and failed the clan. Joe Hulgus and Dottie Smith are spending quite a bit of time together. As if that weren't bad enough, further treachery has occurred on our campus. Jack Padgett done went and popped the question to Kitty Long, and she said "Yes". The bachelor club sure is losing its membership rapidly these days. And it isn't even Spring yet. Well, anyway, here's wishing much happiness to them.

Question of the Week: Why is Zimmerman working like a beaver in the Public Relations Office? Could it be because of Yvonne Beaver?

Note to the Football Team: We all agree that the loss to Dickinson was tough, but we are all still firmly behind you, and we know that you will continue to do your best to bring honor to our school. The test of a true sportsman is not how he wins, but how well he takes a defeat. Good luck in the Haverford game and for the rest of the season.

Before closing, I must make mention of the combination of Bob Frain and Edith Roberts. Quite a nice couple. Then, too, this column would not be complete if I failed to mention that couple that has all campus buzzing: Bob Jones and Jane Abel.

Thus we come to the end of another jolly chat. When next week comes around, I'll drop a few more lines of gossip and chatter to cheer the curious. Don't forget me in the meantime. I remain your obedient servant.

New Coach Starts Basketball Drills With 20 Varsity Candidates

Although current interest in sports is centered mainly in football at Juniata, for the past few days about 20 men students have been working out at the gym under the instrucion of Dr. Arnold Greene in preparation for the forthcomng basketball season. This group represents the material from which "Doc" Greene will select his varsity squad.

At the present time, emphasis is being placed more on the fundamentals of basketball than on plays in an effort to produce a well-balanced team. "Doc" Greene stressed the importance of developing the skill of his players in handling the ball and asserted that this would be a big factor in his choice of a team.

All Positions Open

In reply to the question of who might compose the varsity squad, Greene stated that so far he had not had a chance to judge individual abilities and all the positions were still open. Moreover, in any case the initial selections will not be considered as permanent, for some players will be placed on the junior varsity who will later be raised to the varsity as their performance merits it.

Coach Greene would risk no predictions concerning the chances for a successful season, saying only that he was beginning at rock bottom and that it would be impossible to make any guesses until he had a chance to see the boys in action.

It could be added here that, according to one of the metropolitan newspapers, Juniata is faced with one of the toughest schedules for a small college in the east.

Candidates Listed

The present roster lists the following as candidates for the team: Ken Wenger, John Stayer, Holmes Ulsh, Walter Parks, Ray Korody, Ray Tessi, Lloyd Newlin, Gordon Stroup, David Bayer, Leo Kuhn, Gerry Walker, Ronald Fleck, Joe Mruk, Dick Barefoot, George O'Brien, Geo. Newcomb and Jack Dickey.

In addition to these, the squad will be bolstered by candidates from the football team as soon as the football season ends.

The basketball "Indians" begin their season with Lycoming on Dec. 3 away. Following this encounter, they will meet Bucknell for the first home game of the season on Dec. 7.

Juniors, Seniors Join Forces In Girls' Hockey

The junior and senior class girls voted to combine hockey teams in a special W. A. A. meeting held on Thursday, Oct. 20.

At the meeting the point was argued that this combination gave the upperclassmen too great an advantage over the other teams.

There have been several game cancelations during the past two weeks due to bad weather and the inability of several classes to put full teams on the field.

The games cancelled were the upperclassmen vs. freshmen and the upperclassmen vs. sophomores. These games will be played at a latter date.

In two games played last week the sophomores lost their unbeaten title to the upperclassmen, 3-0, and to the freshmen 3-1. The upperclassmen combination has yet to be beaten.

Future games will be played as scheduled on the Founders Hall bulletin board unless there is a notice to the contrary.

Dark Horses Lose To Locals;Bullets Take Lead

The undefeated Bullets took a forfeit victory from the cellar dwelling Burns' Home Tuesday in the Intramural League to climb into the number one slot as Dark Horses dropped a 20-13 decision to the Locals.

George Newcombe passed for two Local tallies, and dashed around end for the final score. He also flipped for the one extra point. The Appleby brothers teamed up to score the other extra point.

Bill Lehman tossed over the goal to Dave Hill for the first Dark Horse score. The same combination worked for the extra point.

The week's scores:
Locals 20, Killers 7
Jay Birds 13, Flashes 7
Cookies 19, Burns' Home 14
T-Bolts 22, Flashes 6
Sky Pilots 13, Killers 13
Crusaders 6, Jay Birds 6
Locals 20, Dark Horses 13
Sky Pilots 1, Jay Birds 0 (forfeit)

Grove City Keeps Right On Winning

By losing Saturday, Juniata kept pace with two of her remaining three opponents who also lost. The only team that kept bowling its opponents over was Grove City, who by the looks of things, is headed towards the Juniata campus intends on scalping some Indians.

Last week's scores are:
Haverford 7, Hamilton 13
Grove City 32, Allegheny 0
Moravian 13, Lebanon Valley 34

Last Saturday was a happy day for Westminster as they finally broke into the win column by beating Bethany College 19-6. Susquehanna kept on losing by droping one to Upsala 20.0 Lastly, Hartwick lost to Alfred by the score of 19 to 14.

In 1929 Juniata whitewashed its first four opponents of the season. The scores: Susquehanna 12-0, Upsala, 12-0, George Washington 32-0, and Wagner 12-0.

"SQUEEZE" LONG

Loss Of Key Men Helps Dickinson Stop Indians, 9-7

Starting their fourth game of the season without the services of Dave Croft, Mike Mervis or Joe Mulligan, and then losing Co-Captain Mike Dzvonar before the contest was a half hour old, the Juniata Indians were outmanned, outplayed and outscored 9 to 7 by Dickinson College last Saturday at College Field.

All the scoring came in the first and second quarters, first Dickinson, then Juniata, and finally the Red Devils again with the safety that won the game for the Carlisle boys.

Dickinson Scores First

Dickinson scored in the first period by marching 76 yards to the Juniata goal the first time they got possession of the ball. Gerry Miller, the Huntingdon High product, kicked the extra point that gave the Red Devils a 7-0 lead.

But their lead lasted only as long as it takes to kick off and have a speedy wingback sprint down the sidelines for a touchdown. "Squeeze" Long was barely touched as he dashed 82 yards to score, after catching the Dickinson kickoff about 15 yards in from the sideline on the Juniata 18. Dzvonar's extra point was good, his ninth in 11 tries.

The Slugfest

Regardless of Long's sensational run, the most decisive action came in the second quarter after the Devils punted from midfield. Dzvonar, standing on his own 15, fumbled the ball trying to make the catch and was immediately tackled by Dickinson's Bill Falen. And seconds later both boys were headed for the showers after swapping haymakers.

Movies taken from atop the press box clearly show that Falen swung first, catching Dzvonar sharply on the side of the face. Meteor Mike retaliated immediately, and then left the game amidst cheers from the Dickinson bench.

Stunned by the loss of their star tailback, the Indians reeled back against their own goal, had a kick blocked and were the victims of a safety that turned out to be the margin of victory.

Later in the same period, however, the Juniata defense drew itself up short and stopped a Dickinson drive on the six inch line. For the remainder of the game both teams struck back and forth across midfield. with neither getting inside the other's 20.

Subs Look Good

Don Howett and Jerry Africa did a fine job in place of Dzvonar and Croft, as did Joe Dobal at fullback in place of his injured mates.

For Juniata, the loss was their first of the season after three straight wins. And for Dickinson it was win number two to counter balance two losses and a tie.

Juniata College's best season record on the gridiron was in 1948, when they won four, lost two and tied one for percentage of .667.

Only four penalties were issued in '48's Homecoming game with Haverford.

Indians Ready For Anything Against Haverford Saturday

With their perfect record curtly dismissed by Dickinson last Saturday, the Juniata Indians will have to bounce back against Haverford tomorrow if gridiron greatness is to be theirs in 1949.

The "heap big smoke and no fire" they belched weakly at the Red Devils last week won't be enough, for the Hornets of Haverford are out to avenge a 34-21 beating they suffered at College Field a year ago.

Secondary to winning the game will be attempts to hold down fullback Chris Amussen. This 198-pound line crusher is having one of his best seasons at Haverford. In the '48 game, Amussen crossed the broad strip for two touchdowns, and carried ten times for a net gain of 55 yards.

Harry Garrison scouted the Indians during the Dickinson contest last week. Harry is out with a dislocated shoulder, and will not be starting tomorrow.

The Hornets began the season with the T-formation but it is rumored that coach Roy Randall has switched to the single wing. There is no confirmation on this switch. "We're preparing to meet both of them," commented Coach Smaltz.

No Serious Injuries

There were no serious injuries Saturday. Reserve center Jerry Africa, a junior from Pitcairn, was shaken-up and tackle Joe Thomasberger sustained a bruised ankle. Both will be in condition to participate in tomorrow's game.

Few of the attending upperclassmen will forget the thrilling die-hard battle waged by the Fords against J. C. last year. With five minutes left to play in the first half, our Indians had bulled their way to a 20-0 lead.

Victory Is Hand Fought

Haverford took to the air, and by the end of the third quarter, had racked up 21 points. Coach Smaltz continued his ground driving tactics, and walked off the field with a hard fought 34-21 victory.

Juniata has met Haverford's Scarlet and Black contingent three times. The results of this three game series shows the Hornets ahead two games to one.

With the loss of Garrison there is some doubt as to whom the passing chores will be given. Looking over last season's statistics we find that he completed six of fourteen attempts, and had two intercepted. Those completed were good for 131 yards.

Statistics Reveal Ground Gaining Big Factor In JC Attack

Bill Smaltz's Indians in their first four games have outscored their opponents 75 points to 46. Of this total, Mike Dzvonar has personally accounted for 51 as a result of seven TD's and nine out of 11 tries for the extra point.

The only other back with more than a single touchdown is "Squeeze" Long who scored the hard way last Saturday by running back a kickoff 82 yards to paydirt.

Dzvonar, Then Howett

Once again Dzvonar dominates the rushing department. Mike has a net yardage sum of 381, with Sophomore "Dutch" Howett second at 170 net yards.

Rushing has been a favorite method of offense since the beginning of Juniata's tough forward wall. An amazing total of 945 yards have been eaten up as the result of power plays. This shows that J. C. averaged 238 yards per contest through bucks, slants, and around the end combinations.

Uses Terra Firma Attack

Proving once more that Coach Smaltz counts a great deal on a terra firma attack, the figures show that only 123 yards have been gained through the ozone. Indian enemies, on the other hand, have compiled 312 yards in this department.

Tall, fleet-footed End George Smith has snagged eight passes good for 93 yards. Excelling in the sending department is none other than Dzvonar. Mike has attempted 16 and completed six the result being 72 yards and two Juniata scores.

Even with the gap between yards gained by J. C. opponents, the total yards gained by passing and rushing remains in Juniata's favor: 1068 to 766.

New Phone Serves J.C. In Home Grid Games

With little doubt, this is the age of scientific football, and the Indians are taking advantage of many opportunities in the field.

Spotting is now accepted as a necessary gridiron practice. Movies, tape recorders, weekly rating sheets, and even stop watches are all used to aid or improve the game.

The latest addition to Juniata's G-2 system is the installation of telephone communication between the bench and the press box.

Assistant Coach Dr. Arnold Green watches attentively in the press box of the contest below. Doc, who is considered by local players and coaches as one of the better experts, reports any flaw in the enemy's attack or defense, or our own.

A rush call is sent through Manager Don Robinson on the bench. Coach Bill Smaltz receives the report and reacts according to the situation reported.

Theatre Notes

by Miss Esther Doyle

Although we are all children of the twentieth century, who has not wondered what it would be like to have lived in another time—the England of Queen Elizabeth, for example, or Julius Caesar's Rome Dante's ,Italy, or Greece in its golden age?

Peter Standish, hero of John Balderston's "Berkeley Square," chose England in the 18th century. Imagine, he thinks, attending the first night of "School for Scandal," hearing Johnson say the things Boswell wrote, riding in sedan chairs, and having one's portrait painted by Sir Joshua Reynolds.

Well, why not? If time is, as some have thought, all one; if real time "is nothing but an idea in the mind of God," why cannot he, the twentieth century Peter Standish, change places with his 18th century ancestor?

By some trick of the mind he is able to do just that, and "Berkeley Square" is the study of the Peter Standish of our time adjusting to 18th century ways. His language, his manners, his squeamishness at his ancestors' amusement, and not least of all, his love for 18th century cousin are some of the problems of the play. Its fantasy, its comedy, and its drama should offer entertainment for everyone.

New Uniforms Nearly Complete

Although one portion of the cheerleaders' new uniforms has already arrived and been put to use, still another portion still remains to be received. The Athletic Association, with some aid from the squad, are purchasing the additions.

The girls have ordered navy skirts with gold pleats. The fellows will wear navy trousers.

Miss Jane E. McCormick, girls physical education director and advisor to the cheering squad, says that "the cheerleaders are open for any contructive suggestions which anyone has to offer. The squad is also ready for any new cheers which the students are willing to submit. There is especially a need for short snappy cheers."

Three girls and two men have been recently added to the squad, making 12 members in all. The men have incorporated acrobatics into their repetoire of cheers. Also, new cheers have been composed, and new motions to old cheers worked out.

Saturday's loss to Dickinson was the first time the Indians have been beaten at College Field since Coach Smaltz took over the helm in 1947.

Juniata Outing Club Holds Meeting; To Feature Skating, Picnics and Skiing

by Margie Alleman

Juniata's campus has seen the formation of a new club for those lucky individuals who find time to step out once in a while. The first meeting of the "Outing Club" was held last Wednesday afternoon in Founders Chapel.

Dave Kennedy, who is one of the guiding lights in this new enterprise, says that the club is for those who like such activities as "skating, cook-outs, and skiing."

CHEMISTRY CLUB MEETS

The Chemistry Club held its regular meeting Wednesday, Oct. 19 in Science Hall.

During the business meeting, presided over by President Herman Groninger, members were urged to become student affiliates of the American Chemical Society.

The main feature of the meeting was the movie, "Nickel and Its Alloys." This film showed the processing of nickel in Canada and in the United States, from its removal from the earth through the steps of refining to is final formation into bars, sheets, and wire for use in manufacturing.

On Thursday, October 20, about 15 members of the club attended the meeting of the Central Pennsylvania section of the American Chemical Society held at Penn State.

Dr. Stain Lectures

Dr. Harold H. Strain, senior chemist at Argonne National Laboratory, Chicago, lectured on "Plant Function and Plant Relationship Revealed by Chromotography of the Chloroplast Pigments."

Following the lecture, some of the students toured the spectroscopy laboratories.

Refreshments in 'Chemical Style'

Refreshments were served in true "chemical style" with coffee in 250 ml. beakers, sugar and cream stirred with stirring rods, and doughnuts piled high on a laboratory bench.

KULP AT VOLUNTEERS

Tuesday the Volunteers had as their speaker Dr. H. Stover Kulp. The main theme of his talk was the meaning of the mission field to him.

After a short stay in England, Dr. Kulp returned from Africa to the United States this summer. He plans to return to his missionary duties in Africa on November 12. The day before he takes his leave, he will speak to Juniata's students and faculty in chapel.

The Volunteers Club expects to have many other fine speakers during the year. Interested students are invited to attend the meeings which are held every Tuesday evening in Founders Chapel.

MASQUE ON AIR

Next Wednesday evening the "Juniata on the Air" radio program will present parts of scenes from the Masque production "Berkeley Square".

Included in this week's Ministerium radio presentation were inspirational readings by Gene Roddy, Don Robinson, Glenn Zug, Don Treese, and Paul Schroeder. Last year's A Cappella Choir records were played intermittenly.

During National Education, in November the Alpha Beta Gamma will present a program dealing with the subject of education.

November 6 he will speak at the dedication of the Church of the Brethren at Tippecanoe, Ohio.

President Ellis will be at Elgin, Illinois, from Nov. 7 until Nov. 11 for the Autumn meting of the General Brotherhood Board of the Church of the Brethren. He is president of the board.

Diamond Dust

Two seniors, Kitty Long and Jack Padgett, announced their engagement on Sunday.

Miss Long is a home economics major from Baltimore, Jack, a Haddonfield, New Jersey, lad is majoring in sociology and hopes to teach philosophy and religion in college after graduation.

The wedding date has been tentatively scheduled for Christmas time.

KNITZER

Mr. Knitzer, the former experience, which occurs for him about a dozen times a year, is "more fun."

Concerning modern music the violinist emphasized, "contemporary music is a vital force just like contemporary novels . . . a person can not read only Shakespeare." This "modern force" is never lacking in Mr. Knitzer's programs.

Menu of Music

In planning his programs he begins with one piece and continues from there "the same as you would in preparing a menu"—appetizer, entree, salad, and dessert. "If you use a fruit salad, you will certainly not want fruit in the dessert." So it is with selecting music for a program.

"It's all a matter of balancing one selection with another," Mr. Knitzer goes on to explain.

The violin doesn't take up all this artist's time. If he doesn't have a bow in his hand, he has a ping-pong paddle or a fishing rod. Mr. Knitzer is fond of tennis, but the racket is much heavier than the violin bow and therefore harmful to his arm. Reading is also one of his favorite partimes.

Perseverence Main Requirement

Perseverence is the main requirement for prospective violin students, says Mr. Knitzer. "The bulk of musical material is written for piano and violin. Therefore, if you do produce peculiar sounds during the first couple years, dont' get impatient." According to this famous violinist, you will, after years of practice, find "more satisfaction with the violin than with other instruments."

In 25 years of football Juniata College teams have won 62, lost 115, and tied 9 times.

Smaltzs Eat, Drink And Live Football During Season

by Carol Cook

Did you ever wonder what a football coach and his wife discuss at the dinner table?

Well, oddly enough, at the Smaltz home football is the main topic of conversation. Furthermore, not only is this true at the dinner table, but at the breakfast and lunch table as well.

In fact, it might even be said that during football season Coach Smaltz and his assistants, Mrs. Smaltz and Bill, Jr., eat, sleep, and drink football.

A typical football season week for the Smaltz coaching staff runs as follows:

Sunday. The sun can't be seen for the smiles on their faces after the Indians' massacre the day before. Passing mention is given to the coming opponent on Monday. The staff goes into a huddle and views pictures of the latest massacre. The opponents are introduced a little more into the conversation.

Tuesday. Back into the huddle for discussion of the scouter reports. "The opponents team is beginning to size up."

Wednesday. "The opponent's team looks pretty good."

Thursday. "The opponent's team not only is smarter and bigger than our team, but definitely much better."

Could Beat Notre Dame

Friday. "The opponent's team undoubtedly could beat Notre Dame."

Friday night. Dean and Mrs. Rhodes are brought into the huddle for a bridge game.

Saturday a. m. There is much biting of nails and jumping at the slightest sound. Consultation among staff members occurs only when necessary.

Saturday afternoon. Head Coach Smaltz dons uniform of grey suit with matching tie and socks. (It may be noted here that

In the evening parents are invited to a concert by the Marianne Kneisel String Quartet in Oller Hall at 8:15.

At half time during the football game, Mr. L. M. Clemmer, of Souderton, and Jack Padgett will address the crowd as representatives of the parents and student body, respectively.

Winners of the room contest will be announced at the game. Prizes of $30 have been contributed by an alumnus of the College. To each person who occupies a prize winning room—double and single both in the men's and women's dormitories—a $5 award will be given.

The awards will be based on originality of room plan, neatness and attractiveness, adaptability to given physical limitations and suitability and utility values.

Quartet to Perform

In the evening the Marianne Kneisel Quartet will give a concert program.

The name Kneisel has ranked high in music circles for many years. Frank Kneisel founded the group and now his daughter, Marianne, leads the organization.

The quartet gives concerts in Bar Harbor and has scheduled a series of summer concerts at the University of Maine.

Miss Kneisel owns the famous old "Saucy Stradivarious" violin.

'High Tradition of Music'

Arcording to the New York Times music critic this quartet "reveals a high tradition of chamber music, and a finely developed sense of ensemble playing."

The Christian Science Monitor says "each instrument is allowed its individual expression," and by the San Francisco Bulletin: "Skillful performers . . . well grounded musicians . . . admirable finish and tone."

Students to Cheer Team Tonight

A vocal pat on the back will be given the Indians this evening at 7:15 on the football practice field, according to Bill Collins, chairman of the freshmen pep rally.

One of the big features of the rally will be a bonfire. Tentative plans have been made to light the bonfire with flaming arrows. In addition the cheerleaders will lead the students in songs.

Following the rally the students will gather in the W. A. A. room for a dance. Refreshments will be served by the freshmen committee.

Several chairmen have been chosen by Collins to serve on the various committees. Sam Brumbaugh is in charge of music for the dance, while Sue Bieber is chairman of the decoration committee. Her committee will decorate the W. A. A. for the occasion.

Anne Mullin is head of the commimttee for refreshments.

Concert Series Brings Pianists To Campus Wed.

Whittemore and Lowe, duo pianists will perform in Oller Hall, Wednesday, Nov. 9, at 8:15 p. m. This recital is the first in a series of concerts sponsored by the Huntingdon Community Concert.

The pianists are both Westerners. Whittmore is from a small university town in Chermillion, South Dakota. Lowe was born in Denver, Colorado and started out as a violinist later turing to piano.

The two met at Eastman Institute of Music in Rochester, New York and they both served in the Navy for four years during the war. After the war, they gave their first recital in San Juan, Puerto Rico, and ever since their performances have been a sellout.

The musicians play rare classics and also modern popular music. Their latest R. C. A. Victor recording is Brahms-Hayden Variations.

The Community Concert is a national organization under the Organized Audience Plan of Columbia Concerts which has its main office in New York City and various branch offices in about 1000 small towns in the United States.

It tries to put a Carnegie Hall in every small town where people are interested in classics but do not have access to a large city.

Tickets are not sold at box office and one must buy a season ticket in order to attend the concerts. Students of Juniata are admitted through their student activity cards.

Februray 3 the second concert will be held, and will offer Pia Tassinari who is soprano of the Metropolitan Opera. The third and last concert of the season will be a performance given by the De Paura Infantry Chorus, a Negro group of 35 males.

Mrs. Howard Alley Dies

Mrs. Hattie Zelma Alley, mother of two Juniata students, died last Tuesday morning in the Polyclinic Hospital, Harrisburg. With her husband, the Rev. Howard Alley, she served as a missionary in India for almost 30 years under the Church of the Brethren.

The Alleys returned to the United States several years ago to live on campus and enroll their daughters, Thelma and Nina, in the College.

My, How Times Have Changed!--'The Juniatian Story'

by Bob Smith

"Oh you editors today have no idea how things have changed. Back in my day the editor had to take each issue of The Juniatian into the president and sit there while he (President Emeritus C. C. Ellis) read it, item by item, and told you what he thought of it." The 1932 editor of The Juniatian sighed visibly as he remembered his weekly ordeal. His name: Morley Mays.

In the 25 years of The Juniatian's publication that end with today's edition many things have changed—size, appearance, content and that important relationship with the administration so graphically illustrated by Dean Mays.

Yet many things have remained fixed. Editors all through the years have exhorted their fellow students to cheer like savages at football games and act like gentlemen in the dining hall.

Dumb Bunnies, Sick Hens

Telford Blough, editor No. 3, spat out an editorial against those who "sat there like dumb bunnies" while Duquesne romped over the Indians 30 to 6. He called them "a sacred few, afraid of smearing the shine on their shoes (who) sat like sick hens on a roost cackling razzing remarks at those who cared . . ."

Six years later Editor Morley Mays was concerned about poor sportsmanship in the basketball rooting section, but also about conduct at meals: "There is a choice place in any barnyard for those individuals who can't wait until they sit down before they eat and also for those who reach halfway from one end of the table to the other to get something . . . it seems to be true that table deportment of all too many students is puerile, crude, and disgusting." It was one of those timeless, editorials, as pertinent today as it unquestionably was in 1932.

TELFORD B. BLOUGH

Blough Started Tommy

Editor Tel Blough was certainly the pioneer among those early editors. He was the originator of Tommyhawk, the only feature of The Juniatian that weaves a thread of continuity down through these many years. He increased the size of the paper to six columns and a sheet several inches longer than this one. And his editorials had a hard hitting punch; he was against swearing, against unfair tests given by certain faculty members, against "sick hens," and he said so. He plugged for a College band, for a Social Room (either in Founders Chapel or the gym) and for more student voice in shaping Juniata's way of life.

At the turkey dinner Telford B. Blough, principal of Conemaugh Township High School in Davidsville, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Mr. Blough, who was the third editor and the founder of Tommyhawk, was master of ceremonies at The Juniatian banquet held in 1934. He is a former alumni representative of the board of trustees.

Also expected at tonight's banquet is Stanley Stroup, Harrisburg attorney. Mr. Stroup, who was the principal speaker at the 1934 meeting is the founder of The Juniatian. Through the years he has been the most consistent critic of the paper. His son, Gordon, is a freshman on College Hill.

Others who will attend are Ernest Weyant, Editor '30; Dean Morley J. Mays, Editor '32; and Dr. Paul Robinson, Editor '35.

WANTED--- Your Opinion

This week The Juniatian starts a series of polls to determine student opinion, student ideas and suggestions on various topics. The first is: What courses do you think should be added to the present curriculum?

New courses are offered from time to time by the College, and so any crystalization of student feeling on the matter in the form of concrete suggestions will certainly be considered by the curriculum committee.

Talk it over during the next few days and then make your suggestions on the ballot given you Monday after chapel. Fill it in and drop it in the boxes placed in the Post Office and the Men's Day Student Room.

Your suggestions will be reported to the registrar and will be summarized in next week's Juniatian.

Why Football ?

"Why have football at Juniata?"

Football is not a Juniata tradition. In fact, it is considered by the Board of Directors as only an experiment and as such it has proven unsuccessful. It was probably introduced because most other schools had it and because of the advertising the college would get. But as an advertising medium it brings nothing but adverse opinions, and it is now time to consider something which will advertise Juniata favorably or will at least greatly benefit the school. For if football provided physical development for a majority of the students it would be justified, but since it cannot possibly do that, something better should be found.

As a substitue we nominate for the position the ancient and honorable game of bull-fighting. No don't laugh, this is serious. Think of the marvelous possibilities in it for Juniata. There is probably no school in the United States with such an inter-collegiate sport, and should it adopt this nomination, Juniata would stand supreme. We could lay down the rules, produce the coaches, elect the All-American team and completely monopolize the field. And if such supremacy would not advertise us favorably, no sport could.

We Could Save Money

Think of the money it would save the school. As lady patrons might object, it would not be necessary for our toreadors to kill the bulls, but only to defeat them. Then three or four bulls should last a whole season, and if one should be slain, the meat would make fine filling for hash, etc.

Instead of having 30 men neglect their studies, only a few would have to. Scrub teams would be eliminated, because no scrimmage is necessary, and in the end one man could be the whole squad if he is properly trained and survives the season.

And while our bullfighter is making a name for Juniata we, who only stand by and cheer, can be getting a better physical development. The money now expended for athletics could be used to build a swimming pool, a real gymnasium, tennis courts and various other recreation fields. We, who now get nothing, could have everything that goes to making one physically fit. We could have sport for the sake of sport and not for the sake of winning. And we would have crowds of students at our sports, not yelling for some one else, but playing the gems themselves, which is the ideal of all college athletics.

A STATEMENT

The football article appearing in this column last week was an individual's opinion and not in accordance with the editorial policy of this paper. It was authorized by neither the editor nor a majority of the associate editors.

Give The College Paper Freedom, It Will Be Responsible

by Bill Engel

(For publication on the birthday of the The Juniatian, Bill Engel was asked to write an article on the responsibilities of a college newspaper. Mr. Engel, editor of the Penn State Collegian 10 years ago, is now a member of the faculty and administration of the College. He is the faculty advisor to the Juniatian. —The Editor)

When Alexander Hamilton was asked back in 1788 to define 'liberty of the press' he threw up his hands and admitted he couldn't do so.

Hamilton was both a journalist and a statesman, and if he couldn't pin things down, surely it is understandable why there has been widespread confusion about the "freedom of the college press."

Despite Hamilton's perplexity, there is a simple, clear-cut way of expressing this so-termed freedom today. It is: YOUR RIGHT TO KNOW what is going on at Juniata College.

Hence, first of all, the college newspaper—in this case The Juniatian—owes primary allegiance to its student audience.

But, as one journalist has so well put: "When complete campus coverage is a fact, when the molding of student opinion is accomplished, when the defense of free expression is successful, when all student knots are tied—the college journal has yet to bear in mind that there remains an added responsibility to the college as a whole . . . ."

The college newspaper does become an institutional asset by: 1.) realizing the important role it can play in the public relations work of its college; 2.) offering constructive criticism of student, faculty and administrative activities; 3.) supporting the cause of academic freedom; 4.) emphasizing quality in the fundamentals of journalism.

Good When It's Good

At its best, one authority explained, the undergraduate newspaper is a pretty smooth piece of journalism by anybody's standards, and a solid academic achievement. It's a builder of campus morale and a public relations medium of high order.

At its worst—wow!

Perhaps that is why an article in Editor and Publisher once described the undergraduate paper as "dynamite wrapped in newsprint" and "an educational hot potato."

More stresses and strains, more dissatisfactions and resentment seem to whirl continuously about the college newspaper than almost any other undertaking on the campus. Great variation exists from one college to another in the nature and amount of control—or lack of it—granted the student staff.

Faculty Control Foolish

The "faculty control" demand is foolish. Censorship produces bad student morale, resentments, flare-ups, evasions in porportion to its severity. Actually, the student paper becomes a "weak and spineless thing" lacking in the strength and force to speak effectively for the group it represents.

Censorship, in most instances, has proved to be an educational self-contradiction if the college proposes to be a training ground for effective participation in a democratic society. John Dewey has impressively pointed out that artificial methods don't produce realistic outcomes.

True enough, the college newspaper should reflect student opinion. But one professor of journalism maintains "no publication ever speaks for the students alone, and I know of no way of holding students responsible for their printed statements, at least not in a legal sense." It is evident that he advocates consorship.

Participation Detrimental

Yet another has pointed out: "Administrative or faculty participation in any aspect of the college publication is detrimental to the quality of that paper, the integrity of its editors, an insult to any recognizabie educational ideals, and a vicious disservice to the individuals and the institution whch the paper is supposed to serve."

Is it any wonder Hamilton threw up his hands?

While the college press should not be hamstrung, neither should it be permitted, for instance, to transgress the individual's right of privacy.

The question how far the college paper may carry its right-to-know before it runs into the blockade of the individual's unquestioned rights is of serious concern. The reader's right-to-know is one thing—and that reader's curiosity is quite another.

Editors Have Responsibility

The collegiate editors should be fully conscious of the broad license that the college public generally has given them. They should understand the faith and the obligation that underlie this trust.

Surely the collegiate press, like so many other human endeavors, has its faults. Like so many other enterprises today, it is subjecting itself to critical self-examination.

Students, faculty and administration should be slow in minimizing the college newspaper as an interpreter of the institution. In addition, it is a chronicler of the activities . . . .a training laboratory . . . . and advertising medium.

As Editor and Publisher magazine explained, the college paper "reaches and influences in their formative stages a group of young men and women who go on to positions of responsibility and leadership in American society."

Truely, it is no "journalistic peewee."

Students Skip Classes As Hunting Season Opens

by Walton Nimrod

Sparsely attended classes marked the opening of hunting season as a surprising number of Juniata sports enthusiasts took to the fields on Tuesday. The air was cool and crisp with the scent of rabbit in each breath. As the tower bell sounded nine, reports began to echo through the hills as the season open in full force.

A variety of reports began to circulate as one by one the hunters returned. Some reported an absolute lack of game in Huntingdon County, while others verified earlier reports of a relative abundance of most types of small game.

The only scare item, I found, was the ringneck pheasant; but two of these were sighted rather close to College Hill, one being brought back. Turkeys were seen but I heard of none being bagged. For the first few days the turkeys will remain in flocks, but after being pursued they will tend to separate.

The most abundant is the rabbit and they seem to concentrate in the highland fields and on hillsides. They don't seem to be plentiful in the lower fields or the woods. Those who have difficulty finding them should concentrate on brush and bramble patches and fence lines. You will find this will pay off in addition to saving time.

While trampling the lowlands in the afternoon, I was provided with an interesting target as I flushed a covey of quail. In case you don't know what a quail looks like just ask Bob Mohr.

I also spotted a flock of thirteen black ducks seeking refuge on Stone Creek, but not having a duck stamp I concentrated on rabbits. The territory along Cold Spring road beyond the borough line and along Stone Creek offer excellent hunting for those who haven't much time between classes. If you keep your eyes open and search the natural cover you are bound to see game. Good luck.

TOMMY

Once again, a deadline has rolled around and it becomes necessary for me to bury my hatchet . . . . in someone's back! But wait a minute . . . . didn't the editor say that he would be right glad to see a bit more than the usual two-sentence jobs linking a boy and a girl together amid many cries of injustice and horror from both parties.

All right, so be it. Let the below-noted information be regarded by all as pure fact. And to begin, I wish to bestow the plaudits of my column on those among us who so richly deserve it.

Gentlemen of The Week: I have selected for this signal honor a well-known figure on campus, deserving of recognition both for devotion to duty he displays in the campus post office and for his love of hiking around the environs of the college. Just for example, today I noticed him pointing out to Jackie Felton the wonderful colors of Fall. A pat on the back to you, Robert Rotz. Keep 'em smiling.

Friendliest Girl I've Seen: Honors in this department go to little Betsy Dively for the cheering smile that she bestows on all so fortunate to enter Skip's while she is there. I have in mind certain members of Juniata backfield who have been seen grinning foolishly over a smile from her. Isn't that right, Joe?

Seen But Not Understood Section: "Bangs" Keller and Art Allen looking over Art's scrapbook in the Social Rooms. This is not listed in my book as standard procedure for an "operator." What is the story, Art?

Hugh "Mac" MacEvers dashing madly to class clad in the latest style for campus wear . . . . . Pajamas, suede jacket and shoes, no socks. Mac insisted he was trying to beat the deadline on a journalism test but I'm not convinced. Bill Engel should know a good story when he see's one.

Eavesdropping on the topic before the discussion group of Betty Carnenter and Len Hickman, Janice Wenger and "Boots" Raphael, Tommy overhead "fifth wheel" Sikes explain the apparent sarcastic nature of his remarks as just "heap big smoke and no fire." He claimed he was just always misunderstood. Wouldn't hurt a flea, would you Jocko?

Tommy is glad to note that the lines on "pappy" Glick's forehead caused by sleepless nights are beginning to disappear. Getting used to those morning lectures, "pappy"?

Campus Quiz: What ever happened to the blue-and-gold shovel used in the breaking of ground for the site of Oller Hall? Address all answers in care of Tommyhawk before Monday, Nov. 7 and get your name in this column.

Before I close, I must admit that I am puzzled by the behavior of Dr. Binkley, in connection with an incident that occured one evening after the late meal. I was reading a letter in the post office when Dr. Binkley burst in, looked around, muttered something under his breath and strode hastily out. Couldn't you find your car Dr. Binkley?

Hoping that I see no shredded sections of page two fluttering over the campus, I remain

Tailback Hurt As J.C. Subdues Fords

by Mike Scialabba

"Meteor" Mike Dzvonar sparked Juniata to its fourth victory last Saturday as J. C. trounced Haverford College 33 to 20. Mike's 21 individual points carried him to the top of the state's scoring race, a six point lead over Lehigh's Dick Gabriel. An inury to Dzvonar on the next to the play of the ball game carried the minds of the fans from the victory to Mike's physical condition.

With a little over a minute to play, Mike attempted a screen pass but was snowed under by a host of 'Ford linemen and had to be carried off the field in the stretcher. At first, it was believed that Dzvnor had pulled some knee ligaments but later it proved less serious than originally believed.

Another surprise of the game, only this time on the fortunate side, was Coach Smaltz's new platoon system. The Indians crossed the 'Fords goal 4 times in the first half and would have had a fifth if not for a fumble on the two yard stripe. With a 27-6 lead at halftime, the first team never saw action again till the final 4 minutes of the game. Every reserve lineman and back played in the second half. Although the score was close to the 1948 thriller of 34-21, the game was never close, and the Indians showed the fans that it was all a mistake against Dickinson last week.

Juniata kicked off and then marched the entire length of the field after taking Haverford's punt. Don Howett at tailback, and Dzvonar at fullback, alternated at lugging the mail to the 'Fords two where the 'Fords took over after recovering Howett's fumble.

Smith Recovers

Only a few plays later, the 'Fords fumbled and George Smith recovered. Sticking to the ground, Dzvonar sliced over and converted the extra point to lead 7-0.

In the second period, a pass interception by Jerry Africa gave the Indians another touchdown setup. With Dzvonar at tailback for the first time, Mike sprang away for a touchdown-bound jaunt but stepped out of bounds on the four. Fullback Joe Dobal, crashed over for the score and Mike's extra point was good. Scoring everytime they gained possession of the ball, Juniata was living up to the statement of being one of the strongest small college eleven in the state.

Haverford's first half score came on an aerial attack and they marched 73 yards to score with Amussen going over from the 6. Test's conversion was good to make the count 20 to 7.

Pass To Chabody

Juniata grabbed a 27-7 lead with a 14-yard pass from Dzvonar to fleet wingback Phil Chabody, who leaped high in the air in the end zone to make the catch and then tumbled out of bounds.

In the second half, the Indians marched 72 yards for another score. A pass to Chabody from Dzvonar for 28 yards started the ball rolling. Dzvonar then threw one to George Smith on the 22 where the lanky end went to the 12 before being stopped. Dzvonar then went over for the score.

PENNSYLVANIA'S LEADING SCORER—With Grove City moving into town Saturday, Mike Dzvonar limped hopefully to three doctors, a rubdown artist, and the team trainer for sunlamp and electronic treatments. The doctors agreed that the torn muscles and stretched ligaments in his left knee should have another week's rest. Mike flatly disagreed. Coach Smaltz said he wouldn't decide on Mike's condition for the game until he limbers up in practice tonight; but he knew that even if he plays he won't be the Dzvonar of old, the Meteor who zoomed to the top in scoring in the state on 10 touchdowns and 12 extra points in five games.

Grove City Favored Over J.C. Q. B. Foster Is Man To Stop

by Bob Volpitto

After last Saturday's experimental game with Haverford, the Indians take the warpath against a favored Grove City squad at College Field tomorrow.

"Without a doubt, Grove City is the toughest team on our schedule," commented Coach Bill Smaltz, "but if we can stop Foster and Restivo, we can stop Grove City."

Harold Foster, a two letterman at quarterback, is coach Jim Lovelass' ace passer. In the Grover's game against Thiel, Foster's aerial resulted in their hard fought 6-0 victory.

As an indication of Foster's value as a potential threat, Smaltz rates his football abilities above those of Dickinson's John Mathewson. He is considered by Smaltz the best T-formation quarterback that Juniata fans will see at College Field.

Right half Sam Restivo weighs in at 175, and stands 5'10". Sam is the top running back, and is noted for his speed.

On the average, the Crimson line weights 20 pounds heavier than Juniata's. One tackle tips the scales at 265, and the other at 210.

Fullbacks Over 200

All three Wolverine fullbacks weigh over 200. Paul Hiack, a converted guard, is Lovelass' starting choice at this spot.

Both teams have identical records of four wins and one setback. The Grover's sole defeat came at the hands of Geneva, 13 to 7. Says Lovelass, "We played our best football in that game."

Sprinter Jim Hamilton will spell trouble tomorrow. This speedy left end has been a determing factor in Grover victories.

Use Two-Platoon System

Once more the two-platoon system will attempt to throttle the Indians. There are several changes in the line, and almost the entire backfield is alternated.

According to a Philadelphia physician, Mike Dzvonar will be out of action from a week to ten days. The Meteor suffered a torn ligament in his left knee with less than one minute to play against Haverford.

"I know Mike," said Smaltz. "If he can walk, he can play".

Others Injuried

Other injuries consist of Gene Shaffer's bruised leg nerve, Joe Mulligan's dislocated elbow, and two bad knees that still plague Mike Mervis.

Grove City's opposition has been able to score only a total of 25 points against the Crimson Tide. Geneva owns 13 of those, while Dickinson and Hiram have taken six each.

Wrestling Practice To Start Nov. 12

This Fall a new sport is being introduced on the Juniata campus, wrestling. At first it will be placed on an intramural basis and if enough individuals are interested and show satisfactory progress it will be placed on an intercollegiate basis.

Any individual who would like to test his skill and stamina is urged to come out and try. Contact Harry Samuels or George Stever, Lodge room 27.

Practice is slated to start on November 14 with the first meet to be held shortly after Christmas vacation.

The various weight classes, according to Samuels are 121, 128, 134, 139, 146, 155, 165, 175, 185 and unlimited.

Upperclassmen Beaten By Sophs, 2-1, But Hold Lead In Girls Hockey

Winning by the close margin of 2-1, the sophomore hockey team beat the upperclassmen on Wednesday afternoon. This victory breaks the upperclassmen's unbeaten record and gives the sophomores a chance at the championship.

Connie Sherman, the sophomore left inner drove the ball across the goal line to score in the first half. The upperclassmen threatened to score once or twice in the second half but failed in each attempt.

In a close game on Tuesday the upperclassmen defeated the freshmen, 2-1. The upperclassmen made both their goals in the first half and for a while it seemed that the frosh would be completely snowed under. In the second half, however, they rallied and scored. The '53er's held off the attempts of the upperclassmen to score for the rest of the half, but were unable to gain a tying point.

If the freshmen are able to beat the upperclassmen in any coming games, all three teams will be in the running for the coming championship battle. If they fail to do so however, the race will be between upperclassmen and the sophomores.

Now It Can Be Told --- 'The Juniatian Goes To Press'

by Dave Armacost

Did you ever wonder how The Juniatian came to take the form in which you receive it? You did! Well, hang on while I tell you the story behind the headlines, "The Juniatian Goes To Press."

Friday 9 p. m.—Editor and Managing Editor meet to discuss problems and plan for the next "All-American" paper. (Editor looks a little battered after the last issue.) Issues to bring before the student body are suggested. Editor chooses "lost causes". Lays strategy for "operation All-American".

Sunday night about 9 p. m.—(Several members of the staff are on mountain time.) Editor, Managing Editor, News Editor, Assistant Sports Editor and Assistant News Editor meet in Publications Office. Last week's paper is resurrected and buried. With an "air of imperial wisdom" the Editor outlines the plan of attack and asks for volunteers. Meeting adjourns.

Monday 7:30 a. m.—(as a rule) Managing Editor soars down from upper bunk and warms up one of the staff vehicles in preparation for taking copy to the printer. (Editor's note: The Juniatian has two staff vehicles one $90 car and one red scooter.)

7:40 a. m.—Managing Editor still looking for copy. Gives up, goes to class. Sometime during the day the News Editor finishes making assignments.

Suffers Shock

Tuesday 7:30 a. m.—Managing Editor looks, not too hopefully, for some copy to take to the printers'. Finds some. Suffers severe shock.

Editor reads Tommyhawk and starts hunting lawyer. News Editor and Managing Editor read copy, check for accuracy. Picture is sent to Johnstown.

10 a. m.—Reporters meet with the Editors to discuss past issue and the current one.

Editor Losing Sleep Now

Wednesday 7:30 a. m.—(more?) copy to the printers'. News Editor sends ultimatum to recalcitrant reporters. Editor losing sleep and missing classes by now. Managing Editor also.

1:30 p. m.—Editor, Managing Editor and Sports and Features Editors make up the "dummies" of the pages. (That is, the plan which the printer follows in arranging the stories and pictures.) Assistants help Editors write headlines that don't fit.

Thursday 7:30 a. m.—copy to the printers'. 1:30 p. m. Editor and Managing Editor drive down to the printers' via car and scooter, respectively. Editor makes a point of parking car on hill so it will start when needed.

Final Hope Gone

Final hope of an early Friday publication is given up soon after the Editor enters the august establishment of J. G. Lesher and son. Linotypist is deep in The Valley News. Starts on The Juniatian. Editor rushes to meet train which is 20 minutes late. Cut from Johnstown may be in on this. (Would have driven car to Johnstown at 6¢ per mile rental but gives this up out of respect for graying Business Manager.)

Rewrite Headlines

At Lesher's Managing Editor and assistants read galleys, rewrite headlines that don't fit, dash over to nearby theatre to conjure up the ad that the manager forgot to turn in.

4 p. m.—Editor returns triumphantly clutching cut. Linotypist quits. (union man) Carl, one of the owners, volunteers to come in after dinner, set up the rest of the copy and make corrections.

Frdiay 7:30 a. m.—Carl didn't make it. Editor looks bad. Managing Editor looks worse. The important issue of the day is "Who will miss classes to read proof of The Juniatian". Editor wins toss, misses classes.

9:22 a. m.—corrections made. Editor sighs, gives paper his blessing, and signals for the press to start. Sell, with 24 years experience and cigar, starts the press.

'Stop The Press'

9:30 a. m.—"Stop the press . . . tear out page one . . . shoot the Managing Editor . . . there's an extra comma in the first column". Sell, with no apparent emotion stops press and proceeds to remove the extraneous punctuation.

10:45 a. m.—The Juniatian has arrived on College Hill.

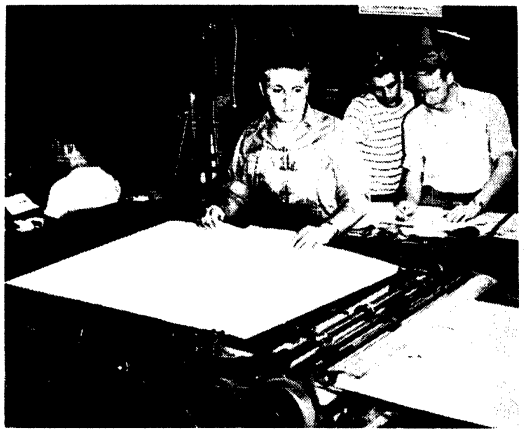
11 a. m.—Editor takes good look at a copy and collapses in nearest over-stuffed chair. Managing Editor is nowhere to be found.

9 p. m.—starts all over again.



THE PRINTER AND THE PRESS—The Juniatian goes to press for the 25th year under the guiding hand of Selwyn Huhn, who has been printing the paper for a quarter of a century. The press is the same one on which the first Juniatian was printed in 1924. J. G. Lesher and sons have printed The Juniatian since its beginning.

In the background are the linotypist Jim Weir, the Managing Editor and the Editor-in-Chief.

Education Group Goes On The Air

Scheduled for next week's "Juniata on the Air" radio program is a transcribed presentation of the National Educational Association. Sponsored by the Alpha Beta Gamma, the script is entitled "The Democracy Bank."

The program last week under the auspices of the Masque, included 15 minute interviews with some of the cast of "Berkeley Square." The student actors interviewed were Janet Boland, Don Norris, Vera Compton, Thurman Grossnickle, Chuck Barklow, and Phyllis Link.

During the week of November 16, the Radio Committee will present a review of the outstanding abilities from the Talent Night Program to be presented in Oller Hall November 12.

Society Notes

GRIDDER BECOMES FATHER

Frank Stasenko has been having a rough time of it, but he finally relaxed last Monday when he became the father of a boy. We hear that Bill Smaltz already has a place for him on the 1968 football team, or is this just a rumor?

TO SELL TICKETS

Tickets for the Masque fantasy-drama, "Berkeley Square," will go on sale Monday, according to Vernon Showalter, chairman of the ticket committee.

Student tickets may be obtained by presenting the activities card plus $.22 to Masque representatives stationed in Founders Lobby after both evening meals on this day. This may also be done after either noon meal Tuesday or Thursday.

Three Campus Clubs Hear Speakers For Actors---'The Party's---The Thing.'

by Margie Alleman

Three clubs were addressed last week by prominent speakers and a faculty member. Speaking to the Inter-varsity Christian Fellowship was Mr. John Davies, missionary from Dominica. The Tycoon Club had as speaker for the evening Mr. George Kurtz, of Huntingdon. Professor Willis Wissler spoke to IRC.

JUNIATIAN STORY

After Editor Blough left school he kept in touch with the paper by writing his successors letters concerning the way they handled articles or special issues. And when Tommy began its transition to a gossip column he was the first to let the staff know how much he disliked their perversion of his creation.

No Gossip in Tommy

In Editor Blough's day Tommyhawk and even sports news was front page material. But Tommy then was a collection of odds and ends which slowly developed into a loosely constructed humor column. Gossip came later, and once after its arrival the column was curtly suspended for an unflattering remark. But it soon bounced back into type after censoring tempers had cooled. During its absence a chatty message appeared every week called "My Week" and signed "by Falla."

One of the first sports items to appear on page one shortly after the creation of The Juniatian was a boxed cry to Beat Haverford, We Must Beat Haverford. The followng week's report of the game was headlined by one small line: J. C. Upset 30-0 in Snow, Rain.

Ellis in Fine Form

By reading Editor Blough's front page on October 1, 1925 you would learn that the Rev. Calvert N. Ellis not only preached the sermon that Sunday but that he "delivered one of the best sermons heard in the Stone Church in many a day."

By reading Editor Mays' front page you got not only all campus news but reports from all over the county and even the nation. On one occasion you learned that 500 Hopewell orphans were praying for the Lindberg baby, and that Harvard's psychology department was interested in hearing from anyone who had dreamed of the kidnapped child.

To finance the large sized paper in those days (it was reduced to present size in 1934) business managers like Harold Brumbaugh, '33, really had to sell ads. And editors like Lucinda Miller, who succedded Editor Mays and later married him, had to dig up lots of news. But then the back page was for the alumni only, serving the same purpose as today's Alumni Bulletin.

Rowland in First Pix

Many of the pictures used in early years were of student athletes. But the first picture ever to appear was two months after Stanley Stroup started The Juniatian; it showed Prof. Rowland and the Men's Glee Club.

The Juniatian, as students know it today, had its greatest changes in the years after 1946, for in the Fall of that year the student staff got a big boost with the arrival of a new publicity director, Bill Engel.

Through his influence the appearance of The Juniatian has become more streamlined and the news less opinionated. Its content, however, is really little different from Editor Stroup's first Juniatian, for the ideas that give it life from one week to the next must be the products of many students' minds. And no matter how smooth it may look, The Juniatian will only be as interesting and informative as its staff members write it each week.

Kurtz Talks To Tycoons

Speaking at the regular bimonthly meeting of the Tycoon Club was Mr. George Kurtz, proprietor of a gift shop in Huntingdon. After a talk in which he clarified the problems of the small business owner, Mr. Kurtz answered questions from the members of the club.

At the next meeting, a prominant bank official will speak to the club, it was announced. This meeting should be of particular interest to those students who are interested in banking.

I. V. C. F. Hears Davies

IVCF was fortunate in having as a speaker Mr. John Davies of the Worldwide Evangelization Crusade. An Australian by birth, Mr. Davies has spent a number of years doing missionary work in Dominica.

At present he is fulfilling various speaking engagements in the United States and Canada, but he expects to return to Dominica as soon as possible.

Interested students are invited to attend the meetings of IVCF which are held every Thursday evening in the Women's Day Students' Room.

British Pound Discussed

Professor Willis Wissler spoke to IRC yesterday on the "The Effect of the British Devaluation of the Pound". Mr. Wissler gave the causes of the devaluation and the objectives which Britian hoped to gain. He then discussed the probable outcome of the devaluation and its implications for world economy.

IRC extends a special invitation to freshmean and foreign students to come to the meetings of the club which are held the first and third Thursday of each month at the I. Harvey Brumbaugh House.

Masque Stages Party

Oller Hall was the scene of a new style entertainment as Masque members concluded the party, not the play, was the thing. Staged on stage, entertainment in the form of singing and charades as well as food were featured on the program at last Thursday's meeting.

Senate Plans Open Meeting For Students

An open meeting of the Student Senate will be held Tuesday at 9 p. m. in the Women's Day Student Room.

The agenda will include the following items listed under new business:

1. Spiritual Emphasis Week. A report by John Keener, chairman of religious activities, will open a discussion concerning the program for the week.

2. All College Musical. Corena Sollenberger, student manager for the production, will explain what progress has been made thus far.

3. All Class Night. Chairman Bill Bateson will offer a general report on this event.

4. Who' Who. Bob Smith, chairman of publications, will explain The Juniatian's protest against this award in the light of the recent statement by Albright College. (See story page 1.)

Also on the agenda are three committee reports.

1. "Investigation of organizations" by Gene Rodd-. (See story on page 4.

2. "Class dues" by Lois Esaley.

3. The tutoring system and its progress will be reported upon by Elma Stine.

According to the Senate constitution, two open meetings per year are required. By definition, an open meeting is one in which students may participate; that is, they may express their views but may not vote.

Other types of meetings which the Senate may hold are the regular ones (which students may attend as spectators only) and those which are closed to all except members.

Library Calls For Return Of Stolen Magazines

Guilty of Theft?
I mean you—
Stealors of Books
Mutilators of Collections
Creatos of Odd Volumes

The above is a representation of one of several signs which the library staff has posted to combat the recent theft of 20 magazines and several books.

According to Nory Edwards, assistant librarian, the magazines are largely from the psychology, business and education fields.

A psychology book which had been stolen was recently laid surreptitious on the checking desk. An ethics book, which is still missing, has been narrowed down to eight students who were using it for reports.

At a recent faculty meeting the matter was discussed and it was decided to try to recover the lost magazines and books through articles in The Juniatian before taking further action .

However, "We're going to stop it!", the Librarian staff emphasizes. Accordingly, if the missing magazines and books are not received before Thanksgiving vacation begins, the following rules will be effected:

Tentative Regulations

1. Magazines will be withdrawn from the shelves and will circulate like books.

2. The Pennsylvania Room, the stacks and the basement will be closed to all students without written permission from the library staff.

3. Students apprehended with a magazine or book which is not properly signed out at the desk will be reported to the Dean of Students for punishment. The culprit will also lose library privilges for the year.

4. Procrastination in the return of overdue books and the payment of fines by the students will be reported to the Dean of Students.

Great Inconvenience

The theft of magazines and books causes great inconvenience for all students. Moreover, binding operations are slowed down and often magazines which have been stolen or mislaid cannot be replaced and an entire volume is ruined.

College Withholds Selection Of Students To 'Who's Who'

Juniata College is withholding its nomination of Juniata students for publications in the annual, "Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges."

The decision not to submit names of candidates as originally planned was made by Dean D. Raymond Sollenberger Wednesday afternoon after it was brought to his attention by The Juniatian that "Who's Who" has recently been charged with being simply a "commercial venture" with no standards.

The student council at Albright College within the past 10 days has cancelled that school's affiliation with "Who's Who" on the strength of a recommendation it received from a faculty-student committee that investigated the organization for several weeks.

The Albright committee, according to The Albrightian, concluded that "Who's Who" is strictly a commercial venture being operated for the money received from the sale of the book and pins to students so honored. Bill Wright, only student now on campus who was selected last year, reports that the book sells for $7 and the pin $3.

Makes Money, Little Else

Albright found that the organization serves no purpose, that it is generally not recognized by business firms, that it is not listed at the Library of Congress, and that the National Sudent Association stated that "Who's Who" makes money and little else.

Drexel University made a survey of 60 businesses in the Philadelphia area and found that

Firelighting Marks Social Room Opening

The traditional firelighting ceremony will be held on Sunday at 9 p. m. to mark the formal opening of the Social Rooms.

The fireplace will be lighted for the first time this season with the taper that was used in the original ceremony. It is also traditional to remove the log from the fire before it has become entirely consumed, in order that it may be used year after year.

A double trio, consisting of Frances Roddy, Lucille Snyder, Joanne Haak, Joyce Grove, Gladys Mohr, and Doris Mickle will add to the events of the evening by singing the "Fire Song" and "Blue Juniata." The participants will be realistically garbed in Indian costume to make the ceremony more colorful.

Another event of the evening will be the reading of the "Fire Poem" which relates the legend of Alfarata and tells the origin of this ceremony. This poem was written in 1936 especially for this occasion and has been used at similar services since.

Responsible for these arrangements are Elma Stine, president of the Women's House, Edith Roberts, YWCA president, and Dottie Ann Humphreys, day student president.

The two day sale of text books and novels will close at 8 p. m. Tuesday.

An Interview

Scribe Finds Duo-Pianists Lack 'Artist's Nerves' Although Operating On Busy Five A Week Schedule

by Don Raphael

Two suave, distinguished looking gentlemen alighted Wednesday afternoon from a long, low, canary-yellow Cadillac convertible. The convertible had New York State license tags on it, bearing the legend; "88WL". This stood for, I was enlightened, the 88 keys on the piano keyboard. The "W" stood for Whittemore," (three syllables, if you please,) and the "L" for "Lowe," so they could be none other than those emminent duo-pianists, Whittemore and Lowe.

Arthur Whittemore and Jack Lowe met at the Eastman Conservatory of Music at Rochester, New York. They teamed up, and here they are. For 14 years, the two have been a team, with four years out for Uncle Sam's Navy.

Their presence of mind while on stage is remarkable, and they don't use music, a feat in itself. They are cool, collected, and not the least concerned about the nerves which trouble many performers. It just doesn't seem possible that they are mere mortals.

Argue Good-Naturedly

Rehearsal's another entirely different story. They argue good naturedly (?), coming out with exclamations such as :"Will you please play it like it's written?" and "It doesn't work out right, Let's omit the G minor section."

Hearing two genteel-men argue is always extremely diverting, but I realized that it was just, in all probability, pre-concert artistic temperament.

Acrobatics, Skits Spark Talent Night

Under the joint sponsorship of the Radio and Social Committees, Talent Night in the gym tomorrow will offer entertainment ranging from skits to gymnastics.

The program will begin at 8 p. m., according to Hilton Hines. He and Betty May, as chairmen of the respective committees, are arranging the details.

Following the stage program will be dancing to recorded music. In addition refreshments will be served.

It is hoped, Hines said, that the Radio Committee will be able to use the best of the talent exhibited tomorrow on a "Juniata on the Air" program sometime in the near future.

An original comedy skit written by Bob Elder and Ernie Rossi will be presented. Entitled "For Art's Sake," the skit will include Don Brandt, Harry Wood, and Dottie Ann Humphries in the cast.

Also on the program will be a tumbling act by gymnast Tom Gates and his partner, Don Lowe. (See "The Circuit Rider," page 2.)

A number of musical selections are also on the agenda, including a trio: John Stayer, Bob Mohr, and Gene Roddy. Gerry Hartzel will offer a vocal solo, and an exhibition of trumpet work will be given by Holmes Royer.

Other acts are also tentatively planned, including a skit by a group of freshmen.

Heads of 'Berkeley Square' Plagued By Problems, Too!

(Editor's Note: What are the problems, big and little, which plague the director of a dramatic production? Here is the answer, as written by Miss Esther M. Doyle, director of the current Masque production, "Berkeley Square.")

"Heavens, the boots won't go on! That doesn't look like lightning!" . . . These are typical problems which Keith Binkley and Louise Cray, co-chairman of sound, must struggle over.

"No, that chair isn't right for the period. What is a 'curx ansata' and wherever shall we find one?" Carrie Lou Greene, head of props, must scurry around searching high and low for just such items.

But I don't think Mr. Throstle is that kind of person. Goodness, I forgot to order fans! Did you get the make up, the posters, thunder sheet, wind machine, the tea set . . . ?"

Problems of a director? One could go on and on. Actually, they begin months before the production with the choosing of a play. What kind do we want—will it suit everyone—does it have characters that give the novice actors something to work with—does it present interesting situations?

After reading scores of plays with the help of the Masque president, the possibilities are finally limited to five or six. Then the reading committee goes to work and finally the play is chosen.

What now? The try-outs, the struggle to find the right cast, and much time spent in listening to many readings.

Then comes the making of a prompt book and hours of study which the director must give the script so as to know what to expect of each character, his relationship to each of the other characters, and his relationship to the whole play.

Hard and Discouraging

At first the work is hard, and sometimes discouraging. The blocking of action is slow and tedious business. Why does the actor rise on this line? And cross on this one? What does the character in that line mean—try it again—no, that's not it yet—go home and work on it. No, I don't believe he's being sarcastic there. Study your character and find out where he begins to suspect Peter.

As the actors fail to squeeze the meaning out of their lines, these are the questions the director must ask and insist that the actors answer.

Who's 'Who's Who'

The administration has taken a wise step in withholding its nomination of students whose names were to appear in the annual publication, "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." (See story page 1.)

As Dean Mays puts it, "If this organization was recognized by employers nationally, it could serve a very useful function for students chosen. But with all the people I have known who have been in 'Who's Who' I have never heard one claim that it had served him in any way." And as Drexel found, only two of 60 Philadelphia business firms had even heard of the outfit.

Quotas Counteract Values

In addition to serving no apparent worthwhile purpose, "Who's Who" has the bad practice of setting an arbitrary quota for each college. If there is any value in choosing certain students for qualities of leadership, scholarship, and promise of future usefulness to society, that value is lost when a quota is set. If nine students can be chosen from our campus this year then a dozen could be picked with equal justification, or possibly 15 or more. Some years the selection committee might have to dig pretty deep to find enough really capable students to fill its quota. Judging from past selections, that has happened here in previous years.

The point, of course, is that only those who are making the selections can possibly determine just how many students on campus have the necessary qualifications. And no outside organization should tell the committee how many outstanding students it must pick.

The Juniatian has requested that the editor of "Who's Who" answer Albright's charges so that we might have the complete picture. But even if "Who's Who" can show that it has been of some value along the line, it will have to come up with a pretty sound argument for its existence to counteract the disadvantage of its quota system.

If the students, faculty and administration feel that there is real value in an annual selection of outstanding campus leaders, the practice could be continued without an affiliation with "Who's Who" of Tuscaloosa, Ala. The College could set its own standards and have a flexible quota that would allow as many or as few students onto each year's honor role depending upon the number of qualified students from year to year.

Why Any Awards?

But that raises the question that underlies this whole issue: Why give any such awards in the first place? And with more awards and trophies being added every year, one might well ask that very question. It would lead us to a very worthwhile consideration of whether or not we are overdoing the matter of awards here at Juniata.

On the surface it appears that we are reaching the saturation point —the point at which all honor goes down the drain.

Editorial Reply to M. R. H.

Manchester Student Prefers Cafeteria

Your letter concerning "family style vs. cafeteria style" in the dining hall has apparently caused a ruffle of comment on campus. Certainly your opinions are pertinent at this time in light of varying opinions on the present dining hall set-up.

The Juniatian has accepted your suggestion to query other colleges. The results of this survey will be published in a subsequent issue along with the argument for both styles.

Meanwhile, here is what a friend at Manchester College wrote in reply to my request to comment on your letter in The Juniatian two weeks ago. At Manchester, incidentally, they have both a dining hall with its family style and a cafeteria, so the students really have a choice.

"The cafeteria allows one to eat as fast or slow as he pleases without inconveniencing seven others at the table—a fellow who has to work will especially appreciate this.

Swing To Cafeteria

"Almost every year here the dining hall (family style) starts the year with a capacity crowd, but by mid-term a lot of the freshmen have caught on and the crowd is reduced by at least one-third who switch to the cafeteria. With careful planning you can save money there, can skip meals on week-ends or days when you sleep in or eat in town.

"Breakfast is served from 7 to about 10 a. m., lunch from 11:30 to 1 p. m., and dinner from 5 to 6 p. m. So you don't have to break your neck to be there right on the dot . . . . No one eating in the cafeteria would trade for anything . . . and it's doing more business this year than ever.

"It (the cafeteria) is certainly no palatial eating place but the food is good and the menu isn't dead set as it is in the dining hall . . . .There's a juke box in the back and it's a nice place for coke dates etc.—stays open till about 10 p. m. during which time you can get hamburgers, milk shakes, etc. . . . Plenty of dining hall students come over to the cafeteria after meals and finish eating.

"Although there's never been a poll taken, I know that all the students appreciate the cafeteria and would squawk plenty if it ever closed. Last year the administration was getting worried because most of the kids were leaving the dining hall. You don't know what you're missing if you don't have a cafeteria."

The writer of this letter, the son of a minister in the Church of the Brethren and a junior premedical student, has eaten in both the dining hall and the cafeteria during his three years at Manchester and last year worked in the dining hall.

TOMMYHAWK

Tommy has a word of reproach for Skip Hines in this weeks column. As the situation seemed to him, Skip and Jean Bailey had disagreed over the vital question of whether to turn off Founders Hall at the lobby or to go through the Social Rooms. Skip, the brute, failing at other persuasive methods, resorted to twisting her arm. Now Tommy asks, is that necessary?

Question Of The Week?

Just what is Dave Hill seeing as he stares into space from his station behind the counter at Skip's Inn? Tommy is sure that the likeable "Dinger" is computing the days and hours remaining that lie between him and Greensburg.

Answer to Last Week's Quiz

Acting on information received from Howerd Montgomery, Tommy hastened over to the Pennsylvania Room of the Library and, sure enough, there was the blue-and-gold shovel resting against a radiator in the Northeast corner. Tommy passes on this data on said shovel for your information. It is a Kiski shovel, made by the Pittsburgh Shovel Works and the metal parts are painted gold and the wooden, blue. This shovel was used in the ceremony of the breaking-up of the ground for Oller Hall in 1939. Thank you, Howard Montgomery.

Notice All Near-by Communists

Word has come to Tommy that two politically-minded citizens of our campus community, namely Benita Metcalfe and Joe Bernier, are drafting a note, doubtless a reprimand, to be sent to Russia. Tommy suggests that all local fellow-travelers set their affairs in order as there will undoubtedly be a shake-up in these parts after Stalin gets the note.

Guess Who???

What well-known campus character and his partner from the same home town will present on Talent night a performance that they have given in the various entertainment clubs of their city? For clues to their identity contact Betsy Dively of Geiger House. Incidentally, Tommy believes that this act and all the others scheduled for Talent Night should not be missed.

Hunched over a bowl of cereal one morning at breakfast, Tommy overheard a girl comment on the fellow who made the announcements. "Hasn't Marvin's accent changed. When he came here it was southern; now it's Pennsylvania Dutch." How did you do it, Marian?

To Marianne Kneisel: Now I know why you call your violin the "Saucey Stradivarious" Surely no violin without a will of its own could play as harshly under your experienced hands as "Saucey" did on Saturday night. I wondered why your cohorts were such frozen-faced maidens, not even smiling when we applauded them into an encore; but who could smile when his technical perfection was lost amidst "Saucey's" egotistic rasping. Did you ever think of farming him out to the bush leagues, say the Budget Plan Westerners. "Fiddle Faddle" would be right up "Saucey's" alley.

In closing Tommy suggests that Mr. Bartha become oriented in regard to the purposes of the various rooms in Science Hall. This in time will have many unnecessary steps.

It's been real,

'Juniata On Air' To Use Excerpts From Elder-Rossi Play

Next Wednesday evening "Juniata on the Air" will be sponsored by the Radio Committee. An excerpt from the Talent Show on Saturday night, featuring an original play by Ernie Rossi and Bob Elder, will be presented.

During the week of November 23, the A Cappella Choir will arrange and present a program of record selections from last year's choir performance.

Due to an incident beyond the control of both the radio station and the Alpha Beta Gamma the radio program was not presented this week. The club will sponsor a program at a later date.

FROM THE MAIL BOX

Think about this:

We received in our mail the other day a letter from a good friend of ours, Tom Shanley of Stroudsburg, Pa., in which we found a very interesting story. In fact, we thought it worthwhile enough to pass on to our readers. Doubting whether we could summarize it and still retain the appeal it had held for us, we decided to offer it in the exact form it had in the letter.

"It would take time to explain to you the instances of miraculous visions that have occured recently. But twice—since 1916—the Blessed Virgin Mary has appeared to definite groups of people—and asked them to pray.

"She has warned that only family prayer can keep the family together—and if the family is not kept together—then certainly the world can not expect to be.

"She has promised the conversion of Russia if this family paper is encouraged throughout the world.

"And so a Father Payton (a Catholic priest) has offered his life to the promoting of the family Rosary. He is traveling through the country—on what he calls a Rosary Crusade.

"Yesterday—they asked all the people of this Diocese to meet in Scranton—and say the Rosary together.

"Unfortunately—I'm not capable of giving you an adequate reflection of the impression I received, when, standing outside St. Ann's Monastery in Scranton —on the lawn—on the steps—on the sidewalks—in the streets and in the yards across the streets —15,000 people stood together and said the Holy Rosary!

"Nothing I have ever seen will ever touch it!"

Translated into objective terms, without religious considerations, the story told to us by Tom left us convinced that people are determined to keep their families intact, and realize the importance of understanding one another. In its religious aspect, one can see that the people recognize the need for heavenly guidance in the ordering of their family affairs.

SPINACH EATERS

Stopping in at the gym one day last week to check up on the progress of the basketball team, we noticed Tom Gates of Moore House practising acorbatic stunts over in one corner. We walked over to watch and soon he was joined by his partner, Don Lowe of Altoona, who is the top man in the act.

They performed a number of difficult-looking acrobatics and we grew curious as to what this was all about. We asked Tom about the story behind this and he replied that he and Don had been doing these things for a number of years—in fact, had performed in many clubs in Altoona—and were planning to give this act on Talent Night this coming Saturday. He explained that Don had just lately been discharged from the Navy and it was their first chance in a couple of years to practice.

We watched as they swung into their act again and frankly, we were amazed. We could hardly believe our eyes when from a standing position, Tom swung Don up above his head where Don assumed a handstand position; his only support being Tom's hands. This was followed by stunts of an equally difficult nature.

Seeing our amazement, Tom explained that the stunts weren't as difficult as they looked; they just required much practice and co-ordination. We agreed but insisted we couldn't quite picture ourselves doing those very same things. We left the gym convinced that if all the talent was of the same caliber, we were in for some good entertainment Saturday night.

Grovers Overtake J.C. In Final Stanza

by Bob Volpitle

Chilled by a near freezing temperature, and the Juniata 13-6 loss to Grove City, a capacity Parents' Day crowd walked slowly through the College Field exits last Saturday.

The lone Indian tally came in the third quarter, which began when Grove City's Dave Warnock fumbled on J. C.'s 43, but the ball rolled back to the 47. Here it was recovered by the Indians.

Phil Chabody swept the right end for 13 yards to the Wolverine 40 stripe. Another first down was made by Joe Dobal's center crash for ten more yards. Then first down number three placed the ball on Grove City's 18.

Dutch Howett flipped a short one over the line to Chabody for T. D. number four in the current drive. Phil was injured on the play, and was forced to the sidelines for the rest of the game.

Again Dobal hit the center, but this time for eight yards and the touchdown that tied the game at six all. Juniata's triple threat injured Meteor Mike Dzvonar came in to try for the point, but failed to unknot the score.

Juniata Punts

Neither squad crossed the broad white stripe in the first stanza, but the Crimson and White struck the first blow in the second period after forcing the Smaltzmen to punt.

This put the ball into play on the J. C. 42 where guard Coy Hicks stopped Harold Foster in his tracks after his catching Howett's kick from his goal line.

On the next play from scrimmage Halfback Jim Restivo scampered 42 yards down the middle for six points. Only one Indian stood between Jim and the goal, but a last minute block allowed the run to be successful.

Grove City's attempt for the extra point was blocked by tackle Joe Thomasberger. The score stood 6-0 in favor of the Grovers.

Long Makes Tackle

Paul Hack, from Butler, Pa., and Dave Warnock tried to get through the Indian wall with little success. On third down Jim Foster faded back and passed to Larry Bish on Juniata's 32 yard line. There was little doubt that Bish would have gone all the way had it not been for fleet footed Squeeze Long's tackle.

Once more Foster faded, and this time it was end Jim Hamilton who received. Jim was halted just one yard shy of another G. C. marker. It was back Jim Spratt who hit the center to score.

Foster's toss to Hamilton in the end zone accounted for the extra point. The game ended 13-6, Grove City.

The big factor in the Grovers favor was the absence of Mike Dzvonar in the Juniata line up. Although Mike only appeared on the field for a very limited service, the possibility of his doing further injury to those stretched tendons was evident. Longer periods of playing might have ruined the Meteor's chances for ever playing football again.

Seniors Play Last Game Tonight

by Chuck Allison

While the game with Grove City was only the next to last game this season, it was the final home game for eight seniors on the Indian's football team. These eight mighty warriors are George Smith, David Croft, Bill Wilson, Squeeze Long, Cecil Jackson, Frank Stasenko, Aldo Bonomi, and Mike Dzvonar.

George Smith, a Huntingdon lad, is a three letter man on the end terminal. Upon graduating, George plans to enter the teaching field as a mathamatics instructor.

Dave Croft, another Huntingdon High product, is also another three year man in Juniata football. Dve is hoping that he will be accepted at Jefferson where he can continue on with his studies in medicine.

Bill Wilson, who also hails from Huntingdon, is a two letter man. Bill was lost for the season when he broke his knee cap scrimmaging against Penn State. when he leaves here Bill plans on entering the business field.

Squeeze Long, a Roaring Spring product, has two letters to his credit. Squeeze, noted for his 82-yard run against Dickinson this year, is majoring in the business administration. He is hoping to land a managers job is some company.

Aldo Bonomi, an Aliquippa alumnus, is a two letter man who transferred from Edinboro in his sophomore year. Aldo is the battering ram of the Indians line. His plans after leaving Juniata is to become a coach and to teach social studies.

Cecil Jackson, another Huntingdon High gridder, has played on three teams. He has played at California State Teachers, Penn State J. V. and here at Juniata. Known as one of the best "team player" the Indians have ever had, Cecil plans to carry this spirit into the teaching profession. He hopes to land a coaching job along with it.

Frank Stasenko, hailing from Mount Union, started to have a promising career last year when he encountered a very serious back injury at the beginning of the season. This placed Frank on the shelf until this year when he has again showed great stuff on the field. Frank also plans to enter teaching upon being graduated this year.

Meteor Mike Dzvonar, Aliquippa graduate, has been a star and letterman for two years on the Juniata football team. Mike will be long remembered for his driving power and bullet passes along with the high scoring record he established here at Juniata. When he leaves here, Mike intends to enter either the teaching field or the social field, which ever offers the first opening.

Horses Take Lead As Bullets Lose

The Bullets dropped their first game of the season to the Flashes, 12-6. Ray Fowler passed to George Condes for the first touchdown. The try for the extra point was unsuccessful.

This is the final week for intramural football. Next week there will be a play-off between the top four teams which will decide the championship of the intramural leaue.

Indians Try For Banner Year Tonight Against Moravian

Statistics show that if the Indians are able to hang a loss on Moravian tonight at Liberty High Stadium in Bethlehem, they will be able to complete the most successful season in the 27 year history of Juniata College football.

Last year's record of four wins, two losses, and one tie smashed 1937's five won and three lossed banner statistic.

Tonight's game with Moravian will be broadcast over WHUN beginning at 7:45 p. m.

Last year's record of four wins, two losses and one tie smashed 1937's five won and three lossed banner statistic.

It was Moravian last season who held the J. C. gridders to a 6-6 knot, and prevented the Smaltzmen from bettering 1948's four and two record.

Another T-formation will be operating against the single wing of Juniata. Every opponent, with the exception of Susquehanna, either used this offensive line-up, or a modification of it.

Has Flexible Squad

The Greyhounds have 17 lettermen from last season, and a 37 man squad. This team is so flexible, that coach Larry Rosati has been able to make radical changes in his starting line-up from game to game.

Quarterback George Fritchman is Moravian's big un. Passing is this 155 pound back's specialty, and his success in completing aerials tonite might mean a defeat for J. C. The majority of Greyhounds T. D.'s have been in the result of passes.

Also sharing in the passing honors is Dan Diebert, who alternates with Fritchman. Carl Case, Ed Noudgratz, and Barry Deetz are good ends that make excellent targets.

J. C. Leads in Series

The Indians have collected four scalps in the seven game series which began 17 years ago in 1932. Only two times have the Greyhounds gained victory, and one game was a tie.

Moravian's record this year has not been very impressive. With a victory over J. C. they may finish with an even split of their 8 games.

After running over Wagner 26-18. Scranton beat them 13-32. Albright gave Moravian their second setback: 33-6. By defeating Hofstra 32-7, they gained new courage to face Lebanon Valley. However the Flying Dutchmen tacked a 13-34 loss on the boys from Bethlehem. Previous to the 47-0 shut out by West Chester, they beat Upsala 14-6.

Costly Injuries

There is still doubt whether or not Mike Dzvonar will be able to play tonite. Coach Smaltz fears that Mike's injury is similar to that suffered by Bill Wilson after hearing doctor's reports and viewing the x-rays.

It was learned that wingback Phil Chabody has a broken rib. The fracture is close to the vertabrae, and he will not see action in this final game.

The probable lineup:

Pos.	Player	W	H
E	Case	180	6-1
T	Longanecker	218	6-1
G	Jasso	215	6-1
C	Kudella	200	5-8

Upperclass Lassies Take Hockey Title; Meet Bucknel Sat.

Climaxing a season of rivalry and heavy competition, the upperclassmen earned the championship position in intramural girls' hockey. The determining game gave the winning team an undefeated record while the sophomores had three losses.

Out of the better players of all classes two hockey teams have been formed to start the Army-Navy games next week. These teams, composed of players chosen for their skill and interest, will begin playing Monday.

The long anticipated hockey game at Bucknell College tomorrow has been preceded by practice scrimages among the upperclassmen in preparation for the contest. Playing one of the highlight games of the season, this team is composed entirely of upperclassmen who have displayed outstanding skill. As a result of limited transportation facilities and the preference given to upperclassmen, there will be no freshmen on this team.

Those chosen to go were Ilene Altemus, Gladys Mohr, Betty May, Mim Landis, Dotty Lehman, Kitty Long, Doris Quinnel, Betty Savine, Doris Harvey, Beanie Roberts, Dolly Shaffer, Skip Smith, Ginny Tyson, Janet Neikirk, Vicky Searles and Carol Custer.

CROSS COUNTRY TO START

Next Thursday, the annual Fall cross-country run will be held. A sheet is posted in Students Hall for those who wish to sign up for the contest.

Roddy To Conduct Senate Inquiry Of Campus Clubs

In order to make "a fair judgment of campus organizations" and to straighten out those which have "lost sight of their original purposes," a Senate committee headed by Gene Roddy is investigating campus clubs.

A questionaire addressed to club presidents and advisors will contain the following questions:

1. What defense have you to offer for the existence of your organization?

Roddy

2. Is this in line with the reasons and purposes for your existence as expressed in your constitution?

3. What activities have you planned for the year?

4. How will these activities benefit the student body or groups within the student body?

5. Approximately how much time do these activities demand from an active member?

Replies to the questionaires are to be returned to Roddy by Nov. 22.

Campus clubs are required to file a copy of their constitutions with the Senate and receive approval to operate.

Since many of these constitutions were approved several years ago, the Senatt feels that they should now be reviewed.

Winners Split $30 In Room Contest

Prize money totaling $30 was awarded to Juniata students in the Parents' Day room contest.

Judged best in the women's division was the double room of Marion Fry and Dot Hummer and the single room of Lisa Savino.

In the men's residences the winners were the double room of Don Howe and Bud Kreider, Cloisters, and the single room of Bill Korman in Sherwood Lodge.

Honorable mention in the women's residence went to the double room of Kitty Lynn and Julia Groh. The single room of Elma Stine also received mention.

The double room of Ray Siren and Don Norris tied with that of John Keener and Don Robinson for men's honorable mention. In addition, Harry Wood's single room in the Lodge was awarded honorable mention.

Diamond Dust

Gwen Nyce and Gerald Hartzel announced their engagement last week.

Miss Nyce, who was graduated from Juniata in June, is recorder in the Registrar's Office and associate editor of the Alumni Bulletin. Hartzel is a junior majoring in business administration.

The wedding has been tentatively scheduled for next summer.

Mary Phyllis Gibbs of the class of '49 and Ray Sidorsky, a senior, announced their engagement recently.

Miss Gibbs, who majored in sociology, is now doing social work here in Huntingdon. Sidorsky is majoring in psychology.

RHODES IMPROVING

J. Melvin Rhodes is "improving in health, without a doubt," according to a recent statement from his wife, Rhoda M. Rhodes.

The Dean of Students is now on leave of absence and is studying clinical psychology at Penn State graduate school in preparation for his masters degree.

He attends classes Monday through Friday, spending his weekends at his home here.

And then more grueling hours of work—10 to 15 hours a week for six weeks. Slowly, gradually, different people begin to emerge—the characters are a-borning. There is the excitement of creation as gradually a whole new being is developed. And then finally the performances where you share with the audience these new beings and their story.

Share The Work

But is that all a director is good for? As the cast gets out of the toddling stages, the characters begin to share their time with the crew and the committees. Here we come to the behind-the-scenes workers who get none of the glory but slave just as hard, merely for the love of the thing.

What is the advertising campaign to be? This very big job belongs to Doris Quinnell, chairman of advertising, and the rest of the committee.

Vernon Showalter, in charge of ticket sales, could well use a bottle of aspirins along with his chore. Six performances and only a limited number of seats. His main headache comes from trying to equalize the audience over the nights available.

What about lights—how can we keep the light out of the eyes of the audience and still have it on the characters? Showalter, also supervising lights, must see that problems of this nature are smoothed out.

All Have Worries

And so it goes—those in charge of costumes, music, make-up, the program, all have their equal share of troubles.

The stage manager, Marv Blaylock, has the tremendous task of seeing that the whole show runs smoothly from the moment the play begins till the final dramatic instant.

Then finally—Opening Night! The culmination of thousands of man hours of work by 80 to 100 people. Is it worth it? Each person who has given his time and devotion to the total production must answer that for himself. And do you, the audience, think it is worth it? Well, come and see.

In 1921 the Juniata football team suffered its worst defeat by being beaten by the Bellfonte Academy team by a score of 0-64.

'Yearbook Staff Progress Good', Says Sidorsky

"We have started negotiations with the printer and engraver, and expect to have the contracts signed soon," says Ray Sidorsky, Editor-in-Chief of the Alfarata, when questioned as to yearbook progress.

According to Sidorsky, everything seems to be advancing smoothly. The yearbook will have the same basic organization as last year's plus a few new ideas.

Colored dividers will introduce the various sections. The size of the book will be 8½ by 11. Because of its systematic organization, there will be a lot of material assimilated into a smaller number of pages.

only two had ever heard of the organization. A number of Albright alumni used the organization as a reference in filing job applications, but when the employer requested information from them no answer was ever received.

In learning of Albright's action, The Juniatian recommended that the administration of the College withhold its nominations of Juniata students unil H. P. Randall, editor of "Who's Who", can answer the charges brought against his publication. The Juniatian has asked Randall to produce evidence that Albright's charges are false.

In the event that Randal is unable to answer to the satisfaction of the Senate, to whom the evidence will be given, The Juniatian will support action to sever all relations with "Who's Who."

Seven Was Quota

Juniata has been affiliated with Randall's organization for a number of years. Every year the College receives a quota by which it must abide in submitting nominations. This year "Who's Who" set seven as Juniatas' quota with has allowance of two more or less.

Nine students had already been selected but their names are being held in light of Albright's action. Dean Sollenberger's decision had the support of all members of the administration involved in the selection.

Lambda Gamma Sponsors Trip; YWCA, Doctors Hear Speakers

by Margie Alleman

Thelma Jacobs, of the Public Health Clinic of Huntingdon, and Dr. Patterson spoke to YWCA and Scapel and Probe clubs respectively.

Doris Harvey (known better to some of us as Schmoe) spoke to Volunteers, while the Tycoon club is scheduled to hear Frank Marsh of the Altoona Trust Co., next Tuesday.

Checking the calendar of club activities we find that the Lambda Gamma is sponsoring a trip for Miss Helen K. Fisher, Home Economics instructor, and Ruth Kimble, the club president.

Helen L. Fisher of the Home Economics department and Ruth Kimble, president of the Lambda Gamma club, will attend the Providence workshop in New York this weekend. The club will sponsor their trip.

Speakers and discussion groups will be featured on the program of this two-day conference. The purpose of the workshop is to plan activities of Home Economics clubs.

At the regular meeting of the Lambda Gamma to be held next Tuesday, Ruth Kimble will report on the workshop. Scheduled on the same program will be movies on foods, home decoration and child care.

Doris Harvey Speaks

Volunteers had as their speaker last Tuesday Doris Harvey who presented material on "The Impelling Motives for Missionary Service." A junior, Miss Harvey is active in many campus organizations. Besides being a member of Volunteers, she is vice-president of the YWCA, secretary of IRC and vice-president of IVCF.

Tycoon Club Speaker

Frank Marsh, vice president of the Altoona Trust Company will speak at the next regular meeting of the Tycoon club which will be held on Tuesday. Mr. Marsh will discuss the topic of banking.

Members of the club and other interested students should plan to attend this meeting which promises to be worthwhile.

Welfare Work Discussed

Juniata's YWCA chapter held a general meeting last Sunday for those students interested in public welfare work. Thelma Jacobs, of the Public Health Clinic of Huntingdon, spoke to the group about welfare service and extended an invitation to college students to observe the child clinic which is held every Friday afternoon.

Following Mrs. Jacobs' discussion was a question period. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

On the calendar of future events is the YWCA party for underprivileged children to be given Saturday evening, Dec. 3.

YWCA also expects to print its own sheet within the next few weeks. Check this, along with The Juniatian (plug!) for current "Y" news.

Patterson Gives Lecture

"Socalized medicine" was the topic under discussion at the meeting of the Scapel and Probe club Wednesday. A lecture on this subject was delivered by Dr. Patterson, the doctor for Juniata's men students.

Dr. Patterson avoided spicing his lecture with personal viewpoint. His main objective was the presentation of dependable information gained by his wide research on this subject.

Dues Total $269; Frosh Lead School

A total of $269.50 was collected by class treasurers at the experimental "Dues Day" last month. In the four classes percentages of those who paid their dues on this day were as follows: seniors, 49%; juniors, 48%; sophomores, 45%; and freshmen, 71%.

At this year's Leadership Conference a recommendation was made to establish an annual "Dues Day" at Juniata.

Under this plan all classes would collect their dues on one specified day. The remainder of those whose dues were not collected would be contacted by individual class representatives.

After placing this proposal before the Senate and President Ellis, the day was established. This year October 20 was set aside as Dues Day.

Each class treasurer is selecting solicitors who will contact these students personally.

DUO-PIANISTS

I asked them about "bop." (Aside to the neophyte: "bop" is what is termed "be-bop", "rebop," and other not-so-nice titles by the layman.) Mr. Whittemore was at first a mite reluctant to state any views. Mr. Lowe assured that he rather enjoyed what little he did get a chance to hear.

He went on to say that "boogie is a jazz idiom that is definitely here to stay." (But I think his seriousness on the subject is to be doubted, for he had a shade of a twinkle in his eye as he said the above.)

Calls 'Bop' Neurosis

Then Mr. Whittemore warmed up a little, and stated quite definitely, "Bop is strictly a post-war neurosis. Today its merely a reiteration of Stravinsky's works of 20 years ago. It isn't fundamentally a new sound, but the same old noise done up differently. It's all strictly physical enjoyment. There's none of the esthetic qualities necessary for really fine music."

"The concert field is extremely lucrative," the pianists pointed out. We are quite busy, playing five concerts a week instead of our customary three. For example: Sunday night they played at West Point: Tuesday Night, Ephrata; Wednesday night, Huntingdon. And still two more to go to complete the week!

Debut at Carnegie Hall

The Duo made their concert debut at Carnegie Hall in January, 1940. After a season and a half's work they enlisted in the Navy. Upon their return, they soon were averaging approximately 80 concerts per season. They have appeared with many symphony orchestras, and have engagements to appear with

Poll Shows Curriculum Is Sufficient

Apparently the majority of the JC students are satisfied with the present curriculum.

This is evidenced by the results of the recent poll, conducted by The Juniatian, in which only 43 scholars took advantage of the opportunity to express their opinion on the matter.

The trend was towards the addition of courses which would make certain fields of concentration more complete. For example, Gretta Madden's and Walt Bandurak's recommendation of a course on human anatomy for pre-med majors; Gerry Hartzel's and Lois Ann Wagner's suggested course on business or commercial spanish.

A number of students wish to have two new fields of concentration established, or at least additional courses along these lines, namely, physical education and journalism. As Bob Jones wrote regarding physical education: "Most fellows entering the secondary education field are doing so with an eye out for a coaching position as a recessive means of continuing their athletic careers. If it is not presented at Juniata they will transfer to other schools to get it. Why not bring it to them at Juniata?"

Others, however, are interested in courses such as typing, shorthand, English composition and grammar which would help them

Student Laundry Problems Eased By New Machines

Two automatic laundry machines for student use were put into operation by the College this week in the laundry that adjoins the kitchen. These additional machines will be for the use of both men and women students, while the third machine, installed several years ago in the basement of Faculty Club, will be just for faculty members and wives of married students.

Gerry Hartzel was on hand Monday afternoon with the first bundle of laundry and Paul Friend, business manager of the college, threw the switch that sent the Bendix spinning into action. No clothes lines have been strung yet because a partition must first be erected across the middle of the room. Mr. Friend said, however, that the College may purchase a dryer if he can find a suitable model.

In discussing the student-faculty laundry problem, Mr. Friend remarked that it is important to observe the nine-pond limit on all machines. "Nine pounds is the equivalent of four sheets. To give you an example of too heavy a load, about three weeks ago someone put two shag rugs into the Faculty Club machine. It was so heavy that it burned out the motor, and we had to replace the gears as well at a cost of $40."

Vacation Buses Need Passengers

The buses going to Philadelphia and Pittsburgh over the Thanksgiving holidays must have at least 26 people signed up to go on them by tomorrow.

According to Paul Good, Kelsey Edwards and Budd Riggs, who are organizing the trips, the buses will not be chartered unless enough people are interested. The round trip fare to Pittsburgh is $5.00, to Philadelphia it is $7.50.

Those who are interested may sign the list posted on the bulletin board in Founders Lobby.

'Who's Who' Quiet

No reply has been received from the editor of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" in answer to The Juniatian's request that he answer charges brought against his organization by the Albright College Student Council.

Webster Players Here Dec. 12; Ticket Sales Start Today

Applications for student reserved seat tickets to The Margaret Webster Shakespeare Company presentation of "The Taming of the Shrew" will be filled at the information window beginning this morning and continuing through November 23. After that date, no student reservations can be made, for the remaining tickets will go on public sale.

The Bard returns to Oller Hall stage for the second consecutive season Monday, Dec. 12. Each student with an activity card is entitled to one free reserved seat. Orders will be filled in the sequence received, the best seats going to those who applied first.

Last year's method for handling tickets will be followed. The house has been divided into several sections, the largest and best of which are reserved for Juniatians. After presenting his activity card, the student will fill out a form indicating in which section he wishes to sit and also how many adult tickets, if any, he desires. The price for these is $1.95 each.

Should several people wish to sit together, they may present their activity cards and then file a single form for the group. Only one free ticket per person will be permitted, however. Each ticket will bear the name of the person to whom issued, and will not be transferable.

Between Dec. 1 and 10, adult tickets may be obtained and paid for at the Public Relations Office; student tickets will be available at the information window. Adult tickets will also be on sale after Nov. 21 at Steel's Drug Store.

Stardust Dance Set For Dec. 15; Band To Play

Dec. 15 has been selected by the social committee as the date for the semi-formal "Stardust Ball" to be held in the gymnasium.

The spotlight will be focused on the College orchestra with mellow music for listening and dancing, under the leadership of Holmes Royer. "Stardust gatherers" will find the converted gymnasium resplendent as a fantasy ballroom of blue and silver.

A new twist will be added to the usual procedure at the ball with the introduction of program dancing. It has been requested that couples plan ahead to exchange dances. There will be three dances in each of the twelve sets. Corsages are optional.

Chairman of decorations, Vernon Showalter, will be assisted by Betty Longwell, Don Kagarise, Rex Hershberger, Don Johnson, Jill Woodring, Lorena Hebrank, Ernie Rossi, and Bob Elder.

Other committees include refreshments, Don Norris; programs, Don Johnson; publicity, Lorena Hebrank; and advertising, Lisa Savino.

For those who do not dance informal games and ping pong games will be offered in the WA A Club Room. These games will be under the direction of a committee made up of Jo Pentz, Phyllis Kulp and Tom Shoemaker.

SHORT CLA'SES WED.

In order that students may be able to make train connections, classes will run as follows next Wednesday.

A Review

Fine Cast Makes 'Berkeley Square' Theatrical Landmark

by Ernie Rossi

The other evening I had the privilege of seeing the dress rehearsal of "Berkeley Square", the Masque's current arena production. What's more, I rather liked it.

'Berkeley Square" is a fantasy written for stage by John L. Balderston, which has been adapted for arena production and directed by Miss Esther M. Doyle, Assistant Professor of English and Masque director at Juniata College.

The action centers about the doings of Peter Standish (Don Norris), an American in London, who has fallen in love with his recently acquired ancestrial home and, of all things, the 18th Century. This fact, and his philosophizing about the relativity of time, are taking their toll of his intimates, the Ambassador (Eugene Roddy), his fiance, Marjorie Frant (Elma Stine), and his house keeper, Mrs. Barwick (Betty Longwell).

By a remarkable coincidence Peter is allowed to fulfill his desire to live in the 18th Century by changing places with one of his ancestors who strikingly resembles him, also named Peter Standish. The manner by which this is accomplished seemed rather clever to me; a skillfill transition from the 20th to the 18th centuries.

Things soon start happening which are confusing to the people in the former century and that cause Peter to wonder if he hasn't made a mistake trying to live in the past. You'd better go see the play yourself for the rest of the story. I'd hate to spoil it for you.

Cast Well Chosen

The cast is for the most part, a well chosen group. Veterans and newcomers are blended well together, forming a homogeneous group that leaves little to be desired as a unit and collaborate successfully in producing a satisfactory presentation. However well balanced it may be, there are some performances that shine brighter than the others and some new stars beginning their ascension.

Perhaps the most impressive performance is that turned in by Janet Boland. A newcomer to the ranks of Juniata thespians, Janet emotes like a professional. As the

Skits Read, Approved By Committee

The annual All Class Night program will be presented in Oller Hall on Dec. 10.

Class skits for the annual All Class Night have been read and approved by the All Class Night Committee headed by Bill Bateson.

"Thy Light Is Come" will be presented by the Senior class. The Juniors are giving a skit entitled "Michael McGee Takes His B. A. Degree." "Mr. Music's Million" is the Sophomore offering and the Frosh show is titled "Alfarata's Wigwam."

Try-out committees are busy at work and practice sessions will begin soon, Bateson reports. These practice sessions will continue until the night of technical rehearsal Dec. 9.

All Class Night began in 1937 to enable those interested in the stage to gain experience in functional dramatics, both in production an in acting.

Since then it has developed into a rivalry between classes.

Each skit is student written, directed and acted. The twenty-two minute playlets will be judged on the basis of technique, scenery, acting, the intrinsic merit of the script and the audience reaction.

Senate Concerned But Disapproves Faculty Action

The Senate Tuesday night, acting upon the problem of missing Library books, reviewed with concern the problems caused by student violations of Library regulations, but disapproved of the action taken last week by the faculty and administration to alleviate the trouble.

A week ago the Library staff posted signs which the Senate felt clearly implied that missing books were maliciously stolen by students. The campaign launched by the librarians, upon the recommendation of the faculty library committee, was first announced to students in an article appearing in last week's Juniatian.

A Matter of Principle

The Senate first disapproved of the principle involved, that of not coming to the Senate with problems concerning the student body. A motion was carried to re-issue a statement to the faculty "urging faculty members to contact the Senate directly on issues concerning Senate or student problems rather than by indirect means."

Although recognizing the seriousness of student violations of important Library rules, the Senators agreed that the violations did not spring from maliciousness but were due to negligence or ignorance of the regulations inasmuch as many students have never received adequate instruction in the use of the Library.

Closing the Pennsylvania Room, the Senate felt, would only aggravate an already sorely congested condition and, consequently, create more problems that is was designed to solve.

Students Responsible

In requesting that such problems be brought directly to the Senate, the student legislature felt that it could best handle the Library problem by stressing the point of student responsibility in using the Library. It should be up to students to stop violations because it is the students not the librarians who suffer when books are missing.

The Senate also favored informing all students more definitely what the Library regulations are and why they exist.

President Jack Padgett presented the Senate's recommendations to President Calvert N. Ellis Wednesday. They will go to the faculty in its next meeting, Dec. 1.

Meteor Mike Dzvonar's 93 Points Best In East, 3rd In Nation

An Open Letter

To Juniata's Finest:

The Senate invites you to be the guests of the student body at a program to celebrate your historic success on the gridiron for Juniata. When you mopped up Moravian last week you ended the best football season the College has ever known. You did it in competition with seven very tough opponents—teams that seem to be getting better every year. And the most remarkable thing of all is that you did it despite some of the most discouraging losses due to injuries that any team could possibly face. Trainer Bill Germann had so much business the dressing room looked like a first aid station, then a hospital, and when Dzvonar and finally Chabody were hurt, it looked pretty much like a morgue. But that morgue was only for embalming Moravian and the four other teams you pickled week after week.

Because no editorial can adequately express our feelings about you in your hour of triumph, we are planning this celebration program. We are doing it to show you how proud we will always be to say, "When I was at Juniata we had the best football team in the history of the College." And it will give us a chance to make up for the poor send-off you received from the students before the final game.

I hope that you will look forward to being honored in this program just as much as we await the chance to honor you. The time of the program will be announced very soon after final details have been taken care of.

Senate Program Chairman

Letter to the Editor:

Why Not An Eight-Game Grid Schedule?

I should like to suggest through The Juniatian that next year our football schedule be increased to eight games. It seems to me that Juniata has reached the point where it is recognized as having a good football team so I see no reason why our schedule should not be lengthened.

If we had eight games this year, there would have been little doubt of Mike's being the leading scorer, but as it now stands with Juniata's season ended, a fellow from Lehigh has a chance to catch him.

It would be an honor for our school to have the state's leading scorer. Some of the teams which we could play are Ursinus, Alliance, W. and J., and Swarthmore. These are only a few possibilities. A seven game season next year probably means three home and four away games but with eight games, four games are possible.

Back in 1937 the Indians played eight games. If they could do it in 1937 we could certainly do it now in 1950.

Sincerely,
John Richman

Editorial Reply:

Bill Smaltz, too, thinks an eight-game schedule would be preferable. He says it would give the average team a chance to break even in number of wins and losses, would give the students four home games every year and would bring in more revenue to help offset football expenses.

Athletic director Mike Snider, who makes up the schedule, was out of town this week and could not be reached for comment. An unofficial source claimed that seven games have already been scheduled for 1950 but that an eighth may be added.

Sitko-like Runner Ends J. C. Career In Brilliant Fashion

by Bob Smith

Last week-end the highest scoring football player in Pennsylvania had himself quite a time. On Friday night Mike Dzvonar hitched up his satiny trousers, pulled jersey No. 37 over his big shoulder pads and trotted out onto the hard packed stadium floor at Bethlehem for the last game of his college career.

He came out where he belonged, leading the team with rugged Cecil Jackson at his side. Minutes later Co-captain Jackson was out of the game, dazed with a slight concussion. But Co-captain Dzvonar was playing a game big enough for both of them, flashing past the mighty Moravian maulers for one touchdown, then another, then a third, and finally firing a touchdown pass for the Indians' final scoring thrust.

With brilliant runs of 42, 54 and 58 yards, the Meteor rolled up more yardage than all the Moravian backs put together and more yardage than he had ever before collected in a single game —187. And his season scoring record zoomed to 93.

Sees Penn-Army Game

Saturday, while the sports editor of the Easton Express compared him favorably to Notre Dame's Emil Stiko, Mike thought he would take in a football game. So down to Philadelphia he went to see Penn-Army, and to put on the feedbag in a post-season celebration ("Boy, did I eat. Spaghetti, ravioli, rabbit . . .")

Sunday he came back to Juniata, but not before seeing "a good high school game" that afternoon. By then he knew that Lehigh's Dick Gabriel had pulled to within three points of him as the Engineers routed Carnegie Tech, 48-20. And with all of his scoring chances behind him, Mike could wonder whether the 93 points he had scored in five games would stand supreme over Gabriel's total in nine games. Only tomorrow's Lehigh-Lafayette game could possibly hold the answer.

Best Player in Over 25 Years

But whatever his honors across Pennsylvania, Mike Dzvonar could rest easy with his laurels at Juniata. Unquestionably he was the best football player the College had ever had, and his team was the best in over a quarter of a century of football on College Hill.

POISON—"Dzvonar looks very much like Sitko of Notre Dame. He runs in a similar manner, only Dzvonar is not as big nor can he run as fast as Sitko." That was the considered opinion of Charlie Reilly, sports editor of the Easton Express, as he watched Mike flashing his spurs against Moravian last week. After the Meteor's 42-yard dash to the Moravian five-yard line, where he was waylaid from behind, Reilly concluded, "If that lad could run just a little bit faster, he'd be poison." Dick Burton, also of the Express and formerly with The Juniatian, listened attentively, pleased with himself for having lured Reilly into taking the trip over from Easton to watch Dzvonar turn on the steam.

TOMMY

This week, Tommy would like to dedicate his column to our successful football team. The air was filled with jubilance after their victory last Friday night at Bethlehem. "Treb" Davis got a free shower while Smaltz was too heavy to push into the shower. The announcer for the game paid high tribute to our Mike Dzvonar. He also lauded "Julie" Long and eventually, "Hughie" Long. The little men were also terrific! They consist of Bonomi, Hicks, Lampone, and Dobal. Dick Young proved to be a ball carrier in that game too, and to think it was the last one of the season! Plaudits are in order for Croft, Jackson, Smith and Thomasberger, as the giants of the forward wall. Let's hope now, in boasting of the fact that Meteor Mike ended the season with 93 points, that Gabriel will be blowing his horn in another band tomorrow.

Much talent was displayed at the Talent Show last Saturday night. Tommy especially liked the girl's trio of Roddy, Mohr and Stayer; Gates and Lowe; and the duet of Jo Chiodi and Janet Boland. Also, the little jokes between acts were clever. All the acts were well received and it was evident that Juniata has some future television stars.

Toast of the Week: This goes to Carroll Borden. Cumberland's pride and joy, because she is the only girl who can consume great quantities of ice and still fill a heart with warmth and sunshine.

Here they are, girls, just what you've been waiting for. Choose the type who is the man of your dreams! The hedgehopper, Frank Dolci; the quiet, Guy Wentsler; the unassuming, Jack Middour; the Hollywood, Phil Chabody; the humorous, Wheaton Pierce; the crepe-sole, Fred Shamlian; the dapper, Art Allen; the intellectual, Jack Freymuller; the Tarzan, Tom Gates; the smooth operator, Joe Dobal; the forceful, Don Raphael; and the spendthrift, Joe Bernier.

Tommy is searching desperately for the answers to these questions: What does Jim McClain do to all his girl friends? How do Kreider and Howe get these "sneak passes" at 11:15. Why does Carl Curry study so much? Does Jack Buckle always sleep with his dog? What can't Prof. Glick do? Who took a right pony to the wrong class? Why were the mid-terms so easy? (joke!)

Here's an easy one: Why did most veterans favor the bonus? Who understands a circuit flow chart? Why weren't "Nature Staudy" and "Ethics of Night Hiking" included in the Fall curricula?

Orchids of the Week: To the students who have helped make the seating plan in the dining hall more successful than ever before.

Itchweed of the Week: To those who didn't.

Operator of the Week: John Buterbaugh again!

Question of the Week: On what forthcoming week will most people get the bird?

An Interview

Coach Smaltz "Real Pleased" with Greatest Grid Season

by Jack Freymuller

"It was a real good football team! I could praise the boys to the skies and not overdo it! They had spirit, guts and ability, and that's for sure!" That was Head Coach Bill Smaltz's emphatic opinion of the team he had coached to the best season in Juniata College football history.

When interviewed in his office Monday afternoon, Big Bill leaned back in his chair and admitted that it was a good feeling to have coached this team but he stated that he was not satisfied. According to him, the Indians should have won every game! As he put it, Juniata was better than the teams they defeated and as good as the teams that defeated them; the deciding factor was the bad luck that plagued them in the form of injuries this season.

"We played our best brand of football in the first half of the Westminster game," replied Bill when asked what game he considered the best of the year. "However, for an entire game, I think the Hartwick game was the best. Defensively, they couldn't do a thing. Offensively, we ran all over them. And this in spite of the fact that we had no preview of them. Hartwick changed coaches this year."

In the Moravian game, Bill explained that he thought it best to play safe in the first half and then open up the offense in the second half. "When we did open up," Bill smiled, "the game was strictly ours."

COACH BILL SMALTZ

Squeeze Spotted Plays

In recalling some individual performances, the canny Indian coach pointed out the ability of "Squeeze" Long to spot plays from his backer-up position and get in on them while they were still breaking. "Squeeze" usually came through in a pinch for us," Bill remarked, "he's a quick thinker."

Switching the subject to Mike Dzvonar, the Indian scoring ace and leading scorer in the East, Bill remarked, "It will be a long time before Juniata sees a player like Mike again. He was a great football player, a team man and ready to share the credit with the rest of the team." Bill explained that Mike easily met the requirements of the single-wing formation for a hard-running, good-passing tailback. "At tailback, Mike was our offensive," he asserted.

Asked to explain why Mike was so good, Bill just shook his head and said: "I have no idea what made Dzvonar so good unless it was determination. He isn't big—he's not fast—it was just a combination of football sense and guts." Bill added that in his personal opinion, with Mike in there, the Indians could have defeated both Grove City and Dickinson. "Without Mike to round out the backfield unit, the team was shaky; he was the sparkplug of the team." Bill stated.

DiJohnson Couldn't Compare

Bill mentioned a conversation he had had with the Moravian coach after the game. He quoted the Moravian coach as saying that until the game with Juniata, DiJohnson of Lebanon Valley was the best back they had faced that year. After the Juniata victory, the Moravian coach changed his mind and exclaimed; "Why, DiJohnson couldn't compare with Dzvonar!"

Football prospects for 1950 did not appear too bright to coach Bill Smaltz as he sat in his office Monday afternoon. One fact he brought out was that the class of football in the circuit was improving. Every team in the league would be stronger next year with Dickinson proving very powerful. He added that the past season itself was definitely not an easy one; the weakest team on the schedule was Susqeuhanna and, as usual, they were "up" for the J. C. game.

The loss of the eight senior lettermen on the squad, Aldo Bonomi, Dave Croft, Bill Wilson, Mike Dzvonar, Julius Long, Cecil Jackson, George Smith and Frank Stasenko was the main problem that faced him now, Bill said. However he added that Gene Shaffer and Don Brumbaugh had showed up well in their positions and that Jerry Africa, with a bit more seasoning on offense, could handle the center post.

Assistants Praised

Coach Smaltz had only praise for his two assistant coaches, Bob Bayer and Arnold Greene. He pointed out that they made it possible for the team to have individual instruction early in the season when it was needed most. "With Arnold coaching the blocking backs and Bob coaching the ends, the results were excellent." Smaltz added that as the season got underway, he left the substitution of the ends entirely up to Bayer while Greene handled the phone from the pressbox to the bench.

In addition, Bill remarked that probably the greatest fan of the team was Mrs. Smaltz. "She's a sports fanatic. But football—why, she liked every guy on the team!"

Perhaps the words that this reporter will remember longest from this interview were: "I liked every boy who came out for the team and showed me that he wanted to play football. They worked hard from Monday to Friday and, while they might not have played on Saturday, I think they deserve a lot of credit."

Stout Defense Holds Moravian As Dzvonar Scampers For 3 TDs

With greatness within the grasp of both of them, Mike Dzvonar and the 1949 football Indians hoisted anchor and rigged full sail for immortality last Friday night by drowning Moravian under four touchdowns, 27-7.

For Dzvonar it was the brilliant climax that every player dreams of as he ends his college career. He churned up nearly 200 yards on the ground to score Juniata's first three touchdowns and then shot a pass to "Squeeze" Long for the fourth.

It ran his scoring total for the year to 93 points, where today it stands as the best in the East and third highest in the nation.

For the team as a whole, it was the battering climax of a courageous year. In winning five and dropping only two, Bill Smaltz's 1949 crew became the College's best team in 27 years of football on the Hill.

In winning their final game of the season, the Indians made it look like an uphill fight through most of the first half. But it was all Juniata from the half time on.

Both teams swapped touchdowns before the game was four minutes old. Moravian capitalized on a Juniata fumble near midfield by first running the ball into Indian territory and then passing from the 40 to the 26 where Barry Deetz grabbed it and raced to the end zone.

Indians Bounce Back

The Indians bounced back just as spectacularly two minutes later when Mike Dzvonar rounded right end, followed key blocks by Mike Mervis, Aldo Bonomi and Coy Hicks, and went 42 yards before being nailed on the Moravian five. On the next play the Meteor buzzed it over, then dropped back to kick the extra point to tie it up at 7-7.

Moravian came back to hammer at Juniata's goal time and time again but were stopped cold four times within the J. C. 21-yard line. The line held back the tide miraculously though working without stout Cecil Jackson, who suffered a slight concussion early in the game.

Mike Mops Up

In the final half Dzvonar took off on two more gallops that wound up as Juniata touchdowns, one for 54 yards to paydirt and the other 58 yards to the enemy three. And as the game faded into history, he whipped a final scoring pass to Long in the end-zone to give Juniata its thumping 27-7 victory that clinched the best record in J. C. grid history.

'Doc' Greene Has 6 Varsity Men Among 25 Vying For Quintet

Basketball Coach Arnold "Doc" Greene this week turned his full attention to pre-season scrimmages among the 25 men bidding for varsity positions on his 1949-50 quintet.

With the opening of the basketball season only two weeks away, "Doc" Greene is putting forth every effort to mold a winning combination. Being handicapped by the fact that he has never seen any of the boys in action, "Doc" is applying all the skill and knowledge in his power to produce a star team.

The foundation upon which he will build is formed by six varsity players from last year. They are Holmes Ulsh, Ray Korody, John Stayer, Ken Wenger, Stan Welch and Jack Dickey.

Other boys, who have shown very good results in practice, are Walt Parks, Ray Tessi, Gorden Stroup, Dave Bayer, Leo Kuhn, Jerry Walker, Joe Mruk, George O'Brien, George Newcombe, Ronald Fleck and Dick Barefoot.

With the close of football season, new members are trying out for the squad. They are Bill Bolt, Don Howett, Bob Monahan, Vic Ciccozzi, Tony Segalovich, David LeFevre, Orlando Loschiavo and Dick Fusco.

From this list of 25 men, "Doc" plans to pick 15. Those that are cut from the varsity will be placed on the junior varsity squad, with the understanding of being subject to call to play on the varsity if the occasion arises. As "Doc" Greene puts it, "I haven't seen any of the boys under actual game conditions, consequently I have to select the team from how they appear to me in practice. I can easily make a mistake, that is why the boys who are placed on the J V squad are to be ready to jump in and play varsity ball when I need them."

The opening game is an away contest with Lycoming Dec. 3, and the first home game will be against Bucknell Dec. 7.

Hockey Girls Tie Bucknell, Penn State; Navy Beats Army, 1-0

The girls hockey team captained by Gladys Mohr tied Bucknell and Penn State at Lewisburg on Saturday.

Fifteen upperclassmen made the trip to Bucknell and came out with ties in two of their three contests.

Ginny Tyson scored in the Penn State game, while Miss Mohr was responsible for the score in the Bucknell game.

Captain "Skip" Smith's Navy all-star team was victorious Wednesday when Ginny Tyson drove over to beat Army, 1-0.

In 1923 the Juniata team suffered its lowest scoring loss when they were defeated by Susquehanna 5-0.

Trojans, Locals To Meet Today In Last Playoff Contest

Two sudden death games determined important births in successive days in the Intramural Football League this week.

Herb Utts' Dark Horses broke a tie for fourth place by defeating the T-Bolts 6-0 in 7 periods which took 1:45 to complete.

In the Local-Bullet playoff Thursday a disputed field goal necessitated one extra period and a sudden death finish.

The field goal would have given the Locals a 22-19 victory over Andy (Be-Bop) Endrusick's pennant winning Bullets. As it was the Locals won in the end 25-19 by scoring a T. D. in the second extra stanza.

Fans watching the other playoff contest saw the Trojans outlast the Dark Horses to win 28-13.

The final and deciding game between the winning Trojans and Locals will either be held today or Monday.

The program was as follows:

Prof. Johnson, organ prelude—The Heavens Declare the Glory of God, Marcello; Hymn—Come Ye Thankful People Come, Elvey.

Gladys Clemens Mohr, hymn-tune prelude—Come Ye Thankful People Come, Woods.

Helen Wentzler, alto solo—Gratitude, Curran

Last Monday evening the Chapel Choir was entertained in the home of Prof. and Mrs. Johnson. Refreshments were served after practice on the Christmas Vesper Pageant. This year's Christmas Pageant will be the fourth annual presentation of an outstanding choral-dramatic work by Prof. Johnson's group.

Tryouts for narrator and pantomine parts in the Christmas Pageant to be presented by the Chapel choir on Dec. 11, will be held tomorrow, Nov. 19 in Oller Hall from 11 to 12 a. m. and from 2 to 3 p. m.

All students may try out for the parts.

Food Demonstrations Set For Dec. 2, 9, 16

Faculty wives, local homemakers, and Home Ec. girls are invited to attend foods demonstrations to be held Dec. 2, 9 and 16 in the Foods' Laboratory at 2 p. m.

The Dec. 2 program will be directed by Ilene Altemus who will demonstrate the art of making Christmas goodies. Included in this discussion will be suggestions for holiday cookies and sandwiches.

Kitty Long has selected as the topic of her Dec. 9 demonstration "Quick Meals With Frozen Foods."

The preparation of meat dishes will be the topic of the Dec. 16 meeting with Mim Landis in charge. Here emphasis will be on the stuffing of fowls and the dressing of meats.

A Capella Choir Over Ether Waves

The A Capella Choir sponsored "Juniata on the Air" on Wednesday night. The Women's Trio and the Varsity Men's Quartet presented musical numbers.

Gladys Mohr, Fran Roddy and Joan Stayer, of the Trio, sang "Mood Indigo," "Desert Song" and "Beautiful Dreamer."

The Men's Quartet, consisting of Gerald Hartzel, Al Fletcher, Clair Schaffner and Charles Redenberger, rendered both Negro spirituals and popular selections. They harmonized on "Steal Away," "Joshua Fit De Battle of Jericho," and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." They also sang the popular "Night," "I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen," and "It Had To Be You."

"For Art's Sake," an original play by Ernie Rossi and Bob Elder will be presented after Thanksgiving.

stated very simply and completely in its title. The essentials of the plot were used countless times before Shakespeare and have been repeated . . . since. A shrew gets tamed in Hollywood regularly every few seasons and at the present time the same plot is delighting audiences all over America—with direct credit to Mr. Shakespeare, too—in the . . . Spewack-Cole Porter musical, 'Kiss Me Kate.'

Webster 'Distinguished'

In another article the publicity releases have this to say about Miss Webster: " . . . one of the most distinguished Shakespearian directors of our time . . . she is serving the Bard in a new and interesting approach . . . the performances have . . . vitality."

Her tour also received some mention: "Return engagements this year had to be limited to 70 per cent in accordance with Miss Webster's desire to reach new audiences. A bus and specially constructed trailer-truck, loaded to the roof with scenery, costumes and other paraphernalia, transports the 21 actors and five technicians who compose the troupe."

Music Groups Perform Tonight

The Women's Trio and the Varsity Men's Quartet will perform this evening at the Juniata College talent concert at the Roxbury Church of the Brethren in Johnstown. The concert is sponsored by the Women's League of Johnstown.

Gladys C. Mohr, alto, Frances L. Roddy, soprano, and Elma Stine, alto, make up the regular Women's Trio. However, Joan Stayer will be singing tonight for Miss Stine who is appearing in "Berkeley Square."

The Varsity Men's Quartet has three new members this year. Gerald Hartzel, baritone, is the only "hold-over" from last year. New members are Alan Fletcher, bass and Charles Redenberger and Clair Schaffner, tenors.

Social Committee Plans Entertainment

The Social Committee is providing diversion in the gym tomorrow night for those students who will not be attending "Berkeley Square."

From 8:15 to 9:30 there will be square dancing called by Paul Good.

At 9:30 round dancing will begin and continue until 11:15. The WAA room will be open for those students who prefer to play ping-pong.

PRES. EMERITUS ILL

Dr. C. C. Ellis, president emeritus of the College, returned Tuesday from Philadelphia where he was under observation for nine days at the University of Pennsylvania Graduate Hospital. It was determined that he had a rare form of anemia.

Dr. Ellis is confined to his home at 1830 Mifflin St., under the care of a local physician.

Student Exchange Deadline Dec. 1

All students interested in benefits derived from the Fulbright Act should see Morley J. Mays, Dean of the College, before Dec. 1.

The Fulbright Act is a provision of Congress authorized by the State Department "to use foreign currencies and credits acquired through sale of surplus property abroad for a program of education exchange with students of other nations.

Among these benefits are opportunities for 648 Americans to do graduate study, teaching, or research abroad during 1950-51. There are an equal number of opportunities for foreigners to come to this country.

Awards are all made in the currencies of the nine foreign countries now participating in the program.

There are three eligibility requirements: American citizenship, a college degree or its equivalent, and a knowledge of the language of the country to which the person wishes to go.

stormy Kate Pettigrew, she is slightly less than sensational. She displays charm, poise and great emotional depths in a passionate portrayal of a role that should be a stepping stone to greater heights.

Donald Norris, as Peter Standish, does commendably and turns in a sterling performance of a very difficult role. Although his accent is a trifle over British for an American, and his love-making too polite, he manages to carry the action of the play as well as the interest with surprising aplomb.

He becomes more impressive as the play progresses and is most stirring in his highly emotional scenes.

As Helen Pettigrew, Vera Comptom renders a sensitive portrayal that will long be remembered. She is most convincing as the lovely, but ill-fated sister and completely wins the heart and sympathy of the audience.

Outstanding among the neophytes were Phyllis Link as Lady Anne. She adds color and strength to what could easily be an undistinguished role. Charles Barklow makes his bid for fame with his role as the villanous Tom Pettigrew, as does Ruth Reid as the Maid who is ever the recipient of his unwanted advances.

Grossnickle Tops

Turning in what is probably the best performance in a character role, Thurman Grossnickle, distinguishes himself as one of the finest character actors I have seen for quite some time. Margaret Roop, as the notorious Duchess, carries her role off in fine fashion as does Peter Mayer, who appears briefly as the wine-logged Duke of Cumberland. Peter injects a humorous note into the otherwise sober play, which captures the 18th century more effectively than the present.

As a whole, I found the play most enjoyable. The story, a good one, has considerably more depth than any that I have seen presented at Juniata College. Special credit should be given to the cast and their able director, Miss Doyle, as Berkeley Square was not originally written for arena production. What may seem slightly awkard in spots may be attributed to the restrictions imposed upon the play by this manner of presentation.

Offsetting this is increased intimacy between player and spectator and the greater attention to detail brought about by this proximity. A difficult task, but executed with great skill.

The sets and the costumes are suggestive and convincing. They lend an air of authenticity to the performance and give the audience almost a speaking acquaintance with the 18th Century. Except in a few spots the dialogue is good and the play runs along rather smoothly. The sound effects are excellent as is the lighting. Berkeley Square, should indeed, be a landmark in Juniata College entertainment.

Outing Club Takes To The Woods; French Club Presents Puppet Show

by Margie Alleman

Members of the newly formed Outing Club will knock off from their books and take to the woods this Saturday. The group is meeting at 2 p. m. in front of the gym where they will set out for the Wald Cabin. Those students going will be expected to provide their own bedding which will be brought to the cabin by car. The cost for this trip is $1.25.

According to the club's constitution which is now in the process of being approved, membership in the club will be based on a point system. At present, 10 points must be acquired before one is considered a member of the club. Points may be earned by participating in future outings being planned by the club.

French Club Offers Drama

The French club gave "Berkeley Square" a bit of competition in yesterday's meeting. Dramatic entertainment was the order of the evening with the presentation of the "Theatre de Guingol" which included two puppet shows and a film strip.

Taking part in the first puppet show, "Pyramus and Thisbe," were Don Raphael, Leliah Mullin, and Elly Formwalt.

Judy Groh, Virginia Masemer, Mary Taylor, and Bennie Metcalfe took part in the second puppet show entitled " Le Gourmand Gonfle" or "The Over-Stuffed Glutton."

"The Pie and the Tart," a French farce of the Middle Ages was shown by film. The accompanying dialogue was played on records.

Dr. Henry to be Speaker

Dr. Henry will present a Thanksgiving message at the meeting of Volunteers to be held next Tuesday.

A panel discussion on "The Need of Missions" was featured on the program of Volunteers at their meeting last Tuesday. Students participating were Phyllis Kulp, Jane Lauffer, JoAnn Pentz, Donald Brinton, and Mildred Rosenberger.

IVCF At Penn State Friday

Juniata's IVCF was represented by two carloads of students at the meeting of Penn State's IVCF last Friday. After the meeting at which Rev. Smoot from Boston spoke on "The Reasons for Rejecting Christ" the group had a social "get-together."

ABC Renovates

Members of the Alpha Beta Gamma Club are converting Room B into an "education room."

In addition to re-arranging the seats so as to better utilize the natural lighting, they have washed the walls.

Grads Engaged

Two Juniata graduates, Vera Davis, '49 and Harry Ball, '49 will be married Thanksgiving Day at 4:30 p. m., in Pittsburgh. After their marriage, they plan to live in New Jersey where Mr. Ball is working as a chemist.

300 Attend Talent Show

Co-chairmen "Skip" Hines and Betty May were seating them on everything but the floor last week as an unexpectedly large crowd of more than 300 students and faculty members converged on the gym to witness the "Talent Night" program.

An emergency call for additional refreshments had to be put through. Said Hines, "Wow! Didn't expect anything like this!"

in their class work. Expressing his sentiment on the addition of a course in typing Bill Murray says, "I needed it before! I need it now! I will need it in grad school!"

Relevant to Present Day

Thinking along a more serious line, several students suggested courses relevant to present day situations: "Skip" Hines; "problems of labor;" Bill Hanson; "problems of American democracy"; and Bob Smith and Sherwood Cordier, "international relations."

Dave Kennedy offered the suggestion of a seminar course, with a limited enrollment, in which different questions such as phases of history, current problems in the world would be discussed.

Skipology and Sleepology

Aldo Bonomi, interested in a broader, well-rounded education, advocates that the three subjects, skip-ology, cinema-ology, and sleep-ology be added to the present curriculum. Anonymous, following Aldo's train of thought, recommends that "introduction to sleep" be established with a minimum of 56 hours homework per week. (8 hours per night.)

$28,000 Gift Of W. E. Swigart Makes Possible Acquisition Of New Recital-Practice Hall

A gift of $28,000 to Juniata College from W. Emmert Swigart, local insurance tycoon, has made possible the acquisition of the McSherry residence at 1903 Moore Street as a new music recital and practice house, President Calvert N. Ellis announced on Tuesday.

The building, which is to be called Swigart Music Hall, is a large brick structure located at the northern boundary of the campus across from The Village.

Through the years the Swigart family has been an important factor in the development of the college. Mr. Swigart's father, W. J. Swigart was one of the earliest trustees, serving from 1878 to 1939. He was also a member of the faculty and treasurer from 1880 to 1920.

The donor, Emmert Swigart, graduate of Juniata, class of 1906, has served as president of the Alumni Association and as a member of the trustee board.

It is expected that the music department will move into the newly acquired building by Feb. 1. The building is well suited for use as a recital-practice hall. There is one large room and three smaller rooms on the first floor. The second floor has eight rooms and third floor four.

The acquisition of the McSherry property is the second major step in the postwar development of the college. Both the dining hall and the music house will be open for student use with the opening of the second term.

'Pirates' Musical To Be Staged March 18 and 19

An operetta from the pens of two men who have been acclaimed the "all-time masters of the musical plays" has been chosen for production this Spring.

The Gilbert and Sullivan classic, "Pirates of Penzance," will be produced March 18 and 19, according to Student Manager Corena Sollenberger.

Like most of the duo's works, "Pirates" tells a light, somewhat fantastic, tale of seafaring men. In this case the sailors are a group of soft-hearted pirates who never harm anyone who claims to be an orphan, they being orphans themselves. Once the word of their gullibility has gotten around, of course, they find that every ship they attack is manned entirely by orphans.

Prof. Donald S. Johnson and Miss Esther M. Doyle will stage the musical. The student orchestra will be under the direction of Prof. Jack D. Brammer.

According to new Senate regulations, Corena Sollenberger's job as Student Manager is to represent student opinion on the following business: type of program, selection of cast and committees as well as other personnel, budget, and drumming up student enthusiasm for tryouts and rehearsal attendance.

Faculty Doing Grade Study

A faculty committee has been appointed by President Calvert N. Ellis to study the grading system presently used by the College.

Dr. Donald M. Rockwell, committee member, attended the Tuesday meeting of the Senate to receive suggestions as to the way in which the system might be improved in light of objections raised among both students and faculty.

The head of the chemistry department said that the committee was interested in getting the Senate's suggesions at the outset in making their study.

Other members of the committee are Dean Morley Mays, Dr. Edgar S. Kiracofe, Miss Esther M. Doyle and, in an ex officio capacity, Registrar A. William Engel.

Employment Data Filed For Student Use

Information on employment prospects for college graduates is now available to students who call at the desk in the Pennsylvania Room of the Library Monday and Tuesday afternoons.

Material on the job outlook in everything from animal husbandry to funeral directing has been gathered by the psychology department from various sources, such as the Department of Labor, chambers of commerce and individual business firms.

Under the supervision of Prof. Alfred M. Goetschius this guidance service has been set up to point out to students the present condition of the field they plan to enter so that they might better prepare to enter it.

On duty in the Library Monday and Tuesday to help students find the information they seek will be Robert Hess, senior psychology major who worked with Prof. Goetschius in filing the information.

Hess pointed out this week that as yet they do not have adequate material in all fields but that in most cases, if their files are in-

Student Fatally Struck While Kneeling Over Injured Dog

RENO RUSS

Reno Russ, an Altoona, Pa. senior, was fatally injured Saturday when he was struck by the automobile of Philip E. Rinker, 35, Altoona.

As one of his College friends said later, "It was just like Reno to stop and worry about a little dog." One-half mile east of the Greenwood intersection of U. S. Route 220 the Packard coupe he had just purchased hit and killed a dog. Pulling his car to the right of the highway, Russ knelt over the animal. It was then that he was struck.

One Of The Gang

Russ was one of the "gang" at Skip's, and it was he who helped establish the names "Mom" and "Pop" for the owners. Shortly after the Abbotts took over the management of Skip's he overheard Mrs. Lou Abbott say they had been called "Mom" and "Pop" before coming to Huntingdon. She added the hope that the name wouldn't stick. With a grin, Russ said: "Mom, you just pinned a name on yourself."

From this incident grew a friendship which later led Mrs. Abbot to say, "Reno could always make me smile, no matter how blue I felt."

A more humorous aspect of the friendship was the highchair which was kept in the back room at Skip's. When the gang gathered for coffee and conversation, Reno would drag it out. As "Mom" put it, "That chair was strictly Reno's; no one else would have thought of sitting in it."

His Favorites

Two songs were significant in Reno's life. His favorite according to Mrs. Abbott, was "Walkin' in a Winter Wonderland." He never went home for Christmas vacation (he always lived downtown), and he and the Abbotts used to toss coins for the privilege of playing this number on the jukebox to while away the hours.

The other melody was "Maybe You'll Be There," a Record Session number the "gang" used to dedicate to the girls they knew. Following this would be the

Who's Who Silent; Fails To Answer Juniata's Letters

The Senate tabled a resolution concerning "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." The resolution requests the administration to sever Juniata's relations with the publishers of "Who's Who" and was introduced by Chairman of Publications, Bob Smith.

Smith reported that neither the dean of students nor The Juniatian has received an answer to their letters requesting the editor of "Who's Who" to answer charges that his was strictly a "commercial venture." The letters were mailed Nov. 9.

The resolution was tabled to give Senators further time to consider the matter and will be brought up at Tuesday's meeting.

FTA To Hear State Leader

Joseph Torchia, professor of education at Millersville State Teachers College, will speak to the FTA at their meeting tonight in Founders Chapel. His topic is "Responsibilities of Our Profession."

Mr. Torchia is a member of the State Committee for the promotion of professional activities in colleges and high schools. He is responsible for organizing the FTA into a statewide organization.

The program will also include selections by the Women's Varsity Trio and the Men's Varsity Quartet, and refreshments.

STUDENT TICKETS READY

According to an announcement by Miss Esther Doyle, student reserve tickets for the Margaret Webster production, "The Taming of the Shrew," are ready and may be picked up at the information window.

Local Kids Party Guests Sat. In Gym

The second annual children's Christmas party sponsored by the YWCA will be held in the gym tomorrow night. The children will be escorted by Juniata students who will act as their parents for the evening.

The success of last year's party prompted the YW to send invitations to about 50 Huntingdon children between the ages of six and 12.

Tomorrow night the "parents" will go to the children's home and escort them to the gaily decorated gym. The festivities will begin at 7:30 and last until 9. The job of the student parent is to see that his child engages in decorating the tree, receives his gifts from the YW and shares in the planned activities.

A varied yuletide program of children's games, carols, a Santa Claus act and refreshments are planned. Students will portray Christmas in other lands and recite "The Night Before Christmas."

After they have taken their "children" home, the students will dance in the gym until 11 p. m.

The faculty and administration are invited to the party.

Choir To Give Religious Work, 'Incarnate Word'

"The Incarnate Word" by Robert Elmore is the pageant to be presented this year in Oller Hall, Sunday afternoon, December 11, at 3:30 o'clock, by the College Chapel Choir for their fourth annual presentation of the Christmas story.

The choir, directed by Prof. Donald S. Johnson at the organ, will be assisted by other selected students who, under the guidance of Miss Esther Doyle, will enact the story sung by the musical group. Elma Stine is the student director.

"The Incarnate Word" is divided into four parts; The Prophecy, The Nativity, The Adoration by the Magi, and The Eternal Manger. Portrayed first is the yearning of the Jews for the coming of the Messiah. The hopes of the people are fulfilled by the promise of Him who is to come and the scene of darkness becomes one of light.

The nativity scene is the everlasting story of the birth of Christ and of the shepherds who come to adore Him. The learned Magi then appear in contrast to the simple shepherds to behold the Child and to present Him their rich gifts.

In "The Eternal Manger," the nativity scene is again revealed and is found by people of today who after constant seeking find the Child and offer their gifts to Him—themselves.

The narrator is Fred Stauffer. The solos will be sung by Lucille Snyder and Audrey Campbell, sopranos, and Calvin Glazier, Philip Norris, and Robert Frain, baritones.

A Survey

Juniatian Finds Colleges Use Three Serving Styles--Family, Cafeteria, Switch; Students Must Choose Best System

by Hugh McEvers

A Juniatian survey of small colleges in the mid-Atlantic area has revealed that whether their dining hall uses family style, cafeteria style or "switch" style, . . . they're all singing chow hall blues!

In fact, our poll walked right into a students' maelstrom at Drew University and Grove City. The blues tune goes something like this: "too many pancakes, welsh rarebit, liver infested spaghetti and jungle spinach. We want a student-administration-dietitian-chef committee to probe the food situation."

The tide of feeling of students is echoed at Grove City by Editor Bill Weil. Weil is keeping membership records for his latest social creation, "The Oinker's Hasty Eating and Cutting Chow Line Society." Grove City employs cafeteria system in the men's dorm. Their answer to our question, "Is your present system efficient?" is an emphatic "NO!"

A sampling of other colleges covered by the poll are Muhlenberg, Western Maryland, Moravian, Geneva, Albright, Manchester, Westminster, and Gettysburg.

Family Style

About one-third of the colleges polled use the family style exclusively. An average of slightly over 300 students eat at each of these dining halls. All answered "yes" to the efficiency question, and none have ever considered a conversion.

We received many gripes about family style. Some of those oft repeated were: "You either go (to a meal) on time or miss (a meal); "No choice of food"; "More help needed, hence more expensive"; Limited menu makes it harder for dietitian to satisfy students"; "Difficulty in predicting number of students who will be eating in the dining hall"; and "less variety".

Cafeteria Style

About the same number of colleges polled employ cafeteria style exclusively. The average here is about 350 students to the dining hall, and two of every three approve the system. Drew once considered a conversion because of a "desire on the part of the students for a more home-like service."

Kicks from among the cafeteria style eaters include: "Waiting in line;" "Lack of intimacy;" "Meal on unappetizing steel tray;" "More noisy;" "Costs more;" and "Less chance to meet new people."

Switch Style

The rest of the colleges polled use either a "switch" dining hall system or, as is the case at Manchester, have both cafeteria and family styles. Albright College, for example, uses cafeteria style for breakfast and lunch and then switches to family style for dinner. Manchester having added a cafeteria recently because of increased enrollment, uses both simultaneously. About 400 students eat in the dining hall and 300 in the cafeteria at Manchester.

The switch system drew the most favorable comment. The preference for cafeteria at break-

TAKE YOUR CHOICE

When The Juniatian sent dining hall questionnaires to 20 colleges several weeks ago, it was to gather information on what students thought of the various styles of service employed in these colleges. For Juniata students we summarize below the advantages and disadvantages of the three most used styles as revealed by our survey.

Perhaps you are satisfied with the present set-up in our dining hall.

Perhaps you think it could be improved. In any case, you have the right to express your opinion on this matter if you eat in the dining hall and pay your board bill. On Monday at dinner you will be given a questionnaire at your table. Fill it out and leave it for the waitress to pick up. This is your chance to be heard in a formal poll of student opinion. You pays your money and you takes your choice!

FAMILY

ADVANTAGES

1. Promotes better social life and affords everyone chance to get acquainted with more students.
2. More home-like.
3. More likely to compel student to observe rules of table etiquette.
4. No standing in line with a tray to be served.
5. Allows more students to earn board by waiting on tables.
6. Everyone eating at same time allows announcements to be read with the assurance that all students at that meal will hear them.

DISADVANTAGES

1. No choice of menu.
2. Students must be ready to eat at the moment dining hall opens which doesn't allow for delays or inconveniences.
3. Slow eaters are shamed into bolting their food by those who are impatient to leave the table after they have silently shoveled down their platefull in 10 or 15 minutes. This detracts from sociability of family style.
4. Difficult for kitchen to provide some foods that are sufficiently hot, such as fried eggs, because several hundred students must be served at once.
5. Cost increased by greater number of people required to wait on table.
6. Food must be ready to serve for unpredictable number of students.

CAFETERIA

ADVANTAGES

1. Student can pick his own time to eat within reasonable limits.
2. Student can eat with whom he pleases thereby strengthening a few friendships rather than just becoming acquainted with a great number of students.
3. Student can eat as fast or slow as he pleases without the pressure of having to comply with the speeds of others at his table.
4. Avoids confusion of several hundred students rushing for tables during meals when table assignments are not in effect, such as breakfast every day and all week-end meals.
5. All foods can be kept at proper temperature on a steam table until placed on student's tray.
6. It could cut down waste if properly managed. Students would be asked to take only what they wanted thus allowing the kitchen to prepare some foods as the demand warranted during the serving period. In family style enough food must be prepared to provide a helping of everything for each student; if the head gives everyone his rightful serving, plenty of food is never touched and thereby wasted; if he asks each student whether they want it or not the result is leftover foods that will be warmed up later for another meal.
7. Requires less equipment per student—chairs, tables, silverware, dishes.

DISADVANTAGES

1. Waiting in line during rush hours.
2. Less chance of becoming acquainted with new students.
3. Less intimacy and too much eat and run.
4. Doesn't give student proper opportunity to develop table manners.
5. Would be difficult to make dining hall announcements that would be heard by all students unless they were repeated every 15 minutes or so. Each time the serving line would have to stop so that it would be quiet enough for the announcer.
6. Too noisy.

SWITCH

Switch style is the combination of family and cafeteria styles such as is used at Albright where they have cafeteria style for breakfast and lunch and switch to family style for dinner.

ADVANTAGES

1. It offers the advantages of both cafeteria and family styles.
2. It offers cafeteria style for those who don't like a seven o'clock deadline for breakfast and family style for those who think dinner is no time for standing in line with a tray. It's a good compromise.

DISADVANTAGES

1. It has the disadvantages of both.
2. It would require the installation of facilities for both styles.

Letter to the Editor:

Editorial On 'Who's Who' Questioned

To The Editor:

Concerning your editorial on "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," I would like to submit the following thoughts.

It seems to me that your arguments concerning this issue boil down to four main points. (1) Who's Who does not aid in securing jobs; (2) Their arbitrary way of arriving at quotas can not be defended; (3) the whole principle of rewards may not be too noble; (4) Who's Who is making money in a rather shady manner.

Concerning the first of these—who said that Who's Who should supply any member with a means of livelivhood? While this question probably can not be divorced entirely from the problem, certainly its relationship is an indirect one.

As I understand it, Who's Who is essentially an 'honor society'. In as much as it is, what justification does anyone have to suppose that it should locate a position for him? It seems to me that such a thing is clearly not their prime reason for existence. In this respect, I wonder how many members of "Who's Who in America" joined that group in order to secure a business or professional position? You might suggest that a worthy organization should, nevertheless, be recognized by the outside world and in this I would agree.

The survey you referred to pointed out that this did not seem to be the case but it also must be said that 600 schools contribute to Who's Who and certainly this would seem to suggest that there is a fair degree of national recognition at some levels, at any rate. I would dare to suggest that there are many business concerns who have never heard of Who's Who in America, or the Phi Beta Kappa society, either!

The idea was thrown out by you that possibly Juniata could institute a Who' Who of her own divorced from the national organization. In light of what has been said, how many more business organizations do you expect would recognize "Who's Who of Juniata College" which failed to acknowledge Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities?

Concerning point two, I wonder at your 'arbitrary' use of the word arbitrary. Why a quota? It appears rather obvious to me that in recognizing campus leaders, which recognition is to have any meaning, some limitations must be proposed. By suggesting a quota, which appears to be around one or two percent of a school, it seems to me that Who's Who is assuring all that the best of the best will be chosen.

I don't know that any school is concerned in maintaining a fixed number if that school feels that it does not have a required number of eligibles—and again, if there are more who meet minimum requirements, it becomes a job of selecting the best. Isn't this life? In the long run, admitting a blacksheep here and there, I think that such a plan, rather than 'arbitrary' might even be sensible! In light of this, why did The Juniatian set the quota for Homecoming Day queens at 'one'? Surely we all felt that others were just as qualified (no reflection on any personality). And it may even be suggested that with an 'arbitrary' quota of only one, it remains possible that one year a 'commoner' might be 'queen'.

In point three I felt that you have your soundest argument. In many cases I think many of us are 'reward happy'. Honors or rewards may become objects striven for to satisfy pride and selfishness and no doubt do, but at the same time, they may represent feelings of gratitude and recognition given to one or a group by others. In this case, they may beome means of true satisfaction in achievement and bits of encouragement. If recognition by Who's Who is the first, let's get rid of it—if the latter, possibly it serves a profitable purpose.

May I ask why athletic letters are awarded, why certain people are selected for membership in the Honor Society, why other peoples' names appear on the Dean's list, why The Juniatian initiated the Homecoming Queen tradition? Possibly there is another area where proper recognition is due—that dealt with by Who's Who. It may even be that this area of campus life demands as much time and work as any of the others suggested—and more than most! If any honors whatsoever are legitimate, isn't this one of them?

To the criticism that Who's Who is making money, I would say the following. First of all, it should be made clear that no fee of any sort is required to participate in this organization and that those students who are elected to Who's Who are required to pay absolutely nothing. The profit to this organization comes from those who voluntarily desire to buy the yearbook or the key. Now, the right is granted you to turn down this 'money making' offer if you so desire, but at what point do you feel it your responsibility to say to another—we won't even give you the opportunity to say 'no'.

In our society, or any society, I dare say—we give up some things for others which we would rather have. Now, if there are students or parents who feel that the transaction is desirable and, of their own accord, choose to purchase the book, key, or both, it may be that such is their right. Selfish you may say, possibly, but not necessarily so. It may be that a parent has a just feeling of pride in possessing such a book, or a student too. Be this as it may, it becomes their decision, not yours or mine to impose upon them. And, in conclusion, if Who's Who does render a service, possibly they are justified in realizing a return for that service.

I realize in writing this that motives may be misconstrued, but be that as it may, here are my thoughts on the subject.

Respectfully,
Gene Roddy

Editorial Reply:

1. No one said "Who's Who" should supply a livelihood for anyone. According to Mary Phyllis Gibbs, chosen last year, it promises references. According to Albright alumni it has ignored requests for references. Our gripe is that is does not fulfill its promises.

2. Juniata's quota is from five to nine, and you can bet the College will always choose nine rather than admit that there aren't as many outstanding students on campus as they are allowed to pick. What you get year after year is a list of the nine most outstanding students of that year rather than a group of students who have met a permanent standard of achievement.

3. Aside from the question of whether we have overdone the giving of awards at Juniata, you must recognize that athletic letters, membership in the Honor Society and appearing on the Dean's List have no quotas. Everyone who meets the standards is qualified, and if only a few make it there are only a few awards. As for the Homecoming Queen, she and the May Queen, and even you and I as Senators, are all elected by the student body to perform a specific function. The honor is only a natural by-product of the election process.

4. No one who accepts the capitalistic system could seriously criticize "Who's Who" for making money, but when that is the organization's sole purpose what do we gain by being affiliated with it? If members want any concrete evidence of their selection they must buy the book or the key. Isn't it reasonable to expect "Who's Who" to present each

A Short Short Story

The New Dress

by Jo Chiodi

This new dress was the most beautiful one Lucy had ever seen. It was a combination of all the beauty, glamour, enchantment and sophistication she had ever dared to dream of. There the dress hung in all its splendor, ready to be worn to some wonderful prom with a dream man for a partner.

Lucy could just picture herself wearing the dress. The delicate shade of blue would bring out the color of her own blue eyes, and the style would be just right for her slim, willowy figure. The dress had a low, round sweeping neckline and tiny cap sleeves. The bodice, which fitted tightly, would show off her tiny waist. And the skirt! It was made of many rows of large ruffles beginning just below the waist in the front and slowly descending around the sides until they touched the floor in the back.

Underneath the ruffles a wide, full, rustling taffeta skirt was held out by a large hoop covered with several stiffly starched petticoats. The accessories would add a lot to it—short lace, dreamy, blue mitts, or possibly white ones; a short string of tiny pearls; and matching earrings.

All of this was the height of Lucy's desire, but she could never wear this dress; it belonged to her roommate, and it hung in the closet beside Lucy's.

Tommy

This column is dedicated to all those who were able to return from their Thanksgiving vacations. Tommy thinks this one is needed more than any other during the year. How about it profs? But now "White Christmas" and "Come All Ye Faithful" are preparing us for Christmas. And remember, children, there are only 23 shoplifting days before Christmas.

A certain three students have written to the President of the Pennsylvania Railroad requesting loud speakers to announce all station stops. They learned that Altoona is West of Huntingdon.

The Intra-Mural Basketball League opened with a bang Monday night. Chairman of Athletics "Duck" Snyder even kept score to see that everything would commence on the up-and-up. Mike Dzvonar and Bud Kreider had the honor of officiating the first contest. The Geiger House girls turned out in mass to cheer a certain SHMOO.

The Roddy Committee, campus counterpart of the Dies Committee, is investigating the charters of all campus organizations. Whazza matter, is someone turning Liberal??? What's more, the Committee has ordered more onions to be put on the weiners in Room 207 at the Cloisters!

All those going to the Swimming Party Saturday night bring along your own ice picks and hot water bottles.

Tommy notes with respectful gratitude the piece about the great inheritance he has received in being able to use all those volumes in the Library. It's just that the inheritance tax is getting a little high.

Incidentally, did the librarians ever corner the rascals? And did the boys in the chapel choir ever get back their neckties? Maybe the same villians that walked off with those psych books took the ties for bookmarks.

What certain vivacious redhead from Juniata won't date any two boys from the same group or the same building in succession? What reasoning!

A few nimrods took their Monday classes among the local thousand hills. One freshman after walking over 900 of them said he should have gone to class. He did a lot of hunting but no finding.

LATE EXTRAS: Goods news to Skip loafers. They're going to enlarge the place. The phone is going to go.

Good luck to Stan Wass who dropped from school to go to the Vets Hospital at Aspinwall. He's a swell guy!

Who would ever suspect the quiet Peter Mayer of being the "firecracker bug" in the Cloisters?

QUESTION: Is Carl Curry Pre-Ministerial?

14 Basketball, 8 Bowling Teams Open Winter Intramural Action

The Winter intramural athletic program got off to a fast start this week with 14 cage teams and eight bowling squads signed up and already in action.

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL

Returning in the same rage with which it left us last Spring, the Intramural Basketball League made its debut this week. Already two rounds of games have been played, while a third is scheduled for tonight.

Under the supervision of chairman of athletics "Duck" Snyder, the league is operating in much the same manner as in years past. However, due to an increased number of teams, it has become necessary to schedule four games per night, instead of three.

The opening rounds saw the defending champion I-Seven team continue to dominate their rivals. However, several other teams gave promise of lots of competition, and served due notice that they are not to be taken too lightly.

The league standing on Nov. 30:

Team	W	L	Pct.
Shmoos	2	0	1.000
Be-Boppers	1	0	1.000
B. T. O.'s	1	0	1.000
I-Seven	1	0	1.000
Meteorites	1	0	1.000
Ranchers	1	0	1.000
Skijans	1	0	1.000
Chow Hounds	0	1	.000
Dragons	0	1	.000
Fubars	0	1	.000
Highlanders	0	1	.000
Red Raiders	0	1	.000
Y. H. O. Club	0	1	.000
B $/2	0	2	.000

This week's scores:

Monday
Shmoos 35, Red Raiders 16
Skijans 50, Highlanders 28
Be-Boppers 45, B $/2 16
I-Seven 76, Chow Hounds 19
Wednesday
B. T. O.'s 29, Dragons 13
Ranchers 35, Y. H. O. Club 28
Meteorites 40, Fubars 22
Shmoos 44, B $/2 18

INTRAMURAL BOWLING

With one round already under their belts, the Intramural Bowling League resumes warfare tonight at the local Arcade Alleys. Interest is running high over this youngest member of Juniata's intramural program.

The opening round on Nov. 18 saw the Strikettes put up a stiff battle before bowing to the Aces, while the Sky Pilots and Sliders conceded with a tie for their evening's efforts. In the remaining contests, the Pirates were edged by Les Miserables, and the Hooks white washed the Senioritas.

Three teams entered are female contingents, who compete against the men with a 100 point handicap. Matches are scheduled for every Friday night, four at 6:30 and four at 8:30.

Trojans Take Locals For Intramural Football Championship

Once again the Trojans were crowned champions of the Intramural Football League Nov. 21 when they trounced a strong Locals team, 19-7.

The Trojans made a good showing all the way, and by the last period they led 19-0. In the final stanza, however, the Locals came on to score their only T. D.

Interceptions sparkled in the Trojan defense, and, in turn, throttled every attempt made on the part of the Locals to tally with the one exception.

Members of the champion team have joined forces with Skip's in the Basketball League, and will be known as the Skijans.

student with a certificate of recognition free?

I think a good case can be made for honoring student leaders in extra-curricular activities, especially since the Dean's List and the Honor Society are primarily designed to honor academic prowess. The principle behind "Who's Who fills this need. But under the present set-up this arbitrary quota imposses upon the College undesirable restrictions in selecting students. That is good enough reason to sever relations with this organization.

Whether the College would care to continue such awards after setting its own standards is another question. But if we continue to condone the present quota system we are as much off base as the professor who counts the number of students in his class the first day of the course and then announces: "At the end of the course there will be from five to nine A's. The bell-shaped curve requires it."

Dzvonar Makes AP All-State 2nd Team; Jacks'n, Croft Listed

Jersey number 37 has been stowed away until next season when some fortunate newcomer will proudly don those immortal numerals worn by the illustrious Meteor Mike Dzvonar, who was chosen by the Associated Press as All-Pennsylvania second team tailback this week.

Although the Meteor was unable to top Lehigh's Dick Gabriel in scoring honors, a race that went to the wire, Mike was chosen over the speedy Engineer who was given a birth on the third squad.

Teammates Cecil Jackson and Dave Croft were selected to represent Juniata on the honorable mention eleven at their respective positions of tackle and center.

Mike lost a chance to appear as a member of the first string backfield that was dominated by Ralph Pasquariello (Villanova), Fran Rogel (State), plus Sundry (St. Vincent's), and Cecconi (Pitt).

The Pittsburgh Press issued more honors to the graduating J. C. back by choosing him as a starting member of All District Class B Collegiate eleven.

According to the Press, Dzvonar was one of the easiest selections to be made. He is credited with sparkplugging the Indians to their best season in the history of Juniata College football by that paper.

V. A. Announces New Regulations

The Veterans Administration is clamping down on fly-by-night schools and G. I. students whose motives are just as shady.

Here, in question-answer form, are some new regulations announced recently by the VA.

Q.—I am taking a liberal arts college course under the G. I. Bill, but I am afraid I am more cut out for a trade school course. What must I do to change to a different field?

A.—After November 1, 1949, you will have to undergo advisement and guidance from VA before you will be allowed to change to a different field of training. Your nearest VA office can make necessary arrangements for advisement and guidance.

Q.—I read somewhere that World War II veterans will get their NSLI dividend checks before Christmas. Can you tell me when I will get my NSLI dividend check?

A.—There is no possibility that any NSLI dividend checks will be mailed before January, 1950. About the middle of January, the checks will be going out at the rate of 200,000 a day.

Cagers Readied For Opener At Lycoming Saturday; Ulsh Hurt

When the referee's whistle blows at 8:00 p. m. tomorrow evening at Williamsport, Juniata's basketball season will have begun.

The Indians go up against a veteran team when they meet Lycoming College. Having lost last year by a score of 81-44, Lycoming will be out in full force to even the score.

HOLMES ULSH

The Indians, under the guidance of "Doc" Greene, are composed of only seven men who have had varsity experience. Of these seven only two were regular starters on last year's squad, John Stayer and Holmes Ulsh. Ray Korody and Stan Welch, however, saw lots of service. The remaining portion of the 15 man squad will consist of five sophomores, one junior and one freshman.

With such a tough situation facing him, "Doc" Greene was dealt another stiff blow when his star scorer, Holmes Ulsh, pulled a leg tendon in a scrimmage on Wednesday night. Ulsh was the chief headache against Lycoming last year, for he compiled a total of 24 points to lead the Indians' attack. With Holmes on the sidelines, the team loses its big scoring gun.

As the situation stands, "Doc" doesn't plan to pick the starting team until game time. The team will also enter the game without a team captain since one hasn't been elected by the squad as yet.

J.V.'s Open 14 Game Schedule at Lycoming

Coach Bill Smaltz's Junior Varsity five will tangle with the Lycoming J. V.'s in a contest preliminary to the varsity game Saturday night at Williamsport.

Little is known about those hopeful of securing a position with Doc Arnold Greene's promising varsity contingent. With no punches pulled, however, Smaltz calmly announced: "We're going to wallop them."

By such a rash statement of confidence we can expect no less than a victory on the part of those anxious scrappers who will someday fill the ranks of the varsity team.

Job Outlook

'Opportunities In Chemistry Good'-- U.S. Labor Dept.

by Bob Hess

(Editor' Note: This is the first of a number of articles that will appear in The Juniatian on the general outlook of job opportunities in the various fields in which Juniata students are preparing to enter. More detailed information can be found in the files prepared by the psychology deparment and set up in the Pennsylvania Room of the Library. See story on Page 1.)

Opportunities for properly trained chemists are very good. At the present time there is a shortage of scientists for basic and background research, developmental and applied research and teaching. In industrial labs there are good opportunities for those with advanced degrees or specialized experience.

There are also employment opportunities at present for new entrants holding only the bachelor's degree. Entrance jobs are mainly in analysis, testing, certain production jobs in manufacturing, and as lab assistants in research. Some opportunities are available for those who wish to engage in graduate study through assistantships and fellowships.

B. S. Degrees Plentiful

It must be remembered that it is becoming increasingly difficult for those with only a B. S. to secure jobs at the professional level. This is due to the fact that the annual number of graduates with the B. S. degree is nearly double the pre-war number at present.

In the long run there will be expanding opportunities in the profession, particularly for chemists with advanced degrees or successful experience, assuming that general business activity continues at a high level.

Income Varies

The income of chemists depends on the type of work in which they are engaged, the amount and quality of their educational background, the amount of professional experience they have had and, of course, individual abilities.

In early 1948, to cite the Department of Labor's figures, the approximate starting salaries were: $200 to $250 for B. S.; $250 to $300 for M. S.; and $350 to $500 for Ph. D.

Senate Clarifies Rule For Cheerleaders Club

The Senate, standing by its policy of discouraging more than one major campus activity on Saturday nights, recommended to the Cheerleaders Club this week that it make clear that the cheerleaders are sponsoring the proposed swimming party which has been advertised on campus this week.

The swimming party conflicts in time with the YWCA party for underprivileged children, although only the YW party is to be held on campus.

In clarifying its policy, the Senate recognized the right of any campus organization to sponsor a week-end activity for its members but not one open to the entire student body.

8 Students Attend SCM Conference

Eight Juniatians attended the Brethren Student Christian Movement annual conference at Ashland College, Ohio from Nov. 23-27.

At this conference college young people from many parts of the nation came to discuss campus and off-campus problems.

In the four seminars on campus problems it was determined that extra-curricular activities be judged by a set of standards; that the aim of the student was to acquaint himself with the past, understand the present and seek guidance in the future; that the all-important factor in our quest for knowledege is the glorification of God; and that the individual's ethical norm should be the teachings of Christ.

The seminars on off-campus problems defined vocation, discussed the traits of a good world citizen and reiterated the principle of the fatherhood of God.

Juniatians who attended were Prof. G. Wayne Glick, Tom Shoemaker, Harold Kenepp, Carmon Sollenberger, Phil Kulp, Elaine Mock, Skip Smith and Kay Wright.

fast is based on the "uncertainty of the number coming to breakfast." The cafeteria is open one-half hour for breakfast and an hour and a half for lunch.

June Christman, Chairman of the Dining Hall Committee at Albright, says that when the school used family style exclusively, the weekly operational costs were "slightly more." She says the dining hall offers a "wide variety of meats and vegetables," and there "is no serious rush except at times when the cafeteria first opens up."

Thiel College, employing a switch style like Albright, was the only school providing a definite answer to our questions, "Do you think cafeteria style cuts down waste? How much?" The answer was "yes," and it was approximated that this style eliminated about five percent waste. Most other colleges answered "no," but made no indication that their answer was based on statistics.

Thiel offers its 380 students one kind of meat, two vegetables, and a choice of three beverages at their family style dinner. They offer a choice of two meats, three vegetables and three beverages in the cafeteria at noon. Our correspondent at Theil reports that "having both styles of service breaks the monotony."

Students Must Decide

The Juniatian can come to no conclusion on which style is best. It is now up to the students to decide which they prefer. But the indication is that each system has definite advantages and disadvantages, and as I said before . . . they're all singing the chow hall blues!

EMPLOYMENT DATA

adequate, they can refer the students to other sources, such as various professional organizations who could answer their queries.

This guidance service, Hess added, is not to inform students on specific job openings but only to keep them abreast of general trends in each field. The dean of students will continue to handle information on specific employment opportunities.

A Cappella Choir Arranges Tour; Debate Teams Form, Make Plans

by Margie Alleman

From the sounds heard around Room C on Monday evenings, one might judge the A Cappella Choir is preparing for another successful tour.

The first performance scheduled for this year's trip is Jan. 28 at the Coventry Church near Pottstown.

Sunday, Jan. 29 will prove to be a busy day with three performances scheduled. In the morning, the choir will be at the First Church of the Brethren in Philadelphia. The afternoon performance, scheduled for 4:30, is at the First Methodist Church, Haddon Heights, N. J., while the 7:30 program will be presented at the Presbyterian Church at Carney's Point, N. J.

Other appearances of the choir are scheduled as follows:

Monday—Church of the Brethren, Ambler; Tuesday—the Mennonite Church, Souderton; Wednesday—the Church of the Brethren, Ephrata; Thursday—the Church of the Brethren, Lititz; Friday—Methodist Church, Stewartstown; and Saturday, the First Church of the Brethren, York.

Completing the trip, the choir will sing at the First Church of the Brethren at Harrisburg in the morning. At 7:30 p. m. they will appear at the Lutheran Church of Mifflintown.

Other performances of the choir have been tentatively scheduled as follows:

Home concert—Feb. 19 in Oller Hall; away concerts—March 12, March 26, and April 16.

Debate Club Organized

Juniata's Debate Club is in the process of organization, with Miss Esther M. Doyle as faculty supervisor.

The Juniata debaters will discuss the national debate question: Resolved that the basic non-agricultural industries in the United States should be nationalized.

Although teams have not yet been formed Galen Freysinger and Donald Norris will take the affirmative while Ray Siren, Al Crease, Ronald Cherry, Lillian Raycroft and Lake Clemmer will support the negative.

The club will shortly engage in inter-collegiate competition with teams from neighboring colleges.

Tycoons To Hear Coffman

Cassel Coffman, '49, will address the Tycoon club at its meeting Tuesday. Coffman attended a sale training school in Detroit and is now a representative for the Burroughs Adding Machine Company.

Movies produced by the Burroughs Company will be shown during the meeting. Coffman will also demonstrate the use of new office machines.

This will be the final meeting of the Tycoon Club until after Christmas.

Movies At Volunteers

Motion pictures dealing with African mission work will be shown Tuesday at Volunteers. In addition Donald Brinton will speak. He has spent some time on "the dark continent" with his missionary father.

Speaker at last week's meeting of the group was Fred Stauffer.

Plan Christmas Program

Christmas will be the theme of the general meeting of the YWCA scheduled for Sunday evening at 9:30 in the Women's Club Room.

Plans for the meeting include a carol program centered around the Christmas story, and a project for making wreaths and other seasonal decorations for the women's dorm.

New Course Will Be Offered Next Semester

Principles of church education, a new course, will be offered by the College next semester

In adding this course the College is cooperating with the General Brotherhood Board of the Church of the Brethren. The Christian Education Commission of that board will award a college level leadership training certificate to students who have taken the new course in addition to educational psychology, visual education, the mind, and a year of Bible.

The College has now outlined a new program for specialized study in church leadership training which will be listed in the next edition of the catalogue.

The new program recommends the above courses and at least two of the following: philosophy of religion, Christian faith, church history, child psychology and history of religion. Also recommended is a year of experience in chuch school work under approved supervision while in college.

'FOR ART'S SAKE AIRED'

Wednesday night the Radio Committee sponsored "Juniata on the Air" and presented "For Art's Sake," an original play by Ernie Rossi and Bob Elder. The cast included Dottie Humphreys, Don Brandt, and Harry Wood.

Tentative plans for the December 14 program are being made by the Alpha Beta Gamma.

Webster Here Mon. Night

On its second coast-to-coast college tour, the Margaret Webster Shakespeare Co. will roll into Huntingdon Monday to present "The Taming of the Shrew" in Oller Hall at 8:15 p. m.

For Miss Webster, according to many critics one of the most brilliant minds in the American theatre, her successful experiment has been the crystallization of a dream. Throughout her career as a Broadway director, it has been her conviction that audiences in small communities would like to see "live" theatre again.

The subject-matter and the story of "The Taming Of The Shrew" are stated very simply and completely in its title. The essentials of the plot were used countless times before Shakespeare and have been repeated myriads of times since, in plays, books, pictures and stories. A shrew gets tamed in Hollywood regularly every few seasons, and at the present moment the same plot is delighting audiences all over America—with direct credit to Mr. Shakespeare too—in the form of the Spewack-Cole Porter musical, "Kiss Me Kate."

Students are requested to be in their seats promptly at 8:15 for the Webster production "The Taming of the Shrew" so that the show can begin promptly.

A few tickets will be available for students at the box office which opens at 7:30.

Bard Borrowed Sly

Publicity releases from Miss Webster describe the production: "Shakespeare's immediate predecessor in the field was the unknown author—or authors—of a contemporary play (of the same title.) From it Shakespeare borrowed the characters of the drunken tinker, Christopher Sly, and the Lord who plays the practical joke on him and arranges for the Strolling Players to perform their comedy for Sly's benefit."

The Webster production has "retained a little more of the earlier 'Sly' scenes than Shakespeare did, including a tiny Epilogue which originally formed what we today would call a 'payoff' for Christopher.

Female Lead Experienced

Louisa Horton, who has studied at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, has appeared in numerous Broadway productions, including "The Voice Of The Turtle" and more recently, "The Happiest Years." Her sensitive and beautiful portrayal in the movie version of "All My Sons"

'Thirteen' Will Be Lucky For Winning Class Saturday

"There is no significance in the fact that tomorrow night opens the 13th annual All Class Night presentation," says general chairman Bill Bateson. "We intend to present a smooth running show from the moment the first curtain rises until the applause dies away. There will be no bad luck."

Bateson added that "after reading all the scripts, I feel certain it will be a closely run race. Every class has an excellent chance to take the cup, and the final winner will be the one with the greatest amount of 'that extra little push.'"

"Thy Light Is Come," a religious drama, will start off the program at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow in Oller Hall. Written by Ernie Rossi and Mary Crouthamel, it will represent the senior's hope for winning the cup. No class on campus has succeeded in doing so, thereby placing everyone on an equal basis from that standpoint.

A comedy with a moral has been composed by Bob Elder for the junior class offering. Entitled "Michael McGee Takes His BA Degree," it will be second on the program.

Organ Overture

The final moments of intermission will be marked by the organ overture to the sophomore musical comedy, "Mr. Music's Million's." Writte by Jim Streiner, this show will tell a light, gay story of modern life. The tale will be aided by six original songs, music for which was composed by Dave Lewis.

Set for the closing slot is "Alfarata's Wigwam," a comedy by Phil Norris and Jo Pentz. Satirizing the history of Juniata College, the frosh show characterizes current faculty and administra-

Exam Blanks Available Soon

Information bulletins and applications for the graduate record exam will be available next week, Dean Mays has announced.

The tests on Feb. 3 and 4, May 5 and 6 and Aug. 4 and 5 will be given at Princeton University.

An aptitude test, a series of profile tests and an advanced test make up the examination.

The advanced test is selected by the student and measures the achievement in a major field of study. The profile test covers general under-graduate curriculum in the arts and sciences. General scholastic ability at the graduate school level is measured by the aptitude test.

According to Dean Mays, "Any member of the senior class contemplating graduate study should learn from the institution he ex-

Senators Vote To Maintain Affiliation With 'Who's Who'

The Senate has no wish to sever Juniata's affiliation with "Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges."

In its Tuesday night meeting the student governing body voted three to one to reject a proposal that the College discontinue its annual custom of nominating students for the national "Who's Who" publication. Five senators abstained and two were absent.

In defeating the motion the Senate was in effect endorsing the College's customary procedure of choosing outstanding leaders in campus activities according to a quota set by "Who's Who" and submitting the names to that organization.

The argument for breaking relations grew out of charges made by Albright College and the National Students Association that "Who's Who" was little more than a "commercial venture." Bob Smith, who introduced the motion, centered his argument around the "unfairness of an arbitrary quota system." He argued that the College could make similar awards itself without a quota, thus assuring fairer selections.

Then the Senate felt that insufficient evidence had been presented to show that "Who's Who" was not worthwhile, that a national organization gives the award more prestige than a strictly campus award could carry and that the quota system is in common use in determining other honors.

Nine students were nominated by the administration some weeks ago, but their names were withheld from "Who's Who" at the request of The Juniatian pending Senate action.

'Mystery Cakes' Nose Out Cabbage

by Dave Armacost

"It (the present dining hall set-up) is perfect." "Mystery cakes are only fit for dogs." "I think the meals are well-balanced." "Let's have a little less grease to cook with, please!" "Less style and more grub." "I hate mixed vegetables!" "No more black and blue cabbage, caused by too much serving." "I love everything now being served!" "Have breakfast between 7 and 9 a. m."

These were some of the significant comments made by 383 students in a Juniatian poll on Monday.

Although students agreed, for the most part, on which foods they liked and disliked, opinion concerning the efficiency and quality of the meal service ranged from one comment—"All fine!" to the question—"Are we served food?" Some congratulated the kitchen staff for putting such a variety on the table at $.31 per meal, while others hinted at third-grade meat and left-overs.

'Mystery Cakes' Champion

In the least-liked foods department, "mystery cakes" emerged as undisputed champion. Not far behind were purple cabbage and ordinary cabbage with 61 and 28 votes, respectively.

Parsnips received 33 votes, broccoli 24, all categories of mixed vegetables 30, cauliflower 22 and brussel sprouts 14.

Other foods less vehemently denounced were sausage, spinach, "adulterated" punch, stuffed peppers, "tire patches", Saturday and Sunday evening meals, cold toast, cold eggs and fish.

Chicken Gets 52 Votes

On the credit side were chicken with 52 votes, ham with 41, mashed potatoes with 23, pork chops with 16, Swiss steak with 11, ice cream with 12 and hamburger with 12 votes.

Liver, sweet potatoes, cocoa, hot dogs, salads, pork and sauer kraut, hot rolls, peas and brown bread received about a half a dozen votes each.

Miss Frances J. Mathias, College dietician, expressed interest in the results of the poll. She was not, however, familiar with the names that students had attached to some dishes.

Potatoes and Meat Scraps

The so-called "mystery cakes" she said "were composed of potatoes as a binder, meat scraps and

Yuletide Spirit Comes To J. C.; Many Plans Afoot

A Chrismas tree, a bit of evergreen, a subtle dash of mistletoe mixed with plenty of hard work and Juniata's Social Rooms take on a "new look" for the holiday season.

Working with other members of the sophomore class, Kay Wright and Glenn Felix, co-chairmen of the Decorations Committee, have transformed the Social Rooms into an appropriate setting for caroling in the evening and other activities.

Worthy of top place on the Social Rooms Christmas program is Dr. Binkley's reading of the "Christmas Carol" next Tuesday evening after late meal. For many years this was read by President emeritus C. C. Ellis, but because of his present illness, he will be unable to be present this year.

The evening's program will be concluded with informal caroling.

Candle-light, fire light and a tree should create a holiday atmosphere for caroling in the Library this Friday between 9:30 and 10:00. The music will be led by Gerry Hartzel.

Juniata's Christmas banquet is scheduled for Wednesday evening. Art Allen, who is in charge of decorating the dining hall for this occasion, is expected to come up with some very unique ideas.

Students may choose their own tables for the evening, but should not change meals. Tables must be reserved with Mim Landis at least a day ahead of time.

Concluding College activities will be caroling on Saturday morning. Carolers will leave from the Social Rooms at 5:30, and will end their trip at President Ellis' home.

Miss Mathias will provide hot chocolate for the carolers as they return to the Social Rooms.

Faculty members and day students are especially invited to participate in the College holiday program.

Students Favor Switch Style

Over 70 per cent of the students participating in The Juniatian's dining hall survey Monday voted against the present family style set-up in favor of a combination of family and cafeteria style.

The opinion poll offered students and faculty a choice of three serving styles: family, cafeteria and switch. Switch style won 274 votes to 88 for family and 21 for cafeteria.

Switch style on the ballot was further broken down into two arrangements: 1) cafeteria for breakfast only and family style for lunch and dinner; and 2) cafeteria for breakfast and lunch and family style for dinner. The first plan received 154 votes and the latter 120.

The results of the opinion poll will be presented to the Senate Tuesday night with the recommendation that the student representatives act in accordance with the wishes of the student body.

THEY NEED OUR HELP

Would you like to "adopt" a child? A war child, who during his life has known only fear, and want, and insecurity. A child who now desperately needs your help?

Much has been said concerning the necessity of food, clothing and medical care for these little victims of the war—but by "adopting" one of these youngsters, you can help to alleviate the problem.

"Adoption" is made through the Foster Parents' Plan for War Children and is financial only—$180 ($15 monthly) helps to provide food, clothing, shelter, medical care and education for a child for one year.

Individuals may "adopt" a child, as Miss Spencer and Jack Buckle have done, or groups may take on the charge. There is no limit to the size of the group that may be formed to maintain one child; all that is required is that one person be designated to assume responsibility of collecting payments from the others.

Fifteen dollars a month provides security for an insecure child. Many campus organizations would not find this out of range of their treasuries. Or if 100 students gave just one thin penny a day from now until the end of school, the total would be enough to support one war orphan for a whole year. That would only be $1.80 per student. Is that too much to give?

The Foster Parents' Plan for War Children is a non-political, non-profit, non-sectarian, independent relief organization formed to care for these war victims, regardless of their race, creed or nationality. Their aim is to help rehabilitate these children. They work in England, France, Belgium, Holland, Italy, Malta, Czechoslovakia, Poland and China.

The Plan believes that "material help is not enough to heal these children of their scars of war and resulting maladjustments." Thus they encourage correspondence between the foster parent and the foster child, hoping that the child will feel the existence of a "personal friend rather than a vague dispenser of charity."

Upon receipt of application and initial payment, the Plan sends to the foster parent the name and age of his adopted child, as well as a photograph and brief history.

At your next club meeting add to the new business the idea of adopting a war child. "For cannot we who have so much, give some to they, who have so little?"

Editorializing

by Bob Smith

Several students have asked me "What are you trying to prove in raising all this fuss about the dining hall?" The obvious answer, and the only answer, is that we have been trying to determine just how the students feel about the present set-up in our dining hall.

To do the job right we started by polling other colleges to get many other viewpoints. Then we summed up the advantages and disadvantages for all to see and weigh and judge.

We took no stand simply because it is pointless for The Juniatian to claim that one style is better than another. That decision rests with the students, for the matter of choosing boils down to little moe really than personal preference.

I believe that one of the primary responsibilities of The Juniatian is to focus attention on practices and policies of the College which may now be taken for granted as desirable but which actually may not be the best solution at the present time. Of course people who are involved will often be sensitive to any intimation that there is room for improvement. In this case that might take in anyone from President Ellis to Miss Mathias right down to the last freshman waitress.

Nevertheless, policies or practices must be planned and possibly changed from time to time so as to be most beneficial to as many in our campus community as possible. And student opinion is one of the most forceful factors that can be mustered in effecting a change.

Moreover, a student opinion poll is just about the only effective outlet for mass student expression on an issue. And if the student newspaper does not seek the students' viewpoint it falls short of its responsibilities.

Letter to the Editor:

Student Evaluates Unknown Borrower

To The Editor:

It is truly amazing as to the means some students will employ to achieve an end, especially when the end is to get by in a course with a minimum of mental effort and intellectual vigor.

No book on the principles and practices of mental sluggishness has yet been published but the student or students who did willfully detach and misappropriate 43 written pages from my accounting workbook, without my permission and knowledge, on Dec. 1 or 2, 1949, may consider himself as having written the first chapter on the techniques of mental inertia. Now it is entirely possible that such a student who removed that many sheets of accounting papers, representing upwards of 60 man-hours in the preparation of extensive accounting reports, may have been interested in:

1) Pondering over the philosophical implications of cost analysis, or

2) inserting into his own manual material that did not represent his own product of honest labor.

I am in complete understanding with the student who finds himself dissipated of effort and I lend my moral sympathy with the kindest regards. I am equally aware of an attempt at rejuvenation on the part of the student but I feel that I must qualify those efforts with the remark that if philosophical cogitation was the objective, then in the future kindly restrict your cogitations to your own property; it is the more commendable. Or, that failing, then at least declare a public seminar whereupon I shall be glad to make public any accounting analysis that you should like to incorporate into your manual. It is rather haunting to discover that I am being used as an involuntary "ghost writer."

Similarly it is rather disconcerting to find pages and pages of my workbook ripped out . . .

I have no intentions of slinking furtively about the campus at night with a dozen bloodhounds in the fashion of a Moorish underground agent. I am interested in procuring those elusive papers before the Christmas vacation. Is that enough time? I am relying on the moral and intellectual fiber of that student to place them where I may reach them. I, too, must have some product to show for my efforts, you know.

It is a sad but deplorable fact that many students enter college with faulty, preconceived concepts. And instead of displaying the adult and mature conduct expected of them, they persist in indulging in practices peculiar to the infantile and immature. They do not display the mental and intellectual discipline required of the mature college student. Education to them consists of a routine of grabbing a certain amount of deadweight in the morning (in the physical form of textbooks); sitting in a classroom "taking" notes (a peculiar measure of getting one's money out of a course); "duping" the instructor (they think) and if possible, their fellow students; projection of student deficiencies upon the instructors; plus a conglomeration of others that can only result in a new product of floating deadwood; in a word, intellectual debris. There is no coherency, integration, economy or discipline about them. Few such students get through college, fortunately.

Education, my dear misappropriator, is not just the hodgepodge accumulation of a vast amount of information. True education consists of the effective and disciplined use of the intellect towards the solution of problems as they confront the individual and his relations to the social and moral order.

The student who now has my papers and is now using (or contemplating the use of them) is being the victim of self-delusion; indeed he has missed an intellectual experience. The mere transposition of written words from one paper to another does not fulfill an obligation; rather it creates one. It creates the obligation of throwing off the mental opiate that can only result from such immature and infantile practices. Now, of course, there are values to mechanical transposition of words—in a course in penmanship. But the seriousness of the situation lies in the fact that no mental processes are effectively at work. With that lacking, from where is education to come?

In the meantime, however, I shall mournfully take solace from the words of Gilbert K. Chesterton, with regard to people who do not observe the cardinal tenet of respect of other people's property. He says that actually such people do respect your property: "They merely wish the property to become their property that they may the more perfectly respect it."

Let's forget our childishness and delegate those infantile manerisms back to our high school memories. Adulthood requires mental as well as physical change. One more point: if that student is going to return them, please do not do so via the college incinerator—I hate sifting ashes! Their original form will suffice.

WHO, PRAY, WAS ALFARATA ?

by Jack Freymuller

Going home for the Thanksgiving weekend we stopped in at Clark's Ferry restaurant at the junction of the Juniata and Susquehanna rivers to give our ancient car and ourselves a rest. After ordering a sandwich and a cup of coffee, we noticed on one of those printed service napkins, a chart bearing facts historically connected with the area. In the left-hand corner of the napkin was shown a mountain with an Indian girl poised on top and this inscription underneath—"Alfarata's Leap."

We showed this to "Kingy" Sharbaugh, who was riding with us, and asked him whether this Indian maid might be the namesake of the College yearbook, "Alfarata." Kingy suggested that we ask the waitress when she returned since he had no idea.

Stopping her on her way to the other end of the counter we said, "This picture here . . . could you tell me the story behind it? Who was Alfarata and why did she leap?" The waitress smiled and replied, "Well, Alfarata was an Indian girl who fell in love with an engineer who was working on the canal and wanted to marry him. But she found out that he was already married and in her despair, threw herself from the cliff of that mountain."

"When did all this happen?" we asked. "Gee, I guess it was back in the eighteenth century," she returned. "There's a song about it but I can't recall how it goes now." Then we asked her whether it had any connection with the yearbook and she replied that she had no idea.

We thanked the waitress and said to Kingy, "Well that was interesting but now I'm wondering where the yearbook got it's name.

There must be some connection." "Well, why don't you look it up," answered Kingy and turned impatiently to his hamburger and coffee. We said no more about it then but resolved to investigate this matter later. Finishing our snack, we left the restaurant, piled into our machine and rattled off.

Weeks later, while in the Library, we took time to search some early issues of the Alfarata for clues. We found enough to convince ourselves that this Indian maiden was indeed the namesake of the yearbook but now we have two different stories as to how Alfarata died!

According to the 1917 Alfarata, the beautiful maiden, while walking along the banks of the blue Juniata, as was her custom, was surprised by a trapper who succeeded in winning her love. Fleeing downstream to the homeland of the trapper, they were overtaken by Black Cloud, Alfarata's father who ended the idyl with an arrow.

The trapper is changed to a hunter in the 1921 Alfarata but the story is preserved in most of its original form in a poem.

In 1922 the trapper-hunter is shown merely as a stranger who meets no better fate than his predecessors.

In 1924 some editor took it upon himself to give the typical Indian view of the situation by calling the trapper-hunter-stranger the Paleface.

This was the extent of our research at that time for by then we were in a state of confusion. Who has given us the right story? Shall we believe the editors of the Alfarata who were not in complete accord themselves over the legend? Or shall we accept the more prosaic tale told us by the waitress at the Clark's Ferry Restaurant? We wish someone would give us the real story.

TOMMY

Dedication: Tommy would like to dedicate his column this week to the unknowns who aren't known. They know who they are and what they do, but no one sees their names in print including themselves. But more power to the nameless wheels that keep the known cogs in action.

Concerning the questionnaires which were filled out regarding meal propositions, food likes and dislikes, etc., Tommy noticed some of them which may prove as valuable aids in determining chow hall set-ups: One person liked cold broccoli, one wanted spiked plum juice, another wanted all vanilla ice cream, still another expressed a desire for "mystery cakes" every evening meal. One veteran liked cafeteria style beause it would give him a chance to stand in lines which he liked so well. One male student said he would favor any system that would take the troops out of the winter weather.

All hands should be on their on their guard when there are snowballs in the air, especially with fellows like Aldo Bonomi and Phil Chabody around. They throw snow at girls then politely blame it on innocent bystanders.

Overheard in the Cloister: "Ray Siren, you stink!" Ray Siren to Don Johnson, "I represent that remark!" Stan Welch, Walls, Wagner and Pandolfino are all history majors, for example. Anyone who isn't melted down this cold weather with the warm smile that Peggy Dell can emit, had better see Doc Patterson at his earliest convenience.

Operator of the Week: Vernon Beam, who choses all lovely damsels for his nightly operations. He's O. K., too!

Tommy's letter to Santa just written last night included: one table assignment with 3 blondes, 3 brunettes, and 1 redhead; a red report card with all blue A's and white pluses; a legal chit signed by the Board of Trustees as an exemption from all tests and pop quizzes; a small photostatic copy of a Flow Chart to be used when needed; an empty bell tower for her and me; free tickets to the movies on nights before tests; a desire to buy a book in the candy store; at least a seed catalogue in my mailbox every week or two; the nerve to get Hume back safely (joke); a Plato State Permit to get from my present Artisan Class to that of a Guardian; a steady girlfriend who doesn't eat; a dummy to sit in my chapel seat when I'm ill(?); two Christmas stockings (filled); and lastly two themes to be written by one of the elves entitled "How to Pick a Mate" or "You Too Can Be the Captain of a Garbage Scow" and also "The Antiquity of Microbes" or "Adam Had 'Em." P. S. Santa: How about a new volume control for the dinner music in the chow hall?

Questions of the Week: Where do students get the nerve to crib in Ethics, History of Religion, Biblical History and Christian Faith? Where has Polly Bane? Lena, do you always agree with your running mate? How about Joan of Arc? How can Don Brandt get a deer in Tyrone and a dear in Lancaster?

Hope of the Week: That the stars won't shine too brightly at the forthcoming Stardust Ball.

Tommy plagiarized some poetry you might enjoy:

Here's to the happy, bounding flea
You cannot tell the he from the she
The sexes look alike you see,
But he can tell, and so can she.

Tommy overheard a certain baritone singing "Slippin' Around" to his lady love Sunday night, and with the walks in the condition they were, it seemed very appropriate. Now Sham!

Officers of the NKVD have reported to Commissar Bateson that all loyal subjects are working together to make All-Class Night one that will be not only competitive but entertaining. Comes the Revolution!

And now in the vernacular of his home locale of Southern Pennsylvania, Tommy says "So long, You All."

Bucknell Tops Juniata By 2 Pts.; Jayvees Lose Thriller, 51 to 48

Juniata came down to the wire in two contests Wednesday night but couldn't quite come abreast or go ahead in either one. Bucknell outscored the varsity 50-48 and the Jayvees lost by three points to the Penn State Altoona Center quintet, 51-48.

Trailing all the way in their game, the varsity came on with a rush in the final quarter to almost close a five-point gap that separated the two teams as the fourth quarter began.

Loschiavo High Man

Paced by Freshman Orlando Loschiavo and Stan Welch, the Indians dropped 15 big points through the hoop in the final stanza while holding the Bisons to 10. Loschiavo was Juniata high man with 12 points and Welch had 11.

Doc Greene's charges had trouble throughout most of the game working the ball in and had to resort to push ups and set shots from the outer reaches. Bucknell, smoother by a good bit, cut through Juniata's defense for quick layups through the first three periods, but faltered and fumbled to lose their lead in the fourth.

Holmes Ulsh, still bothered by a leg injury, did not start the game and then left with five fouls before the third period was over. He and Ray Korody each had nine points.

Bucknell's big gun was forward Joe Gallagher, who racked up 17 points, and his mate up front, Don Strassner, who had a dozen.

Score by quarters:

Juniata	9	13	11	15—48
Bucknell	16	11	13	10—50

Jayvee Game

Although a goal by Gordon Stroup and a foul shot by George Newcombe tied the contest at 48 all, Altoona's Rice and Duncan combined a goal and a free throw to eke out a 51-48 victory over Bill Smaltz's Jayvees in the preliminary game.

The "undergrads" blazed to 16 straight markers in the third and fourth periods to overcome an eight-point Juniata lead and go ahead.

High man in the game was Juniata's Ron Fleck with 15 tallies.

Score by quarters:

Altoona	10	10	17	14—51
Juniata	14	10	13	11—48

Juniata's record with Lycoming now stands at one and one as the Indian hoopsters downed Lycoming 84-41 last year.

Ray Korody, junior from Greensburg, is not only one of the four returning basketball players, but also among the best of Pennsylvania's top collegiate golfers.

Highlanders Trip I-Seven; 32-31

With only three teams remaining among the undefeated, the Intramural Basketball League swung into its second week of play marked by several prize upsets. Another round of games is scheduled for this evening, after a Wednesday layoff due to the varsity home game.

The surprise of the year was handed the defending champion I-Seven team this week, when they were defeated by the underdog Highlanders. The winners took an early advantage and were never headed, as they staved off a last minute rally by the I-Seven to earn a close 32-31 victory.

Other games saw the Shmoos continue their winning ways by defeating the BeBoppers, 39-22, while the B. T. O.'s whipped the Y. H. O. Club, 37-13, to keep their perfect record. The battle between the arch rival Meteorites and Skijans ended with the former on top, 43-23.

The ranks of the unbeaten will be thinned even closer tonight, when both the Meteorites and B. T. O.'s risk unblemished slates against each other in the feature attraction of the evening. Other games find the I-Seven meeting the Skijans, the Dragons tangling with the Fubars, and the plucky Highlanders pitted against the Chow-Hounds.

This week's results:

Friday

BeBoppers 42, Red Raiders 34
Meteorites 43, Skijans 23
Highlanders 32, I-Seven 31
Dragons 63, Chow-Hounds 18

Monday

B. T. O.'s 37, Y. H. O. Club 13
Shmoos 39, BeBoppers 22
Red Raiders 24, B $ 2 18
Fubars 24, Ranchers 23

Hooks Lead Bowlers; Sliders Best Girls Team

Paced by the once-beaten Hooks, the Intramural Bowling League continued to command attention this week as the second round of games were completed. Another full set is on tap for this evening at the local allies.

The scores of the past week saw the Hooks continue to set the pace by defeating the Sky Pilots 3-1, while the Aces trimmed Les Miserables by the same margin. The Sliders trounced the Senoritas in a "battle of the sexes," and the Striketts and Pirates had to settle for a 2-2 stalemate in an all-girl encounter.

This evening's card finds the league leading Hooks crossing paths with the second place Sliders in the battle for league supremacy. Other action pits the Strikettes against Les Miserables, the Aces engaging the Pirates, and the Senoritas meeting the Sky Pilots in the evening's windup.

The League standing:

	W	L	Pct.
Hooks	7	1	.875
Aces	6	2	.750
Sliders	6	2	.750
Les Miserables	4	4	.500
Pirates	3	5	.375
Sky Pilots	3	5	.375
Strikettes	3	5	.375
Senoritas	0	8	.000

Lycoming Trips Indians In Opener At Williamsport, 42-38; J. V.'s Win 43-39

The Juniata Indians' hope for a successful season had cold water dashed upon it by the Lycoming College five last Saturday night. Playing their first game of the 1949-50 season at Williamsport, the locals were unable to do a repeat performance of last year's game and lost 42-38.

In their first game under the coaching of Dr. Arnold Greene, the boys from Juniata were unable to keep the pace they had set for three quarters. The Indians were ahead in the game until the final few minutes of the fourth quarter when Lycoming overtook them.

Took Early Lead

Juniata took an early lead in the game with the score at the end of the first quarter being 14-20 in favor of the Indians. At half time Coach Greene's charges held a 22-15 lead. During the third quarter the Lycoming cagers started a rally and by the end of the third quarter Juniata lead 30-26.

Lycoming controlled the backboards which forced the Indians to shoot long shots. John Stayer, Stan Welch, Ken Wenger and Ray Korody were the Indians mainstays under the backboards, but they were unable to cope with the tall Lycoming boys.

Ulsh Excels

Holmes Ulsh, who was supposedly not going to play because of a torn ligament, played practically the whole game and was the spark plug of the team. It was he who held the team together when the Lycoming boys started to rally. Ulsh was also high man for the Indians with 12 points, eight of which were field goals. He also made four out of six foul tosses.

Stan Welch was next to Ulsh in scoring with four field goals for eight points. Other scoring for Juniata was done by Howett with six points, Korody with five, Stayer with four, Loschiavo with two and Wenger with one.

Fouls Take Toll

Fouls took their toll of Juniata players. John Stayer was forced to leave the game via the foul route in the first part of the third quarter and Holmes Ulsh bowed out in the final stanza.

Juniata	14	8	8	8—38
Lycoming	10	5	11	16—42

The Juniata Junior Varsity team fared better than their big brothers last Saturday and defeated the Lycoming J. V.'s 43-39.

It was an uphill battle for the junior Indians as they were behind in the fray until the fourth quarter before forging ahead.

Paced by Barefoot and Fleck, who each had nine points, the J. V.'s overcame a 26-31 third quarter deficit. The most scoring for the Indians was done in the final stanza with 17 points being scored.

Juniata was able to control the backboards throughout the fray, thus forcing Lycoming to shoot from a distance. The J. V.'s were able to set up plays that for the most part worked.

Score by periods:

J. C.	9	11	6	17—43
L. C.	13	9	9	8—39

GIRLS LEAGUE STARTS

Betty May piled up 30 points in a single game this week as the highlight of the opening week of the girls basketball season.

Seven teams battled it out under the direction of Women's Coach McCormick, the results showing Ceci King's team at the top of the league.

Other high scorers this week were Freshman "Ginny" Yohn with 22 points and Captain King with 19.

Cagers Play Elizabethtown Saturday Night

Tomorrow night will find the Indians going on the warpath in enemy territory when they travel to meet Elizabethtown in an old rivalry contest.

In confronting E-town, Juniata will be trying to avenge the two defeats suffered last year by scores of 71-50 and 72-51.

Although Elizabethtown lost their star player, Frankie Keith, they still carry a squad composed of eight lettermen. So far this season they have lost to Gettysburg (in the last 90 seconds) 50-48 and Millersville 68-58.

The main sparkplug this year is Bill Foster, a 6-2 forward. Bill had 15 and 18 points respectively in the two games last year. So far this year he is the leading scorer for the team.

His co-worker is 5-11 inch Russ Walter. The center of this veteran team is Ed Brunner, the second highest scorer on the team.

With such a team facing them, the Indians expect a tough game. Despite losing their first two starts, the Indians are showing vast improvements.

"Doc" Greene won't pick his starting lineup until right before game time. However, Welsh, Stayer, Korody, Howett and Loschiavo are likely starters. Holmes Ulsh, is still bothered by his leg injury and will see only limited duty.

Registration to Begin Mon.

Registration for the Spring term will be held in Founders Chapel beginning Monday, according to Registrar A. William Engel.

Students will register by class at the following times: seniors—Monday, 1:30 to 3; juniors—Tuesday, 1:30 to 2:45; sophomores—Tuesday, 2:45 to 4:30; and freshmen—1:30 to 3. Those unable to meet this schedule due to labs will meet in the Office of the Registrar Thursday between 10 a. m. and 12.

All arrangements must be completed with the Treasurer's Office from Jan. 16 to 27. The new term begins Jan. 30.

Engel offered a number of suggestions for registrants. "Observe the prerequisites . . . Have a planned program in mind before attempting to register . . . Come at the designated time only."

Five Subjects Normal

He added that "a normal load is usually five subjects. However, students whose average during the present semester is 80 or better are permitted to increase this load."

Freshmen were advised to "pursue the regular program except in those cases where a specialized program has been previously arranged."

Certain recent events have brought about a number of inovations in scheduling, Engel pointed out. The acquisition of Swigart Hall has enabled his office to schedule all music courses in the morning hours.

With the completion of the new dining hall there will be no 12:30 classes. Instead all meals will be served during this period.

Discussion Groups

All sections of Biblical history will meet at 1:30 Wednesday and Friday in Oller Hall for lectures. The class will be divided into 10 discussion groups which will meet separately at different times during the week for the remaining period. These discussion groups are to be scheduled after registration is completed.

'Pirates' Try-outs Start Next Week

Try-outs for "The Pirates of Penzance" will be held in Oller Hall Dec. 13, 14 and 15 at 4:30. Final try-outs will be held Dec. 16 at 4:30.

There are six male and five female leads plus a chorus. Those wishing to try out should read the condensed plot, on reserve at the Library.

Anyone interested in work on committees and crews should contact Corena Sollenberger.

"Pirates of Penzance" promises to be a likeable, laughable subject for the Oller Hall stage.

Comes In Two Acts

The fantastic tale of the adventures of a band of soft-haired pirates comes in two acts. Act I reveals the touching kindness of the orphan-pirates who tenderly released a bevy of girls whom they had captured because they were the daughters of a Major General Stanley, an orphan like themselves.

It is out of one scrape and into another for the pirates. Preparing for a pirate expedition, their plans are thwarted by a frustrating encounter with the police.

Ends Happily

Luck is with the pirates for, though captured, they later secure a pardon on the grounds that they are only nobelmen gone astray. And, despite their gullibility, things turn out all right in the end.

Trio To Sing

While the reports from the five judges are being tabulated, entertainment will be provided by a campus trio: Gladys Clemens Mohr, Frances Little Roddy and Elma Stine. The program will close as Bateson awards the silver cup to the chairman of the winning class. That class will then have the privilege of engraving its numerals on the side of the cup.

Assistant to Bateson will be Marv Blaylock. Other technical assistants are Vernon Showalter, lights; Elaine Mock and Lisa Savino, publicity and tickets.

IN APPRECIATION

Ray Chilcott would like to express his appreciation to the class of 52 and to his friends for the flowers and cards which were sent on the occasion of his father's death several weeks ago.

VACATION EXTENDED

At the faculty meeting Monday it was decided to extend the Christmas vacation period another day. Under this arrangement classes will resume on Jan. 3 and students need not return to the College on New Year's day.

'Angel Child' On WHUN

Scheduled for next week's "Juniata on the Air" radio program is a Christmas play entitled "Angel Child." This script will be sponsored by the Alpha Beta Gamma.

The program of Dec. 7, under the auspices of the IRC, included a review of the United Nations' achievements. Don Norris, Al Crease and Sherwood Cordier took part in this presentation.

LIBRARY HAS PARTY

I. Harvey Brumbaugh House was the scene of the Library Christmas party yesterday.

Librarians and their staff assembled at 5 o'clock for supper. Following the meal, the group played games.

CLUB ROOM OPENED

The WAA is making the facilities of their club room available to students on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 8:30 for dancing and recreation.

Students may listen to the newly purchased radio-phonograph, dance and play ping pong.

A member of the club will act as chaperon.

Kendall Clark, Petruchio of the present production, has had 14 active years of theatre experience. During the last three season, he played with Tallulah Bankhead in "The Eagle Has Two Heads" and stage-managed her recent revival of "Private Lives." He has been leading man at the Berkshire Playhouse in Massachusetts for four consecutive seasons.

Students Awarded Masquer Keys; YWCA Clothing Drive Underway

by Margie Alleman

Louise Cray, a junior, Marvin Blaylock and Glenn Felix, sophomores, were awarded Masquer keys for work which they have done on major dramatic productions.

When we say "work" we mean it. Besides earning 100 points by working in several productions, would-be Masquers must hold some responsible position in either the cast or crew of a major production. Those working 50 or more hours on a production are given one credit hour.

On the calendar of Masque future activities are included plans to entertain the cast and crew of the Margaret Webster production "The Taming of the Shrew," immediately following Monday night's performance.

Next term, Masque members will present one "script in hand" show each month. Student directed, these shows will be presented in arena style on Oller Hall stage for those attending the meetings of the Masque club.

YW Collects Clothing

YWCA's clothing drive is under way. Boxes have been distributed in the dormitories for the collection of clothing.

"Students are urged to help make the drive a success," stressed Edith Roberts, YW president. "Remember, winter in Europe can be a little chilly—especially when you don't have enough to wear."

In order to determine whether it will be worth while to continue giving this type of party in future years, questionnaires will be distributed asking whether Saturday's party was enjoyed by the college students as well as the children.

Forms should be returned to the post office addressed to the YWCA.

Lambda Gamma Meets Tuesday

Christmas will be the theme of Lambda Gamma's meeting next Tuesday with informal addresses by Helen K. Fisher and Jane Miller Crosby on holiday snacks and decorations, respectively.

Also scheduled for this meeting will be special election of officers for the Province Workshop to be held on the Juniata Campus next fall.

Lambda Gamma meets in the clothing lab.

WAA Attends Confab

Six members of the WAA represented Juniata at a basketball rules conference at Penn State last Saturday afternoon. An exhibition game was played and pointers were given on refereeing.

Those attending the conference were Doris Harvey, Beanie Roberts, Dolly Shaffer, Janet Neikirk, Pat Miller, and Ceci King. They were accompanied by Miss McCormick, instructor in physical education.

Stardust Dance In Gym Thurs.

". . . . dreaming of a star. The melody haunts my reverie . . . ." as Holmes Royer conducts the College dance band at the Stardust Ball, Thursday at 8:15. The gymnasium, resplendent in a new garb of silver stars and shadowy blue, will be the scene of this pre-Christmas merry making. Semi-formal in nature, corsages will be optional.

The entire evening will be conducted strictly in the manner of a program dance. Following the pattern of sets of three in each, it is requested that couples exchange dances.

The Stardust Ball has been planned by the social committee as a climax to the College Christmas week activities. Committee chairmen include: decorations, Vernon Showalter; refreshments, Don Norris; publicity, Renie Hebrank and Lisa Savino; programs, Don Johnson.

A Christmas party in the WAA club room will be held simultaneously with the dance at 8:15. Jo Pentz, Vernon Showalter, Phyllis Kulp and Tom Shoemaker have planned an evening of folk games and fun.

a little onion flavor. "Tire patches" are either pork roll or New England breakfast meat.

Miss Mathias "doesn't think it is economy to stint on the quality of food. Only the highest quality foods are served in the dining hall," she emphasized.

The dietician has a theory about student dislike of cabbage, cauliflower and brussel sprouts. "They all belong to the cabbage family," she points out, "and have a strong odor which students smell before they taste them."

According to Miss Mathias the conjecture that toast is made up at night is wrong. Both eggs and toast are prepared as late as is practical before breakfast.

"If students would eat the things that they are served they would relish them and be satisfied," said the institutional manager. Miss Mathias feels it is part of the student's education to learn to like certain distasteful foods which are good for him.

Miss Mathias will be glad to hear any of the criticisms that students have of the food and the operation of the dining hall if they will bring the matter to her directly.

Completion Of Dining Hall Milestone In J. C. Postwar Building Program; Gym Next

The official opening of the enlarged dining hall tentatively set for next month will mark finis to Phase 1 of a million dollar Postwar Fund program outlined 5 years ago by a group of 70 alumni.

Definite steps have already been taken with Phase 2 of the same program, The Memorial Physical Education Building, and it is expected ground breaking ceremonies will be held this Spring. Further plans call for opening the new gym April 17, 1951, the 75th anniversary of the College, according to the secretary for the Planning Commission, Harold Brumbaugh.

Other phases in the program which the Commission is still setting up include an enlargement of the library and construction of a new men's dorm.

Original Plan Scrapped

According to Mr. Brumbaugh, "the Planning Commission is aware of the need for recreation and social center facilities." Original plans covering this situation called for a Student Union Building. But present high costs (an estimated half million) approximately one-half the total budget of the Commission) forced the scrapping of this aim.

This renaissance in Juniata building began in March, 1944, with the creation of the Planning Commission. This group, which included the President of the College and the Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Henry Gibbel, was divided into 10 committees. They surveyed various aspects of the College program and a year later submitted to the Trustees the program they had charted.

The program called for the establishment of a Postwar Fund of one million dollars to be used for endowment, scholarships, buildings, and facilities. There was no time limit set on when this sum had to be raised. To date, more than half the necessary amount has been obtained, principally from alumni and friends.

Music While We Eat

Plans for Phase 1 included much more than mere enlargement of the dining facilities. In order to "slow the tempo of the meals and make them more enjoyable," Business Manager Paul Friend has announced that a Stromberg-Carlson sound system will be installed.

14 Clubs Get Senate O K

Fourteen campus organizations have been approved by the Senate committee investigating the purposes and programs of all clubs now on campus.

Three of the 14 have not yet filed constitutions with the Senate. They are the International Relations Club, Tycoon Club and Spanish Club.

The 11 other approved organizations are Alpha Beta Gamma, WAA, Masque, Juniata College Choir, FTA, American Guild of Organists, YWCA, J Club, Scalpel and Probe, Chemistry Club and the Outing Club.

No Replies

Eight organizations have not yet complied with the committee's request to demonstrate the club's usefulness as a functioning campus group. They are the Camera Club, the Symphony Orchestra, IVCF, Lambda Gamma, Ministerium, French Club, Debate Club, and the Dunkard Club. Neither the Debate nor Dunkard Clubs have filed a constitution with the Senate.

Several active clubs are still under consideration and several clubs have been officially designated as defunct. They are the Kat Club, Veterans Club, Beta Sigma Alpha, Scribimus Club and the Student Political Aims and Organization Committee.

Probes Clarified

At a recent Senate meeting Gene Roddy, chairman of the investigating committee, pointed out that a number of clubs apparently have misunderstood the nature of the Senate's investigation. To clear the air on this point the Senate passed the following resolution:

Due to a seeming misunderstanding which has evidently cropped up in the minds of some concerning the nature of the so-called Senate Investigation Committee, it might be well to clarify the nature of this investigation.

Because of suggestions from both students and the administration the Senate felt it is advisable to examine the campus extra-curricular activities in an attempt to find out: (1) if each organization has an adequate constitution; (2) if that organization is operating within the limits of that constitution; (3) if any club is encroaching on the activities of another; (4) if the organization is active.

There is no idea whatsoever of trying to "pry" out subversive elements. The committee has no interest in whether the nature of the club's program is conservative, liberal or radical. The inquiry is on the organization level alone.

In this, we feel that such an operation is not only a profitable one for all concerned, but, from the standpoint of systematic organization, a necessary one. If there are students who disagree, we invite your criticism.

The Senate

MERRY CHRISTMAS TO SANTA—Santa gets his present—the undivided attention of seven Juniata lovelies, Janet Boland, Kay Wright, Elsie Beard, Gladys Gehman (perched on his knee), Mary Lou McKee, Ardelle Hemmig, and Peggy Michener. Traditional Christmas activities at Juniata will windup tomorrow morning in the dawn hours when carolers leave the College at 5:30 on a singing tour that ends at the home of the President. Hot chocolate will await the returning carolers in the dining hall.

Class Of '53 First Frosh To Produce Winning Skit

A laugh-filled, hammed-up sketch of the history of Juniata College made All Class Night history Saturday evening. It was the first time since the inception of the amateur theatre program that the freshmen have won the silver cup first prize.

The winning playlet mixed fact and fiction, confused the time scale with the anachronism of Cris Columbus and N. J. Brumbaugh working together, and came up with a satire on current campus characters which stole the collective hearts of the judges, most of whom were alumni.

"It was one of the best prepared All Class Nights I have ever seen," was the general comment of Miss Spencer, dean of women and one of the advisers to the general chairman, Bill Bateson.

This viewpoint was shared by others who have seen many of the past productions. All of the judges commented on the surprising amount of effort which obviously was put into the 22 minute skits.

Seniors Presented Pageant

The senior try for the cup was an impressive Christmas pageant prepared mostly by Mary Crouthamel and Ernie Rossi. It included some original organ music as transitions between works by the masters.

Flamingo Club Set For Senior Party After Holidays

Red and white will be the color scheme of the Flamingo Club, the senior class party to be held on Jan. 7, at 8:15 in the College gymnasium.

The party will feature dancing, entertainment and refreshments, in semi-formal style. An air of secrecy surrounds the preparations, but Rex Hershberger has intimated that it will be something different for the campus socialites, and even "Doc" Greene's basketeers aren't expected to recognize the gym.

Juniata's first semi-formal event for 1950 is being planned with the aim of giving the students something different. Seniors are hoping for a big attendance at this "new trend in college entertainment."

Marriage Subject For RPC Talk

Courtship and marriage problems will be the subject for discussion in the second program of the Religious Planning Commission planned for the weekend after the holiday vacation.

Principal speaker will be Ira DeA. Reid, professor of sociology at Haverford College and formerly of Atlanta University. He will speak at 7:30 Sunday evening, Jan. 8, following which a general discussion period will be held.

This, the second of four programs to be presented by the R. P. C. this year, comes under the category personal and campus affairs, which is headed by Bill Wright.

The third program will be the annual Spiritual Emphasis Week scheduled for the second week of February. The fourth will be on the social responsibilities of Christians and will be held later in the Spring.

Classes Shortened Saturday

All classes will be shortened to 50 minutes Saturday. The morning schedule will be as follows:

First period—8 to 8:50
Second period—8:55 to 9:45
Third period—9:50 to 10:40
Fourth period—10:45 to 11:35
Noon meals will be served at 10:45 and 11:45.

Student Recital Dated For Jan. 6

Dorothy Ann Humphreys will be featured pianist in the music department's first recital of the year Jan. 6 at 8:15 p. m. in Oller Hall. Miss Humphreys, '51, is a student of Mrs. Richard Linton.

Also on the program are Gladys Clemens Mohr and Charles Redenberger. Mrs. Mohr is a senior organ student of Prof. Donald S. Johnson. Redenberger, '53 has studied violin under Mr. Russell Gerhart, conductor of the Altoona symphony.

A Review

A Shrew Is Tamed And Shakespeare Goes Marching On

by Miss Esther M. Doyle

What was probably the loudest, zaniest, speediest show that ever hit Huntingdon pulled into town from New York via Kentucky last Monday. It brought with it more horseplay and more laughs than Oller Hall has seen in many a year.

Played in a broad lusty fashion, sometimes the "Taming of the Shrew" reminded one more of "Hellzapoppin' " than of Shakespeare. And yet without a doubt it was that Shakespeare who wrote for the populace that stood in the pit of the Globe Theatre 350 years ago.

This was a bawdy, rollicking, robust Shakespeare, splitting the ears of the groundlings, who, although they now sit in comfortable seats, responded on Monday night with deep laughter and loud applause. (Four curtain calls!) Here was a performance to end all notions that Shakespeare was stuffy.

Here was vigor and laughter and fun. Such cozy ridiculous, absurd fun! Costumes that began with the Crusades and ended with Victoria, but of course not in chronological order. Music from the delightful Elizabethan songs to Viennese Waltzes and Shostakovich order. (And pardon me, Rossini and the Lone Ranger! It required some control not to shout Hi Ho Silver!)

'Shakespeare With Hotfoot'

Bazookas (Bob Burns was never like this), an ocarina, a guitar, a violin! Hobby horses and a human horse with a deers head and red wig for a mane! A drunk, a fop, a shrew, a hero. They were all there, moving with such gusto and pace that one found himself with mouth open wondering what would happen next! Shakespeare stuffy? Who said so? "Best show I've ever seen!" said one high school senior. "Shakespeare with a hotfoot" said a faculty member.

The company itself gave some of the best ensemble acting it has been our privilege to see. It was a blended performance which came as the result of imaginative directing and the working together of many weeks on many stages.

Well-rounded Performers

It would be difficult to choose star performers. Whether the role was large or small each characterization was well-rounded in itself and fit into the whole far better than many of the individual performances we see in a

Extra Curriculars Are Fine BUT.....

Extra-curricular activities are fine—but how easy it is to get involved to the tragic point where personal academic achievement comes to a standstill. With the most crowded week of the year behind us and the spector of final exams before us, perhaps this is an opportune time to drive this point home.

Get Into The Swim

Editorials frequently appear in college papers urging students to jump into the exhilerating swim of extra-curriculars, and with good reason. For no one can sensibly deny them a place among valuable elements of a college education. In fact too many students never really experience the social side of college that makes it truly "a thousand days of high adventure." (All-Class Night is especially good for drawing new students out of their shells.)

The Big Danger

But those extroverts who do jump across the line are often soon caught by a veritable centripetal force that sucks them unmercifuly into the center of the unending social whirl until they have left their studies to cool and their minds to wither by the wayside. That is the big danger of extra-curriculars, the advantages notwithstanding.

A Lost Opportunity

Extra-curriculars should never become an obstruction in this four-year path; we should not allow them to impede our personal academic progress, otherwise we don't get full value for our years in college. In all fairness to ourselves we should give academic development priority, for it is an opportunity that will be closed after we have gone out to earn our bread. But the extra-curriculars will always be available in our home communities if only we seek them out.

Do You Qualify?

When you face the prospect of getting a good job you may lament for those lost days and nights when the Library was just the place where you read Lil' Abner and your desk top was a dust collector. You may feel a hole grow bigger and bigger in the pit of your stomach when they tell you that grad schools are interested only in what your transcript looks like and how well you can do on the graduate record exam.

Look At It This Way

Now it will be easy to make vows on New Year's Day, especially with exams staring you in the face. And it will be even easier to forget them by the end of the month when the new semester is underway. But if you look at it in terms of graduate school, of fitting yourself for a useful life in society, and of entering new worlds of intellectual experience, then perhaps it will be easier to maintain your balance between the academic demands and the extra-curricular joys of college. It is not a case of one or the other but of planning a program that will bring satisfaction rather than regrets a few years hence.

Let's take stock now before it is too late!

How Would You Improve Juniata ?

Do you have a cause that is worth fighting for? Do you, like some, feel that there are any number of projects worth plugging for in the name of the betterment of Juniata? We will be glad to hear from you and to wage your campaign if your cause is just.

The editors are most appreciative of letters, suggestions, criticisms . . . for we should all want to work constructively to improve conditions here for the whole of the campus community of today and the future.

Let us hear from you. This is your chance to use your college newspaper, for no editorial staff can constantly be aware of all the problems and issues that would benefit by a public airing in The Juniatian. We need your aid. And so do you, if you are at all concerned about the college that soon will be your alma mater.

Letter to the Editor;

Skit Chairman Clarifies Authorship

To The Editor:

I wish to express my highest praise and thanks to the class of '53 for winning the cup last Saturday evening. I want to make clear and explain an error which appeared in last week's Juniatian. I do not desire to take full credit for writing and producing the winning skit.

I am deeply indebted to Anne Mullin, Joanne Pentz, Janice Carper, Bob Bailey, and Sue Bieber for their valuable contributions for the script. I am also indebted to the make-up, costume, and properties committees, Ronald Cherry, for his efficient assistance as stage manager, and Bob Pierpont as lighting man.

I wish to thank all members of the cast and committees for their cooperation and enthusiasm during the preparation and presentation of the skit, a factor which enabled us to set the record of the first freshmen class to win in an All-Class Night competition.

Sincerely yours,
Philip Norris

TOMMYHAWK

Tommy would like to dedicate his last column before the Christmas vacation to the spirit of Christmas. He hopes that everyone will trim a tree, buy at least one present, receive at least two presents, leave some cookies and tea for Santa Claus, kiss your wife or someone else under the mistletoe, have your stockings filled by noon, eat plenty of turkey, but more than anything else, he hopes you won't forget the true meaning of Christmas.

Tommy sent his final letter to Santa last night. All he wants yet is an alarm clock to give Ray Sidorsky, a bushel of fresh mistletoe, cut permits for a few profs, a knife and a handbag for Bill Germann, and ORR and two CR R's, a Cadillac convertible, multiple-choice tests for finals, two quick term papers, an interphone system for Cloister, and one theme on "Getting Ahead In Life" or "How Green Was My Salary."

The All Class Nite Skits showed some promise in future actors such as Stottlemyer, Grove, Isenberg, Rise, Raphael, Sharp, and Gene Kline. The Freshmen had the most intestinal fortitude that's for sure. Just think what we can expect in 3 more years. Nothing is sacred around here anymore.

Corrie Sollenberger should be on the lookout for some cast members for "Pirates". There are some real buccaneer soap-and-toothpaste thieves in Cloister that could be used as real-live characters. Just think, naturals!!!

The Christmas Dance last night was really a smash hit, decorations and all. Betty May for planning, and all the committees deserve a lot of praise. Betty reports a new idea for future dancing atmosphere—that of a county fair with merry-go-round tickets as streamers hanging everywhere.

Gossip of the Week: What do Barb, Carol, and Ginny write on those pads at the basketball games? It is so true, Jack Middour did skin his nose on the ice. Anne Kirk received a nice visitor over last weekend. John Simes also sported a nice new face around campus last weekend. George Wolf, Snider, Kaufman, and Calderwood want to be Santa's fairies this year. They need the extra change to buy Christmas gifts. Guy Wentzler and Prof. Rowland each shot a deer. Guy also sneaked up on a fox. The fox was larger than the deer, I hope.

Tommy was accidentally "put in his place" this past week. Some ever-loving friend told him he could either keep quiet and just appear to be stupid, or open his mouth and remove all doubt.

Weather Forecast for Christmas Week: Snow to be followed by children on sleds.

Tommy heard a rumor t'other day about the Alfarata (not the one Freymuller was looking for, nor the one Harold B. was chasing last Saturday night!). This rumor had it that the yearbook staff was trying something new this year: no pictures. But Tommy wants to dispell that immediately. It's just that Photography Editor Howard Long is hiding all the pictures under the rug in his room so nobody will see them until May. Not even Sidorsky!

One last plea, Santa. Please bring matching back scratchers for Squeeze Long and Janet Neikirk from the boys in business law. Also give a platter of Frankie Laine's Mule Train and a box of 20 Mule Train Borax to all of Juniata's mules who go clipity-clop through the Library with their cleats on.

Who said the dining hall food poll wouldn't work. Mystery cakes and cabbage got the most votes, so what do we get the first thing Monday? Nothing like the democratic way, for example. After eating that Christmas dinner Wednesday Tommy was so pleased that he sent Miss Mathias a note of thanks and appreciation for the fine job she did preparing such a wonderful meal.

Well children, that just about exhausts the corn exchange for the year 1949. I hope by January 3, 1950 all you lovely people will be relaxed, not so sleepy looking, heavier and happier. And Above all, don't let your little brothers or sisters tinker with your tinker toys. Finals are approaching and you'll need your complete relaxation equipment. So until next year when we'll all meet again, I leave you as the,

Christmas Morning

Wide-eyed with childish amazement, little David John stared at the Christmas tree, his deep brown eyes expressive of all the wonder which was pulsing through his young body.

Slowly, he took his eyes from the tree, and turned first toward his father, then his mother. Their faces gave no answer to the unanswerable dilemma within him but it was evident there was nothing under the tree.

The colorful lights on the tree, the bright decorations and lustrous icicles hanging from the tree blurred into a big burning splotch of nothingness. But this was so unlike Christmas as it had been before! Understand it, he could not! He glanced again at both parents but the tears swimming in his eyes made it impossible to grasp any clue from their expressions.

Then, with a sudden reassuring movement, his father picked him up, bundled him in his coat, and took him outside on the porch. There, in the light of that Christmas morning, was a little dog house. David John slipped from his father's arms in a fury of excitement. As he peered through the small door, his eyes blazed with eagerness and expectancy.

His parents watched him as he reached into the dog house. But it was their turn to wonder as he faced them again, all the anticipation swept from his face by one cruel canine growl.

"That's all right," his parents comforted him, 'Bobo' (for David John had already named him) has to get to know you." But secretly they all felt that it was no use.

That evening, after repeated attempts to elicit some sign of friendliness from the pup, David John made one last effort as he hopefully went out to tell Bobo good night.

Oppresive emptiness greeted him.

Gazing around with the same wonder as before, David John stared out on the wide expanse of snow. There, dimly discernable in the twilight, a set of tracks wound into the great nowhere of the distance and were swallowed forever in the vastness of the falling night.

Shmoos Hold Basketball Lead; Bowlers In 3-Way Tie At Top

by Bob Volpitto

Results of Friday night's activities in the Intramural Bowling League produced a three way tie for second place with the Hooks still on top.

Although the Hooks were able to do no more than tie Sliders at two all, last week's league leaders held on to the number one spot by a full game.

Sharing spot number two are the Aces, Sliders. and Les Miserables.

The Aces split with the Pirates 2-2, and the leading Hooks were tied by the same score at the Sliders' hands.

Les Miserables hung a 4-0 shut out victory on the Strikettes, while an all girl Senorita squad dropped three of the four points to the Sky Pilots.

Chairman of Athletics "Duck" Snyder announced that there will be no further league bowling until Friday, Jan. 6.

The League standing:

Team	W	L	Pct.
Hooks	9	3	.750

"Mule Train" driver Fred Phenicie, who uses a soggy noodle for a whip, piloted his Shmoos to a 44-38 victory over the "Dreamers' Holiday" Skijans last Monday in the Intramural League.

By scoring 14 points George Smith led the Meteorite quintet to a narrow 33-30 win over the now fourth place BTO's. "Little Sir Echo" Zimmy Zimmerman paced the losers with six buckets and two free throws.

"I'm Dreaming of a White Second Half" is the 1-7 theme song as they fell deeper into the second division by dropping a 45-41 decision to the Skijans.

Bob Appleby and Tom Gates teamed up to collect a total of 23 points as their fellow Highlanders ran up the score in defeating the Chow Hounds 40-18.

Monday's 7 p. m. contest between "Don't Cry Joe" Dobal's Ranchers and the "It's A Cruel Cruel World" last place B $/2 was postponed.

High scorer of the week is Be Boppers' Jim Hancock who garnered 23 points against the YH O's.

League action will resume on Wednesday, Jan. 6.

By scoring an average of 16.6 points per game last season, Holmes Ulsh completed the season with a total of 298 markers.

BACK IN FORM—Johnny Stayer, senior center, hit his stride last Saturday against Elizabethtown by racking up 15 points, eight in the first quarter.

Smaltzmen Bested By E-town J. V.'s

Coach Smaltz's J. V.'s were just as unsuccessful in trying to defeat E-town cagers as the varsity. The J. V.'s were forced to take the short end of a 53-45 score.

During the first quarter the little Phantoms showed superb playing ability and our Papooses were unable to keep up with them.

Carlton Lehman stole the show with his left handed hook shots from the corner during the first half. He was able to garner 14 points in the first two periods. Gerry Walker and George Newcombe did the most scoring for the Indians with a total of six points.

The Indians were never able to overcome a 38-22 half-time deficit. During the second half several times they were within eight points, but that was the closest.

High point men for the Indians were Walker and Ron Fleck with four field goals and three free throws, and Newcombe had another free throw to make their respective totals six and seven counters.

Score by periods:

Indians Overtake Allegheny In 4th Period, Win 54-48

by Bob Jones

Juniata's scrappy Indians finally found the winning formula Wednesday night as they overcame a decided disadvantage in height to down the Allegheny College quintet, 54-48.

E-town Stops Varsity, 67-53

Unable to cope with the Phantoms of Elizabethtown College Saturday evening, the Indians lost their third straight game 67-53.

The Phantoms took an early lead in the contest and at the end of the first quarter lead by a score of 23-11. Eight of the J. C. points were made by John Stayer.

E-town Held To Five

In the second period the Indians were able to hold Elizabethtown to only five points while they scored 11. The score at the end of the first half was 28-22 in favor of the Phantoms.

At the start of the second half it was obvious that the Indians were fighting to stay in the game. They began the third quarter with four quick baskets while the Elizabethtown boys garnered only one. Throughout the entire quarter it was a tight ball game with the score being tied several times. Ulsh led the Warriors in this stanza with six points. Juniata tallied 14 points to Elizabethtown's 15 making the score 43-36.

In the final frame of the fray Juniata managed to keep up with E-town in the number of baskets until the final minutes when the Phantoms pulled ahead. Bill Foster of E-town was outstanding with nine points. Again in this quarter Ulsh excelled with eight before bowing out with five personals in the final minutes.

Ulsh Has 20

Top scorer for the Indians was Ulsh with seven field goals and six free throws for 20 points. Stayer was second with seven F. G.'s and one charity toss for 15. Don Howett, Ray Korody and Stan Welch rounded out the scoring with five, six and seven points respectively.

The score by periods:

Juniata	11	11	14	17—53
E-town	23	5	15	24—67

In their final pre-holiday appearance, the charges of Coach "Doc" Greene posted their initial win of the season after losing hard-fought contests to Lycoming, Bucknell and E-town.

After two fouls and a twin-pointer by big Bill Potter, the visitors, rangy center, had momentarily given them an early lead, the Indians, sparked by Holmes Ulsh, came storming back to take a 15-10 advantage at the end of the opening chapter.

Uncanny marksmanship from the 15-foot line had provided the home team with their first period margin, but the visitors outscored the winners 14-9 in the second stanza as the first half ended in a 24-all deadlock.

Lead Changes Hands

Allegheny led, 37-36, at the end of a ding-dong third period that saw the lead change hands several times, but the Indians hit their true stride in the fourth frame to pull the victory out of the fire.

It was a hard fought contest, with no less than 46 personals called and four men taking an early shower, including Juniata's John Stayer, whose services were lost midway through the final period.

Holmes Ulsh once again led the Indian's scoring parade as he canned a total of 20 points, on six duecces and eight of ten charity tosses. He was followed by Stan Welsh and freshman Dave Bayer.

Korody and Howett Score

Other point producers were Korody with seven, Don Howett with six, Stayer with two and Leo Kahn with one. Towering Bill Potter was high man for the losers with 15 points.

Outscored from the field, 19-15, the Indians won the game on the foul line, as they converted 24 times in 35 tries for a commendable .665 average. Allegheny made good on 10 of 21 attempts.

Bayer Makes Good

Freshman Dave Bayer, making good on his first starting assignment, teamed up with Korody and did an exceptional job in controlling the backboards against such tremendous height. In addition to playing a bang-up floor game, Bayer also found time to rack up nine points.

Score by quarters:

Juniata	15	9	12	18—54
Allegheny	10	14	13	11—48

Pitt Center Victor In J. V. Preliminary

The junior Indians were not as lucky as their big brothers on Wednesday night. The J. V.'s played the University of Pittsburgh Johnstown Center and were defeated 49-40.

For the first quarter the jayvees were able to keep the pace that the Center set but in the remaining quarters the Pitt boys proved to be too much. In the first quarter the Smaltzmen scored ten points which was the same as the Johnstown team.

During the second quarter the men from College Hill seemed unable to find their bearings and could only tally by means of foul points. They scored five points in this manner whereas the Pitt team gained 15 points the second quarter.

In the final two quarters the scoring was fairly even with the Indians having 12 and 13 points for each of the final two periods respectively while the Johnstown boys had 11 and 12 points respectively.

The big gun for the Juniata team was Gordon Stroup who had four field goals and made three out of six charity tosses. Ron Fleck was second with four field goals and two out of three free tosses for a total of ten points. Bill Bolt, Gerry Walker, Francis Townsend, Bob Monahan, George Newcombe and Dick Barefoot rounded out the scoring for the Indians.

Engel Keeps J. C. In The News With News Releases And Pictures

by Marj Seidel

Remember that picture of Mountain Day in the New York Herald Tribune? And that item in your home-town paper about your being chosen star of the Masque play? Or how about the wide-spread account of our last home football game?

All of these Juniata news releases can be traced back to the office of publicity director A. William Engel. With the help of Gwen Nyce, Engel sends out news for one purpose: "to keep the College before the public, especially in areas where we have alumni and students represented."

There is a special effort made to localize news of Juniata students. If John Doe is elected president of his class, Gwen Nyce gets busy at her typewritter. In the next issue of his home-town newspaper he can expect to see his name in print.

Stories very often find their way unintentionally to the wire services. The virus X story which originated on our campus spread like wild-fire throughout the United States. Evidence that this was one of the most wide-spread stories ever to leave the College could be found in newspapers from Tampa, Florida to Los Angeles, California.

The wire services very often feature the News Bureau's "brighter" stories in return for this co-operation in sending along news reports. One of Juniata's best features of this type was the time on the first husband and wife combination to make the honor list two years ago.

Missing Sermons

Another "brightener" which hit the front page of a Florida paper. was the story of Joe Brady's missing sermons. "Time" and "Pathfinder" also found space for this Juniata story.

The unexpected "daddy" yelled by a child as his father received his diploma at our commencement exercises two years ago also made the news. All of these crisp and unusual features received wide circulation.

During March, April, and May of 1949 the Juniata News Bureau sent out 2,294 news releases (exclusive of all sports). Out of this number 1,950 were sent to a selected zone list of 47 weeklies and dailies in the area between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh and also to the offices of the United Press, Associated Press and International News Service.

Localized To Home Papers

In this same three month period stories were localized to 215 home-town papers. In addition to this, 120 stories appeared in The Daily News.

Besides trying to get news into the newspapers, Engel also attempts to get Juniata news printed in magazines. Among these are "Foreign Service," "Sports View," "College Public Relations," "Chemical Engineering News" and other specialized publications.

Radio Is Another Outlet

Still another outlet for our publicity programs is the radio. Soon after WHUN got underway three years ago "Juniata on the Air" was originated. This has provided excellent means of promotion for our various campus organizations.

Probably the most extensive news coverage is in the field of sports. Stories of home contests of football, basketball, baseball, track and golf are sent to six major metropolitan newspapers. Also sport stories are released to a selected zone list of about 65 dailies and weeklies in the central Pennsylvania area.

Matter Of Contacts

Mr. Engel points out that these news stories and features don't just happen to get into papers. "It is a matter of contacts—knowing people who can guide them into the newspapers." Of course, the stories must have some definite news value or a different twist.

That brings us back to the Mountain Day picture in the Herald Tribune. Juniata can thank William Averitt for that break. When he visited the campus, the possibility of some publicity in the Tribune was discussed. Mountain Day appealed to him and a picture was taken.

Thus a Juniata picture hit a New York newspaper for the first time. But not the last time! The Juniata News Bureau will continue "to keep the College before the public."

STORK BEATS SANTA—Yesterday afternoon at 3:50 p. m. Thomas Edward Engel, a 7 pound, 9 ounce Christmas package from Heaven was delivered to the Engels at Blair Hospital. Less than two hours after the birth in typical Engel style, Bill commented "everything is under control." Congratulations Bill and we are glad to hear that mother and child are "doing well."

Job Outlook

Rural Teachers In Great Demand; H. S. Field Varies

by Bob Hess

In the high school field, qualified teachers are in demand at present but opportunities vary greatly by locality and subject field. Generally speaking, shortages are greatest in rural schools, in specific subjects such as music, in vocational subjects such as home economics and in the physical sciences.

English, history and foreign language teachers can exepect to find it more difficult to secure positions.

Salaries Improving

A trend toward increasing salaries will influence qualified teachers to remain in or return to the profession and at the same time will induce more students to prepare for it. In line with this, education and experience requirements will probably be raised.

The usual requirements for teachers' certificates are a B. A. with about a half year of professional education including student teaching. These requirements vary somewhat from state to state. The general trend is toward insisting on a master's degree or at least five years of college.

Activities Help

In our teaching training institutions we have been moving in the direction of increased specialization. Nevertheless, the greater the number of subjects a person can teach, the better are his chances for securing a position. Ability to handle extra-curricular activities will also improve chances for employment.

In 1946-47 high school teachers had a median salary of $3,6000 in cities of over 100,000 population; $2,775 in cities of 30,000 to 100,000; $2,600 in those of 10,000 to 30,000; $2,375 in towns of 5,000 to 10,000; and $2,275 in those of 2,500 to 5,500.

In presenting these figures the Department of Labor adds that in some special fields, such as vocational education, salaries are sometimes higher.

J. C. On Air Plans Be-Bop

During the week of Jan. 4 "Juniata on the Air" will be sponsored by the Radio Committee. Jack Freymuller will feature a musical program on be-bop.

On Wednesday evening the Christmas play "Angel Child" was presented by the Alpha Beta Gamma. The cast included Dottie Lehman, Betsy Wright, Joan Stayer, Joyce Grove, and Erla Mae Weist.

With Our Clubs

I R C Discusses European Tour; A B C Gives Christmas Party

by Margie Alleman

The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, which fosters and co-ordinates International Relations Clubs' activities, is investigating the possibility of a student tour of Europe in the summer.

The proposed tour will be for the purposes of study and travel. Those members of IRC who participate will be expected to bear traveling and living expenses of from $500 to $700.

Edith Roberts may be contacted for further details.

Led by Peter Mayer, last Tuesday's IRC program featured a discussion of Christmas celebrations in foreign lands. Students from other lands attending Juniata spoke on the various customs observed in their countries.

Following the discussion, refreshments were served.

A. B. C. Gives Party

ABC wound up its pre-holiday activities with a Christmas party.

The festivities began at 8:15 in the Women's Day Student's Room. Betty Strait was in charge of the evening's program which included caroling and a presentation of the Christmas Story. Members of the group brought small gifts which were exchanged.

Refreshments were served at the close of the program.

Pre-Meds Hear Speaker

At the Christmas meeting of the Scalpel and Probe Club Wednesday, Mr. Arthur G. Logue was the speaker.

Mr. Logue is director of Division D of the Game Commission of Pennsylvania.

'Announcements To Be Typed'—Senate

All dining hall announcements are to be typed hereafter, according to a resolution passed by the Senate Tuesday night.

The resolution was introduced as a result of complaints that too many announcements are scrawled hurriedly on scraps of paper, sometimes even paper napkins, thereby placing the burden of interpretation upon the announcer.

The Senate passed unanimously a motion requesting that all announcements be type written and stating that hand written messages "need not be read."

DINING HALL

This system will contain a Warren Webster turntable capable of accomodating both long-playing (33 1/3 rpm) and standard (78 rpm) records. Installation will not be effected until after the floor is laid sometime this week.

Tentative plans call for music at the noon as well as the evening meal every day. Five speakers will be utilized; three in the new section of the hall, two in the old. Those in the new addition will be placed in the same ceiling well as the lights, while one will be spotted at either end of the present hall.

The turntable itself will be placed in and operated from a control room to the left of the serving room. Through a slanted glass window already in place, the operator will be able to observe practically the entire hall.

This sound system is of the flexible type. That is, separate adjustments in volume can be made for either room. "It will sound just like a voice speaking over your shoulder" in all parts of the room, was the way Friend described the volume control.

Larger Serving Space

The serving room has also been expanded, and new dishwashing and dish storage rooms have been added. In the basement a dining room and a lounge has been created for the help.

Lighting will be a combination of indirect florescent and incandescent direct. A monochromatic color scheme for the dining room of a blue-green shade on the order of Williamsburg green has been chosen by Miss Frances J. Mathias, dietician.

Break In Publication

The next issue of The Juniatian will be published Jan 6, three days after the College resumes classes following the 16-day vacation.

Diamond Dust

One of the well known "pairs" on campus will return from the Christmas holidays married.

Kitty Long will become the bride of Jack Padgett at a double ring ceremony to be performed by Miss Long's brother. The wedding has been set for 4 o'clock Dec. 21 at the Church of the Brethren, Baltimore, Md.

Margaret Clemmer will be the soloist at the wedding and Lois Esaley and Doris Quinnell will be among Miss Long's attendants. Bill Murray and Joe Brady, '49, will be ushers.

Broadway show today. For these strolling players, the play was the thing. Would that there were more companies like them.

Margaret Webster's direction is, as usual, a masterpiece of ingenuity. She seems to know more than any director of our day what Shakespeare was like. She captures his spirit and interprets it for our time as no one else in the theatre does. Here in this rowdy farce she gives us good theatre.

It is a rare privilege to have her company on our campus. The 300 students who didn't come don't know what they missed!

ALL CLASS NIGHT

"Michael McGee Takes His B. A. Degree" presented what one judge termed "most unusual ideas on education." The comedy with a moral was written by Bob Elder and staged by the junior class.

Original music was the theme of what another judge called "a beautiful tale of young love." Titled "Mr. Music's Millon," this sophomore musicomedy was written by Jim Streiner with music by Dave Lewis.

Five Judges

The five judges were E. F. Burow, McConnellstown Rd.; Miss Helen Brumbaugh, Huntingdon; John Hill, Altoona; I. Newton Taylor, Huntingdon; and Mrs. Roland Thompson, Belleville. All of these were alumni except Mr. Burow.

As one delegate to Leadership Conference remarked, "All Class Night is one of the most valuable extra-curricular activities available on the Juniata campus. It is the only opportunity students have to try their hand at experimenting with writing, acting, directing, and lighting for the theater without interference, and with plenty of good advice."

Indians Meet S. U. Saturday In Quest Of Crusader Scalp

Opening its post vacation basketball season tomorrow night, the Indians venture to Susquehanna intending to add another scalp to its totem pole. Although the boys have had a two-week lay off, they seem to be in high spirits.

In meeting the Crusaders from Susquehanna, the Indians will meet a team seeking its first basketball victory this year. So far, Susquehanna has lost to Ursinus 59-30; Penn State 74-44; Lycoming 65-48; and Lebanon Valley 89-53. These scores give no indication as to how easy the Crusaders are going to be to defeat. They are always on the up for the Juniata game. Last year J. C. split with them when they had won only six and lost 11 games.

Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg lost his big scoring gun when Evan Zlock graduated. This year he has only two veterans returning, namely Dick Westervelt and Jack Thorp. The remaining part of the team is composed of Charlie Zlock, Evan's brother, Norm Fleisher 6'5" freshman and Bruce Wagner. Zlock and Wagner played junior varsity last year.

In the games played thus far this season, Westervelt and Fleisher have been the big scoring guns, while Thorp is still giving them support from the guard spot. All in all the Crusaders will not be an easy pushover.

Expecting a tough game "Doc" Greene is putting the boys through a tough practice. As usual, Coach Greene will not pick the starting five until game time. This game will show Holmes Ulsh in his best form since he hurt his leg four weeks ago.

'Double Feature'-- Movie and Dance Planned For Sat.

"A double treat in entertainment is promised for this Saturday night's activities," reports the social committee.

Beginning promptly at 7 p. m. the film entitled "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir" starring Gene Tierney and Rex Harrison will be shown in Oller Hall. The story itself has an unusual mystic twist and has delighted many theater audiences. It will be accompanied by several selected shorts, including "Music in America."

Following the movie, the seniors will be hosts for the remainder of the evening at the "Flamingo Club" in the gym. Dancing, entertainment and refreshments will be featured. This affair will not be strictly a date occasion and is not semi-formal as previously announced.

Next Saturday there will be a party in the social rooms and in the WAA room.

'Pirates' Manager Urges Students To Try For Crews

Corrie Sollenberger, student manager of the spring musical, "The Pirates of Penzance," urges everyone to volunteer for the many committee and crew jobs available. A sheet of paper will be posted on the bulletin board in Student's Hall for this purpose. It was pointed out that it will be competitive in the sense that not all who apply for chairmanship positions will necessarily get them.

Positions to be filled include stage manager and an assistant, who will have the responsible position of seeing that the entire production runs smoothly. Others are publicity and advertising, properties, scenery, set construction (for those not afraid to exercise their muscles), lighting, costumes, make-up, ticket sales, sound, program and house manager.

"Not only will credit towards a Masquer key be given, but you will also be helping to further a worthy cause, the W. S. S. F.," stressed Miss Sollenberger. "This should be an added incentive for everyone to sign up."

The chorus had not been selected at the time of publication but the cast is as follows:

Charles Redenberger as Frederic; Lucille Snyder, Mabel; Fred Stauffer, Samuel; Frances Roddy, Edith; Laura Hollingshead, Kate; Josephine Chiodi, Isabel; and Helen Wentzler, Ruth. The three parts of the Major General, Pirate King and Sergeant of Police will be assigned to Robert Frain, Gerald Hartzel and Lloyd Newlin.

Schedule Changed

The varsity basketball game with Westminster originally listed for next Friday night will be played Feb. 13 at New Wilmington.

Editor Resigns

Bob Smith this week submitted his resignation as editor of The Juniatian. His successor, yet to be named by the faculty publications committee, will take over with the first issue of the Spring semester.

Smith is withdrawing from the College due to "financial difficulties" but, having sufficient credits for graduation, will take his comps and degree in the Spring.

W. E. Swigart, Juniata Benefactor, Dies

The donor of Juniata's recently acquired $28,000 music building, W. Emmert Swigart, died as many of his alma mater's students prepared for their Christmas vacations.

A past president of the Alumni Association and a former trustee, the philanthropist suffered a heart attack Dec. 17, and was placed in an oxygen tent. A few hours later a second attack proved fatal.

Mr. Swigart's father, a preacher in the Church of the Brethren, was one of the founders of the College, and held positions as trustee and treasurer for many years. His son followed in his footsteps, being graduated from Juniata in 1906.

Formed Partnership

Immediately after graduation, Mr. Swigart entered business by forming a partnership to write general insurance in the evenings. He worked all day at a selling job.

By July 1, 1933, the business had become Swigart Associates, Inc., and under the direction of Mr. Swigart became one of the largest general insurance agencies in the state.

"Hobby For Everyone"

Mr. Swigart believed everyone should "get interested in a hobby," and followed his own advice to the limit. His specialties were antique automobiles (the world's largest collection), fire marks, auto emblems and a complete license plate collection from all 48 states. He had written articles for both books and magazines on each of these subjects.

Nine Students Approved By Collegiate 'Who's Who'

Nine seniors will represent Juniata in the 1950 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." They are Joe Beyer, Lois Esaley, Betty May, Jack Padgett, Kitty Long Padgett, Gene Roddy, Margaret Roop, Bob Smith and Elma Stine.

Nomination entitles the student to three tangible services: a certificate of recognition, publication of his picture and personal record and the use of the Student Placement Service. This service assists the student in making employment contacts and supplies recommendations, according to the prospectus of the organization.

The publication is designed to act "as an artificial goal to achievement, as a reminder that time must be used intelligently, as a means of compensation for outstanding effort, and as a standard of measurement."

Eight Are Senators

Eight of the group are members of the Senate, while the ninth, Margaret Roop, is president of the Masque. She is also a member of the Honor Society and served as senior All Class Night Chairman.

In addition to his post as Senate Chairman of Men's House, Joe Beyer is president of the senior class and a member of the A Cappella Choir. He rose from the ranks to become vice-president of the J Club, for he was secretary of that group in his junior year. His letter was earned through three years of track. Some time has also been devoted to band and orchestra.

Lois Esaley is Senate Chairman of General Activities. A Masquer, she served last year as Student Co-ordinator of the Victor Herbert musical, "Sweethearts." She has also served on the radio committee and is a member of the WAA and the YWCA.

May Is Masquer

Senate Chairman of Social Activities is Betty May, a Masquer and a member of the Masque for four years. In her junior year she was secretary of the dramatic club. Her other interests include three years with the WAA, two as a member of the Spanish Club, and one each in the FTA and the Women's House Committee.

Jack Padgett is President of the Senate. Although Senate Chairman of Religious Activities last year, he has also been active in sports. Under intramural sports he lists three years of football, basketball, and baseball.

Senate Secretary Kitty Long Padgett is participating in the activities of the A Capella Choir, YWCA, WAA, Lambda Gamma, and intramural hockey and basketball. She has held singing roles in "Americanza" and "Sweethearts." A member of the Kat Club for the past three years, she served as cheerleader while a freshman and a sophomore. She was also a member of the Women's House Committee during her sophomore year.

Vice-President Honored

The vice-president of the Senate, Gene Roddy is also president of the President's Bible Class and was president of his class during his freshman year. A Masquer, he has had roles in "Americanza," "Sweethearts," and "Berkeley Square," as well as "Happy Journey." He has participated in All Class Night productions for four years. As a freshman he played varsity football and has been interested in intramural sports.

New Togs Arrive For Basketeers

Santa brought a gift for the basketball team last week—the long awaited new basketball uniforms. Two sets of suits were purchased: one of dark blue to be used when the boys play away games and one of white for the eyes of the home fans.

The uniforms were designed by Doc Arnold Greene when the season opened and for a time it was hoped that they would be available for the opening game. Word was received that the new suits would arrive for the Allegheny game, but due to shipping difficulties this did not prove correct.

Warm-up jackets were also purchased. These are navy blue and match the dark uniforms.

RPC Program On Marriage Set For Sunday

The second program sponsored by the Religious Planning Commission will be held in the Library at 8:30 Sunday evening, Jan. 8. Ira Reid, professor of sociology at Haverford College, will speak on the subect "Courtship—Marriage Decisions."

After Mr. Reid's talk there will be an hour of discussion followed by refreshments. This program was planned with the purpose of the RPC in mind—to integrate religion more closely in the life of the students.

Formerly a professor at Atlanta University, Mr. Reid has spoken before many groups of students under the Student Christian Movement. He was a discussion leader in the American Friends Service Committee Student Exchange, the same program under which Dr. Ernest Hall traveled to Europe.

Shmoos on Top; Hancock, Jones Are High Scorers

One of the best reasons why Fred Phenicie's Shmoos are leading the Intramural Basketball League is Bob Jones' total of 52 points. Top point man for the League is freshman Jim Hancock with 53 tallies for his Be-Boppers

Don Robinson and Carl Curry of I-7 fame have respective totals of 47 and 46. Unlike both Jones and Hancock, these two have participated in only three contests.

With his 47 tallies Robinson holds a league leading average of 15.6 points to beat out Curry whose 15.3 earns second place. Hancock earned a 13.3 for third slot and Jones is fourth with 13.0.

Twenty-three field goals by Jones heads this department. Hancock and Robinson are second with 22 each.

Dragon's Gil McIntyre has thus far captured the free throw column with 10. Hancock is second by having made nine out of a possible 11. The Skijans have Duck Snyder's seven-for-seven foul shooting record of which to be proud. Duck also leads that team in points with 37.

By amassing 158 tallies, the Skijans hold the League lead with the Shmoos in runner up position having 154. Both squads have compiled 20 free throws to their credits.

Glenn Cave, '48 Victim Of Fire

The Christmas Eve fire in the community of Hyndman, Pa., struck a 1948 Juniata graduate hard.

Glenn Cave, who married "Kitty" Charles in September 1949, is a teacher of Music in Hyndman. Their apartment loaded with wedding and Christmas gifts was completely destroyed. Along with these was a prized "baby grand piano."

Glenn was visiting the home of his parents and came onto the scene after the fire had gained headway. Consequently he was able to save very little of his property.

Deadline Approaches

Students who expect to take the graduate record examination at its next administration on Feb. 3 and 4 are reminded that applications and fees must reach the Princeton office no later than Jan. 20. Application forms and bulletins of information may be obtained in the office of the Dean of the College.

Editorializing

Let's Hold Elections Next Month

by Bob Smith

A number of colleges have adopted a new all-campus election plan that Juniata would do well to adopt. It would change the time of elections to mid-year and run terms of office from February to February.

Ordinarily seniors fill most major campus offices. In their final semester they must divide their time among efforts to prepare for comps, line up a job or graduate school, keep up their regular studies, and keep their campus organization functioning properly.

Seniors Too Busy

Because of these heavy demands on the senior in his final semester, his studies or his comps or his job-hunting or his campus club usually suffer from neglect. To change the time of all-campus elections from April to February would relieve seniors of their extra-curricular responsibilities at a time when they ordinarily want to shift their attention from the campus to their future.

The second big advantage that this election change offers is to preserve continuity in campus organizations. When seniors leave office and then graduate a few weeks later they take their experience as campus leaders out of reach of incoming officers who could profit by it.

Look At The Senate

The present Senate offers a good example of the shortcomings of the April election plan. Every Senator at present is a senior. The new Senate will be composed of students who have probably never attended a Senate meeting much less learned how to tackle student problems efficiently. And if elected in April they will have only a few crowded weeks to call on the experience of their predecessors. But if elections are held next month the new Senate will have the time it will need to become well adjusted to its new responsibilities.

Everyone Would Benefit

February elections would require changes in current student leaders' plans. But it would be to their advantage, to say nothing of benefits to their organizations. And if we are to go forward by making desirable changes we will have to learn to accept the temporary disruptions that usually attend such progressive moves.

In any case, we should elect a new Senate and new club officers next month for the benefit of the campus community.

Santa Claus didn't have anything on Cupid during the Christmas vacation.

Martha Ann Zeigler received an engagement ring from Leon Schmick of Preston, Md. A junior, she is majoring in home economics. The couple plan to be married after Miss Zeigler is graduated from Juniata.

Jack Rothenberger, a sophomore at Juniata gave a diamond to Jean Schultz, a student nurse at Reading Hospital, Reading, Pa. No date has been set for the wedding. Rothenberger hopes to enter graduate school after being graduated from Juniata. At present, he is majoring in psychology.

Betty Strait, a senior, and Jack Halman, June '49, announced their engagement at the Stardust Ball. The date for the wedding has not been set.

Survey Reveals Poor Exam Habits

There is a need for better study habits and health practices before and during final examinations according to a study made by a faculty-student health committee of the Texas State College for Women.

As a result of the findings it was proposed that teachers use one period to discuss study habits and give thorough reviews in their courses.

Some of the more frequently practiced bad habits were studying for long periods of time without adequate rest, wasting time by visiting, studying inefficiently in groups, using stimulants, smoking to excess, neglecting to eat a well-balanced diet and failing to obtain the needed eight or nine hours of sleep each night.

In proposing the thorough review in classes, the committee felt that the pressure of over-anxiety to maintain a high average in a course would be relieved. Also it would help the students who are frightened by the strong emphasis placed on the importance of examinations.

Varsity In 59-42 Win As JC Beats Crusaders Twice

Juniata went on the warpath against the Crusaders of Susquehanna last Saturday night, taking a twin cage bill from them. The Indian varsity won 59-42 and the jayvees walloped their opponents 68-37.

For the varsity cagers it was the only game of this season in which they took the lead and kept it throughout the game. They allowed the home team to score only two points the first quarter and the Indians scored 18. These two points were by way of charity tosses.

In the second quarter the first string Indians racked up 14 points before they were replaced by the second string with three minutes left to play.

First Team On Bench

With the first team sitting on the bench the remainder of the game, the second and third quintets managed to keep ahead of the Crusaders but were unable to gain much ground. During the third quarter Susquehanna garnered ten points while the Indians got 14. In the final stanza the Staggman tallied 24 points while the men from College Hill were able to connect for nine points.

Stayer Is High Scorer

High scorer for the Greenemen was lanky John Stayer who hit the mesh for nine points. Holmes Ulsh and Orlando Loschiavo were close behind with eight points each and Stan Welch and Ray Korody garnered seven points each. Zlock of Susquehanna led his teammates with 14 points.

J. C.	18	18	14	9—59
S. U.	3	5	10	24—42

JV's Win, 68-37

The Junior Indians opened the new year right by defeating the Susquehanna jayvees 68-37.

For the first half it was a tight ball game with neither team taking too much of a lead. At the end of the first quarter the Indians led 13-11. At intermission time the Smaltzmen led 22-19.

With the start of the third quarter it was an entirely new ball game with the Indians in command. They were able to garner 22 points while the Crusaders hit the mesh for only six.

In the final stanza Coach Bill Smaltz sent in the remaining players that were on the bench. These players were still able to rack up 24 points and held the Susquehanna team to 12.

For Juniata Ron Fleck was the big gun with seven field goals and two out of six charity tosses for a total of 16.

Townsend took runner-up honors with four two-pointers and six out of ten free throws.

Indians On Warpath; Meet Geneva Saturday

With two scalps tied on their victory string, Juniata's on coming warriors will hit the trail to meet Geneva College tomorrow night.

So far this year Geneva has won half of its contests. The Covies will place one of the highest scoring combinations on the floor that J. C. will meet this year.

They tallied 1553 points against 1386 for their opponents last season.

Coach Doc Greene is planing to employ the same style of court play that was unveiled last week against Susquehanna. As usual, Doc is silent on the starting lineup.

Armacost Is New Editor, Streiner Becomes Assistant

Dave Armacost is the new editor of The Juniatian.

The appointment was made this week by the faculty publications committee upon the recommendation of Armacost by the retiring editor, Bob Smith.

The incoming editor is a junior from Baltimore majoring in history. He has served under Smith as managing editor and previous to that did feature writing and straight news reporting.

In his senior year at Catonsville High School Armacost edited the Kay-Hi News. He is a member of the International Relations Club and of the Debate Club.

The committee also appointed Jim Streiner to fill a new position, that of assistant editor. The position of managing editor is being left vacant for the present time.

Streiner, who has been news editor under Smith, is a sophomore from Pitcairn, Pa. He is majoring in history.

The new assistant editor is a member of the Radio Committee and was chairman of the sophomore All-Class Night committee. In addition, he was advertising chairman of the student musical "Sweethearts."

Both appointments are effective immediately and until Move-Up Day of the current school year.

Be Patient, Please

The editors hope that this will be the last abbreviated Juniatian of the year. Due to increased costs we have been forced to publish either fewer issues or several two-page issues. We thought the readers would prefer the latter.

With our editorial backs to a budgetary wall many short cuts have been necessary short of reducing the number of costly pictures which appear on these pages. When students receive their copy unfolded it is a saving to the Juniatian budget. Please have patience; our aim has been your interest.

Now is the Time For New Resolutions

by Jack Freymuller

The time for making New Years resolutions is here, now that New Years Eve has passed into history along with Shay's rebellion. There's lots of room on this clean slate for all sorts of resolves but past experience has taught us to choose our words carefully.

To begin, we are determined to ignore those "some-things" reportedly keeping Earth under a close surveillance from "flying discs" hovering in the outer space. But then wouldn't it be a dirty trick on them to lift the lid on this Pandora's Box world of ours. What a surprise package they'd have: racial prejudice; atomic warfare; insane ideologies and numerous other blemishes on the face of this earth.

Be Helpful and Friendly

And then wouldn't it be a good idea to bring some of the down-to-earth philosophy of Dr. Albert Schweitzer into our own life during this New Year. No one knows how many chances to help some one last year that we passed up. We think we will take our time from here on in. And if we can't actually help someone—well, then we'll just be as friendly as we can be.

In response to the clamor for more we have decided to continue our words of counsel in this column to the sweetest girls in Pennsylvania—the Juniata coeds. But first; let us define our position. We are merely trying to put across the male point-of-view, girls. Never, never think we are in favor of drastic changes in your make-up. We like you the way you are.

High on our list of resolutions is our ambition to promulgate the existence of that form of popular music known as bop and the abilities of one of its foremost stylists—the blind pianist, George Shearing—whose efforts in that idiom are unbeatable.

The Missing Link

Something, we feel, is definitely lacking in the scheme of things at Juniata. For a long time we couldn't put our finger on the thing that wasn't there; we just had a vague feeling of something being missing. Now we believe we know what it is. We don't have any outspoken heralds of the new era in the arts. Where are the quasi-Joyces and the forthright imitators of Picasso who serve to disrupt peaceful lectures and who set talk scurrying about in a lively fashion? Inner promptings encourage us to go all out in the quest for individuals of this mettle this year. If our efforts are rewarded you will find their names blazoned in this column.

On a note of regret we end this week's edition of the Circuit Rider for we have many other resolutions of worth that we would like to publish but for lack of space we are forced to forego.

Pres. Ellis, Padgett To Speak At Dedication Dinner For Dining Hall Opening Jan. 30

President C. N. Ellis and Senate President Jack Padgett will speak at a special dinner Monday, Jan. 30, marking the opening of the new College dining hall. For the first time in several years, the entire student body will be served a single meal scheduled to begin at 6 p. m.

Special seating arrangements have been made by Elma Stine for guests, faculty and students. Guests will include Dr. and Mrs. C. N. Ellis; Dean and Mrs. Morley Mays; Dean and Mrs. D. Raymond Sollenberger; Dean and Mrs. Melvin Rhodes; Mr. and Mrs. William Engel; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Friend and Harold Brumbaugh.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Langdon; Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Mierley; Mr. and Mrs. Chalender Lesher; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hess and President Emeritus C. C. Ellis and Mrs. Ellis will also be present.

Students will act as hosts and hostesses at tables where guests are present. All other students who desire to reserve tables may do so by submitting a list of eight names to Miriam Landis before Jan. 28.

Special music will include a violin solo by Lois Winett and a vocal duet sung by Lucille Snyder and Helen Wentzler.

Decorations are under the supervision of "Mickey" Monks and Joan Clutts.

Regular table assignments will go into effect Monday but will not be followed at the special dinner. "The regular procedure of table assignments will be followed during second semester," remarked Jack Padgett, Senate president. However, an effort will be made to see that every senior has an opportunity to eat in the new section.

Fund Begun For Alley Memorial

In honor of the late mother of Juniata students Thelma and Nina Alley, friends and relatives have established the "Hattie Z. Alley Memorial Fund." This money will be used to assist Christian young people in India to prepare for medical service.

Though she held no degree in medicine, Mrs. Alley was both doctor and nurse for more than 25 years to men, women and children of India who needed her help.

The fund was begun with money given at the time of Mrs. Alley's death in place of flowers. Additional gifts to the fund may be sent the Treasurer's Office of the College or John O. Gehrett, 527 Penn St.

JWSF Head Picks Aides

The Juniata World Service Fund drive will soon be underway!

Richard C. Coffman, general chairman, recently announced the selection of the following committee which will work as a unit on all decisions: Rex Hershberger, chairman of solicitations; Charles L. Brown, treasurer; Dorothy Ann Humphreys, secretary; and Don Howe, publicity chairman.

JWSF Week will be held this year from Feb. 13 to 18. Final deadline for contributions will extend to March 6.

Besides contributing to the World Student Service Fund, this collective drive covers several other funds. These include the Red Cross and the missions of H. Stover Kulp and J. M. Blough. After 50 years of service, Dr. Blough will end his missionary career this year.

During the JWSF Week a radio program, with the drive as its theme, will be presented over WHUN. Don Brandt will write and direct the broadcast.

Chairman Coffman urges, "If the students will cooperate with me as well as the committee has, the drive should be a great success!"

J. C. Radio Voice Adds New Series

The radio voice of Juniata grew lustier this week as the radio committee began a new series of broadcasts in addition to its present "Juniata on the Air" program which is broadcast every Wednesday evening at 8:30.

A disc-jockey type show, "Turntable Terrace" is aired every afternoon between 4:20 and 5:00 p. m. The new program is shared with Huntingdon High School. The Monday-Wednesday-Friday programs are being taken by this group. J. C. students spin the discs on Tuesday and Thursday.

Some Juniatians who have jockeyed "Turntable Terrace" or expect to in the near future are Bill Carpenter, Gene Kline, Paul Schroeder, Frank Conly, Don Norris, Don Brandt, Don Raphael and Jim Streiner.

"Juniata on the Air" last Wednesday was sponsored by the radio committee. Don Raphael gave a running commentary on be-bop records.

"Juniata on the Air" will be discontinued for the next two weeks because of exams. Tentative programs for the future will be announced later.

Relax During Exams At Afternoon Teas

When the nights get rough (with study) and days get rougher (with exams), remember this: a little bit of carefree relaxation will do wonders.

With this thought in mind, the Women's House Committee in co-operation with Dean Edith Spencer has planned a series of informal gatherings in the Social Rooms. They will be held each day during exams from 3:30 to 5 p. m. with the exception of Saturday and Sunday.

Tables with games as well as good conversation will provide the entertainment. On the refreshment side, it has been announced that a mere "please" coupled with a pretty smile will cause tea, coffee or cocoa to be brought forth. And for the more sensitive palatey. Dean Spencer has promised that every other day she will make cinnamon toast.

Senate Examines New Election Plan

by Bob Smith

The mid-year election idea seems to be gaining favor in interested quarters on campus. The Tycoon Club, recognizing its value, had adopted such a plan long before last week's editorial appeared. The Senate has begun an examination of the effects such a change would have on campus, but the legislators seem favorably disposed.

The advantages are clearly evident. The Senate feels that it is now a matter of uncovering whatever disadvantages there might be that could outweigh its merit.

Things To Consider

All campus organizations could perform a valuable service to the Senate by submitting a report before the next Senate meeting (Jan. 25) on the club's feelings toward the new election plan.

If the club members would balance the debits against the credits for their organization and report it to the Senate a much clearer campus picture could be seen. And no disadvantages to clubs could be overlooked.

The Alfarata and the four classes could not take advantage of this new plan because of the very nature of their activities. If there are others they should step forward. This, of course, will not detract from the value of the plan for those clubs that can take advantage of it, but it will show in which cases it is not feasible.

Other Angles

How would it affect Leadership Conference? What would be the effect of Summer vacation in the middle of terms of office? Could the calendar be worked out satisfactorily for the entire College year when student offices would change hands in the middle of the year? These questions have been asked.

A faculty member said he thought the plan would help the effectiveness of Leadership Conference inasmuch as student leaders would have already served half a year in office, would be more familiar with campus problems because of that experience and could therefore plan better programs for the future. Some other ideas were to hold the conference after finals in Jan. or to hold two of them, one in Sept. and the other in Jan.

According to the president of the Temple University student senate, which has adopted the plan, vacations serve as a breather for student leaders during which time they can get up steam and new ideas for the final half of their term.

Calendar A Problem

The calendar is always a tough problem because of the great number of activities. If terms in office would begin in February it would probably mean that the new Senate would have to carry out a program of activities already planned by its predecessor. That might lead to difficulties, or it might be helpful to the new Senators to have the calendar all straightened out for them in their first semester in office. And they would plan the calendar for the following year after they had had the experience of a half year in office.

No clear disadvantages have yet been presented. Certainly it will require many minor and a few major adjustments, but we must not cloak these adjustments so that they appear as disadvantages to block the adoption of the plan. Unless better arguments can be presented there is good reason to think that the change in elections will be approved by the Senate and welcomed by the campus.

War Children Write Their J. C. Parents

Georgette Petite and Svatava Moravchova are war children. Both write to their American foster parents, telling how much they appreciate their help.

At first, eight-year-old Georgette had a foster mother named Miss Jane Miller. But now she has a foster father as well. "Une petite citoyen de la France," she lives with her mother and seven brothers and sisters and writes to Dr. and Mrs. Crosby every month. Her father was killed during the war.

Svatava, 12, sends her foster parent, Miss Spencer, pictures which she has drawn in school. She is a Protestant (Lutheran) living in Prague, Czechoslovakia, with her mother.

'Y' Christmas Party Should Be A Tradition

The "Y" Christmas Party held last month was a great success according to a survey made by the organization.

Student foster parents of the children were asked "what was your reaction to the party?" and "what was your adopted child's reaction?"

Answers indicated that the foster parents were unanimous in their praise of the idea of aiding the underprivileged. A common comment was "hope it can be made a tradition of the school."

"Parents" observed that their "children" had so much fun that they didn't want to leave. Typically, one little girl on the way home said, "I had a nice time," then added, rather wistfully, "I'd like to come again, if I could."

'Christian Heritage' Is Theme Of Spiritual Emphasis Week

Spiritual Emphasis Week will be observed on the Juniata campus next week. The program will be led by Dr. Ansley C. Moore, Minister of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh.

DR. ANSLEY C. MOORE

The Religious Planning Commission, under the chairmanship of John Keener, is using "Christian Heritage" as the theme for this third in a series of programs.

During three required chapel sessions next Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, Dr. Moore will speak on the subjects: "Life's Greatest Choices," "Loyalty in Our Time" and "The Church Faces Marriage."

Morning Services Planned

There will be short devotional services for the students in the Stone Church every morning from 7:30 to 7:55. Paul Shaffer, chairman of the Christian Heritage Emphasis, is planning these devotions. He will receive assistance from various members of the student body.

On Monday and Tuesday evening, services will be held at 7:30 p. m. in the Social Rooms of the Stone Church. Due to the Juniata basketball game on Wednesday evening, the seminars will be held at 4 p. m. in the Social Rooms of the girls' dorm. The Thursday evening program will begin at 7 p. m. in the Social Rooms of the Stone Church These seminars will be led by Dr. Moore.

Discussions for the week are: "Let's Talk About the Bible", "Let's Talk About God", "Let's Talk About Christ" and "Let's Talk About Life". All the students are urged to participate in as many of these discussions as possible.

Holds Many Degrees

Dr. Moore, who has graduate degrees from three universities and seminaries, plus an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from Southwestern College, became minister of the Pittsburgh Church in June, 1947. He has become a world renowned Christian leader, and was a delegate to The World Council of Churches Conference in Amsterdam and The World Alliance of Reformed Churches at Geneva, Switzerland.

In order that every person might participate in this week's activities, all other club meetings and programs will be cancelled.

Pianist Katherine Bacon To Give Concert Next Friday

Katherine Bacon, who has appeared as guest pianist with the New York Philharmonic orchestra, will present a concert next Friday in Oller Hall.

Under the auspices of the Association of American Colleges, Miss Bacon will arrive on campus Thursday evening. She will hold public auditions for six advanced piano students at Swigart Music Hall on that same evening.

Friday, Miss Bacon will appear in Chapel to give a preview of the evening's program. She will also be present at several classes.

Precocious Performer

Born in Chesterfield, Eng., Miss Bacon has shown talent for music from early childhood. She presented her first public recital at the age of seven; two years later she created a sensation by performing Beethoven's "Sonata Pathetique" at an English concert hall.

Miss Bacon was offered a scholarship by Arthur Newstead, a widely known London pianist who had heard her perform. Through Mr. Newstead the director of the Peabody Conservatory became interested in her. Three years after she came to the United States to study, she married Mr. Newstead and they are now on the faculty of the Julliard School of Music.

In addition to numerous appearances in New York, Miss Bacon has been the guest artist of several prominent orchestras. Her recitals have also been sponsored by Chamber Music organizations.

Played Sonatas

In celebration of the Beethoven Centenary in 1927, Miss Bacon presented seven weekly recitals of the entire 32 Beethoven Sonatas. Four concerts devoted to the major works of Schubert celebrated that composer's centenary in 1928.

Opera, 2 Formals Spark Sat. Nights, Committee Reports

A comic opera, two formal dances and several parties are scheduled to chase the Saturday night "what to do?" blues during the Spring term, according to the recently released social committee calendar.

The Feb. program begins tomorrow evening with a basketball game between the Indians and Elizabethtown. (See page 3.) Party-going will be the fashion for the following three Saturday evenings, with a Romance Language Party set for Feb. 11, and the freshmen and sophomores acting as hosts for Feb. 18 and 25 respectively.

March Comes In Like Lamb

March comes in like a lamb with the movie "Magnificent Obession" on the fourth, but by March 29th the social program will have grown to lion proportions. On this date the committee will sponsor the Spring Formal.

Between these two events will be a party on March 11 presented jointly by the Chemistry Club and Lambda Gamma, the musical "Pirates of Penzance" set for March 17 and 18, and the movie "Dragonwick" which is to be screened March 25.

Masque Party April 15

Following the Spring recess, the social committee takes over again with the Masque party April 15. This is followed by an FTA party on April 22, and the month closes with the formal Junior-Senior Reception April 28.

The social year ends May 13 with the day long May Day ceremonies and a fashion show.

Mays Give Child Home

Dean Morley Mays released the following statement Tuesday morning:

"Dean and Mrs. Morley Mays announce that Elizabeth Louise has come to make her home with them. 'Beth' was 10½ months old when she arrived in Huntingdon last Monday."

Quickie Wits To Vie In Pittsburgh

Tryouts will be held next Tuesday at 4 p. m. in the Old Chapel for those interested in an extemporaneous speaking contest. This contest will be held on March 10 and 11 at the University of Pittsburgh.

The winner of the contest will accompany the debate team to the Inter-Collegiate Tournament at Pittsburgh.

Students who are interested should read the Jan. 23 and the Jan. 30 issues of "Time" magazine which will be on reserve in the library.

Contestants will draw one of the following topics taken from the issues of "Time": "The Hydrogen Bomb," "The Hiss Trial," "The Coal Strike," "Report of Yugoslavia," "Problems in Germany," "Mao-Tse-tung and Stalin," "Acheson's Case for Asia" or "The Thinking Machine." He will then have a quarter hour to prepare a five minute talk on his subject.

New Yorker Shows Prints

Mr. Kennedy, of the H. Felix Kraus firm in New York, will show prints in the library today. The prints which include both early and modern paintings may be ordered through Mr. Kennedy.

Need Still Great For WSSF Aid

Although it is now four years since the end of the war, the day of emergency aid in foreign countries has not yet passed. WSSF dollars are now finding their way into these needy areas.

Taking a glance at four such areas, we find examples of the great need. In China the demand is greater than ever due to the financial situation and civil wars.

Relief for Japan is concentrated on the shipment of typewriters, mimeograph equipment, ink, etc. for self-help ventures.

We find that there is a great need for books in Germany. Housing is the major problem for German students. The needs of Poland center around scientific equipment, much of which was destroyed during the war. The high T. B. rates among Polish students prove the urgent need for medical supplies.

On our campus the JWSF drive will start February 18. Final contributions are to be made by March 6. This is your drive—back it up!

Polls Open Tues

An elelction to fill the unexpired portion of Bob Smith's Senate term as chairman of publications will be held Tuesday.

Polls are to be open from 9 to 12:30, 1 to 2:30, and 6:30 to 8 p. m. Candidates are Dave Armacost, editor of The Juniatian, and Walter Bush, who edited his high school newspaper.

Lonely Room

J Club Room Home Of Dusty Furniture, Unseen Trophies

by Carol Cook

This is about a room in the Cloister.

However, unlike other four-walled units in that male Brumbaugh Hall, this L-shaped room has a tile floor and beamed-crossed ceiling. Two of the walls are lined with green leather sofas, love seats (lower that eyebrow!) and chairs. Circular and rectangular tables are available for putting things on (maybe a pinochle deck, maybe ashtrays, full-to-empty coke bottles, even books or typewriters.)

Also, in this right angled room are a better-days-have-come-and gone piano, and a fireplace set in a paneled wall.

This is the J-Club Room.

In 1927 various friends of the College were furnishing various rooms in the newly built Cloister. The Huntingdon Rotary Club offered to do likewise for this incomplete-L-shaped room with the fireplace and tile floor. Having been designed by the architect, G. Edwin Brumbaugh(son of M. G. Brumbaugh, president of Juniata at that time), as a recreation lounging room, the Rotary Club appropriately bestowed lamps, radios, leather chairs, and a modest metal plaque: "This room furnished by Huntingdon Rotary Club."

Maintained By The 'Y'

The beamed-ceiling compartment was maintained by the YM CA which held its regular meetings there. And as is often the fate of this type of room, it was given a fitting name—the Y-Club Room.

Apparently it experienced usage, for the Rotary Club lamps, radios and chairs all left the scene. The present weary bone

ROOM WITHOUT A FRIEND—The Cloister Club Room, commonly known as the J Club Room, is located in the basement Wing of the Cloister. Designed in 1927 to serve as a lounge and recreation hall, the room is now rarely used except for an occasional meeting or for room drawings.

Hines, Conly Air WHUN Newscast

"Juniata on the Air" featured Hilton Hines and Frank Conly on Wednesday night. Representatives of The Juniatian, they gave reports on the latest campus news. This included a sports' review, an analysis of our basketball team and their opponents, and interviews with Holmes Ulsh and John Stayer.

Tentative plans are being made for next week's program. On Feb. 15 Don Brandt will give a preview of the JWSF drive.

Disc jockeys for this past week were Betty Longwell, Chuck Barklow, Carole Hagen and Bob Champion.

On Sunday, two Juniata students will hold parts in the concluding episodes of Oscar Wilde's comedy, "The Importance of Being Earnest," to be presented on WHUN Playhouse at 1 p. m. The part of Algernon Moncrieff will be taken by Art Allen, while Jim Streiner will be Jack Worthing.

23 Grads Hear Albright Pres.

Dr. Harry V. Masters, president of Albright College, delivered the commencement address at Juniata's mid-winter convocation at which 23 students were graduated.

Candidates for bachelor of arts degrees were:

Ekkehard Eickhoff, Leo Johns, Hugh McEvers, Leo Mintz, Paul Patterson and Karl Wright.

Those receiving bachelor of science degrees were:

23 Years And---Forgotten

It is rumored that the College is planning to build a lounging room in the girls dormitory. Obviously, this will make living more pleasant for the girls. The administration is taking a forward step here.

However, the J Club Room, which was designed in 1927 by G. Edwin Brumbaugh as a recreation room for the men and as a room for receiving athletic teams, is nearly forgotten. (See page one for picture and story.)

The L-shaped hall had a colorful history and apparently was the scene of many a parlor game and much fellowship among the men students. At one time it had lamps, radio and magazines. On Nov. 15, 1946 The Juniatian reports "The Men's Club of Cloisters is on the rehabiliation list and will receive a thorough renovation in the near future. New paint will be applied, the floors will be cleaned and waxed, the radio repaired or replaced and numerous periodicals provided . . . the game room will be put into playing condition." Evidently this program was carried out by the now defunct Juniata College YMCA.

Used For J Club Meetings

Today the J Club Room or Cloister Club Room is used for J Club meetings, room drawings, and as a place for hanging laundry. Dusty trophies, deflated footballs, a piano, leather furniture and several tables are all that is left of a glorious history. The room reminds one of a furniture store and antique shop all rolled into one.

Here the College has a liability which could easily be turned into an asset. Now the room must be heated and cleaned up—yet no one gets any use out of it. With the addition of magazines, a radio, some lamps and new curtains the J Club Room could be a valuable meeting place for the men students, particularly those of the Lodge.

Could Provide Dorm Space

If the J Club Room has no value as a recreation room then it should be turned into dormitory space for men. This would result in increased revenue for the College. Or if the room still has value as a lounge then the small expenditure of money which would be required to make it acceptable would be well spent.

The club room needs some friends and attention!

How To Improve Your Grades And Influence Your Professors

When Joe College reaches into his post office box and pulls out the familiar white slip of grades from the Registrar's office, his spontaneous reaction may well be, "Why didn't I study this semester?"

Starting out on a new foot "next semester" seems to be the utopian ideal of many students —at least for the first few days of the new term.

The Chinook of Casper Junior College in Wyoming recently published suggestions which may be helpful in improving methods of study. Perhaps these will aid in the elimination of regrets at the end of this spring term.

First the Chinook said that mere reading is not studying. To learn you should look away from your book, criticize, analyse, review in your own words, organize the material and integrate it with what you have already learned. Read for understanding, not just "in order to recite." Get the main ideas: the details will then be easy. Try to grasp a comprehensive view.

Underscoring Helpful

Underscoring is helpful, but often too much is underlined. Outlining too may be helpful if the material is not only transferred but studied also.

Learn how to take lecture notes. Don't write down everything. Note the main points of the lecturer and some of the subsidiary points under each. Avoid doing it mechanically. Review and reorganize the notes before they become cold.

Space your study time. An hour spent on Monday and an hour in review on Tuesday will see you better prepared on Wednesday than two hours on Tuesday. Also review your work methodically to avoid hysterical cramming. When test time arrives, note the type of questions used by your instructor, and prepare accordingly.

Recite To Yourself

Recite to yourself. After studying your lesson, determine the essential aspects by asking yourself "just what was this lesson about?" Test yourself by closing your book and answering your own questions on paper.

Get materials for thinking; then think. Thinking is largely the manipulation of facts and concepts. You can't think without them. And if you don't have them clearly in your mind, you can't think clearly about them.

Concentrate! When you study, attempt seriously to put everything else out of your mind. Don't "puut in time." Approach your work as a self-imposed task, rather than as an unwelcome assignment.

Letters To The Editor

To the Editor:

As one student said shortly after the opening of the new dining hall, "It's nice, but . . . "

In the light of his further comments, as well as numerous remarks by many other male Juniatians, I wish to offer two suggestions to those in charge of the dining hall:

1. Arrange to have the lights turned on in the outside vestibule so that the men will have less difficulty finding their coats. Only occasionally are these lights left on.

2. The new entrance has no coat hangers or hooks and the old entrance has far too few. Anything which could be done about these matters would be appreciated by the men.

J CLUB ROOM

resters (the aforementioned sofas, love chairs, chairs) were donated by a furniture manufacturer of Hagerstown, Md., Donovan R. Beachley, alumnus and present member of the Board of Trustees.

However, as the activities of the Y lessened, and those of the J Club increased, the room was taken over by the J-Club and eventually given its name—the J Club Room.

Not Used Much Now

Joe Beyer, chairman of the men's house committe, stated, "The room is not used too much now, except for meetings; for instance, the J Club, athletic managers and room drawings."

Hanging over the fireplace, on the paneled wall, is a large, circular plaque, "Relay Carnival, founded 1895, University of Penna., 1925." According to Harold Brumbaugh, this is one of the finest athletic trophies which the college has.

Full Of Trophies

Two metal track runners, muscles ready for action, stare at the green leather chairs through the glass walls of trophy case. With them are several deflated footballs, a dirt-stained baseball (Juniata 14, Penn State 9), a silver cup (W. F. Sellers Intramural Athletic Trophy), and a silver football (Edwin Donelson Trophy).

Should any dust or dirt settle for a stay in this J Club meeting place it is given eviction notice by the fellows living in the adjoining room. For taking care of the room, these fellows are given a slight reduction in their bill.

And that is the story of a room in the Cloister.

'Wrapped Pants' Latest Feminine Fashion Creation

by Margie Alleman

Men may still have the "last laugh" judging from the latest news of women's fashions.

The stronger sex might well chuckle over the latest example o feminine attire for leisure time "wrapped pants."

Lest it be thought that this is something related to a diaper, let it be understood that it is, at least in looks though not in use.

"Vogue" pictures some rather chic examples of this latest fashion trend—wrapped and tied at the waist and calf. Playsuits come tied at the neck and leg.

Bathing suits, from the male point of view at least, present interesting news in the fashion forecast. The "new trend" according to the edicts of the designers is the fitted torso, copied from the superb fit of man's suit coat. One is left a little hazy as to one question—is there room for the torso to be fitted more so?

For that suit "you'll want to wear everywhere"—according to the advertisers, soft, feminine lines are chic in Spring outfits. White pique trim on a navy background accents the attention that will be given to the careful detailing featured in Spring togs.

Juniata Unable To Cope With Red Devils; Loses Both Games

The Juniata Indians bid to balance their seasonal record was turned down on Wednesday night as Dickinson scored a 73-69 victory. It was the Indians fifth defeat in eight starts this season.

As expected, the contest was a nip and tuck affair from start to finish, the outcome remaining very much in doubt until the final 30 seconds. During this period the Red Devils put on the "freeze" to protect their margin of victory.

Juniata held a 29-22 edge after a wild first period. It was the one-two punch of Holmes Ulsh and Stan Welch that carried the Indians attack in the initial stanza. But the visiors kindled a fire of their own in the second period as they outscored the locals and narrowed the gap to one point at 47-46.

Pace Slows Down

The pace was slowed down at the start of the second half as both teams showed the effects of the high scoring first half. The home boys managed a slim 60-59 margin at the end of the third canto, but saw their victory hopes go out the window as the Red Devils, sparked by sophomore Dick Zilling, turned on the heat going down the home stretch.

The score was tied no less than 7 times during the hectic second half, before Dickinson registered a four point lead, 73-69, and froze the ball until the final whistle.

Holmes Ulsh salvaged some glory from the otherwise disatrous evening as he personally accounted for 36 points, a new high for the season. Ulsh netted his record total on 13 field goals and 10 of 13 from the 15-foot line, which also kept him among the national leaders in ths department.

Following Ulsh in the Indians scoring parade were Stan Welch with 13, and Ray Korody with eight, including six of seven from the foul line. Other scorers were John Stayer, Dave Bayer and George O'Brien, with five, four and three respectively.

HOLMES ULSH—High Scorer

It was Zilling and Wes Overholt who led the drive of the Red Devils. Zilling managed 26 points, while Overholt followed close behind with 24. Both boys hit with outstanding consistency, Zilling mainly on set shots while Overholt relied on driving in under.

The Indians scored on only six of 40 attempts from the field in the second-half, which resulted in their downfall. They had set the pace in the first-half by making good on 19 of 40 attempts.

Score by quarters:

Juniata	29	18	13	9—69
Dickinson	22	24	13	14—73

JV's Lose, 65-60, To Dickinson Frosh.

The charges of Coach Smaltz were handed the same fate as their big brothers as they were defeated by the Dickinson frosh, 65-60, in the preliminary game.

The Little Indians took an early lead, but found themselves on the short end of 17-10 count as the first-quarter ended. However, the juniors turned the tables in the second stanza as they reversed the first-quarter figures to go ahead 28-27 as the half ended. Ron Fleck led the locals in the first-half.

In the third period, the two teams battled on even terms as Dickinson squared things at 44 all. But the visitors turned the tide in the final chapter as they staged a 20-point uprising to win going away.

Fleck led the locals with 20 points, 7 goals and 6 of 8 foul tries. Gordon Stroup and Gerry Walker added more wood to the fire with 25 points between them. Stark led the lossers with 22 points, including a perfect average on eight tries from the foul line.

Score by quarters:

Juniata J. V.	10	18	16	16—60
Dickinson Fr.	17	10	17	20—64

King's Team Takes Girls' Championship

"Cece" King's basketball team won the girls intramural championship Tuesday evening. King's team was tied for first place with team five, captained by Ilene Altemus. At half time the score was tied, 6-6 and it appeared that the favored King team would not take the championship.

In the final quarter King and Monks scored to put their team ahead and put the game on ice. The members of the winning team are: King, Monks, Zehmers, Harvey, Searles and Wiltshire.

The results of this game placed team five in second place. Third place was divided by a play-off between teams two and three. Janet Neikirk, captain of team two, led her team to victory over Vickey Searles.

Interclass basketball began last evening with the seniors playing the sophomores and the juniors against the freshmen. These games are organized on the same idea as the intramural games. They will be played on Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

In Retrospect

Greene Optimistic For Cagers Outcome

by Paul Good

"According to the record, we are not supposed to win anymore games," stated Coach Doc Greene when asked about the possibilities of winning the remaining games on the basketball schedule. Continuing, Doc Greene said, "If the team should ever get on and start hitting we could possibly win more, and I have confidence that they will get on one of these games."

When questioned further about the HAZ defense that worked in confusing Susquehanna, he stated that it is a good thing to know and that he plans to use it occasionally. Doc said that he is undecided on what he'll do about the vacancy created by the withdrawal of Joe Mruk from school. "In all probability," he said, "a man will be advanced from the J. V. ranks."

So far this season Juniata has garnered a total of 426 points. The opponents have a total of 423. Holmes Ulsh has a total of 128 points for an average of 16 points per game. Ulsh hit an all season high against Dickinson on Wednesday when he hit the mesh for 36 points. Stan Welch is second in the scoring department with 73 points, for an average of 9.12 points per game. John Stayer, Dave Bayer and Ray Korody have each hit the mesh for 59, 29 and 47 points, respectively.

52.87 Points Per Game

The Indians have scored 52.87 points per game so far this season while their opponents have scored 53.25 points. They have played eight games, winning three and losing five for a percentage of .375. The Greenemen have broke even on the home court, winning two and losing two, but on the road they have been only able to salvage one victory while dropping three.

During the exam period, the Indians won and lost a game. The tribe hit the road for Beaver Falls to meet the Covies of Geneva and came out on the short end of the score. The Indians were unable to hold the Geneva team in the second quarter and the home team racked up 30 points while the College Hill quintet garnered only six. High point man for the Greenemen was lanky John Stayer who hit the mesh for 13 points. For the Covies, Al Vlasic was high with 14 points.

Beat Crusaders

In the second game of the exam period the Indians did a repeat performance by defeating the Crusaders from Susquehanna 56-35. The Staggmen scored first, but the Doc Greene charges roared back to take the lead which they held throughout the remainder of the game. Ulsh was the big gun for the home team with 17 points.

The Indians in the next few weeks will be put to a severe test. This will definitely be the hardest part of the season. St. Francis and Westminster are among the top cage contenders among small colleges.

Indians Seek To Avenge Loss; Meet E-Towners Sat. At Home

Tomorrow night the Indians on College Hill leave their wigwams and go on the warpath to seek revenge for the bitter defeat placed on them by Elizebethtown, Dec. 10. They lost to the E-Towners by a score of 67-53.

Varsity Basketball Schedule

FEBRUARY
4—E-Town	Home
8—St. Francis	Home
11—Lebanon Valley	Away
13—Westminster	Away
16—Drexel	Away
17—Ursinus	Away
22—Lebanon Valley	Home
25—F and M	Away
MARCH
2—Albright	Home

The two mainstays on the E-Town squad are Bill Foster and Don Haverstock. In the first game Foster had 17 points while Haverstock had 18 points. Of these two men Foster was the high scorer on the team last year with 222 points and so far this year he has kept a sissling pace that threatens to better his old score.

After beating Juniata, E-Town has met with defeat more times than victory. The Indians hope to keep the ball rolling this way tomorrow night.

To do a good job on the E-Towners, Doc Greene will probably call upon Stayer, Korody, Ulsh, Welch and Bayer to start. Howett, Loschiavio and Wenger will then step in and give a helping hand.

The boys have been placed through a tough series of practices and all seem eager to even the score. Ulsh had 20 points in the first game followed by Stayer with 15 points.

Program Cover Designs Wanted

Students are urged to compete for the honor of designing the cover for "The Pirates of Penzance" program. Those people who have the least spark of artistic talent should plan to submit a cover-drawing to Prof. Johnson or Corrie Sollenberger. Sample cover designs from which you may get some ideas will be on display at the library.

Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera "The Pirates of Penzance" will be broadcast tomorrow night from 10 to 11.

It is expected that crew chairmanships for "Pirates" will be announced Monday. Places are still open for a number of crew members. Interested students should contact Corena Sollenberger or Lois Esaley.

Weston Overholt, Dickinson's cage captain, set a record last season when he played against the Indians at Dickinson by scoring 39 points. Wednesday night he connected for 24 points.

Of the 15 new students, there are ten men and five women. Five of the new students are transfers.

Of the so-called new students, two have attended Juniata before and are returning this semester. They are Joan Weaver, a sophomore, and William Corcelius, a junior.

Attending Juniata this semester are six foreign students.

Busy Pen May Earn Student $25

Get your brain and your pen busy. Someone is going to earn a $25 prize, and it may be you!

Through the generosity of the late Dr. E. J. Stackpole of the Harrisburg Telegraph, an award is made each year to the Juniata student who has written the most important contribution to the history of the Juniata Valley.

After the period of student research, from Feb. 1 to May 1, the history staff of the College will recommend a student to receive the prize upon approval of the faculty. Entries will be judged on the following merits:

1. logical arrangement of materials (table of contents, bibliography)
2. relevant facts, diagrams, or pictures
3. paragraphing, spelling, good diction
4. proportion of subject

Information may be gathered from old records and personal interviews. Old or new photographs will also add to the value of the essays.

Three typewritten copies should be presented (for the donor, the college library files, and the student's own possession.)

Further information concerning this contest may be obtained from the history department.

Outing Club Takes Cold Vacation; Strait, Howe, Miller Carry Tycoon Vote

by Renie Hebrank

Dear Buzz:

Home was never like this! At least that's what the members of the Outing Club said after their vacation at McKorkle's cabin last week. In spite of the chill wind blowing down Spruce Creek Valley, all these hearty pioneers returned to J. C. feeling tip-top for the new semester.

The memories of fire-side singing and of marshmellows toasting on the red embers will remain with the campers for many a day. Miss Doyle and Jack Buckle, the chaperons, have even forgiven the malicious fiend who let the fire go out one cold night. Brrr!

Fred Strait is the new president of the Tycoon Club. After casting ballots three times, Don Howe was slected as vice president and Pat Miller as secretary-treasurer. This election of club officers at semesters is a new innovation on campus and really presents quite a few advantages over the old system. It gives the new officers a chance to become more fully acquainted with their duties before a new school year rolls around.

A hot debate took place here on Jan. 29 when members of the Debate Club matched wits. The question was: Resolved—that the basic non-agricultural industries in the United States should be nationalized. Don Norris and Galen Frysinger supported the affirmitive against negative Al Crease and Lillian Raycroft. At next week's meeting members who will attend the state tournament in March will be announced. The debate will take place at the University of Pittsburgh.

Don Snider, the youth director of the Church of the Brethren, spoke to the Dunkard Club on Feb. 2. The meeting was conducted as an open cabinet meeting where problems of youth were discussed.

The same evening, Retta Weightman spoke to the IVCF in the Women's Day Student Room. Portia Baugher led the singing.

Feb. 5-11 marks Spiritual Emphasis week at Juniata this year. Other campus activities cease so that students may devote full attention to this week. I think sometimes religion gets a bit lost in all the hustle of college, and we can use a gentle reminder now and then.

Looks like we all can dust off our skiis and snow shovels. Maybe winter has come at last. Take it easy on the ski slopes.

As ever,
Hank

Job Outlook

Future For Future Elementary School Teaching Is Good

by Bob Hess

Generally speaking, there is a serious shortage of elementary school teachers throughout the nation. This shortage varies from state to state but is more acute in areas where teachers' salaries are lowest or where there are other better paying positions available.

The turnover is exceptionally high in elementary teaching. This is caused for the most part by young women leaving their jobs for marriage. Add to this the fact that replacements are needed for those teachers holding emergency certificates and you get some idea as to the number of positions to be filled.

Qualifications Vary

Every prospective teacher should acquaint himself with the requirements in the state in which he plans to teach. The educational qualifications needed for certification vary considerably from one state to another. Fifteen states and the District of Columbia require four years college as a minimum for the lowest regular certificate; 23 states require two or three years of college training; other states have even lower minimum requirements.

However, the trend is toward increasing the requirements. As a result, all prospective teachers should plan to secure a bachelor's degree.

3 Ways to Advance

Opportunities for advancement are by way of small salary increases in the same position, shifting to larger school systems or better paying localities, and by appointment to supervisory, administrative, or other types of specialized work. The best opportunities will go to those having more than minimum qualifications.

In 1946-47 median salaries for elementary teachers were approximately as follows: $2,900 in cities with populations of 100,000 or more; $2,300 in cities of 30,000 to 100,000; $2,125 in cities of 10,000 to 30,000; $1,950 in cities of 5,000 to 10,000; $1,875 in towns of 2,500 to 5,000. There is a trend toward establishing salary scales for elementary teachers as high as those for secondary teachers.

JWSF Fund Drive To Kick Off Monday

Only Senate Sanctioned Campaign Aids 5 Groups

With a goal of $1950, the JWSF Fund Drive will kick off Monday, according to Richard Coffman, student chairman of the campaign.

RICHARD COFFMAN

The only Senate approved fund drive on campus, the JWSF push is held annually in an effort to raise funds for various agencies of charity and relief. In past years, average student contributions have been $2.

Funds collected through this drive will go to the aid of five beneficiary agencies. They are:

The Foreign Student Aid Fund. This fund has helped defray the expenses of Peter Mayer.

Stover Kulp Aided

Stover Kulp, who recently returned to Africa after a furlough in the United States. His son, Philip, is a student here.

J. M. Blough, a missionary with a record of over 40 years service in India, the last nine of which have been without furlough.

World Student Service Fund which administers to needy students all over the world.

The American Red Cross.

As head of the program of student soliciting, Rex Hershberger has chosen the following students to assist him:

Two chapel programs next week will emphasize the JWSF drive.

The speaker for Monday will be M. R. Zigler (see separate story). Wednesday, two movies illustrating the need for the JWSF drive are to be shown: "Seeds of Destiny" and "The Hungry Mind". G. Wayne Glick will speak on JWSF Friday.

In the girls dormitory, Benie Roberts and her assistans Elly Formwalt, Janet Boland and Trudy Griffin will cover Brumbaugh Hall; Renie Hebrank and her assistant Lois Ann Wagner, the Oneidas; and Dottie Lehman, working with Retta Weightman, Founders hall.

Janice Carper is JWSF representatives in Geigier House.

Cloisters Also Represented

Heading the drive in Cloister's arch, George Gaugler will work with Don Kagarise and Tom Shoemaker. In the wing, Skip Hines will solicit with Bud Kreider, Tom Gates, Vernon Showalter and Herman Groninger assisting him.

Joe Hulgus and Bill Korman are managing the drive in the Lodge. George Cruser is assisting Korman; Hulgus has not yet named his assistant.

Non-resident boarding students will be contacted by Walt Bandurak and his assistants. Non-resident married couples will be contacted by Lake Clemmer. Mr. and Mrs. Orville Keim are handling Village residents' contributions.

Dr. and Mrs. Crosby and Dr. Donald M. Rockwell will collect the faculty donations; Hilda Nathan and Dean Sollenberger those of the administration.

Lock Is Off The Door At 'House Of Cokes, Smokes'

The lock is off the door, and the booths, coffee cups and lemon blend glasses in "Skips" are back at work again while the stools have been reupholstered. A backbar of natural wood will be installed this week.

The House of Smokes and Cokes clientele will see themselves in new booth mirrors soon, and the "Skips" sign will be fixed to light their way.

What Do You Want?

Joe Ciampa, new owner and manager of "Skips", stated, "I hope to give the students exactly what they want." And if there is something students would like to see among things present, the management wants to know about it. (Sorry, the moon and accompanying silver platter are not available.)

Wanting to go into business for himself, Joe bought the $16,000 establishment, planning to build a three-room apartment above. He hopes to enlarge if he is able to obtain adjacent ground.

Student Help To Be Used

The new owner of "El Skipo" and former J. C. student stated, "I want to use student help as much as possible, except for the cook." Mrs. Mary Jones, of Huntingdon, rules the hamburgers and cheeseburgers.

And, here are a couple of sizzling tips for J. C. inhabitants who may be found residing in "Skips" anytime between 7 a. m. and 11 p. m.—(1) no, non, nein on credit, and (2) says Joe, "I've got the best cook in town!"

Original Video Scripts Called For In Contest

"The Columbia Broadcasting System and World Video Inc. believe that some of tomorrow's most gifted television writers may be found among the large number of college and university students of today."

With this in mind, these two organizations have launched a nationwide television drama-writing contest for college students.

The contest, known as CBS Awards, began Feb. 3 and ends June 30. No entries will be accepted if postmarked later than June 20, 1950. The four monthly competition periods are Feb. 3 to March 20, April 1 to 20, May 1 to 20 and June 1 to 20.

Competition is open only to students 18 years of age or over. All entries must be original television dramas that have never been produced on the air or published.

Entry blanks must be obtained for each individual script entered. Rules and required blanks must be obtained by writing directly to:

Director, CBS Awards, Headquarters, 15 E. 47th St., New York 17, N. Y.

Only one prize will be awarded each month. The amount will be $500 if the winning script is of one-hour performance length or $250 if it runs 30 minutes.

Frosh Party Is Next Sat.

It's "Holiday for Hearts" at the Frosh "stag and drag" party set for next Saturday at 8:15 p. m. in the gym.

According to Gene Kline, president of the class of '53, committees are being organized but more people are needed.

Heading the decorations committee is Len Hickman; Bob Frain will produce the entertainment while Anne Mullin is in charge of refreshments.

Patterson Gives Diathermy Set

Perhaps coaches Doc Greene, Bill Smaltz and Mike Snider will now feel a little more at ease during their respective periods as head of Juniata's varsity sports. At any rate, sleep lost over injuries to key players will be further reduced by Dr. William B. Patterson's donation to the athletic department of a short wave diathermy set.

According to Dr. Patterson, this is a type of machine used in the field of physiotherapy which applies the principle of heat in the relief of pain from injuries.

"Most colleges have one," said the doctor, "and it will relieve muscle sprains and similar injuries even better than morphine or other such drugs."

The set was formerly located in the office of Dr. Patterson. He has had it replaced by a newer model, and therefore presented the older set to the college.

"Last football season, the machine proved indispensible in treating the injured knee of Meteor Mike Dzvonar," added the doctor.

Choir Diary Explains Semi-Sanity Of Returned Songsters

by Don Robinson

We dedicate this diary to all you unlucky people who have to associate with the semi-sane members of the A Capella Choir. We hope that by reading this you can appreciate their plight more, and better understand their language.

As preparations for the choir trip were made, it was decided that a car would be taken in addition to the bus to provide more room. It was also suggested that all the undesirable characters be made to ride in the car for the good of the rest of the choir. The result was that Glen Zug, Fred Bratton, Clyde Johnson, John Keener and Don Robinson rode in the car.

Both groups thoroughly enjoyed the trip. The main difference between them was that while the conversation and jokes told in the bus were purewhite, the language in the car was largely in technicolor.

Saturday, Jan. 28

The choir left at 10 a. m. Everybody was in a state of confusion, expecially Prof. Rowland who, when asked if we were going to practice, said "I'm going to get it now," and hurried down the street to meet his wife who had just stepped off the bus.

Sunday, Jan. 29

Today we lost our accompanist, Louise Cray. Due to her illness Gladys Moore and Tom Shoemaker were forced to take over.

Monday, Jan. 30

Our first high school concert was scheduled for today. Thirty-five girls swooned over "bow-tie" Fletcher. We had the afternoon and evening off. The entertainment ranged from bowling to getting "Eek" Bowser lost in downtown Philadelphia.

Tuesday, Jan. 31

Today was the second high school concert. "Gootch" Schaffner poured on the steam to overshadow Fletcher in the crooning department.

Elma Stine has been of little value to the choir lately as Jay Weist has been in the audience the last few days.

Wednesday, Feb. 1

Flashy Flash! At last we have a lover in the choir. "Muscles" Johnson has started to operate. The victim is blushing Jo Chiodi. Doris Mickle, Laura Hollingshead and Jody Siemon founded the "Giggler's Club" today and are going to hold a contest to see who has the silliest giggle.

Thursday, Feb. 2

The choir sang in Ephrata. Fletcher and Schaffner combined their talents to cause all the girls to slide down in their seats and sigh when the quartet swooned. In the evening Zug got Bratton, Keener and Robinson blind dates. It is rumored that Robinson and Zug are no longer buddies. Johnson is making gradual progress.

Now that the choir has invaded Pennsylvania Dutch territory they have adopted a new password. It is Friewillige Funkkespritzer. Today is the last high school concert and the trio, quartet and choir put everything they had into it to make it a good one. Beanie Roberts joined the "Giggler's Club" and won the contest. Johnson's progress stopped temporarily.

Saturday, Feb. 4

The choir gave the best concert of the trip to an audience of better than 500 in the York Church today. Everybody is getting tired from the long week of singing and standing. Johnson seems to have plenty of pep left, though.

Sunday, Jan. 5

Reinforcements arrive. Several carloads of husbands, financees, and steadies showed up to relieve the frustration for the last few concerts. On the way home from the last concert Jody Siemon asked for a smootch from the "Gootch" and got it right on the kisser. Everybody arrived home tired but very happy.

World Traveler Is Chapel Speaker Mon.

Dr. M. R. Zigler, representative chairman of The Church of the Brethren will speak in chapel next Monday. A former secretary of the Brethren Service Commission, Dr. Zigler has traveled in China (for UNRRA) and other parts of the Far East as well as Africa, Europe and the Near East.

Recently, Dr. Zigler spent three years in Europe where he headed the relief activities of The Church of the Brethren. The speaker has also worked with the displaced persons program.

During his stay on Juniata campuus, Dr. Zigler is preaching at the Stone Church on Sunday morning. He will speak with IRC and all interested students at a tea in I. Harvey Brumbaugh House, Monday at 2:30.

Armacost Wins Chairmanship

Dave Armacost, Juniatian editor, won the Senate chairmanship of publications.

According to Gene Roddy, vice-president of the Senate, "a fair number" of students participated in the election which took place last Tuesday.

J Club Not Blamed

It was not the aim of these columns last week to imply that it was the fault of the J Club that the Cloister Club Room has not been put to better use.

The name, J Club Room, may be unfortunate because the only connections that the club has with the Room is that it is used for their meetings and that several members of the club have been assigned to take care of it.

There is no reason why any club should be responsible for the use and care of the room. However, any club which is in a position to undertake the care and rehabilitation of the room would be doing the men students a great service. Candy and soft drink concessions in the room could provide much of the money that would be needed to install lamps, magazines and recreational equipment such as ping pong tables.

The men's house committee should look into the feasibility of these plans.

A Day To Remember

Jan. 30 is a day to remember in the history of Juniata College. On this day the new ultramodern $100,000 dining room and the Swigart Music Hall were opened for use.

These improvements are the first steps in a building program which includes the construction of a Memorial Physical Education Building, a men's dormitory and an addition to the library.

They are the realization of the dreams and plans outlined by a planning commission made up of 70 alumni five years ago and the result of generous contributions of time and money from friends of the College.

Let us remember Jan. 30 and the many people whose vision, undaunted effort and gifts made possible this improved Juniata community.

Letters To The Editor

To the Editor:

Since last week you saw fit to devote about two full columns to some justifiable weaping an wailing over one lonely room on campus, just 23 lines to as many graduates, and no space to the long-awaited dining room; perhaps you will be interested in another lonely and vacant room on campus and another problem.

Those students who were here before the remodeling of the Old Chapel will remember that it once served as a sort of recreation hall almost every evening for numerous students who liked to play table tennis and shuffleboard. Since that room is no longer available and since our new gym is still in the uncertain future, recreation on campus for those who do not care to run themselves ragged on the basketball floor is considerably hampered.

Partial Solution

However, there is a partial solution to this problem, and, taking Dr. Masters' advice, I, from a mountain top, wish to suggest it. The seldom used W. A. A. room beneath the gym already has some facilities for recreation, and those who have used it on those infrequent occasions when it has been open have, I feel, enjoyed it. Why cannot it be open more often? It was open during Summer school, was it not?

One objection to its use, I understand, is that the W. A. A. has paid to have it furnished, and that they wish to keep it in good condition. The club is justified in feeling this.

However, is it fair to the non-W. A. A. students, the majority, that this club should have what amounts to a virtual monopoly on the only indoor recreation on campus that is midway in strenuousness between basketball, bell towering, and Coke bottle bowling? What is the government's ruling on an economic monopoly in restraint of recreation in our time?

Suggests Program

Could not the administration make arrangements whereby:

1. the W. A. A. would have the use of room for its meetings as now;

2. on all other nights when it would not be competing with other campus functions and when there are no girls' basketball games, that the room be open for recreation, under supervision, if necessary;

3. the existing facilities would be put in first class shape by Mr. Guy Hall and additions to them made whenever possible;

4. the administration would guarantee the condition of the room to the W. A. A.

Though recreation has been an issue for some time, particularly with Spring imminent, that is, I feel, a problem worthy of Senate consideration and editorial comment.

Quayton R. Stottlemyer

Editorial Reply:

The question of recreational facilities for all students is indeed a worthy one, but it should not cloud the issue of the disposition of the Cloister Club Room. Incidentally, the WAA opened their club room on several occassions last semester for ping pong and dancing.

It is very likely that they will open the room this semester also and more often if students will use it.

To the Editor:

Conservation is just as great an issue today as it was 50 years ago in Teddy Roosevelt's era, but apparently this is not the attitude taken by those responsible for the J Club Room.

Last week's edition carried a feature exposing the condition of this retreat for wearers of the J. After investigation I found that the Room was worse than reported.

Although there was an editorial supplimenting the article, there were no objectives mentioned to aid in cleaning up the situation.

Here are a few remedies as I see them:

1 Turn the Room into a men's lounge.

2 Put in candy, milk and cigarette machines.

3 From profits purchase magazines and in due time, a TV set.

4 Appoint a responsible staff to act as custodians, and in general to keep order.

5 Recondition the existing furniture, etc.

6 Move the J Club to other quarters.

Now for some details on how to accomplish the above six conditions that may seem more like pipe dreams than potentialities.

Senate action through the Chairman of Men's House would be about all that would be needed to accomplish point 1.

No Milk Machine?

Where on campus is there a milk machine? If my memory serves me correctly there was at one time a machine in the Room but I can't seem to find out what happened to it.

Smoking is an accepted norm of our culture. This is the best defense I can muster in support of a cigarette machine for the proposed lounge. As students, would you rather personally benefit from the sale of cigarettes or have the stores benefit.

In this case it seems correct to say that the end justifies the means. If to do a little harm (if the sale of cigarettes is a "harm") accomplishs a great good, then let's go to it.

The something-for-nothing philosophy is still with us. Those persons who receive material gains from the College for taking care of the Room are not producing. A responsible staff that would take pride in its work should, and must be appointed if this project is to become a success.

Recondition Furniture

Reconditioning and salvaging the existing furnishings shouldn't be too difficult a task for a group of public spirited students. Little furniture, if any, has been so poorly kept up that reclamation is not possible.

Here's where the difficulty lies: evicting the J Club. If the rooms in Students Hall provide meeting places for all other campus organizations, why not the J Club too?

Remember that this is an attack on principle and does not mean to cast aspersions on personalities.

Waste is an encroaching juggernaut which gains momentum every time we turn our backs to let it roll forward. Little do we realize, however, that someday it catches up with us. That someday is now, so get behind this or any constructive program to put waste of the J Club Room to work for us.

Robert Volpitto

To the Editor:

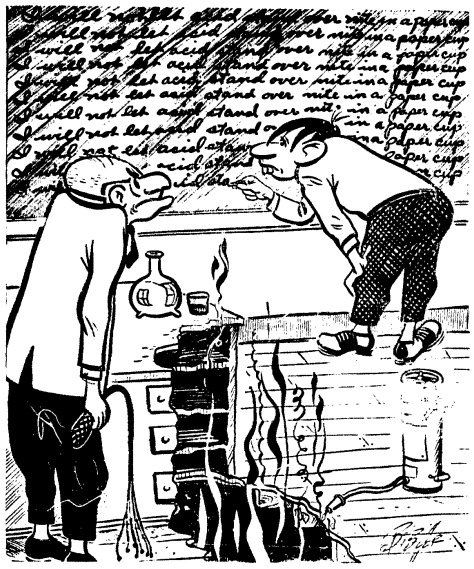
This J Club business is all very well, but how about first clearing away the debris from the last issue raised on The Juniatian's editorial pages. In short, what ever became of the Dining Hall Question (family style vs. switch tsyle)?

The last the students heard of the matter was the following paragraph in the Dec. 9, 1949 issue of this paper:

"Results of the opinion poll will be presented to the Senate Tuesday night (Dec. 13) with the recommendation that the student representatives act in accordance with the wishes of the student body."

The Juniatian is fast acquiring a reputation for "muck-raking," the raising of issues which are never resolved. Good luck on your new venture to make something of unused College property . . . if you get that far.

Renie Hebrank



Editorial Reply:

It is true that The Juniatian has raised a number of issues in the last few months. However, it is not true that The Juniatian has forced issues or that it has left those issues which were raised unresolved.

In the first semester of the school year, eight major issues were brought before the student body by means of letters to the editor, editorials and surveys. These were the issues of February elections, student laundry facilities, faculty vs. new building, granting concessions to private individuals for personal profit, cafeteria vs. family-style dining, Who's Who, new courses and an eight game football schedule.

6 Issues Settled

Of these, six have been settled or are under consideration. On Monday the Senate will hear arguments for and against holding elections in February. The laundry is equipped with a new laundramat, needy students may operate concessions for profit upon the approval of the Concessions Committee. A month ago the Senate voted to retain the College affiliation with "Who's Who Among American University and College Students," and recently the publicity office has released an eight game football schedule for this year.

Only 2 Unresolved

The issues of faculty vs. new building and cafeteria vs. family-style dining are the only ones that remain unresolved. Obviously, in these cases as in the former, The Juniatian could not an would not resolve the situation. It can only present the facts honestly.

Thus, we find ourselves with six settled issues out of eight—a pretty good .750 per centage in any league.

TOMMY

This is Tommy again saying it's great to be back. The second month of 1950 is speeding by with news of hydrogen bombs and coal strikes.

Since this is Tommy's first appearance this year, awards will be extended to various deserving persons for services rendered.

Operator of the First Semester: Kathie Plank, the only girl on campus to Tommy's knowledge who can keep three men going at the same time. Galen Frysinger, Bob Swindel and some character from Steelton are the lucky guys.

In 1949: Prexy got his Dining Hall, Armacost got his editorship (five months early), the frosh copped an All Class Night cup, but the realization of a finer dream than any of these went unherald. We quote from an award presented the hero by Dan Cupid himself:

In the past year Skip's lost its owner and suddenly George's Banana Room was put to use. Now Skip's is open under new student management—Joe Ciampa—and Tommy will again have a theater of operations.

Tommy knows: Mac not only frequents the outer realms after dark, but also shows his grizzled countenance during the day. He was getting his hair cut and was overheard talking about the weather, Prof. Rowland, and the Choir trip. Tut, tut, Mac! You shouldn't carry tales away from school.

Choir trip: Warning to Jo Chiodi and Johnny Johnson, Gladys and Bob Mohr as well as Gwen Nyce and Gerry Hartzel either began or sewed up the mad race on one of Prof. (Cupid) Rowlands' pet excursions.

This Tommy liked: Carol Trotter, Ken Wenger, Anne Weber and Bill Carpenter have discovered a pleasant way to spend leisure hours. They have found that a combination of social and intellectual enjoyment can be secured from a good game of canasta.

Operator of the week: Michael Pastuszek has obviously become oriented to JC social life in a rush, Helen Wentzler being the object of his reflections.

Third Oneida complains that they miss Dosey Chase's roller-skating up and down the hall. What's wrong, Dosey, need oil.

Doc Seibert used to say to his psych classes, "Those who glory in finding their names in print are generally maladjusted victims of an inferiority complex." Remember that, kiddies.

Indians Return Earlier Defeat; Beat Elizabethtown, 62 - 57

After losing a heart-breaker to Dickinson a few nights before, Juniata came storming back on Saturday evening to take the measure of Elizabethtown College 62-57. The win gave the Indians an even break on the season with the E'town cagers. The visitors won the opener on their own floor, 67-53.

Although it lacked the steady scoring punch of the Dickinson game, it nevertheless provided the fans with another nip and tuck thriller.

Holmes Ulsh once again spearheaded the Indians' opening attack. Following up his magnificent 36 point performance against Dickinson, "Old Reliable" accounted for nine of Juniata's 13 points in the opening round. However, E'town's Bill Foster proved just as effective, with the result that the locals trailed, 13-15, as the first quarter ended.

The second period found the two rivals continuing to match baskets, as John Brunner opened up for the visitors and Stan Welch and Dave Bayer gave Ulsh a helping hand. But the half found E'town maintaining their two-point advantage at 32-30.

Use Air-Tight Defense

The Indians really went on the warpath in the third chapter, as they combined a sizzling scoring attack with an air-tight defense to pile up a 46-39 lead going into the home stretch. During this action the locals hit for nine consecutive points before the visitors broke the ice. As it turned out, this provided the Indians with their winning margin.

But the E'town boys were not through yet, and they rallied to set the pace in the final period. At one time they pulled up to within three points of the winners at 53-50. But Ulsh once again came through in the clutch as he staged a foul shooting exhibition. This, coupled with field goals by himself and Welch, more than offset the three quick goals tallied by Elizabethtown.

Ulsh led the Indians scoring parade with 24 tallies, as he connected for nine goals on 26 shots. He added six more from the foul line on nine attempts. Welch and Bayer also connected for double figures with 15 and 13 respectively. Ray Korody, with seven, and John Stayer, with three, rounded out the Indian's total.

Foster Held To 14

For Elizabethtown it was John Brunner leading the attack with 17 markers. High scoring Bill Foster was held to 14 points, and came in second.

E'town made only 23 of 90 tries from the field, while Juniata made a like number on 76 tries for a mark of 30 per cent. They also sank 16 of 27 free throw attempts for a .592 percentage.

Smaltzmen Edged, 59-55, By E-Town

The Elizabethtown Jayvees defeated the Juniata Jayvees in the preliminary to the varsity game last Saturday night. The little Indians led throughout the first half, but faltered in the third period, as the visitors went on to win, 59-55.

The locals got off to a good start as they managed a 15-11 first period advantage. E'town came back to outscore the Smaltzmen in the second frame, but Juniata remained out in front by 24-22 at the half.

Just as in the varsity game which followed, the preliminary attraction was blown wide open in the third period. But, unlike their varsity brothers, the juniors found themselves on the wrong end of the count. Bolton and Lehman caught fire for the visitors in this canto as the Indians were outscored 23-13, presenting the E'towners with a 45-37 bulge at the three-quarter mark.

The home boys struck back in the final chapter, but were unable to overcome the winners third period margin. The final whistle found Elizabethtown on the long end of a 59-55 count.

John Gates and Fran Townsend, each with 11, and Ron Fleck with 10, bore the brunt of the Indians' offensive work. Gordie Stroup and Dave LeFevre added more wood to the fire with nine and seven respectively.

Bolton, with 18, and Lehman, with 11, combined their scoring tactics for Elizabethtown in upsetting the little Indians' apple cart.

Jayvees Defeat Meteorites, 49-32

The Juniata Jayvees met Mike Dzvonar's Meteorites in the preliminary to the varsity tilt on Wednesday night. The little Indians snapped their two game losing streak as they handed the Meteorites a 49-32 defeat.

After taking an early lead, the Jayvees continued to an 11-7 first quarter edge. The Meteorites momentarily closed the gap in the second chapter, but a last minute spurt sent the score soaring again as the juniors held a 24-17 lead at the intermission.

Meteorites Reduce Gap

The Meteorites came back to outscore the winners in the third period and reduced the gap to 34-28. But the curtain came down in the final stanza as the little Indians romped to a convincing victory.

Ron Fleck, Jerry Walker and Fran Townsend all shared scoring honors for the winners, Fleck connecting for 10, while the latter two hit for nine each. Dave LeFevre contributed six, while Don McFarland, making his initial appearance for Juniata, sank a like number.

Young Connects For 12

For the Meteorites it was Dick Young out front with 12 counters. George Smith was close behind with ten. In addition to Dzvonar, the Meteorite roster included, Aldo Bonomi, Phil Chabody, Dave "Hook Shot" Croft and Tony Segalovich.

Quintet Starts Travels Tomorrow; Vie With Valleymen at Annville

Tomorrow's game with Lebanon Valley of Annville will mark the beginning of 1000 miles of travel for the College quintet.

The Greenemen will meet L V tomorrow, the towering Titans on Monday, Drexel on Thursday and Ursinus on Friday, Feb. 17.

L V has won seven games, while losing five. The Dutchmen are rated sixth in the nation among small colleges on offense. Late in January they had garnered a total of 756 points. Top man Becker has paced the Valleymen for an average of 17.3 points per game.

The Lebanon Valley team has been bolstered recently with the addition of 6'4" Al Murawski, who has turned in a remarkable performance to date.

Titans Rank 9th

New Wilmington will be the scene of the Braves battle with the Titans of Westminster College on Monday. The Titans rank ninth in the nation among small colleges. They have amassed 1041 points for an average of 74.4 points per game.

Westminster has been on the short end of the score only twice and has won 13 games. The two defeats were at the hands of Seton Hall and St. Francis. St. Francis beat them by two points. The Titans have beaten the Covies of Geneva twice.

All of the starting five Towering Titans are six feet or over. They are led by Al McCullough, 6'3", who has been high point man in most of the games.

Battle the Drexel Dragon

On Thursday the Indians meet the Drexel Dragon. Drexel Tech has won five and lost two. The team has nine lettermen. Al McCart and John Svchak are the big guns of the team.

The Indians' 1000-mile jaunt will come to an end when they meet the men of Collegeville next Friday. The Ursinus five has won two, while dropping seven. Bob Swett, 6' 7" center, will probably give the Braves some real backboard headaches.

Braves Lose, 76-49, To Frankie Five

St. Francis' hoop-happy basketball quintet roared into Huntingdon on Wednesday for an engagement with the College Hill five. When the smoke of the battle cleared, the Indians found themselves on the wrong end of a convincing 76-49 reading on the scoreboard.

Big Bill Wanish, the visitors' 6'2" forward, personally accounted for 32 of his teams total points, as the Frankies handed the Redmen their sixth reverse of the season against four wins.

Kept Pace In First Quarter

Juniata kept pace with the high-scoring invaders throughout the opening chapter. Holmes Ulsh dunked six of the locals nine points as St. Francis took a slim 11-9 lead. But the Indians' victory hopes were slightly dimmed in the second frame. It was at this point that Wanish entered the festivities and promptly sparked his team to a 21 point outburst. The Juniata offense bogged down, with the result that the visitors enjoyed a 32-21 halftime margin.

St. Francis resumed their scoring tactics in the third period by sinking 25 counters to hold a commanding 57-33 bulge at the three-quarter mark. With Wanish still going strong, the Frankies added 19 more to their staggering total in the home stretch to win going away.

Ulsh Is Leading Scorer

Ulsh was the Warriors leading scorer once again as he netted 17 points. Ray Korody canned eight markers to cop second honors. Coach Greene cleared the bench in the final minutes, with the result that almost every cager broke into the scoring column.

WAA Girls Vie In Sports Day Contest

Juniata girls have been invited to participate in Sports Day, held at Penn State, Feb. 25. The girls, upperclass members of WAA, will compete with five other colleges in badminton, swimming, basketball, bowling and volley ball.

Girls' interclass basketball games started last week as seniors tied the sophomores 15-15. The same night, the frosh lost to the juniors with a 34-25 score. Tuesday night, the juniors took the seniors 34-9 while the sophomores sunk 16 points to the frosh 11.

Five Men Take 1200 Mile Jaunt Into Canada

It's been done—a 1200 mile trip for only $20, with 35 miles of hiking thrown in.

Leaving Juniata on Wednesday, Jan. 25, Don Kagarise, George Sprague, Robert Lowery, Rex Hershberger and Dave Kennedy started out into Canada via "Mule Train", Hershberger's 1941 Buick sedan.

Kennedy got the idea of a trek from summer canoe trips he made in that region. Dr. Edmund H. Kase, Jr., who is founder of the Grove City Outing Club, suggested a winter trip and advised the fellows on an itinerary.

Buy Souvenir Tams

They bought their hats, which are officially called Scottish curling tams, from a Scotch logger.

The boys ate two meals at a logging camp—this was cook's day off for "Mammy" Kagarise. For 50 cents they received all the food they could eat, including cold roast pork and beef, potatoes, corn, homemade bread and all kinds of baked gods topped off by coconut cream pie. The loggers were not permitted to talk at the table for fear of fights stemming from the great variety of nationalities.

While the temperature at Juniata was a balmy 75 degrees, in Canada it was so cold that water would freeze three feet away from the fireplace. However, Kennedy states that is was nonpenetrating cold and that the boys were comfortable in wool shirts and light parkas.

No Snow For Snowshoes

Snowshoes which the group had brought along were strictly excess baggage, since there was no snow at all. While riding in the logging truck, "Indian Joe" Kennedy remarked to the driver that they were crazy for carrying them. The driver, being a sensible fellow, agreed that the whole group was crazy.

The boys arrived back at Juniata at 10:15 a. m. Wednesday, Feb. 1, just in time to miss Chapel.

Close Harmony Foursome Travel, Sing, Garner Laughs Together

A new musical group has made its debut on the Juniata campus—the Varsity Male Quartet.

Drawn from the ranks of the A Capella Choir, the group is composed of Charles Redenberger, first tenor; Clair "Goochy" Schaffner, second tenor; Gerald Hartzel, first bass; and Alan Fletcher, second bass.

This Varsity foursome gave their premier presentation at the Juniata Women's League in Johnstown. Following this first success they sang at an FTA meeting at the College.

Join In 49th Choir Tour

Then came the Father and Son Banquet at the Lutheran Church. And finally they were fully prepared for their highlight performances on the choir's 49th annual concert tour.

On the road the quartet's zany antics, no less than their vocalizing, were a great hit—especially in high schools. Two of their specialities were the swing version of "It Had To Be You" and an original by our own Prof. Rowlalnd, "If One and One Make Two."

"Gooch" Schaffner was reportedly the comedian of the group. In fact, after one high school performance one of his fans hinted that he might even be able to replace Bob Hope!

Clubs Look To Future Despite Temporary Lull; Plan Trips, Movies

by Renie Hebrank

Spiritual Emphasis Week on campus brought many club activities to a temporary halt. However, future plans were not neglected.

Sherwood Cordier or his alternate, Donald Treese, will accompany the debate club to the state forensic tournament March 10 and 11. The group will go to the University of Pittsburgh where they will compete with other Pennsylvania speech enthusiasts.

Rev. H. L. Alley will speak before Volunteers of Feb. 14. He will illustrate his subject, "Christian Work in the Republic of India", with movie slides. The meeting will be in Founders Chapel at 7:15 p. m. Fred Stauffer will lead group singing.

Saturday's "Soiree Fiesta" in the gym has been planned jointly by the French and Spanish Clubs. Students have been invited to attend the party and see the Spanish version of "Little Red Riding Hood." The regular meeting of the club on Feb. 15 has been cancelled. (See story, Page 1.)

WAA Will Show Movie

Members of the WAA will view a movie at their next meeting in the club room on Feb. 16. This film will demonstrate the proper techniques in speedball, basketball and soccer.

Foreign students will tell of Home Economics and home life in their respective countries at the Lambda Gamma meeting. Pete Meyer will discuss problems in Germany; Ferdose Chase will talk about Iran and Trudy Griffin will speak for the her roommate, Ronny Gravlie, on conditions in Norway. This meeting will be held on Feb. 15 in the clothing lab.

2 Dates For Speaker

Two tenative dates were selected by the Dunkard Club to hear Dr. Rufuus D. Bowman of Bethany Biblical Seminary. He will be on campus after church Feb. 19 or at an alternative date, Feb. 20. The meeting with Dr. M. R. Zigler originally scheduled for this weekend could not be arranged.

"The Arena Theater" was the topic selected by Warren Smith on Feb. 9 as he addressed members of the Masque. An informal reception was held at the Faculty Club following the meeting.

Religious Set-ups Similar To J C'S Used Elsewhere

Dr. Ansley C. Moore, Minister of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh, led the Spiritual Emphasis program on Juniata's campus this past week.

His presentation of four important aspects of religious emphasis were: "Let's Talk About the Bible," "Let's Talk About God," "Let's Talk About Christ" and "Let's Talk About Life." "Christian Heritage was the theme of these discussions.

During three chapel sessions on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, Dr. Moore spoke on the subjects "Life's Greatest Choices," "Loyalty in Our Time" and "The Church Faces Marriage". Short devotional services were held each morning from 7:30 to 7:55.

At least three other colleges have also planned religious programs comparable to Juniata's.

Religion-in-Life Week was observed at the University of Pittsburgh. With "Design for Living" as the central theme, three convocation speakers discussed the meaning of religion in college life. These three speakers represented the three major faiths at Pitt—Jewish, Catholic and Protestant.

Keuka College of New York engaged three guest speakers for their Religious Emphasis Week Program, held January 15 to 18. Their theme—"What's It To You?"—aimed to emphasize present-day economic and social conditions as applied to a deeper individual faith.

Elections Set For Mar. 7; Move-up Day Is 29th

Move-up Day will come about one month earlier this year.

On Monday night the College Senate voted unanimously to make March 29 Move-up Day and to hold elections for Senate officers March 7.

According to the new schedule, petitions for president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer of the Senate may be obtained Tuesday and must be returned to the Senate secretary Kitty Padgett, or to elections chairman Gene Roddy on the following Tuesday, Feb. 28.

Candidates for the Senate positions enumerated above must have at least 87 credit hours, must be in good academic standing and certify their intention of continuing study for at least one year from the date of taking office.

Petitions for Senate chairmanships will be available Feb. 28 and must be turned in by March 7. These candidates need only 57 credit hours to be eligible except the chairmen of the men's and of the women's houses who need 87 credit hours. Elections for chairmanships and for class officers will be conducted March 14.

The Senate suggests that clubs hold their elections between March 16 and 28. This will insure the new Senate of the most talented Senators and will prevent overlapping of offices. According to the Senate constitution, club officers may not take office until after Move-up Day.

Gene Roddy, Joe Beyer, Jim McClain, Kitty Padgett and Dean Edith Spencer constitute the election committee.

Choir Plans Concert Sun.

The A Cappella Choir will present a concert in Oller Hall on Sunday afternoon at 4 p. m.

Under the direction of Prof. Rowland, the program will include a men's choir, a women's choir, a men's quartet and a girls' trio. This group is composed of 35 members, with Louise Cray serving as accompanist.

The feature number on the program will be Fred Waring's arrangement of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Included in the repertoire are "Fairest Lord Jesus," "Cast Thy Burden Upon the Lord," "The Lord's Prayer," "God Be In My Head," "My God and I," "God's Son in Triumph Rose" and "Break Forth, O Beauteous Heavenly Light."

Others are "Jesu Bambino," "The Day is Gently Sinking," "To Thee We Sing," "The Greatest of These," "To Him Who Left His Throne," "Hast Thou Not Known," "Judge Me, O God," "The Holy City" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Concluding the program will be "The Lamp in the West," "On the Sea," "Creator of the Stars of Night" and "The Lord Bless You and Keep You."

Party Tomorrow Has 'Heart' Theme

With the gym taking on a pink-and-white heart new look, the freshmen report that they are staging a real "Holiday for Hearts" tomorrow night in the gym.

A "stag and drag" affair, it will feature dancing, refreshments and entertainment. Bob Frain, heading the entertainment committee, has plans for something special and different, say the frosh.

The Carper twins will be presented in a violin and piano duo. Also featured is a dancing team with Rhoda Clemmer and Bob Frain. Several quartet numbers are spotlighted on the program in addition to an accordian solo by Anne Mullin.

Committees have been organized but more help is needed with the decorations, according to Len Hickman, chairman of the decorations committee.

JC Post Office Has Glamorous Stamps

"I'll take two of those and one of these and three of those . . ." Sounds like a little five-year old buying his daily recess candy, doesn't it?

Well, this is what one may often hear now in the Juniata Post Office—and not from a five-year old, but from co-eds who are going wild over "glamorous" stamps.

The clerks find that the girls are no longer satisfied with the old-fashioned purple variety. "We want stamps to match the color of our ink," they clamor—"brightly colored ones!"

Recent three cent comemoratives have gone like a January sale, the clerks report.

$18 Wishing Well Gift Given JWSF

Eighteen dollars and 10 cents in coin collected at the "bath of the nymphs" wishing well at Lincoln Caverns will help to answer the prayers of needy peoples.

Wednesday afternoon Rex Hershberger, Don Howe, Bud Kreider and Richard Coffman scooped the discolored coins, pennies, nickels and dimes out of the icy water of the natural pool.

The money has been turned over to the JWSF drive by Myron Dunlavey, owner of the caverns, a Juniata student. This is the third time that the money has been used for relief.

JWSF Drive Reaches $1,068 Point

In four days students, administration, clubs and friends of the College have contributed $1,068.30 in cash and pledges to the Juniata World Service Fund. Over 50% of the amount is in cash.

As of today 81% of the students have given a total of $865.20 in cash and pledges. Students are $334.80 short of their goal and $100 short of the suggested $2 per student.

A breakdown of the gifts shows the girls of Oneida, 4th Founders and Geiger house with 100% of their tribe pledged or paid. Renie Hebrank, Oneida solicitor reports $64, Janice Carper has $100 from the Geiger girls and Dotty Lehman collected $115.50 from both 3rd and 4th Founders.

Joe Hulgus and Bill Korman of the Lodge report 97% of their quota. The West Wing has collected $66 in cash and pledges and the East Wing $69.

George Gaugler's Arch of the Cloister has given $43 and 73% have contributed. Eighty-two per cent have responded to Skip Hines in the Wing. The boys of the Wing have given $150.50.

Of the day students, 47% have contributed and $115.70 has been collected, thanks to George McIlroy and John Gates.

Married Students Give $10

Fifty-five per cent of the "Mr. and Mrs." have handed $10 over to Lake Clemmer.

Edith Roberts has collected from approximately three-fourths of the girls in Brumbaugh netting $76.50.

Non-resident boarding students have given $110 through Walter Bandurak with 76% of the students contributing.

The Villagers have responded with $34 and approximately 75% co-operation to date under coach Orville Keim.

The administration has a $90

15 Earn Place On Dean's List With 90 or up

Fifteen students have earned a place on the Dean's List of Distinguished Students, according to Morley Mays, dean of the College. In order to qualify, students must have an academic average of 90 or above.

Senior students named were Richard Coffman, Ekkehard Eickhoff, Robert Lefever, Leo Mintz, Donald Norris, Eugene Roddy and Ned Walter.

John Comerford, Gerald Hartzel, Edwin Marschka and Vernon Showalter, juniors, also were placed on the list.

Underclassmen receiving recognition as distinguished students were Douglas Martin, Raymond Siren and Donald Treese, sophomores; and freshman Jack Ulsh.

The names of Lefever and Marschka have appeared on the List four semesters. Coffman has been listed five times, while this is Walter's sixth appearance.

New Gym Plans Need Trustees' OK

The Memorial Physical Education Building has staked its claim on a parcel of Juniata's campus and its number is next for action on the College's building program.

Present plans call for a building 112 by 180 feet to be raised on the ground between Scott and Oneida Sts. north of 18th St. The building committee met last Saturday to go over preliminary plans. After the committee's approval has been granted, the plans will be presented to the trustees for action this Spring.

According to President Ellis, it is the hope of the trustees and himself to have the building completed before the 75th anniversary celebration, April 17, 1951.

Soph Party Set For Feb. 25

Davey Jones' Locker is destined to be Juniata's Saturday night hang-out with the class of '52 in control.

According to Lois Miller, the Locker will be the scene of this class's latest fu time extravaganza, set for Saturday night, Feb. 25, in the gym.

Heading the decoration committee is Jane Carson. Jo Ann Barksdale is in charge of refreshments. Shorty Isenberg heads the entertainment and Sarah Keller is directing publicity.

Editor Optimistic

"The 1950 'Alfarata' should be ready for distribution by the middle of May . . . if all goes well," prophesies editor Ray Sidorsky.

He also announced the appointment of Beverly Williams to the post of art editor.

Sidorsky based his prediction upon the fact that "everything is now off to the engravers. We plan to have all copy in the hands of the printers by the middle of March."

Pia Tassinari, 'Met' Opera Soprano, In Concert Tuesday

Pia Tassinari, soprano of international reputation, will be presented in concert next Tuesday evening at 8:15 in Oller Hall.

Born in Italy, Miss Tassinari studied under Maestro Vezzani, teacher of Ezio Pinza of "South Pacific" fame.

Made Debut in Genoa

Miss Tassinari made her debut in "La Boheme" in Genoa. She was a sparkling success and her fame spread over the rest of the continent.

In 1941, the concert artist married Ferruccio Tagliavini, a brilliant young Italian tenor. Soon the couple became the favorite romantic team of grand opera. After joint appearances in South America, the couple came to the United States for the first time. Making their debut at the "Met," they played opposite each other in the leads of "Tosca."

Gained Fame at Festival

Michigan's Ann Arbor Festival firmly entrenched Miss Tassinari in the ranks of America's top sopranos. She appeared there in a concert with the Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy.

Last summer, the couple returned to their native Italy where they made a triumphal concert tour. Following their second appearance in South America, they came back to the United States for the opening of this year's concert season.

Sponsored by 'Met'

Sponsored by the Metropolitan and San Francisco Opera Associations, Miss Tassinari is now giving concerts in the leading musical cities of the U. S. With her PIA TASSINARI—An opera success in her own right ,she is the wife of Italian tenor Ferruccio Tagliavini, who also is listed as a "Met" star.

The Blitz Is Back----

The London blitz was never like this! Since the opening of the new dining hall and the subsequent evacuation of the faculty into the new part, courtesy and good manners have been at a low ebb in the old section of the dining room (to say nothing of poor Emily and her etiquette.

With all the guided missiles flying through the air the most appropriate attire would seem to be wrecking helmet and fatigue suit. (Indeed, this is what some men wear.)

At any rate the manner and conduct of some students is not a credit to the College or to themselves.

Basketball is a great game—but not in the dining hall. Dry and wet napkins rolled up into little balls are continually flying through the air and the topic of conversation seems to be who put a napkin in whose glass. Things reached a new high the other night as rolls were used for ammunition.

Individuality Is Fine

Individuality is fine also—but some people are so busy that they can't remain in the dining hall for a half hour until the other seven members of the table are finished.

Table conversation is an art—but some students don't know what is appropriate for mixed company.

Fortunately, this breach of reasonable table manners and this disrespect for one's neighbor is confined to a few individuals.

We suggest that the well-bred students set a good example and put the inconsiderate ones to shame. If someone at your table isn't courteous, tell him about it—the other members of your table will undoubtedly back you up.

Faculty Table In Old Part

We also suggest that a faculty table be set up in the old part of the dining hall to serve as a restraining force.

Juniata is a place for building fine character and gentility and those students who don't seem to be making any progress in this direction should be replaced by those who can.

Decorations To Go

The table decoration this week bolstering JWSF is the last in a series of colorful and unique decorations made by the women of the various halls under the direction of the women's house committee.

It is unfortunate that this service is to be discontinued. However Elma Stine and the hall president, deserves a great praise for making this service a success.

Letters To The Editor

Criticizes Article

To the Editor:

The write-up of the recent A Cappella Choir tour which appeared in last week's issue of The Juniatian did not reflect the character of the very fine group of young people comprising the choir nor did it reflect the quality of the work they did. As evidence of my statement I offer a copy of a letter sent to our College president by one of the high school principals in whose high school we sang. On this tour the choir sang in five high schools, 11 churches and did two transcriptions for broadcast with one direct broadcast.

Respectfully,
Charles L. Rowland

Principal Lauds Choir

Dear Dr. Ellis:

Your college choir has just presented a program to our high school assembly. Words cannot express to you my sincere thanks for this splendid program.

The faculty and students of Red Lion feel that this was one of the finest programs that has ever been presented in our assembly. The entire performance was excellent. Professor Rowland selected numbers that pleased all of the audience. The choir enjoyed their singing.

I believe that this program by the Juniata College Choir has done more to let our students know about your college than any other previous activity.

I hope that they can return to our school again. They are welcome at any time, and we will arrange our schedule to suit them.

Very truly yours,
Dan B. Kulp
Supervising Principal of Schools

Proud To Be Choir Member

To the Editor:

Last week's Juniatian featured a diary of the choir tour, portraying examples of the many good times we experienced on the trip. However, I feel that the very greatest experiences were left unmentioned—those witnessed during the actual concerts rather than on the bus or cars.

It is the duty of each individual choir member to "get into" the spiritual attitude which is so necessary in presenting a sacred concert successfully. Prof. Rowland reminded us of this fact many times. Before each of our performances, the choir bows in a word of prayer. Then we present our concert—either successfully or unsuccessfully, depending on our attitude of spirituality.

Honorable Organization

After our concert in Ephrata, a young lady remarked to me, "Quite an honorable organization; you look as though you mean every word you sing." Thus, it is evident that even our appearance is of relative importance with our inner mood.

Each member of the choir knows the test of having that inspirational feeling. He knows when he is temporarily lifted up during the singing of "The Lord's Prayer." He feels the little spiders racing with drops of perspiration down the spine during the rendition of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Not Ashamed Of Tears

He is not ashamed of the tears which slip from his eyes and roll down the cheeks while singing "The Benediction" with an accompanying "lump in the throat." It is experiences as such that I classify as the "best times" of the choir tour. Even the tenor who had 33 friends and relatives in the audience of one of our concerts could not have been more inspired by their presence than by these other inspirational experiences.

I am proud to be a member of Juniata's most successful organization, and this little article is meant to leave the right impression of the A Cappella Choir prevalent in your minds. These are the "behind the scenes" factors which make our choir so successful.

A Respectful Member

Tommy

Spring is here! The other day Tommy saw the first sign. The administration, et al, were out with their stakes roaming over the lot between the Gym and the Cloisters.

Of course this was not the only indication of Spring that Tommy observed. Don Sikes and Helen Lawson have been taking long walks around the loop. As the saying goes "In Spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love." Here a question arises in Tommy's mind as to what Sikes' excuse might be.

Now it can be told! Did you know that Lois Winett is afraid of the dark? If one can believe what one hears, Lois asked Charley Redenberger to walk her to the girl's dorm for that very reason. Lois, boogie men are a thing of the past.

The fish bowl: According to Tommy's observations, Jack Dickey is fast making a name for himself among the fairer sex on JC's campus. For a time Tommy thought that Jack and Jane Abel were cheering each other's lonely hours, but Carry Custer seems to have other ideas.

Invitations: Audrey Campbell is up to her old tricks of extending invitations to loose males. John Gates, a day student, seems to be the present target.

Feudin' an' fussin': The dining hall has become the scene for a feud of gifts between Elaine Mock and Jack Baldridge. The gifts range from gold fish to little toy cars but Jack's latest threat promises to create a situation with no holds barred. Jack threatens to retaliate with an alligator.

A thing of the past? Don Raphael and Jan Wenger seem to be having difficulty with their personal problems. Less than a month ago Tommy remembers how they had their friends convinced they had been married over the Christmas vacation. "Dorothy Dix" Hawk recommends that you increase your feminine public, Don.

Temper, temper! Squeeze Long was seen approaching Nancy Meyers at Skip's with fire in his eyes. Don't fret Dick, Squeeze was only intending to punish her for sounding a false alarm about the arrival of the bus.

Pin-up boy: Tuesday night you heard announcer Tom Shoemaker call for Joe Beyer to meet with the Geiger House girls in the post office. Upon investigation Tommy found that Joe is their pin-up. Another interesting thing about this is that Joe not only charms the girls from Geiger but also has some kid from town looking starry-eyed into his billfold.

Thomas (all shot) Hawk

ARE YOU CONCERNED ?

by Don Brandt

Despite the inclement weather and the nation's panic over what to do with the Hydrogen Bomb, Juniata is again rolling along in a new semester. Resolutions have again been made as we turn down the home stretch for another year. But what has this school year meant to us?

This reporter was talking to a friend in his home town last weekend who was genuinely cynical about the good stemming from a college education. His main gripe was, what he called, "the complete unconcern for world affairs which characterizes today's college student." He refused to believe that we, as college students, have any interest in current events, to the extent even of failing to read the daily newspaper.

You don't like that? Naturally, none of us like such criticism, but just stop and ask yourself how many times a week you stop in the library to read the news. There's room there for a new resolution.

"They Asked For It"

Comments have been flying thick and fast since Dr. Zigler's talk in chapel on Monday morning. There seems to be a very universal opinion on campus that we should not run a charity bazaar for Europe, since "they asked for it."

For a really rude awakening, try browsing through "Behind The Curtain" by John Gunther. It's not a pretty picture, and any student who doesn't sympathize with JWSF better not bother, because it will be pretty hard to refuse after seeing the picture Gunther presents.

In the event that there are students on campus who are up to date on their classwork and looking for some 'outside' reading, here's a surprise. In my humble estimation, one of the most interesting novels to appear for a very long time is "The Egyptian" by Mike Waltari. It isn't a small book, so if you are too busy, don't start reading it. It's very hard to lay aside, once you've begun.

Mr. Waltari, a Finn, shows the reader a beautiful and accurate picture of ancient Egypt, through the eyes of Sinuhe, a palace physician. The description is not restricted to Egypt, but also includes much of the ancient world of that period. You may find it superb entertainment.

Spring On Its Way

Spring is definitely on its way, despite the fact that the groundhog from Quarryville saw his shadow.

The boys are already arguing with Prof. Glick about the Cubs' chances this season. That should convince anyone that the thaw is due anytime.

Meantime, it's still advisable to wear a jacket or, preferably, a raincoat. Anti-histamines are still not as valuable as on ounce of prevention.

Meteorites Lead Intramural Cagers; Shmoos, B.T.O.'s Second

The Meteorites are the top team in the intramural bas- runner-up position are the Shmoos and the B. T. O.'s with ruunner-up position are the Shmoos and the B. T. O.'s with seven wins and two losses each.

In the long-awaited Meteorite-Shmoo contest on Monday, the Shmoos took a shellacking to the tune of 62-37. The Dzvonar-coached five took an early lead and were never headed.

High scorer for the victors was Phil "Trigger" Chabody with 21 tallies. He was followed by Dick Young with 16. Bill Lehman lead the losers with 11 markers.

Both the Shmoos and the Meteorites had been bumped from the ranks of the undefeated prior to their battle last week. The Ranchers turned the tide on the Shmoos, 35-33. In another game the Y. H. O.'s upset the Meteorites, 32-27.

The loss dropped the Shmoos into a second place tie with the improving B. T. O. team. In two contests last week, the B. T. O.'s defeated both the B 1/$2 and the Chowhounds by convincing margins

The Skijans are in fourth place, one-half game behind the Shmoos and the B. T. O.'s.

Varsity Loses To Drexel tech, 64-37, JV's Win, 52-50

The Dragons of Drexel Tech really "snorted fire" last night as they overpowered the hapless Indians, 64-37.

After posting an early 5-0 lead, the Philadelphians had things pretty much their own way. They led, 17-5 at the ten minute mark and increased their margin to 33-16 after two periods.

The second half brought no relief for the Indians. Drexel pounded away to a 47-24 third period lead and finished strong with a 17-point outburst in the home stretch.

Leo Kuhn, freshman understudy, was high scorer for the Indians with 7 points. Holmes Ulsh was held to 3. Don Breder, of the Dragons, took high honors for the evening with 17.

In the preliminary game, the little Indians eeked out a 52-50 win over the Drexel juniors. The Smaltzmen erased a nine point deficit at the half with a big third period rally and held on to the final whistle. Townsend paced the winners with ten tallies.

Juniors, Frosh Win In Girls League Play

Girls interclass basketball continued last week with the frosh girls outwitting the seniors with a 17-7 victory last Thursday night. Ginny Yohn and Betty Savine were high scorers for the freshmen and senior teams respectively.

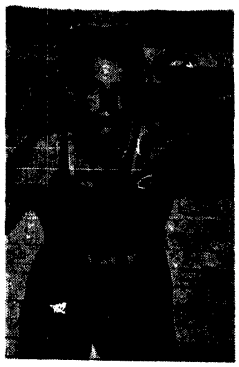
This same night the juniors won a landslide victory when they beat the sophomores, 23-2.

Interclass volleyball games begin March 1. Individual sports, badminton and table tennis contests are also scheduled.

Need Intramural Scores

The Juniatian sports department would appreciate more complete and accurate records on the intramural basketball and bowling league.

Scores should be turned into Bob Jones or placed in the Publications Office the day after the games are played.



RAY KORODY—A junior and letterman, Ray plays a fine floor game. He also hit the scoring column for 14 points against LV last week.

Little Indians Lose To LV Jayvees

The little Indians suffered the same fate at Lebanon as did their big brothers, by losing to the Lebanon Valley JV's, 56-41. The little Dutchmen took an early lead and were never headed.

The Smaltzmen were able to cope with the situation throughout most of the opening quarter. However, a scoring spurt in the closing minutes gave the little Dutchmen an 18-13 first quarter lead. Plagued by personal fouls, the locals fell farther behind in the second period as the LV boys increased their lead to 28-20 at the half.

In the third canto the two rivals battled on even terms, but the home team went on a rampage in the final frame to capture their victory.

Ron Fleck continued his scoring tactics by sinking 12 points for Juniata. Fran Townsend and Gerry Walker followed with ten points each.

Indians Bow To LV, Titans: Meet Drexel; Ursinus Tonight

After dropping the first two tilts of their current four game road trip, the Indians are going all out to break their current losing streak. The Indians met Drexel Institute in Philadelphia last night and travel to Collegeville to meet Ursinus tonight.

In Philadelphia, the Indians were slated to meet with much opposition in their clash with Drexel. The Dragons have fashioned a better than average season against many formidable opponents.

Drexel's Al McCart, a holdover from last season, is completing another great year for the Dragons. He was high scorer of the team last season. The Indians were also expecting trouble from McCart's 6'4" teammates, John Savchack and Roy Wagner, who were also lettermen last season. Average height of the Drexel team is about 6'2".

At Collegeville tonight, the Indians will be out to duplicate last year's thrilling 70-60 win over Ursinus. But they can expect much trouble from the Bears.

The seasonal records of the two schools are similar. Among common foes, the Bears have defeated Susquehanna, 59-30, and lost to Drexel, 60-71.

Late Bulletin

Last night the Drexel Dragons tamed the Braves, 64-37 as they had things their own way at the Curtis Gym, Philadelphia. (See story on this page.)

Forsyth High Scorer

Bill Forsyth, a 6' senior guard, is the spark plug of the Ursinus quintet. In his first 11 games, Forsyth ran up a total of 175 points.

The ranks of the Bears were severly cut last week when two lettermen were dropped from the team. An old back injury forced big Bill Wimberg to retire for the season, while Phil Seiber became ineligible after the first semester.

In addition to winding up their long road jaunt tonight, the Indians will also face Lebanon Valley in a return engagement next Wednesday. The Braves will be out to even the series after dropping their tilt at Lebanon last week. Of the 47 contests played between the two rivals, the Dutchman have won 20.

Last Road Trip

Next Saturday the local quintet will hit the road for the last time this season. Their final journey takes them to Lancaster, to meet a strong Franklin and Marshall team. This will also mark the next to the last game of the season, since the Indians bring down the final curtain against Albright on March 1.

Indians Defeated, 64-51 By Lebanon Valley Five

The Indians of College Hill were overpowered by the Lebanon Valley quintet last Saturday night as the enemy administered a 64-51 defeat.

The Braves played the Valleymen on even terms through most of the first quarter. Though the score was tied several times, the frame ended with the Dutchmen out in front by 15-12.

Lebanon Valley had a height advantage on the Indians in the second quarter when John Stayer committed his fourth personal foul and was sidelined. The locals were unable to reduce the gap in this frame, and the half-time score read LV 30, Juniata 19.

In the third period, the Indians were able to pick up several points on the Dutchmen. But, thanks to their first-half lead, the boys from Annville held on to the lead by 45-36 as the stanza ended.

The final quarter saw Doc Greene lose the services of Dave Bayer via the personal foul route. This gave the Valleymen an added height advantage and they again out-scored the locals to roll to a 64-51 victory.

Ray Korody was high man for the Indians with five field goals and four out of eight foul tries for 14 points. He was followed by Holmes Ulsh, with nine, and Stan Welch and Dave Bayer with eight each.

High scorer for the evening was E. Frazer of the Lebanon Valley quintet who hit the mesh for a total of 16 points. Close behind him was Floyd Becker who earned 14 points.

Juniata was outscored from the the free throw line as the LV team made 14, while the Braves could manage only seven. Lebanon Valley also led in the field goal department with 25, as against 22 for the Indians.

Westminster Tramples Juniata by 92-52 Margin

The Towering Titans of Westminster College proved to be too much for the Indians on Monday evening as they handed the Braves their worst defeat of the season, 92-52.

The Indians surprised the highly rated Titans in the opening quarter as they jumped off to an early lead. But the enemy soon recovered from the shock to draw up on even terms and finally go ahead, 21-14 at the chapter's end.

Titans Set Pace

Westminster continued to roll in the second stanza as the Juniata defense collapsed. The New Wilmington five poured 21 more markers through the hoop in this period to capture a convincing 42-20 lead at the half.

Juniata reached their offensive peak in the third period, but in vain, as the Titans continued to set the pace. The 45 points poured through the rim in this period kept the nets sizzling. But Westminster again took the lion's share to lead, 69-38, going into the final stanza.

Near Century Mark

The Indian's nightmare continued in the home stretch, as the Titans finished with the century mark only a few steps away.

Juniata's lone bright spot of the evening was Holmes Ulsh's 19 points, high for the game. Abraham, Jones, King and Wagner all hit double figures for the Titans.

Cold Symptoms Send Students To Infirmary Daily

Every 24 hours, 10 to 25 students visit the College Infirmary for relief from distressing cold symptoms and minor injuries received in sports activities—the two most common requests made by students for medical care.

However this number is small for, as President Ellis stated, "The health record for this year has been excellent."

The Infirmary, with three rooms downstairs (office, waiting room, nurses' private room) and three rooms above, has facilities to care for five patients at one time. Obviously, the number of students remaining in the Infirmary for a period of time (limited to 10 days) fluctuates.

2 Physicans Available

A part of the College medical program—which further provides a student insurance plan, health and t. b. examinations—the local House of Pills employs the services of two resident nurses as well as two Huntingdon physicians. Both are members of the J. C. Blair Hospital staff.

The Infirmary program (quote from "Information on the Student Health and Infirmary Service") makes provisions "for infirmary board and care, services of College physicians (including two office visits, free), nursing care and ordinary medicines." These services are supplemented by the insurance plan.

Mary Lou Wagner, graduate nurse of Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia, and future candidate for a degree this Aug., urges "students should come down whenever they need to."

Excuses Needed Before Class

She further emphasized that students wanting class excuses must get them before class. If the student is too ill, his roommate or a buddy may obtain the excuse. Students not getting yellow slips before class will find themselves with an unexcused class absence.

"The Infirmary is open 24 hours a day," Mary Lou stated. Either she or Betty Jane Kauffman are there, or someplace on campus, at all times.

"B. J." received her training at the University of Maryland, and expects to be graduated from Juniata, Jan., 1951.

JUNIATA CANARIES—These three little songbirds are senior music majors who have been singing together since they first came to JC four years ago. They are in the usual order, Fran Roddy, Gladys Mohr and Elma Stine.

Choir Trio Of Musical Maids Highlight Attraction On Trip

Hollywood might have the Andrew Sisters, it's true; but here at Juniata we have our own musical maids—the Varsity Girls' Trio.

All members of the A Cappella Choir, the trio includes Frances Roddy, soprano; Elma Stine, second soprano; and Gladys Mohr, alto.

Ten Girls Teaching

Ten senior girls from Juniata are now in their third week of student teaching in the schools of Huntingdon, Altoona and Twin Rocks, Pa.

Dottie Lehman, Arlene Dunmire, Louise Woodring, Betty Strait, Kitty Lynn, Kathleen Foster and Joan Stayer are teaching for eight weeks in the primary grades of Huntingdon schools. Frances Sheared is doing work in the sixth grade.

Teaching Home Economics are Pat Zug at Altoona Senior High, and Mary Crouthamel at Blacklick Township, Twin Rocks, Pa.

This class of student teachers is the largest in the history of Juniata.

JWSF

stake and is still $60 short. Not all reports are in here.

Friends of the College are $146.90 short of the goal but have paid in $53.10.

$50 From Lambda Gamma

Two clubs have made contributions to date. The total of $60 includes a generous $50 from Lambda Gamma club.

Richard Coffman, chairman of the drive emphasized last night that "It is quite apparent that JWSF will go over the top if the student body fills out a sizeable portion of their remaining quota and if the clubs and organizations on campus will continue to come through with generous contributions."

$1100 In Same Period '49

In the same period last year students had contributed $1100 to JWSF. The drive went over the top with $2093.15 in 1949 and with over $2000 in 1948.

Five worthy groups will benefit from the drive. They are the Foreign Student Aid Fund, the Stover Kulp Fund, the J. M. Blough Fund, the World Student Service Fund and the American Red Cross.

"And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity."

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS

The chance of a lifetime is open for bright young men, beautiful but innocent young ladies and other campus characters. If you fit this description, and have been convinced by your English comp advisor that you cannot write, come to a meeting for aspiring Juniatian reporters to be held Wednesday at 3:30 p. m. in the Juniatian office.

In their freshman year these girls began to sing together and soon officially became organized as the Varsity Trio. Since then, they have sung before many clubs all over the county and have appeared at numerous alumni banquets.

Also Active On Campus

Of course, their activities on campus can not be overlooked. Their performance in All Class Night caused one onlooker to suggest, "They should get the prize."

This year on the choir trip the warbling threesome was a highlight attraction. They were featured in such numbers as "Jesu Bambino," "Night and Day," and "Shortnin' Bread."

All Are Music Majors

All of these girls are senior music majors, now in the process of student teaching. When comes that happy day in June, the girls will be going their separate ways; but maybe in the not too distant future they will again "make music together."

Everything From Bible Studies To Drama On Week's Calendar

by Renie Hebrank

Variety will be the keynote of club activities next week. The crowded calendar reveals music, drama, Bible study and lectures at the top of the list.

A group worship service on missions is on the program for Volunteers, Feb. 21. Special music will be provided by the quartet. The meeting, under the leadership of Jo Pentz, is at 7:15 in Founders Chapel.

Theatre Notes

Gilbert and Sullivan Still Popular After Fifty Years

W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan wrote the last of their satirical comic operas nearly 50 years ago. Yet, in the month of March alone, three colleges plan Gilbert and Sullivan productions.

March 17 and 18, Juniata's own stage will be lit for "Pirates of Penzance," which pokes gentle fun at "slaves of duty" as well as "modern major generals."

Earlier in the month, "H. M. S. Pinafore" will dock at Drexel Institute of Technology, Philadelphia. Five campus organizations will join in sponsoring and producing the show.

English legal procedure is panned in "Trial By Jury," another long-lived hit by the pair of authors. It will be staged March 24 and 25 at Earlham College, Richmond, Indiana.

Millersville Uses JC Policy

Millersville State Teachers College, Millersville, Pa., has adopted a theatrical policy similar to Juniata's; they plan to use the proceeds from their Spring production to finance the American education of a German student.

Juniata put this policy into effect three seasons ago with the student written and produced musical, "Americanza." The returns from this show brought Peter Mayer and Ekkehard Eickhoff to the campus.

Earnings from "Sweethearts," staged last year, and the forthcoming "Pirates of Penzance" are also being applied to the aid fund for these students.

Admission to the Millersville show is whatever the student wishes to contribute, but "the price of a lunch" is suggested. Sponsored by the campus newspaper, the fund-raiser is a variety show using local and student talent. Its title is to be "The Filthy February Follies."

Galen Frysinger, Donald Norris, Lillian Raycroft, Alfred Crease and Raymond Fowler, alternate, represented the Juniata Debating Club at Penn State Feb. 15. The subject, Resolved that the U. S. should nationalize its basic non-agricultural industries, has been selected for Feb. 27 when the Penn State team will meet Juniata.

Masque Tries Farce

Students have been invited by the Masque to attend a comedy farce, "Out of the Frying Pan," on Feb. 23. It is one of the just-for-fun undertakings of the club and will be given in Oller Hall at 7:30. The cast will read directly from the scripts, with action following the dramatic technique. There is no admission charge.

"Teachers Responsibilities" was the subject selected by Dean D. Raymond Sollenberger to bring before the FTA Feb. 16. The Varsity Quartet and the Girls' Trio sang several selections for the group.

IVCF Continues Bible Study

On Feb. 23, Bill Carpenter will continue the IVCF project of Bible study with a discussion on Colossians 3. The meeting is scheduled for 7 p. m. in the Women's Day Student Room. Several club members from Penn State showed slides of the IVCF camp in Toronto at the last meeting.

Music lovers can hear the A Cappella Choir on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Oller Hall. "Cast Thy Burdens Upon the Lord," Fred Waring's arrangement of the "Holy City" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic" are among the repertoire.

James Morgan of the Morgan Insurance Co. in Huntingdon will speak to the Tycoon Club on Feb. 20.

Drive Overreaches Goal; Hits $2,000

Juniatian

Juniata College Student Weekly

Vol. 26 | Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa. | February 24, 1950 | No. 19

Students Give $1,065.20 As Drive Enters 12th Day

"Nineteen fifty in 1950" is now a slogan of the past. The Juniata World Service Fund is over its goal with $2,001-.94.

A breakdown discloses that $1,411.44 of this amount is in cash and $590.50 is in pledges.

Juniata students have contributed $1,065.20 to the cause, $626.70 of this in cash. They are still $134.80 short of their goal of $2 per student.

However, Richard Coffman, chairman of the drive, pointed out that this amount "Still shows excellent co-operation on the part of the student body."

Eleven clubs came through with $460 which is $260 over their goal. Both the President's Bible Class and the J Club handed over a "cool" $100. Seventy-five dollars is marked "from the YMCA" and Lambda Gamma and Volunteers offered $50 and $40, respectively.

Faculty Gives $191.50

Faculty members boosted the drive $191.50 worth with 2/3 of the group reporting.

College administrators contributed $117.50 to the campaign. Their original goal of $150 was "overestimated" by the planning commission, according to Coffman.

Friends of Juniata College befriended the enterprise in the amount of $112.

Other gifts include a $37.64 offering from the A Cappella Choir concert on Sunday and $18.10 in coin scooped out of the "bath of nymphs" wishing well at Lincoln Caverns.

Still Additional Funds

"It is quite apparent that there are still additional contributions which will be turned in before Mar. 6 so JWSF should go way over the $1950 goal," stresses Coffman.

"Certainly this figure reflects the complete cooperation of everyone on the Juniata campus."

Palestine Traveler Will Be Campus Speaker Next Week

Ray Hartsough, AFSC College Secretary for the Middle Atlantic Region, will be on the Juniata Campus next week.

On Tuesday evening at 8:30, Mr. Hartsough will speak in the Old Chapel on "Eight Months in Palestine." This talk will be illustrated with Kodachrome slides.

A discussion on the summer projects and plans of the American Friends Service Committee will conclude the program.

As speaker for the Introduction to Sociology class at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, Mr. Hartsough will talk about "Israel as a Melting Pot for Numerous Races and Nationalities." This will be followed by a lecture to the Economic Development class at 9 o'clock with the subject "The Program of AFSC in Economic Relations."

Will Be Chapel Speaker

Mr. Hartsough is slated to speak on Wednesday's chapel program. Following this, his topic "Visiting Palestine Brings New Light to the New and Old Testament" will be discussed in 10:30 Biblical History class.

Conferences will be held in the Social Rooms from 11:30 to 12:30. Anyone wishing an individual interview during that hour or in the afternoon should contact Howard Long.

This program has been planned by the YWCA and the Religious Planning Committee.

College, Seminary Graduate

Mr. Hartsough is a graduate of Heidelberg College, Triffin, Ohio and the Hartford Theological Seminary. In January, 1949, he accepted an invitation from the American Friends Service Committee to go to Palestine. Here he served as a Quaker Representative in many refugee camps and relief units. He has visited Quaker work in Switzerland, Germany and France as well.

Opera Is Theme Of Radio Series

"Pirates of Penzance" will again hit the limelight on next week's "Juniata on the Air," the second of four radio broadcasts devoted to this Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera.

On this program, the story of Gilbert and Sullivan's life will be given, stressing the steps which led to the writing of "Pirates."

In the first broadcast of the series last Wednesday, Jim Streiner portrayed Gilbert and Sullivan as authors of serious lyrics and music, as well as clever patter songs.

Tuesday's disc jockeys on "Turntable Terrace" will be Jim McClain and Ray Siren; and Thursday, Don Howe and Bud Kreider.

Religious Movie Is Planned For March 4

"Magnificent Obsession," a movie adaption of a book by Lloyd Douglas will be shown in Oller Hall Saturday, March 4 at 8:15 p. m. The movie is of a religious nature centered around the careers of two doctors.

Robert Taylor, Irene Dunne, and Ralph Morgan have the feature roles in the picture.

Student Comm. to Make Wax Record Of College Year

Initial steps in a plan to preserve the sounds of Juniata's passing history were made Monday as a committee of five students was formed to investigate "audio-visual aids."

It has been proposed that the group look into the possibilities of preparing the script for a 20 minute wax record of this year's events. The story would be told in the voices of the campus personalities who saw these events take place.

Thus, says Harold Brumbaugh, sponsor of the plan, "we can perpetuate the important things in each year of college life."

The committee will work in cooperation with Bill Engel and the news bureau. Members are Margie Alleman, Carol Cook, Marj Seidel, George Sprague and Jim Streiner.

Ellis To Attend Phila. Dinner

Dr. Calvert N. Ellis will attend a dinner in honor of Dr. Milton Eisenhower, newly-elected president of Pennsylvania State College, in Philadelphia Tuesday.

Gov. James H. Duff, members of his cabinet, the Pennsylvania Congressional delegation and members of the State Legislature have been invited.

Dr. Eisenhower, brother of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, is now president of Kansas State College.

Jones Is Sports Editor

Bob Jones, a sophomore from Llewellyn, Pa., was named Juniatian Sports Editor by Dave Armacost last week.

Paul Good, a freshman from Youngstown, Ohio, is the new Assistant Sports Editor.

GIQ Contest Will Exhaust Brains Tuesday

Brains and pens will be rattling and scratching their way through the General Information Contest in the College Library this coming Tuesday.

The winner of the contest will receive $15, while $10 will be awarded the runner-up. Test scores of all other contestants will be known only to themselves for the tests are indentified by numbers.

This year's contest will be more general than those of preceeding years. Each member of the contest committee will submit questions in the fields of art, science, social studies and current events.

Serving on the committee are Miss Evans, chairman, Miss McCrimmon, Mrs. Crosby, Dr. Donald M. Rockwell and Dr. Ernest Hall.

Made possible by Mr. John Biddle, editor of the Huntingdon Daily News, the contest was originated by Mr. Biddle's father, Joseph F. Biddle and has continued for over 25 years.

'Pirates' Scenery Nearly Completed, States Designer

"A few pieces of oilcloth on the risers to hide the sharp edges, a little bit of green added to the English sea after the sets are up—and the scenery for 'Pirates of Penzance' will be finished," says set designer George Parsons.

Built on the unit set plan, the scenery has 33 pieces which will be placed on and around 14 platforms. Under this plan, all of the pieces can be placed on stage before the curtain rises on the first act. Second act scenery will be concealed by the first act units which can be easily moved at the proper time.

No Time Lost Between Acts

"This way," says Parsons, "very little time will be lost between acts because of set changes."

He added, "This set-up makes for economy, both of time and money. Build bigger or more elaborately, and the designer has his whole stage crew swearing at him."

Tickets for "Pirates" will go on sale Monday in the P. R. office and Steel's Drug Store. Non-student admission will be $1, including tax; students will be admitted by their activity cards. No seats will be reserved.

Another advantage of this plan is that, by setting one unit partially in front of another, the designer gains the illusion of depth. This same effect is heightened by the 70 foot long curved cyclorama showing the landscape and seacoast of southern England.

Cyclorama New Idea Here

According to Parsons, the use of cyclorama is something new to this part of the theater world. He plans to install it along the entire back and right side of the stage, using blue lights to bring out the colors of the mountains and water.

A large part of the work, including all of the painting, the designer did himself in secret. "Glenn Felix worked closely with me on the carpentry work," he added.

JC Men Outnumber Women

Enrollment figures for the Spring term at Juniata College reveal that men again outnumber the women by a wide margin in the student body. There are 381 men and 228 women registered.

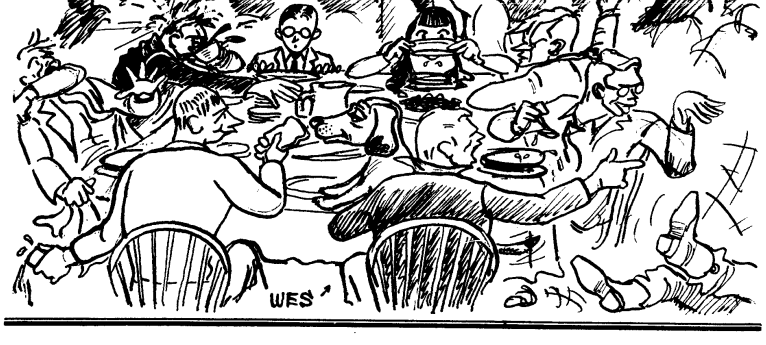
'Queen Of Deep' Named Saturday

Highlighting the sophomore dance tomorrow night will be the election of the "Queen of the Deep." Chosen by a committee of faculty chaperones, the queen will be disclosed and presented with a gift during the entertainment.

Beginning at 8:15, the "Dance of the Deep" will take place within the walls of Davy Jones' Locker (better known as the College Gym.)

Featured for the evening entertainment, according to co-chairmen Lois Robinson and Lois Miller, will be a quartet of sailors and a fish dance. Also on the program will be Jo Haak's rendition of "The Very Thought Of You."

All sophomores are requested to be in the gym on Saturday afternoon for the essential business of helping to decorate, urges Jane Carson, chairman of decorations.



Civil Service Exams To Be Given March 25

Civil Service exams for the positions of visitor and senior visitor in the department of Public Assistance in Pennsylvania will be given March 25, 1950. Entrance salaries for these positions are $2124 and $2496 respectively.

Applications for the examination, which may be secured in Dean Sollenberger's office or at the DPA office of Huntingdon, must be postmarked by midnight March 3.

Students Play Host To Faculty Sundays

Under a new plan set up by the Senate in conjunction with the administration to go into effect this week, faculty members who don't ordinarily eat in the dining hall will be invited to eat with students at the Sunday meal.

Students will send out invitations to two faculty members and their families each week. The host student may choose the other member of his table if he wishes.

A Great Responsibility-----

We are faced with a great responsibility—the responsibility of selecting the persons who will represent our interests to the faculty and administration through the Student Senate.

More than that the president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer of the Senate will be faced with the job of promoting "the best possible relationship between the students, faculty and administration."

Let us look at these four major offices and see what are the duties of each.

The President

The president of the Senate is number one man in campus affairs and as such he should command the respect and confidence of all students. His major function is to "serve as the representative of the Senate in their relations with the faculty and administration."

Furthermore, he must preside at all meetings of the Senate, appoint all committees and the parliamentarian.

The Vice-President

Upon the student chosen as vice-president will fall the burden of handling details and carrying out Senate policy. The vice-president presides at meetings in the absence of the president, supervises student elections and carries out plans for the annual leadership conference.

In addition, this person will represent the classes and co-ordinate class activities in conjunction with the class presidents.

The Secretary

The Senate secretary should be able to take exact notes and translate them into complete and accurate minutes of the meetings.

Also the secretary must keep Senate records and care for Senate correspondence.

The Treasurer

The one person on the Student Senate who receives payment for his services is the central treasurer. This individual is elected by the student body subject to the approval of the Economics department and the president of the College.

The central secretary should preferably be a business major thoroughly schooled in bookkeeping and budgets.

Those students whom you select should be truly "Senator." They should represent the finest that you want for Juniata College.

Only those persons should be elected who have, first of all, those priceless qualities of character, objectivity, honesty and reliability and secondly, they should be chosen on the basis of proven ability.

IT'S UP TO US

by Don Brandt

Four Day Amnesty

Last week this column stated, rather facetiously, that despite the hydrogen bomb Juniata had again begun the routine of a new semester. It now seems, in light of the latest news developments, that unless the world does something concrete in connection with the hydrogen bomb, J. C., as well as much of the rest of the world, will cease to exist.

A professor at the University of Chicago made the statement that the radiation from the H-bomb could destroy all life in an area the size of the United States: In Just Four Days!

With the world's two greatest powers playing a chess game in armaments, the rest of the world shudders with each checkmate. The irony of the whole situation is not in the game itself, but in the fact that a few key men are acting for the millions of people on both sides. The old cliche, "Now is the time for all good men . . ." is certainly applicable in this situation.

Something must be done, but we all say, "what can I do?" This column has no answer, but offers the suggestion that a solution must be found, and soon, if we are going to avoid turning this planet over to the monkeys. Since we must, can we provide that solution?

The Price of Survival

Supposing that man succeeds in surviving the terrors of mass destruction, he must still forge the governments of the world into a cooperative organization to prevent a reocurrence of present conditions.

George Orwell, the English novelist, presents an interesting picture of the future in his latest book, "Ninteen Eighty-Four." In his crystal gazing, Mr. Orwell comes up with a picture of the totalitarian resultants of a degenerate socialism. Although interesting and clevely written, the book prompts the reader to think ahead and shudder at the thought of claiming such a culture as his own. If you are at all concerned with current trends in world government, this book should certainly be on your list of extra-curricular reading.

World Of Love

This commentator was especially impressed by Dr. Rufus Bowman's proposal in chapel on Monday morning. Certainly, many individuals have shown that a practice of Christian ethics provides the most solid basis for a satisfactory existence. "It won't work," most of us say, but we haven't even tried it, and we've certainly tried everything else.

The drawback is not in the actual employment of these ethics to the world situation, but the cold realization that before we apply them to the world we must use them at home. The Golden Rule is certainly a requisite to world peace. It's up to us! What are we going to do?

Letters To The Editor

In Defense Of The J Club

To the Editor:

So far as the J Club is concerned, the controversy concerning the misuse or disuse of the J Club Room has not yet subsided. We would like to have a word if only for the sake of the morale of our organization. At a meeting held this past Tuesday evening with a large number of members and the faculty advisor present, it was decided that our club should take what we would like to consider as a defensive stand against the backhanded remarks accorded us in recent Juniatian issues.

It appears to me that the lambasting items against the J Club Room were inference enough that the members of the J Club itself were involved. This cannot be. It seems further that when a feeling of frustration attacks a reporter for lack of material, jokes or daffynitions or even both would be a wiser space filler.

J Club Room Used

The J Club Room is used more than was inferred in the previous articles. Regular meetings, J Club committee meetings, study sessions, card parties, bull sessions and smoking are all activities of the so called room. This room is kept in a clean state of condition so far as the male occupants using it are concerned and the remuneration for housecleaning is not a preposterous sum to anyone's eye.

The J Club realized that just as the WAA Room and the Women's Day Student Room are equally as "non-productive," measures were taken at the last meeting to alleviate the so-called drabness of this lonely, lonely spot.

Pool tables had been acquired months ago and are awaiting repairs before being installed, ping pong tables will be installed, and, if possible, the trophy case will be replaced with a newer, larger one and moved to a more conspicuous location on campus. I can see very little difference as to the three rooms mentioned and their use except the drapes may be brighter in the WAA and Women's Day Student Rooms.

Cannot Be Fully Appreciated

The "sessions" held in the J Club Room cannot be fully appreciated except by interested persons. Certainly an anti-sports-minded person cannot conceive of the hours of pleasant reminiscing and fellowship with sports events and real happenings unless he or she doesn't feel that he or she is wasting his or her time. In other words, a center for meeting for the athletes of our College and a place for them to share mutual athletic achievements or discouragements is a very important aspect overlooked in the attack on this room.

So far as the J Club is concerned its members believe it to be one of the strongest, active organizations on campus. The day of "all athletes having strong backs and weak minds" has done passed and the activities of its members include selling, advertising, business administration, planning, etc., in preparation for its annual dance, football program sales, booster tag sales, dispensation of donation fund money, etc. The J Club is proud of its complement of men and even more proud that it can produce the activities that help to round a well-balanced College life.

Accept Invitations

Finally the J Club would gratefully accept invitations from other smaller clubs on campus in which meetings or club parties could be held. This would take at least some of the "sin of inactivity" off the J Club and put it on any interested person not requesting the use of the room.

In consummation I would add that this article is in defense of its members first of all, and secondly in defense of its meeting quarters. Any suggestions that anyone can make other than what the members of the club currently have thought of, and that can humanly be carried out will be gratefully welcomed by the club officers.

Only next time let the "noos-hounds" write up something which would be devoid of antagonistic content and better still be of worthwhile reading content as well as an enterprise of value.

Fred Phenicie (for the J Club Defense Committee)

Editorial Reply:

The issue of the J Club Room was not dreamed up to fill space nor was it the result of anyone's frustration. It is a legitimate question and one which deserves attention.

Yes, we could fill the paper with jokes and "daffynitions" but it is the policy of this paper to present the facts to the students in the belief that students will come to their own conclusions on the basis of these facts.

As far as The Juniatian editorially criticizing or lambasting the J Club nothing could be further from the truth.

Editorially, this paper has never attacked the J Club. We cite the editorial in the Feb. 10 issue captioned "J Club Not Blamed." "It was not the aim of these columns last week to imply that it was the fault of the J Club that the Cloister Club Room has not been put to better use . . . "

However, we congratulate the J Club in its decision to put the room into use as game room or recreation hall. The room is in good hands and we are satisfied to let the matter drop.

TOMMY

Another week has rolled around and the time has come for Tommy to sit before his typewriter and commence with the words.

Laundry mailers: Last Saturday while going to and from mailing his laundry Tommy noticed Jay Benedict and Ginny Masemer as well as Budd Riggs and Shirley Butler preforming the same task. In spite of the fact that there was only one laundry in each group he did not mind this but when he saw Shirley Erickson and Leon Bioletti accompanying Fred (Santa Claus) Shamlian in the same direction carrying but one laundry he decided to gripe. In view of the present shortage of femininity on campus Tommy thinks that it is unfair for one man to keep more than one girl occupied at one time.

Familiar faces: Over the weekend Tommy observed several old familiar faces on campus. Stan Wray, Chuck Giornesto and Jack Eisenhart returned for a visit. This only proves that once you get JC in your blood you can't help coming back. Of course if you did not know Juniata you might say that Lois Winett, Rietta Weightman and Betty Jane Kauffman may have had something to do about their return.

Shoot an' Juke: Tommy has discovered another secret about a member of the faculty. Doc Greene, nearly wore out his jaw when the "movin' pitcher got exiten." Apparently Doc likes western movies.

A big kiss: Tommy has a great big kiss for Miss Tausch. Last Thursday, February 16, the WAA Room was open for a brief period of socializing. Miss Tausch graciously gave her time to act as baby sitter for this function. It is things like this that make for a more enjoyable College life.

As a parting word remember as Austin Dobson once said, "Time goes, you stay? Ah no! Alas, time stays, we go."

Laments Condition of Flag

To the Editor:

Sometimes I wonder what the foreign students on our campus think when they see our American flag flying 24 hours a day through rain and snow. They may think that it is the custom here, but we know it is not. We know that the flag should be put up at sunrise and taken down at sunset every day of the year.

The flag flying over our campus pus is a symbol of our loyalty to our nation . . . .

I understand that the care of the flag is one of the responsibilities of the freshman class and the freshman chairman. I think something should be done about this neglect of our flag.

Respectively,
Bill Conrad

Editorial Reply:

The fact that the flag on Oller Hall is flying full time is not the result of neglect but rather that the flag is stuck and cannot be hauled down by conventional means.

Paul Friend has been trying without success to find someone to climb the pole and haul the colors down.

Any students who have had flagpole sitting experience or who feel that they have innate ability for the job should contact the Business Manager.

Campaign Speech

"Vote for Blow the speaker cries,
"He's a friend to you and me.
As soon as he's in office
What a lot of work you'll see.
He's liked by all the students;
The profs think him a brain.
His QPI of two-point-oh
Was got without much strain.
For years he's had his nose in Ev'ry form of chicanery
They say that he could run the world
With a staff of two or three.
His loving cups fill mantles,
They're all about his house.
He's kind to little children
And he wouldn't hurt a mouse.
His prowess in the field of sport
Is known to one and all.
He's made a dozen touchdowns
Whene'er he's had the ball.
Recall what I have told you
When to the polls you go.
To cast a vote for progress,
Please cast your vote for Blow!"

Meteorites Retain Lead As Basketball Season Nears End

With the current season rapidly drawing to a close, the Meteorites appear to be riding the inside rail toward the Intramural League championship. Though idle this week, the leaders maintained their one-game edge on the runner-up BTO's.

Sparked by Earl Detrick, who hooped 15 counters, the BTO's remained within striking distance as they shellacked the Highlanders, 41-26.

An overtime victory by the I-7 decidedly lowered the Shmoos play-off hopes. The one-time league leaders completely faltered in the final period, after being in command all the way up to that point. Don Robinson sparked his team to an 18 point final quarter as they pulled up on even terms and then won out in overtime. The win moved the "preachers" to within one-half game of the first division.

Riding high on the crest of a four game winning streak are the much improved YHO's who handed the Skijans a 50-45 slap. The Bayer coached crew also took the lowly Dragons in this weeks play, 45-36.

Tonight's games find the Shmoos and BTO's tangling in a must battle for each team. In addition the Chowhounds face the Ranchers, the Fubars meet the Skijans and the Dragons will attempt to stop the high-riding Meteorites in the final fray.

Last week's scores:

Shmoos 44, Fubars 39; Red Raiders 46, Chowhounds 36; YH O's 50, Skijans 45; Fubars 43, Highlanders 26; BTO's 41, Highlanders 26; Fubars 35, B $/2 30; YHO's 45, Dragons 36; I-7 54, Shmoos 48.

Braves Lose Second To L V Jayvees

The Lebanon Valley Jayvees took a 33-26 decision from the little Indians in Wednesday night's preliminary. It marked the second time this season that the local understudies tasted defeat at the hands of the Anville boys.

A fast first half was marked by much poor shooting on the part of both teams. The locals trailed by 3-7 at the end of the initial period. Both teams remained low in the scoring column in the second quarter which saw the LV juniors increase their margin to 12-7.

After separate halftime pep-talks, both teams improved their game and the tempo picked up. The Indians went to work in this period to knot the count at 21-all. However, the Dutchmen caught fire once again in the last chapter to insure their victory.

Fran Townsend led the Indians in the scoring column with nine points. Bob Monahan had six, while Ron Fleck was held to five. Miller, with eight, and Jones and Vought, with six apiece, led the LV attack.

Fourth Period Rally By LV Beats Indians

The Indians suffered their sixth straight setback on Wednesday evening as Lebanon Valley trimmed them by 86-74. After having had their wings tied for the first three periods, the "Flying Dutchmen" really took off at the start of the final quarter and then coasted to victory.

Ed Frazier started the scoring activities for the visitors by dropping in a foul toss, and Floyd Becker followed with a twin-pointer. But the Indians came storming back, and the fireworks began. LV pulled ahead once again and led at the quarter, 18-14.

Juniata hit for four straight points as the second chapter started to throw the game into an 18-all deadlock. From there the score was knotted at 27-27, 31-31, 33-33 and the half ended 35-all.

Welch, Stayer Foul Out

The two teams continued their torrid battle in the third period as the score was tied two more times, at 36-36, and again at 39-39. At this point the Indians lost the services of both Stan Welch and John Stayer in quick succession via the personal foul route. The Dutchmen forged ahead, and never lost their lead as the third quarter read 46-49.

With the start of the final chapter came doom for the Indians. LV hit for four consecutive goals and a foul, before Holmes Ulsh broke the ice for the Braves. Then the visitors promptly added two more goals and a foul and virtually clinched the victory. Juniata rallied in the closing minutes, but were unable to overcome the Valleymen's lead.

Ulsh Has 36

Holmes Ulsh copped the evening's scoring honors as he bucketed 36 points in a repeat performance of his showing against Dickinson three weeks ago. He scored 15 times from the field and six from the foul stripe. Ray Korody added 11 more to the losing cause, followed by Ken Wenger with seven.

For LV it was Al Murawski, frosh center, and Larry Kinsella who provided the scoring punch. Murawski racked up 23 and Kinsella 19. Three other Valleymen also hit for double digits. Floyd Becker had 13, while Richie Furda and Red Langstaff hit for 11 each.

LV displayed uncanny marksmanship from the 15-foot stripe as they converted 22 of 26 free throw attempts. In comparison, their lead in the field goal department was only two.

Summary:

Juniata	30	14-21	74
Lebanon Valley	32	22-26	86

Score by quarters:

Juniata	14	21	21	18—74
LV	18	17	24	27—86

Indians At F & M Saturday; Close With Albright Here

The Indians enter into their final week of play tomorrow night when they meet the Diplomats of Franklin and Marshall College. The season's finale is next Thursday night, with Albright furnishing the opposition.

CAPT. ED ANLIAN—Albright's high scoring forward, recently broke his school's all-time scoring record by going over the 1500 point mark.

At Lancaster, the Braves will be meeting a team with a record very similar to their own. The F & M cagers have come out on top four times in 12 appearances to date.

May Have Rough Time

If comparative scores mean anything, the locals may have a rough evening, since F & M holds several victories over teams which have played the role of "Indian killers" this season. They defeated Ursinus early in the season, and last week came back to top Dickinson avenging an earlier defeat. Susquehanna has also fallen victim to the Diplomats.

On the other side of the ledger, Bucknell walloped F & M 96-54, whereas, early in the season, the Bisons just managed to squeeze a victory over Juniata. The Diplomats have also lost to LV and Albright.

Boz Zink, Curt Gallagher and John Hartman are pacing the boys from Lancaster. Zink has been averaging 20 points in recent games.

Anlian Leads Albright

Captain Eddie Anlian looms as the man to stop when the Indians entertain Albright next Thursday. Albright's all-time scoring champion has run his collegiate total over the 1500 mark, including 317 scored this season.

The Roaring Lions are currently tied for first place with Scranton in the Western Division of the MASC. Their overall record shows 12 wins and six losses. Included are victories over such teams as Lebanon Valley, St. Joe (Phila.), and Kings College.

In addition to Anlian, the Indians can expect much trouble from towering center Lee Cappel, runner-up to Anlian in the scoring department. At guards, the Roaring Lions use the brother combination of Danny and Pat Bieber, both of whom stand over the six-foot mark.

Ursinus Beats Varsity 83-68; JV's Win

It was a hot Ursinus team which overran the Indians at Collegeville last Friday night. With Juniata still feeling the effects of their prolonged road trip, the Bears romped to an 83-68 victory.

The Braves started fast, as they took early leads at 2-0 and 3-2. But from here on out it was all Ursinus. After going ahead for the first time at 5-3, the Collegeville five went on to lead 41-32 at the half-time rest period.

Juniata rallied somewhat as the second half began, and at one time had closed the gap to five points. The Bruins broke loose once again, however, and held the throttle wide open going down the home stretch. Both Holmes Ulsh and John Stayer were evicted in the second half after committing their fifth personal foul.

Despite his early leave, Ulsh managed to score 28 points for the Indians, on 13 field goals and two fouls. Ray Korody also hit double figures as he tallied 11, while Don Howett had eight. Bill Forsyth walked off with the blue ribbon as he topped Ulsh by one, scoring 29. Don Young also sparkled as he banked 20 for the victors.

In the preliminary game, the little Indians made it two in a row as they came from behind to defeat the Ursinus juniors, 55-53.

Bowlers Complete First Half Cycle

The first half cycle of the Intramural Bowling League was completed last week with the Hooks and Les Miserables in a dead heat for first place. Both teams swept all games and total points in their final appearances to finish with identical 24 and eight records.

One new face appeared among the ranks this week as the second half opened. The Senioritas dropped out after the first-half ended and Duck Snyder has organized a team to replace them.

Two games have already been played since the opening of the new session. Last Friday Les Miserables blanked the Strikettes behind the steady hand of Ed Marshka. That same night the Aces, who finished runner-up in the first-half, played to a deadlock with the Pirates.

Games tonight find the Pirates pitted against the Strikettes and the Sliders meeting Duck Snyder's team, both games at 6:30. At 8:30 the Aces will attempt to overhaul the Les Miserables team, while the Hooks tangle with the Sky Pilots.

Stone Church To Sponsor Spiritual Emphasis Program

Similar in purpose to the College Religious Planning Commission's program is the observance of Spiritual Emphasis week at the Stone Church Feb. 26 through March 5.

The guest minister will be Dr. Edgar M. Detwiler, of New Enterprise, Pa., director of church relations for Juniata College. Dr. Detwiler will speak at the morning and evening services Feb. 26, and each evening the following week, except Saturday. Concluding services are to be held Sunday morning and evening, March 5.

Sermon subjects for the week are: "The Importance of Bible Study," "Christ, The Wonderful," "Knowing Jesus Christ," "Christ's Hatred of Hypocrisy," "The Supreme Offering to Christ," "The Church and The Source of Her Power," "Viewing Life Through Its Eastern Window," "The Cross As Love's Necessity" and "The Shadow of the Cross."

Dr. Detwiler was appointed Director of Church Relations for the College in the Fall of 1948. Formerly, as a Church of the Brethren minister, he served as pastor of churches in Johnstown, Norristown and Everett, Pa.

Receiving a Normal English degree in 1906, he later was graduated from Juniata College in 1912 with a bachelor of arts degree. In 1946 the College awarded him an honorary degree of doctor of divinity.

'Matter Over Mind'

Last week The Juniatian and the "Alfarata" were forced into an untimely display of Spring house cleaning.

Because of the College's need for more office space, one of the offices previously occupied by the publications will be used for office machines and storage. Once again, the triumph of matter over mind.

Switch Style Dead

The issue of switch style dining (combination of cafeteria and family style for meals) is officially dead.

Student Senators killed a motion calling for the appointment of a committee to look into the possibility of the system.

The question arose as the result of a "Letter to the Editor" in the Oct. 28 issue of The Juniatian.

'Mademoiselle' Opens Fiction Contest

Five hundred dollars await the two winners of the "Mademoiselle" college fiction contest for women undergraduates.

Entries, to be from 3,000 to 5,000 words in length, should be submitted by April 15, 1950. The two winners, to be chosen by "Mademoiselle's" editors, will appear in the August 1950 issue of this magazine.

Typewritten on one side of the paper only, stories should be accompanied by the contestant's clearly marked name, home address, college address and college year. Entries should be addressed to College Fiction Contest, "Mademoiselle," 122 East 42 St., New York 17, N. Y.

"Mademoiselle" assumes no responsibility for manuscripts and will return only those accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope. All rights for the winning manuscripts will be claimed by the magazine.

Theatre Notes

Gilbert-Sullivan Operas Not Strangers To JC Stage

Before too many more lessons have been assigned and completed, the lights of Oller Hall stage will brighten and the "Pirates of Penzance" will have come to life.

However, March 17 and 18, 1950, will not be the first dates that the Juniata theater will have echoed the lyrics of W. S. Gilbert and have been serenaded by the tunes of Sir Arthur Sullivan.

It was Dec. 11, 1943—scarcely three years after the firs thespian had trod the boards in the newly erected hall—that the Masquers presented the Gilbert and Sullivan satire on the life of English seamen, H. M. S. Pinafore."

To this show the Masque contributed a director and three studuents with acting ability. The remainder of the cast—which, says the yearbook, "was otherwise almost completely without dramatic experience."—was selected from Choir personnel.

Design Search Still On

"We are still looking for more designs for the cover of the 'Pirates' program," says Doris Quinnell, program editor.

The sample covers on display in the library were made by the art department at Kutztown State Teachers College. All of the musicals thus represented were produced at the College by Prof. Donald Johnson, who will direct "Pirates" here.

Chapel Programs Listed

Chapel Monday will include a special music service, according to Prof. G. Wayne Glick, who arranges the programs. "We're just going to sing some hymns," he added.

Ray Hartsough will be the speaker Wednesday while Edgar Detwiler has a message to present Friday. (See pages 1 and 4 respectively.)

Debate Club Battles Penn State Women's Team Here Next Monday

by Renie Hebrank

The Juniata Debate Society will welcome a Penn State women's group Monday in a return debate. The question is: Resolved that the basic non-agricultural industries should be nationalized.

Don Norris and Galen Frysinger will support the affirmative with Alfred Crease, Lillian Raycroft and Raymond Fowler representing the negative.

Two debates will be conducted simultaneously at 7 p. m. in the I. Harvey Brumbaugh house and in Room B of Students Hall. Following the debates, an open discussion and tea will be held in the I. Harvey Brumbaugh house. Faculty and students are cordially invited to attend this, the first home debate of the season.

Rehearsals Continue

The Orchestra will continue having two rehearsals a week, every Tuesday and Thursday. This schedule will prevail until after the production of "Pirates of Penzance" when they will begin work on the annual orchestra concert.

There will be no further rehearsals for the A Cappella Choir until after the completion of the present concert tours. The next program to be undertaken by the group is the Spring oratorio.

Treese to Speak

Don Treese has been selected as the speaker for Volunteers on Feb. 28. The meeting has been set for 7:15 p. m. in Founders Chapel.

IVCF will hear Galen Keeney on Mar. 2 in the Women's Day Student room. He will discuss the book of Romans at the meeting which is scheduled to begin at 7 p. m.

Student Recital Set For Tonight

A recital of voice and piano students will be presented in Swigart Music Hall tonight at 7:30 p. m.

Included on the program is a soprano solo by Jo Chiodi "At Eve I Heard A Flute"by Lily Strickland and Gaul's "Thou Art The Night Wind," an alto solo to be sung by Barbara Lape.

Janet Binkley will play "Viennese Sonata" by Mozart, a Nocturne by Chopin will be offered by Lois Miller while Mary Lou McKee will present Debussy's "Clair De Lune."

A soprano solo, "Voi Che Sapete" by Mozart, will be sung by Audrey Campbell; Don Brinton, baritone, will sing "Flood Waters" by Story and Phillips Carr, bass will conclude the program with "On The Road to Mandalay" by Oley Speaks.

Tutoring System Not Being Used

Since the end of October, there has been no student response to the tutoring program which was set up by the Senate at the outset of last term, according to a statement made by Senate member Elma Stine.

Through this plan, students who need help in any of their courses may arrange through Elma Stine or Joe Beyer to obtain a student tutor who will go over the material with those students and help them. "It is a program for the student's own benefit if he will take advantage of it," emphasizes Beyer.

Twelve In Running For Top Senate Positions; Students To Vote Tues.

With the Senate approval of their petitions Keith Binkley, Walter Bush, Don Robinson and Vernon Showalter are officially in the running for the presidency of the student Senate.

Binkley

Binkley, a business major from Huntingdon, has a number of campus activities on his slate of extra-curriculars. Besides being circulation manager of The Juniatian, Binkley has his membership card in the Masque, Tycoon Club and Camera Club. He will be chairman of lighting in the comic opera "Pirates of Penzance."

If elected to office, Binkley hopes to "do the best possible" and perhaps "surpass the work of my predecessors." "I think I have sufficient awareness for the position," Binkley says.

Robinson

A pre-ministerial student from Johnstown, Don "Robbie" Robinson states tersely, "I have but one aim: to be the voice of the students in the school government."

Robinson, an officer of the newly formed Outing Club, is an A Cappella Choir member and a student announcer in the dining hall. Besides participating in intramural sports, Robinson serves on the Senate athletic committee.

Showalter

"An interest in doing what I can for Juniata and its students" states Vernon Showalter, "has prompted me to run for office."

Showalter, a business major from Mt. Pleasant, desires to realize a Senate "interested in the interests of the students and faculty." If put in office, he aims to have a "Senate that will be open to student participation . . . and that will strive to bring a closer, more friendly feeling between the students and faculty."

Besides serving on the social committee, Showalter is treasurer of the Masque, business manager of The Juniatian, a member of the Tycoon and Dunkard clubs and, in addition, was one of 15 students to make the Dean's List.

Balloting for Senate positions of president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer will be held Tuesday. Hours for voting are 8:30 a. m.—12:30, 1—2:45 p. m., 5:30—6:00 p. m. and 6:30—8:00 p. m.

Bush

"My purpose in running for Senate president," announced Bush, candidate from Alexandria for the top post, "is to lend my abilities and past experience to the will of the student body."

Bush a chemistry major with an eye toward teaching or commercial chemistry, has taken a number of campus activities in his stride. He has attended Leadership Conference and at present he is "prexy" to the junior class. Bush has his membership in the Chemistry Club besides participating in intramural football and softball.

"The student Senate," Bush believes, "has one basic function—to analyze and present to the administration all issues pertaining to the student body as a whole."

Contending for the position of vice-president are Jay Benedict, Bill Bolt and Hilton "Skip" Hines.

Benedict

With an eye toward a career in law, Benedict, of Waynesboro, is majoring in history. He is on the roster of IRC and Tycoon club members. At present this candidate is the holder of the H. E. D. Gray scholarship.

Benedict's objective in entering the vice-presidential race embodies "a desire to help formulate and carry out a policy that will be beneficial to the campus community."

A junior from Glouster, N. J., Bolt took his freshman and sophomore work at the College of South Jersey where he was president of his class both years. Bolt went out for basketball there as well as at Juniata.

Bolt is majoring in social studies and hopes to go into teaching. He believes in a strong student government that "will represent students of all fields."

Hines

Hines, Carneys Point, N. J., has been active in college activities since his freshmen year when he was treasurer of his class. He was selected to attend Leadership Conference dur-

Resident Men Meet Tonight, 10 p. m., To Discuss J Room

A meeting of all resident men students will be held in Oller Hall tonight at 10 p. m.

The meeting is being called by the men's house committee at the request of the Senate to discuss the use of the J Club Room.

Senators took this action because of articles and letters in The Juniatian and because of a petition signed by 75 men which requested that the J Club Room be converted into a men's lounge with pool, ping pong, magazines and radio-phonograph.

The student legislature felt that the matter should be referred to the students themselves in an effort to find out (1) if students want the room left as it is, (2) if students want the room equipped as stated in the petition by the J Club or (3) if students want the room equipped and operated by the men's house and if they are willing to chip in for the improvements.

Teams Competing To Boost 'Pirates' Ticket Sales

Twelve team captains have been chosen to help boost ticket sales for "The Pirates of Penzance."

The competition will terminate on March 14 and the team that sells the most tickets will be treated to some special dessert in the dining hall. However, "the work should be incentive enough, for they will be helping the Foreign Students Aid, a worthwhile cause in itself," says Lois Esaley, assistant to Prof. Johnson.

The cry has gone out for all available able-bodied persons to help in the sale of tickets for "The Pirates of Penzance." All people interested should see Dave Kennedy at once.

Dave Kennedy, chairman of the plan, announced that "each of the captains must submit their particular angles for approval before beginning the campaign."

Team captains are the following: Bob Keim, Mike Mervis, Anne Mullin, Doris Orner, Edith Roberts, Don Robinson, Betty Savine, Connie Sherman, Carol Shoemaker, George Sprague, Joe Thomasberger and co-captains Frank Jarrett and Harry Yates.

150 Alumni Expected At Dinner March 7

Approximately 150 Juniata College Alumni of Huntingdon and Fulton Counties are expected to attend the annual alumni dinner Tuesday, March 7. The banquet, to be held in the College dining hall, will begin at 7 p. m.

A. Lynn Corcelius, president of the Juniata College Alumni Association of Huntingdon-Fulton Counties, will preside during the program which includes President Calvert N. Ellis as speaker, and the Women's Trio (Gladys Mohr, Frances Roddy, Elma Stine, accompanied by Louise Cray).

The election of officers will be conducted by Professor J. Clyde Stayer.

'Pirates' Plugged On Radio Program

Wednesday night, "Juniata on the Air" featured a drama written by Jim Streiner on the life of Gilbert and Sullivan.

The cast for this presentation included Betty Carpenter, Carole Hagen, Charles Barklow, Bob Champion, Don Raphael, and Jim Streiner.

When asked about the coming radio programs, Streiner, "the whole thing is still in a hazy state, but there is a possibility that next week's show will be devoted to scenes from The Pirates of Penzance and the following week to the cast and Prof. Johnson."

Disc jockeys for "Turntable Terrace" next Tuesday are Vernon Beam and Philip Chabody; and Thursday, "Duck" Snyder and Bob Stein.

First Of 'Career Conferences' Opens Tomorrow

Juniata College will act as host during March and April to college-minded persons who wish to explore career opportunities. A series of five week-end "career conferences" will open with a social studies conference on March 4-5.

Others are scheduled as follows: March 11-12, science; March 18-19, the arts and literatures; March 25-26, home economics and business administration; April 15-16, education.

The plan offers such attractions as campus tours, living in dormitories, visiting classes and laboratories, and attending social parties and recreation. Most important will be the opportunity to discuss personally with department heads and faculty personnel the qualifications required for training in specific fields of study.

Pledges Must Be Honored By Mar. 6

All payments for JWSF pledges must be turned in to solicitors on or before March 6, chairman Richard Coffman announces.

The amount of pledges still unpaid stands at $376.50. A further breakdown shows a $5 deficit for the administration; $25 for clubs and organizations; $335.50 for the student body; $1 for off-campus contributors; and $10 for the faculty.

Total of all cash and pledge contributions is $2,063.94. The Lodge and Wing, the entire girls' dorm and Geiger House have records of 100%.

Religious Volumes In Library Vault Trace Back to 1548

Did you know that the Juniata Library contains some of the first Bibles printed in America?

That fact may sound fantastic to many students who feel that simply because they go to the Library once a week to catch up on Dick Tracy, they know the Library from "cover to cover." However, the vault is one nook in the edifice with which few students are acquainted. And it is there that these early Bibles and other valuable specimens are located.

Rare Volumes Included

Locked in this small but fireproof vault are hundreds of volumes, yellow with age, that express religious ideals throughout the centuries. One of the most beautiful of these rare volumes is the French Bible that was presented to the Library by Joseph B. Kline in 1941. This Bible is a fine specimen of eighteenth century German or Swiss binding.

One of the most unique in the vault is one which is bound with human skin. It is a book on Political Treatise from the Cassel Library collection.

3 Bibles Printed in 1738

Among the collection of religious books are three Sauer Bibles. These were the works of Christopher Sauer, published around 1738 in Philadelphia.

Also contained in the Library collection are two volumes on the study of rare flowers in the southern part of the United States. These aged volumes were secured by a northern soldier during the Civil War and presented to the Library by a Huntingdon citizen in 1907. Other volumes include "Nis Sententia" of Cicero

VAULT SPECIMEN—Miss Lillian M. Evans, College librarian, points out an early Sauer Bible to Mrs. Margaret Long Clemmer. The larger volume open is a King James I Bible (1634) considered the most beautiful Bible in the vault.

Male Quartet Will Sing In Chapel Mon.

Juniata's Male Quartet will be presented on Monday's chapel program. Wednesday, the Rev. Bottiger, Protestant chaplain at the Pennsylvania Industrial school will be the speaker.

Tentative plans for Friday's service in chapel include Dr. Clarence S. Roddy as guest speaker. Dr. Roddy is professor of English Bible at the Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary, Philadelphia.

Nowhere To Hang Your Coats

In Coleridge's poem "The Rhyme of The Ancient Mariner" are these famous words, "Water, water everywhere, Nor any drop to drink."

A new Juniata College version might be, "Modernization, modernization everywhere, Nor any place to hang your coat."

In the vestibule of the new dining hall there is a temporary coat rack which, although better than no rack at all, is quite inadequate. Many students are forced to lay their coats over the rack or on any objects which happen to project from the walls.

After the meal many of these coats have fallen on the floor or on the radiator. Obviously, this is not in the interests of proper coat care.

In light of this situation, we asked Paul Friend what could be done, only to find that a coat rack has been ordered which will accommodate only half as many coats as the present one, that is, 38 coats.

Now we are aware, as is the Business Manager, that the room is too small to accommodate the larger coat rack that would be needed. However, we think that something ought to be done.

Meanwhile, we just can't wait until the bright, new rack arrives.

'Time Will Pass!'

One of our rival houses of education boasts an English prof who is constantly annoyed by clock watching students. Last week he fixed 'em. He covered the clock with cardboard on which he had painted this legend: "Time will pass. Will you?"

'Lusty Look' Latest In Men's Clothing

A progressive haberdashers' movement decrees that the keynote of clothing purchases should be "rugged masculinity." This is further designated as the "lusty look." Step one in achieving a stylish lust is the introduction of large patch pockets. There ought to be four, at least, on coats, suits and jackets. Sex appeal now comes in tweeds, serges and gabardines.

Pastels are prophesied with all certainty on the Easter horizon. Within a month it is expected to be a la mode for a man to sally forth in a cutie whipped up in robin's egg blue, pea green, or eggshell . . . only because he's rugged.

Clothing Softer

A matter of great concern to the male fashion dictators is the fear that, in attempting to masculinize their clientele, they should in any way make them uncomfortable. For instance, the materials selected for Spring fashions are to be of softer texture. All the less to scrape against little male selves.

Then, there is to be a marked prevalence of widespread collars. This might well be corrupted into plunging neckline for the hairy-chested. Summer shoes are going to be of even lighter weight than the lattice-work sandals of yesteryear.

Finally—A Cigar

But best of all is the final touch to this bizarre swain of '49. Absolutely indispensible in creating the all-out rugged "lusty-look" is —a cigar. "It's the ultimate indication of the man who truly enjoys living," goes the justification.

If this is a preview of the flashing fifties, it looks as though the era to come will revolve about an anti-joey movement which has as its basic platform the abolition of white bucks and pipes.

Letters To The Editor

Questions Need For Gym

To The Editor:

Since I have already written you privately on the excellence of your Juniatian, I shall confine this to the subject of the proposed new gym.

You reported recently that the trustees have yet to approve the plans that call for the start of construction of a new gym this Spring. Therefore there is still time and good reason for students to conduct an open forum on the merits of Juniata College spending a quarter of a million dollars to provide the campus with its second gymnasium.

To initiate this forum of opinion I challenge anyone—student, administrative officer, alumnus, trustee—to argue validly for this extravagant project.

Faculty Most Important

I question the wisdom of these plans because as a student I felt that the most vital factor in the well-being of the College was its faculty; certainly it is chiefly through the faculty that the College succeeds or fails in its admitted obligation to build strong Christian character.

While a quarter of a million is to be sunk into a new gym, no positive program has been undertaken to improve the faculty by raising faculty salaries above their present subsistence level. Better salaries would help keep the stalwarts of Juniata's faculty from going off to greener pastures —and it would give the College a better selection of new instructors who must surely be brought in to rebuild the faculty where it is now in such shocking disrepair.

Faculty Come First

I'm for a new gym if the campus needs one, although not before an addition to the library or the men's dorm. But none of these building plans should come before Juniata's neglected faculty. And I think the administration owes the student body an explanation because:

1. as students we are more keenly aware than anyone of how neglected the faculty has become and that the quality of our education depends upon our instructors;

2. we are future alumni upon whom the burden of financing this College rests.

Trustees Should Veto Gym

If wrong, I earnestly request that my argument be shattered on this editorial page. If right, I earnestly appeal to the trustees to veto these plans.

Bob Smith

Endorses Keith Binkley

To The Editor:

I would like to endorse Keith Binkley as a candidate for President of the Juniata College Student Senate. It is my opinion that Keith has certain noteworthy attributes that make him an eligible individual for this important campus position.

In the first place, Keith has been employed by the College for some time; and he is quite familiar with the operations of both the administration and the faculty.

Secondly, he is classified as a day student but he has the unique position of being included as a part of both groups, day and resident student. These two points make it quite clear that Keith is well equipped to fill the job of adjusting the relationships between the College and the students.

It would be superfluous to go into the status of Keith Binkley's character. We all know that he is an alert, dependable individual who would make us a loyal servant. Let's put him in office.

Richard Coffman

Byers Backs Bush

To The Editor:

How many students stop to consider the merits of the candidates for Senate President?

The most important of a successful student leader is a dynamic personality. Has your candidate this requisite? Do you desire his company and respect his opinions? Can he sit with any of you prove that he is on your level? Does he have your interest at heart, whether day, married or resident student? Can he meet the students and administration with equal ease? Can he think clearly about all situations and thus deal with them wisely and justly? Have his past activities revealed to you his leadership abilities?

As junior class president and as a representative to Leadership Conference, our candidate has already proven his abilities as a leader. Knowing all candidates very well, I find it of the utmost necessity to recommend Walter Bush to be your next Senate President.

H. Franklin Byers

Supports Showalter

To The Editor:

When someone runs for a public office he must present special qualifications to justify his candidacy. Such a person, I feel, is Vernon Showalter, who is a candidate for president of the 1950-51 Senate.

Throughout his college career, Vernon has been active in parties, plays, The Juniatian staff, the social committee and many other activities. On many occasions I have worked with him and have always found him willing to sacrifice and to work hard. Vernon has shown his leadership ability through his capable handling of the job of business manager of The Juniatian. He is very congenial and easy to get along with, and is an asset to everything that he undertakes.

Rex Hershberger

TOMMY

This week has been one of quite a lot of activity. Everything from flag pole sitters to Jim McClain campusing freshmen girls for the violation of freshman regulations. As far as Tommy knows this act is unprecedented on the JC campus, but the whole thing sounds like quite a punishment.

Operators of the week: An item similar to this has not appeared in the last several issues of this rag due to the lack of material. This past week Duffy Defibaugh has remedied the situation by coming out of hiding and giving a few young ladies a break. Barbara Snively and Mickey Monks have received a portion of Duffy's valuable time, but don't fret girls you may be next.

Queen Ronnie I: Ronnie Grawlie, the pretty blond from Norway, was chosen as "Queen of the Deep" last Saturday night. For Tommy's money, Ronnie could be Queen of anything.

Confusin, ain't it: Tommy gathers his copy during the week and by Friday the couples have changed so completely that when the material herein is read, it approaches being a brief discourse on campus history. Regardless of all this, here is one from the past. As long as Tommy can remember the infirmary has been the place for the sick, but according to rumor Miss Spencer found Betsy Dively suffering in the social room. Lucky for Betsy Tom Gates was there with his broad shoulders for her to suffer upon.

Pinless doors: Have you ever tried to open a door and found it doesn't seem to open in the proper manner but merely falls? According to recent reports, the girls' dorm has been suffering from this prank.

Pe-roxide passion: Martha Zeigler, Bangs Keller, Audrey Campbell, Betty Longwell, Ginny Tyson and Cupcake Seese have decided that the hair they were naturally endowed with was not exactly what they wanted. These girls now have the dis-stink-shun of two-tone locks, but then skunks have the same quality.

Ice Follies: In spite of the fact that a few weeks ago this column reported Spring as definitely coming, Winter made a valient attempt to reinstate itself. The ice on Strickler's Dam became thick enough to skate on as a result of the cold wave. As someone said, "about a million of the kids went skating" but two who will remember going much longer than the others are Thurm Grossnickle and Cupcake Seese. Cupcake, how's the eye?

Roberts For Secretary

To The Editor:

For Secretary of the '50-'51 Senate, I present Edith (Beanie) Roberts as a most likely candidate to that office of responsibility.

Since she first swung into action here at JC, she has been holding positions of leadership with dependability. Maintaining a good scholastic standing, Beanie has participated with official capacity in varied extra-curriculars: freshman—secretary of her class, WAA team trips; sophomore—YW cabinet, Organ Guild secretary; and junior—WAA cabinet, underclassmen committee, IRC vice-president and president of the YW—besides membership of the A Cappella Choir.

With the background of such active club work behind her, Beanie is the one to bring to the Senate efficiency and new ideas —assets to any organization. Because of her training in leadership and her reputation for prompt, efficient work, I believe Beanie Roberts possesses the qualities which now fit her for the position—secretary of our 1950 Senate.

Doris Harvey

Runs Gerry Hartzel

To The Editor:

I hereby submit my opinion as to why Gerry Hartzel is the man for the position of treasurer on the 1950-51 Senate.

First of all and foremost, Gerry has the personal qualities necessary for a good senator—"character, objectivity, honesty, reliability—proven ability." A business major, he has had two years of accounting and has been on the Dean's List for two semesters, including this past semester. "The

Girls Compete In State Sports Day

Juniata's lassies traveled over to Penn State last Saturday, where they competed with five other schools in a gigantic sports day program.

The girls split even in two basketball games. They lost to a more experienced Lock Haven team in the opener, 24-6. However, they found Lycoming more to their liking and defeated them, 12-10.

Juniata copped top honors in the bowling attractions, winning a first place in both individual and team events. It was the other way around in badminton, as experience again proved a strong asset for the other schools.

In the swimming tests, the local maidens came in fifth with a total of 22 points. Penn State girls were first with 35.

Girls who made the trip included; C. King, D. Shaffer, B. Savine, B. Snively, P. Miller, D. Harvey, L. Esaley, R. Kimble, P. Bane, K. Padgett, M. Madden, A. Smith, B. Roberts, C Borden, D. Lehman and J. Abel.

Tomorrow, the girls who made the Penn State trip, with some reinforcements, will travel to Lycoming College to participate in a similar meet.

On the home front, the girls interclass games ended this week with the Juniors boasting an undefeated season, and the league crown. They conquered the Sophs in their final test, 32-18. That same night, the Frosh copped second place in the final standings by virtue of their victory over the Seniors, 17-10. Individual honors go to Cecie King, who finished with 69 points. Dolly Shaffer was close behind in the runner-up spot.

BASKETBALL

Harry Campbell ripped the cords for 14 points to lead his BTO's to an important victory over the Shmoos by 27-26. The win gave the Howett coached crew a tighter grip on the second place position behind the leading Meteorites.

The Meteorites remained as the team to beat when they decisively smeared the I-7, 67 to 44. Old Flip Chabody became high scorer of the week when he gunned 24 points in this contest. Don Robinson was close behind with 23.

Other games saw both the Shmoos and Skijans make a determined bid for a playoff position by coming through with victories. The Skijans downed the Be Boppers, 46-17, while the Shmocs topped the Highlanders 48-35.

Chairman of athletics Duck Snyder has announced that only those games which involve the potential playoff teams will be played next week. Regularly scheduled contests may have to be shifted in order to give these games preference. Games scheduled for tonight will be played as they appear on the schedule.

This week's scores: BTO's 27, Shmoos 26; Ranchers 44, Chowhounds 34; Skijans 46, Fubars 18; Dragons 37, Red Raiders 31; Meteorites 67, I-7 44; YHO's 60, B $/2 49; Shmoos 48, Highlanders 35; I-7 52, Ranchers 45; Skijans 46, Be Boppers 17; Dragons 42, B $/2 18.

BOWLING

The second half of the Intramural Bowling League moves into its third round of play tonight. Les Miserables, first half winners, are currently making a strong bid for a clean sweep.

Last week's games involved a series of whitewashings. Les Miserables, the Pirates and the Sky Pilots each blanked their respective opponents, the Aces, the Hooks and the Strikettes. The remaining contest saw the Sliders win a hotly contested duel over the "new" Senoritas, 3-1.

The second place Sliders will attempt to overhaul the front-running Les Miserables, and the Hooks tangle with the Strikettes, at 6:30 tonight. In the late games, the Aces meet the Senoritas and the Pirates battle with the Sky Pilots.

DOC GREENE—Last night's game terminated Coach Greene's first season as head of Juniata's cagers. An assignment tougher than the one he faced this season could not have been given him. But in spite of the won-lost record, Doc has installed his playing system, which is a head start toward improvement next season.

Diplomats Hold Early Lead To Top Indians

Doc Greene dug deep into his magic hat last Saturday night at Lancaster. But even the new tricks he tried were not enough to revive his "victory starved" Indians, as F & M handed them their seventh straight setback, 52-41.

It was a completely revamped lineup which took the floor for the Indians at the starting whistle. Leo Kuhn, Dave Bayer, George O'Brien, Ken Wenger and Ray Tesi comprised the most recent starters. Though the usual first team took over midway through the period, it was F & M in the lead by 16-9 at the quarter. The Diplomats resumed their tactics in the second period as they increased their margin to 30-18 at the half.

F & M Leads 2nd Half

The black cloud of doom continued to hover over the Braves in the second half. With big John Bohee controlling the boards, the home team went on to lead by 44-26 at the end of the third chapter, from where they coasted to victory. Juniata managed to outscore the winners in the fourth period, but the Diplomats' early advantage was more than enough.

Ulsh Has Eight

Holmes Ulsh led the Indians in the scoring column, though he could garner but eight points, one of his lowest marks of the season. Stan Welch and Ray Korody hit for six and five respectively. Bob Zink was high man for the evening as he collected 18 for F & M. Bohee and Hartman followed with ten each.

Indians Lose 66-64 Duel To Albright In Finale; JV's Win

The 1950 edition of the basketball Indians closed their season last night, and almost in a blaze of glory. It took a last second field goal by Dan Bieber to save the day for the highly rated Roaring Lions of Albright College. The score was 66-64.

Juniata took a quick 4-0 lead in the opening minutes and then held on for a 22-20 first quarter lead. At the half the Indians had increased their margin to 37-30.

The Lions began to roar in the third period. Behind Lee Cappel, the visitors shaved the Braves' lead to 50-48 going into the home stretch.

Albright evened matters as the final chapter began, and from that point on the score was tied eight more times. The last deadlock, at 64-all, set the stage for Bieber's timely twin-pointer.

Each of JC's varsity seniors did well in singing their "swan-song." Holmes Ulsh was high scorer with 26 points. Stan Welch hit for 19, and John Stayer for ten. Ed Anlian led the Lions with 22, while Dan Bieber was close behind with 20.

In the preliminary, the local JV's had little trouble in downing the 2237th Air Force Unit by 71-41. After a close first half, the juniors exploded in the third quarter to win easily. Don McFarland led the winners with 13 points.

JV's Bow To J.J.C. In Final Road Fray

While the storm raged outside the gym, the Johnstown Junior Center of the U. of P. created a little gale of their own on the inside as they defeated the local JV's 65-53. It was the second loss the little Indians have absorbed from the Johnstown boys this season.

Behind the marksmanship of the Park and Freeburg, the home team started early and held a 12-7 lead after the first ten minutes. Both boys continued to hit in the second chapter as Johnstown increased their lead to 32-19 at the half.

The little Indians came back strong in the second half and played the winners on even terms the rest of the way. Johnstown maintained their lead at 47-32 at the third quarter, but Juniata shaved it slightly in the final canto when the winners used their reserves extensively.

Fran Townsend led the locals in the scoring parade with 12 to his credit. He was followed by Dave LeFevre and Ron Fleck, each with ten. Park, with 14, and Freeburg with 12 led the winners.

Diamond Candidates Work Out In Gym

Who said robins are the sign of Spring. At Juniata the sign is the beginning of baseball practice sessions, which began last Monday when several pitchers began loosening up in the gym.

"Our chances for 1950 are good," commented Coach Bill Smaltz as he watched his hurlers go through their initial paces. In proving this statement, he pointed to nine big holdovers from last season. But he hastened to add that "no position is ever clinched, and each one will have to be won the hard way."

Among the returning vets are pitchers Jack Dickey, Ken Wenger and Fred Phenicie, infielders Don Howett, George Kensinger, and Dick Young, and outfielders Mike Dzvonar, Harry Frye and Squeeze Long. Dzvonar and Long were also used in the infield last year. As Coach Smaltz says, "Squeeze can play anywhere," since he has also seen service as a catcher on occasion.

"If Wenger and Dickey can pick up where they left off last year, pitching shouldn't be too much of a headache," said Smaltz, "and of course, we'll still have Phenicie for E-town."

New candidates for the squad will include Dave LeFevre, Orlando Loschavio, Don Bracken and Dale Zimmerman. Coach Smaltz stressed that this week's work-outs were for pitchers only, so that a complete roster will not be available until later.

The office of treasurer of the A Cappella Choir his sophomore year and membership in the Tycoon Club have also given him experience for the position he is seeking.

His extra-curricular activities have not been confined to the business field, however, since he is currently manager of the A Cappella Choir (automaticaly becoming president next year) and president of the Spanish Club. On the musical side, Gerry has had a leading role in both campus operettas.

Voters, the final decision is up to you!

Debaters Of Forty Years Ago Hailed

Today debaters are the unsung heroes of Juniata's campus.

Not so, 40 years ago. In 1908, records the Juniata Echo, "A debate victory at Juniata without a bonfire is a thing unknown . . ."

Telling of a victory over Bridgewater College, the Echo says:

"As soon as the glad news of victory was received over the wire, the students began to plan a royal reception for the boys. They arrived on the 5:32 p. m. train the next day and were immediately kidnapped, amid yells and cheers, then were hauled in a victoria thru the town . . . ."

St. Pat's Day Party Planned For Mar. 11

An atmosphere of St. Patrick's Day will prevail at the Lambda Gamma and Chemistry Club Party on March 11 in the gym.

Lois Robinson and Herman Groninger, co-chairmen, announce that plans are well under way to make this a gala affair—complete with green and white decorations, tables, and entertainment.

This party will be open to all sub-freshmen who will be attending the career conference on the Juniata campus that week-end.

$162,000 Still Needed To Finance Project Gym; Plans Being Revised

Emphasis on current contributions to the Juniata College Postwar Fund is now being directed toward obtaining an additional $162,000 for the gymnasium project.

A little over $88,000 is now available, and the estimated cost is approximately $250,000. "It appears doubtful whether this deficit will delay tentative construction plans to break ground for the building this Spring," according to the College News bureau.

However, the College hopes that most of the money will be on hand before construction begins. J. Alfred Hamme, architect, is revising the plans according to suggestions made at the last trustee meeting.

Fund Past Half-Way Mark

The entire Postwar Fund campaign for one million dollars has passed the mark. Pres. Ellis announced that the financial report shows a total of $516,467 has been contributed.

Of this amount, the College has used $67,711 for remodeling buildings and improving the College plant; $143,500 for new additions to the plant; and $194,117 reserved for endowment.

Other Expenses Listed

A further breakdown of expenditures reveals the following renovations and additions completed: remodeling the chemistry labs and Founders lobby and office space in 1948; dining hall addition; and the fireproof stairway for Oneida Hall.

The $28,000 received from Mr. Swigart was used for the purchase of Swigart Music Hall. In 1946 and 1947, $15,500 from the U. S. Government was spent to equip the Village, the Lodge and the home economics building.

which was published in 1548 and the A. Edward Newton collection of rare books and manuscripts.

Collection Contains Maps

Within this vault there is also a fine collection of historical maps. The most important one is a rare Dutch map of early America printed in Amsterdam in 1785. It presents Pennsylvania as an enormous tract of land embracing what is now New York, Maryland and West Virginia in addition to this state's present boundaries.

Second in importance is a map of Pennsylvania indicating its canals and roads. This was published in Philadelphia in 1846. Both of these maps have recently been added to the vault collections by President Ellis.

Not only does the Library have rare volumes and maps, but also a collection of paintings. There are 60 pictures in this collection of famous prints. Each fall the students are permitted to borrow these for their rooms. Most of these pictures were purchased with money donated to the Library by the various Juniata women's leagues.

Vaults Open To Students

"Any student who is really interested in seeing any of these rare volumes is welcome to do so," says Miss Lillian Evans, chief librarian. "All that is required is that they be accompanied into the vault by one of the librarians."

She added that "several professors have already borrowed and used some of these volumes in their classes.

Vern Showalter Has Ability, Experience

Showalter

Vernon Showalter, one of Juniata College's more active students, who has heretofore preferred to work diligently behind the scenes, has forsaken the role of "unsung hero" and has thrown his hat into the ring as a candidate for the presidency of the Senate.

for good government.

In all of his undertakings, he has shown that he has, not only the ability, but the determination to carry thru to successful conclusion everything that he has undertaken.

One of Vernon's outstanding traits is that no matter how busy he may be, and he usually is, he always has time to stop and chat with anyone, no matter who he might be.

Vernon is one of the few people on campus who has remained aloof from cliques and special interest groups. Capable, approachable and congenial, Vernon Showalter will be the people's choice for good government.

Senators Rule On Elections; Dispose Of J Club Question

The Senate clarified election procedure at a meeting on Tuesday evening. Legislators also ruled on campaign procedure and disposed of the J Club room question.

According to a ruling handed down by the student legislature, elections will be on the basis of the majority vote of those voting in any election. However, an election is not valid unless at least two-thirds of the student body vote.

Also Senators resolved that all campaign expenses and programs shall be submitted to the elections committee of the Senate prior to their execution. The Senators ruled that all College and Club equipment should be available to each candidate for campaign purposes.

Action on the J Club issue resulted in a recommendation that the name be changed to Men's Lounge. It was agreed that arrangements with the club should remain as previously designated by the Senate.

The J Club question was dropped because of the poor response of resident men students to a meeting held in Oller Hall Friday. Ten men students attended the meeting.

Tommy Hawk To Narrate History

The voice of Tommy Hawk, Juniatian columnist and campus observer, will narrate the story of the past year as it will be told in a 20 minute wax record being prepared by the Audio Committee.

This group of five students was formed two weeks ago to "preserve the sounds of Juniata's passing history" by means of annual recordings.

According to tentative plans, Tommy will travel to seven points of interest on the campus at which the major events of 1949-50 took place. These places are the dining hall, Skips, the girls' dorm, Swigart Hall, Oller Hall, the site of the new gym and Sherwood Forest.

Application blanks for the May administration of the Graduate Record Examination are now available at the office of the Dean of Students.

Blanks must be submitted to the central office at Princeton, N. J., not later than April 21, 1950, according to Dean Morley Mays.

Students of Juniata will probably wish to take the exam at Penn State on May 5 and 6.

Copies of the bulletin of information are available at the office of the Dean of Students.

CHARLES REDENBERGER

The talents, training and experience of nearly one-sixth of the Juniata College population will be pooled next week in a grand and glorious extravaganza of song and story.

At 8:15 p. m. next Friday evening the curtain rises on the opening night performance of the Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera "Pirates of Penzance."

Charlie Redenberger and Fran Roddy, holders of the male and female leads respectively, can both rely on a long list of past musical experience to add that "certain touch" to their performances.

Violinist At 11

Says Redenberger, "My musical training began at the age of 11 with the violin. I have since performed with the Altoona Civic Symphony, as well as my high school and junior high orchestras."

Hackman's Design Chosen

The design submitted by Joe Hackman, sophomore business administration student, has been chosen for the cover of the "Pirates of Penzance" program, according to program editor Doris Quinnell.

Supervision, Not Restriction - - - -

We think that the election campaigns as conducted by the various candidates were, generally, reasonable and healthy.

Reasonable and intelligent campaigning should be encouraged for the competitive spirit which it creates and for the experience which it gives the candidate and his campaign committee.

The only bad spot in last week's elections was a situation in which College and club facilities for making photos seemed to open exclusively for one candidate. There are many sides to this question and we shall pass over that which has passed.

Ostensibly, to insure equality of use of all College facilities for campaigning, the Senate passed a resolution this week that all campus facilities shall be open to all students equally for campaign purposes. To accomplish this and to "supervise" campaigns as provided by the Senate constitution, it was also resolved that all campaign expenses and programs should be submitted to the Senate prior to their execution.

Equality for all and the supervision of campaigns is a step in the right direction.

However, in an effort to accomplish this, the use of individual pictures in campaigning has been outlawed in favor of group shots which would be posted and which the candidates would be required to pay for.

This was decided by the majority of the candidates themselves at a meeting Wednesday called by the elections committee.

We question the right of this group and the elections committee to make it necessary for candidates to pay for group pictures which amounts to their paying for the right of running for office. If the Senate feels that the voter should be able to see what his candidate looks like, then the Senate should conduct and pay for such a program.

Furthermore, we question the good sense of restricting and regimenting campaigning in an effort to provide equal opportunity.

Why shouldn't a candidate be permitted to use pictures or any other reasonable method of campaigning if his costs don't exceed $5.

As far as we are concerned the elections committee took the easy way out—what the campaigns needed all along was not regimentation but supervision.

THIS MORTAL COIL

by Don Brandt

"A house divided against itself cannot stand." So spoke our 16th president, the man who tried so hard to unite this sectional land of ours. In a land where a man should be John Smith first, he is a Negro, Catholic, or Jew.

We realize that the hair on the back of your neck is already beginning to bristle, but read on and then condemn us. This is probably one of the most ticklish subjects we could pick to talk about, but we would like to pass on a few experiences of recent campus discussions.

"Some of my Best Friends—But"

There are many discussions on campus related to prejudice, and they usually wind up with the following selfjustification. "I'm really not prejudiced. Some of my best friends are Jews, or Negroes or Catholics"—and so on ad infinitum. Nevertheless, there is usually that tiny allowance for discrepancy with our all-inclusive conjunction 'but'.

"I'm Very Tolerant"

What runs through your mind when someone comes up with that statement? "I think I'm really very tolerant." Perhaps we should issue medals to all tolerant people. Consider that word—tolerate. That's really a great stand to adopt, and any individual could be truly proud of it. Some people tolerate asthma, and others migraine. We could hardly find anything quite as conducive to harmonious living as the "tolerant attitude."

One Week Resolution

Sunday marked the close of Brotherhood Week, and probably the close of many minds until next year at the same time. For the next 51 weeks we'll return to the same old routine, justifying our positions with anemic rationalizations. "Keep America for Americans." Great!!! That's very logical from the standpoint of the people who cry it from the housetops. If that's the case, we'd better all return to our ancestral homeland and give America back to the Indians. In their eyes we're all foreigners!

All Blood Is Red

What physiological basis can you find for prejudice? Take any man in the world, and test him. Is his blood green or orange? Is his brain tissue black or purple? Is he different internally? It isn't hard to find the answers to these questions. Rejecting a man because of his color, race or religion is like refusing a steak dinner because you don't like the type of china on which it is served.

Now more than ever before, harmony is important to the United States. In the eyes of God, all men "are created equal;" society builds the fences. We are society, and we should be ashamed to admit the ownership of such a reputation.

Juniata Needs New Gym

To the Editor:

Did I hear a challenge? After spending a period of two years as a member of a faculty-student committee to consult with the building committee, on both the memorial education building and the new dining hall, I am rather amazed that the question of whether to build is still being debated.

That question was settled at a meeting of the planning commission four years ago. Approximately $88,000 was solicited from citizens of Huntingdon County for the new memorial physical education building.

In good faith that money cannot be used for any other purpose. In short, I propose to argue validly for this extravagant project, as R. Smith has suggested.

First, I cannot consider that the proposition of faculty raises can enter into competition for funds that will help build a new gym. Construction of a new gym is a capital investment, paying of salaries an item of operating expense. Thus, any plan for raising the level of faculty subsistence at Juniata would have to provide for a continuation of a higher level. Robbing Juniata of a new gym would give a blanket raise to the faculty for two years at the most—what to do after that?

Mark Hanna's conception of a school was a teacher and student, giving them equal importance. Just as important to Juniata as the faculty are the students. From the College's viewpoint, students are a commodity. Juniata enters into competition with 50 other small liberal arts schools in a six-state area for students. With the time coming when overcrowding no longer exists, what a college can offer a prospective student will have something to do with his choice of schools.

As basketball manager for one season I became acquainted with the hardships of the present physical education set-up at Juniata.

The team practiced at the small College floor, and never played a game all season on a floor comparable in size. Locker space was limited and equipment storage was cramped. There were no adequate facilities for sports other than basketball; handball, wrestling, boxing.

Admitted, the trustees should investigate faculty salaries and compare them with those of other similar institutions. The friends of the Library should spearhead any movement to place an addition to the Library. And something other than vision should face the fact that the Lodge is only a temporary building.

But a new gym is a project too long awaited and too far developed to be set aside for any of these.

Sincerely,
Jess Garber, '49

'Mon. Morning Quarterback'

To the Editor:

We read Mr. Bob Smith's "letter to the editor of The Juniatian" concerning the proposed gymnasium. We will not discuss with Bob his substitute spending of the money assigned for the new gymnasium.

However, Bob spent four years at Juniata College and to the best of our knowledge he never used the gymnasium in any way, shape or form. Since he knows nothing about the facilities of gym one, we feel someone better qualified should talk for or against gym two.

Bob is a little like the Monday morning quarterback who knows nothing of football but knows exactly why Saturday's game was lost.

Grad Praises JWSF Success

To The Editor:

That issue of The Juniatian which announced that the JWSF Drive was nearing completion has just reached me, and the news that it is to be a success has made me proud of you as schoolmates and friends.

Two years ago enthusiasm for such was an easy thing to stir, for the war was just over and certain memories were fresh. Today, however, in the year of exhaustion of hope for peace and preparation for war, it is a measure of the kind of people who make Juniata that they have responded so well.

The temptation is strong in us all to admit that war and hunger, deprivation and fear, are inevitable turns of the dice, and that they take their nurture from some basic sickness within us. It is probably so, but the thing of importance is that there are still groups of individuals such as you who are at Juniata who believe that the gesture is its own justification, and that the failure of two, three, or a million atempts is not the signal for sleep. It seems as though projects like the JWSF represent the balance to our frequent delight in destruction; perhaps the uncomfortable voice of conscience.

To you go the congratulations of an absent Juniatian for a job done well in adversity; an accomplishment worthy of the people you are.

Sincerely,
Jim Gittings

Longwell For Social Comm.

To the Editor:

What do you think of a social program which includes these points:

1. More "girl-dates-boy" nights, along the lines of Twirp Week?
2. "Mixer" type parties, to be attended without dates, in whose informal atmosphere new friends can be made?
3. Outdoor funfests for Fall and Spring such as doggie roasts, swimming parties and square dances on the lawn?

If these ideas, and all the others which have been developed as the result of a year's experience on the social committee, appeal to you, then vote for the candidate who sponsors them—vote Betty Longwell for social committee.

Supports Carpenter

To The Editor:

We propose sophomore Bill Carpenter for the position of chairman of social activities. Here are the qualifications he brings to prove his talents through past experience.

In high school he was six times elected to his student government organizations, served as vice-president and later as president. He was active on the dance committee, organized a dating bureau, served as secretary of the Hi-Y, a member of the varsity club, and the track championship cross country teams. Bill also held positions in the scholastic league and on the newspaper.

Once entering Juniata, Bill began entering into the activities' field by being: chairman of the freshmen night committee, guest speaker at the Huntingdon Lions on behalf of Care, a member of the steering committee, a debate moderator over WHUN, actively engaged in IVCF work, a master of ceremonies in a social committee event, affiliated with intramural sports and co-worker in the sophomore pep rally this year.

Look again at these qualifications. Can your candidate measure up to them? If he does then you must be voting for Bill Carpenter for chairman of social activities.

TOMMY

Elections are over for a while so we can breathe a sigh of relief, for a few days at least. Tommy would like to congratulate the candidates for the various offices on their enthusiastic campaigning. The pictures, which I believe appeared for the first time in a campaign, were a very excellent method of introducing the candidates to those on campus who did not know them personally. Tommy has only one regret; that these pictures caused the Senate a worry as to whether the candidates exceeded their expense accounts.

This week has had very little going on that is of any great importance but Tommy has found that hand stands, etc., are considered "it" on Fourth Founders.

Administration: Jack Buckle the assistant director of admissions here at the college has been heard expressing regrets that he is troubled with too many feminine admirers. Jack mentioned Fran Sheared as his present worry.

Operator worth mentioning: In the past few weeks Jane Abel has been doing quite well for herself. After the somewhat earth shaking break-up with Bob Jones, Jane has gone on to Bud Kreider, Don Robinson, Kelsey Edwards, Jack Dickey, and Dave Armacost, to mention a few.

Who said that "In Spring a young man's fancy . . . "? The recent cold wave has resulted in an attempt by Art Shriver and Mary Tipton to pool their resources to stave off the cold.

Woman's Paradise: Along with Jane Abel, Mickey Monks has been "operating".Duffy Defibaugh and Don Brumbaugh have been sharing Mickey's time. All this makes Tommy very happy. He always knew the girls would somehow remedy their scarcity.

As a parting shot Tommy would like to bring up the ruling made by candidates who will be running in the election for chairmanships and class officers. In a meeting Wednesday, these people decided that some "unfair practices" were employed in this week's election. In the future elections the candidates will have group pictures taken. This in my estimation is a backward step, but then progress has always been hindered by some who don't believe in anything new.

Till the next time—yours for bigger and better elections,

Thomas (Radical) Hawk

23 Report For Initial Baseball Practices; 10 Vets Included

Twenty-three candidates reported to Coach Bill Smaltz's initial practice call for the 1950 Juniata baseball team. Taking advantage of a break in the weather, the men held their initial outdoor practice Wednesday.

Ulsh Leads Indians In Hard Luck Season

by Bob Jones

"A few breaks at the right moments could have meant Indian victories instead of defeats." Those were the words of Coach Doc Greene, referring to the close losses to Lycoming, Bucknell, Dickinson, F & M and Albright during the last season.

The Braves won only four, while losing 13, in their initial season under the tutelage of Doc Greene. Three of the wins came on the Indians' "home" court. They defeated Allegheny and Elizabethtown here, while they took Susquehanna in both the home and away contest.

Ulsh Leads Scorers

Holmes Ulsh wound up the season with 298 points, good for a 17.5 average, as he led the team in this department. In addition, he had the most points in any one game, 30, most field goals in one game, 15, and most free throws made in one game, ,10 of 13. At last reports, Ulsh ranked 54th in the nation among small college scorers.

Stan Welch, Ray Korody and John Stayer also topped the century mark in the scoring column. Welch carded an even 150 for his efforts, while Korody and Stayer followed with 117 and 103 respectively.

High water marks for the team included their 30 field goals against LV, their 24 of 36 free throws against Allegheny and the 36 personal fouls called against them at Geneva. Other feats which will be remembered were their holding Susquehanna to two field goals in the first half of their game at Selinsgrove, thanks to the HAZ defense of Coach Greene, and the mere nine personals called against F & M in the last road game.

Four To Graduate

Four faces will be missing when the roll is called for the 1951 season, as Ulsh, Stayer, Welch and Ken Wenger leave via graduation. No doubt their loss will be hard felt, but a strong bench should go a long way in filling in ample replacements. Returning from the starters will be Ray Korody, while Don Howett, Dave Bayer and George O'Brien all saw plenty of action this season.

But this season is history. Regardless of the overall record, Coach Greene has now installed his playing system; a great stride in the making of any team. The result should be an up-grade in Juniata basketball.

Final statistics for 1950

* Dropped from squad

Among the missing are shortstop Dick Stever and catcher Suds Everhart, 1949's co-captains. Both men graduated last year, leaving their respective positions open. Dutch Howett may make the move from second to short, creating one gap to plug another, while George Kensinger may return to his catching position after playing last season at first base.

The left field will experience a new set of spikes with the passing of Dave Phenicie. Though Dave hardly spoke for himself in the batter's box, he was a cat in the garden, and his absence will be felt. Half-pint Paul Peoples' 1949 record was not too impressive, but his graduation opens the need for another starting hurler.

Kensinger Leads Hitters

George Kensinger led the Indians to a seven won, six lost record last season as he hit at a healthy .362 clip. Kensinger had 17 hits in 42 official trips to the plate, including four two-baggers and one four-master. He crossed the plate 15 times, and drove in eight more.

The home run crown went to center fielder Meteor Mike Dzvonar, who lifted five into the sea of lost baseballs. He also shared the runs batted in title with Everhart and Stever as he drove in 13 markers.

Base stealing was Squeeze Long's specialty. The fleet-footed outfielder beat the peg no less than 11 times last season. Second in the larceny department was Dzvonar, who swiped nine.

Returing pitchers Jack Dickey and Ken Wenger both tossed .667 ball in 1949. Ken won four, lost two, and produced a respectable 3.21 earned run average. Dickey's record showed two wins and one loss, 2-1 heart-breaker, and an amazing 1.30 ERA. Fred Phenicie had one win, a decision over E-town.

Veterans Show Promise

Last year's veterans showed much promise of returning to the form they had last season in the initial workouts on Monday. Squeeze Long seemed to have an unusual batting eye, as he became the first Indian of the season to clear the outer barriers. Regular practices will be held, weather permitting, from now until the opening game on April 12 against Lycoming.

Other candidates, in addition to those who saw action last season, include Tom Appleby, Phil Chabody, Bill Conrad, Dave Hackett, Bill Hanson, Joe Hulgus, Don Howe, Harold Keener, Dave LeFevre, Harry Samuels, Fred Smith, Ray Tesi, Fran Townsend and Dale Zimmerman.

Sliders Upset Miserables In Intramural Bowling

The big news on the bowling front this week was the surprising defeat of the strong Les Miserables team at the hands of the Sliders. Not content with merely defeating the league leaders, the Sliders added insult to injury as they completely blanked the losers.

Another big upset was the Pirates stunning defeat of the favored Sky Pilots. The girls' win lowered the preachers from their lofty third place position of last week to sixth place in this week's standings.

Other games saw the Hooks overpower the Strikettes by a 3-1 margin, while the vastly improved Senoritas dropped the Aces by the same margin.

Doug Fortune became the individual star as he bowled a high game of 221, and also took the totals honors with a lofty 523.

Meteorites, BTO'S In League Finals

The final playoffs of the Intramural League began last Wednesday night as the first place Meteorites faced the third place Shmoos in the opening contest. The second attraction saw the BTO's pitted against the I-7.

After the dust of battle had settled, statistics showed that the league champion Meteorites had defeated the Shmoos, and the BTO's had topped the I-7. Tonight the victors face each other as the final series begins.

Meteorites Score Early

Thirteen points stood between the Meteorites and the Shmoos at the final whistle. The victors led at the end of the first quarter by 23-6, and this scoring spree put the game in the deep freeze early and decisively. Though the Shmoos revived to battle the Dzvonarmen on even terms, they were unable to overcome their first period deficit.

Dick Young, who fouled out in the last chapter, racked up 18 points for the winners, while scrappy Bill Lehman bucketed seven field goals and two free throws to head the vanquished Shmoos.

The final score of the initial contest read Meteorites 58, Shmoos 45.

After sinking low into the second division at mid-semester, the defending champion I-7 team fought their way back into the better half at the season's end. However, their joy was short lived as the BTO's defeated them in the opening round, 52-51.

Zimmerman Stars

Until Zimmy Zimmerman dumped a foul shot in the fading seconds of the final stanza, the contest was a wide open affair. The Howett coached crew were forced to overcome a first half shortage to win. Lanky center Doug Martin's rebound work was effective for the winners in the final period.

Harry Campbell's 17 points were tops for the BTO's, but he was followed closely by Zimmerman with 15. Zimmerman practically doomed the I-7 by himself in the waning minutes as he scored the winner's final five tallies. For the losers it was Don Robinson who scored 19 to lead his quintette.

Finals Begin Tonight

The BTO's and Meteorites will meet tonight in the opening round of the championship series. The winner of two-out-of-three will be declared champion.

Final statistics on the regular season's play showed Don Robinson to be the highest scorer with 226 points. Duck Snyder was second with 168.

Letters To The Editor

Endorses Don Treese

To The Editor:

We who room with Don Treese are writing this letter to the student body of Juniata College to present the reasons why each of us feels he is the type of person needed for the chairmanship of religious activities on the College Senate. These reasons are shared by all of us who are close to him intimately.

First, he is a fine example of a ministerial student who exemplifies in his living and work the qualities of leadership and sincerity needed by all leaders.

Secondly, Don is a conscientious student worker, evidenced by his attaining the Dean's List every semester at Juniata.

Thirdly, regardless of how busy he may be, he is always eager and willing to help anyone who needs aid.

Finally, this particular chairmanship demands faith, reverence and devotion to God in addition to ability, and we are assured that Don possesses a character embodying these traits.

He is the candidate best prepared for this important religious task.

Respectfully yours,
His roommates at the Burns House.

PROF. DONALD S. JOHNSON

"I was tricked into my first attempt at singing. While at a party two years ago, a friend introduced me, without any forewarning, as the 'guest singer.' I went along with the gag, although my heart was in my mouth, and have been singing ever since."

Mrs. Roddy, the heroine, is chiefly interested in the clarinet, but is also a pianist and an organist. "I have been playing in bands and orchestras as long as I can remember," she says.

A soprano, Mrs. Roddy is a music education major. After her graduation in the Spring, she plans to teach.

Had To Give Up Canasta

On the organization end of the production is Prof. Donald S. Johnson, the director. Although he has "had to give up Canasta since beginning work on 'Pirates'," Johnson still enjoys the job.

"It's the thrill of starting with nothing more than a group of people and a book, and ending up with a full evening's entertainment which I like," the director says.

In producing a show of this type, according to Johnson, it is customary to break it down into separate parts—dancing, singing, dialogue, orchestra—and then put it back together "like a jigsaw puzzle" after each group has learned its part alone.

Don Treese are aspiring for the chairmanship of religious activities.

Miss Miller, a sophomore from Tuckahoe, N. Y., is concentrating in sociology. At present she is secretary of her class, a member of Volunteers, IVCF, Camera Club, Cheerleaders and the Dunkard Club. Miss Miller was chairman of the party recently given by the sophomore class.

The president of the YWCA, Miss Roberts, is also the current vice-president of IRC, a member of IVCF and WAA. A history major, this candidate plans to teach after she is graduated from Juniata.

Treese, a pre-ministerial student majoring in Bible and philosophy, is a sophomore from Williamsburg, Pa. He is a member of the Ministerium and Volunteers and a participant in intramural sports.

In the race for social activities chairman are Bill Carpenter, Vera Compton, Bob Elder and Betty Longwell.

Bill Carpenter, from Philadelphia, is a sophomore majoring in sociology. He is a member of IV CF and is also working on the ticket committee for "Pirates of Penzance."

Miss Compton is on the roster of members for the Masque, the Camera Club and the Radio Committee. Last year, this candidate received her Masquer key. A junior from Arlington, Va., Miss Compton is majoring in sociology.

Two of the aspirants for the chairmanship of social activities, Bob Elder and Betty Longwell, have worked on the social committee this year. Elder also had a hand in Talent Night and has done work on the Radio Committee. He wrote the script for the junior All Class Night presentation last year.

A sophomore majoring in elementary education, Miss Longwell is a member of the Masque, Debate, FTA, and ABC. Currently, she is working on the "Alfarata."

Chuck Allison, Bob Rotz, Ray Siren and Joe Thomasberger are competing for the position of chairman of underclassmen.

Spanish Club, IVCF Plan Elections; FTA To Hear Teacher From England

by Renie Hebrank

The spirit of elections seems to have permeated every campus corner this week, with three Juniata organizations holding election of officers.

Hebrank Named Editor of 'Scout'

The appointment of Renie Hebrank, a junior from Jeannette, Pa., as editor of "The Scout" was confirmed by the Senate this week.

Miss Hebrank, who is an English major, is currently literary editor of the "Alfarata" and society editor of The Juniatian.

Allison, of the class of '51, hopes to work with the YMCA after graduating from Juniata. At present he has his membership in the Masque and he has worked as stage manager of All Class Night. Allison also works on The Juniatian staff.

Also of the class of '51 is Rotz who will be on the ballot for chairman of underclassmen. At present, he is chairman of the publicity committee of the Tycoon Club. Rotz also works in the college post office.

Siren, of Donora, Pa., is a sophomore chemistry major. He is a member of the Chemistry Club, Debate Club (manager this year) and the American Chemical Society. One of the 15 students here who has had his name on the Dean's List, he also participates in intramural athletics.

Known from football, intramural basketball and track, Thomasberger is currently working on the ticket selling teams for "Pirates of Penzance." Thomasberger, Johnstown, Pa., is a sophomore majoring in history.

In the running for chairman of women's house are Doris Harvey, Ruth Kimble and Doris Mickle.

At present, Miss Harvey is secretary of IRC, vice-president of YWCA and IVCF, a member of WAA, Volunteers and the Women's House Committee.

Miss Kimble is president of the Lambda Gamma this year, treasurer of the WAA, a member of the YWCA cabinet, the Dunkard Club and Women's House Committee.

A music major, Miss Mickle is the publicity director of the A Cappella Choir, program chairman of the YWCA, a member of Volunteers, band, FTA, Dunkard Club, the church choir, and Women's House Committee.

FTA has a very special program planned for its members tonight at 7:30. In addition to having the election of club officers, the group will hear Miss Marian Ecker, a former Juniata graduate. She will discuss her experiences in England where she served as an exchange teacher in the elementary grades. Miss Ecker, a resident of Waynesboro, Pa., has also toured Scotland observing teaching methods with a group of English teachers.

To Vote On Constitution

Ratification of the new constitution and elecion of officers is on the agenda for the Spanish Club meeting, March 15. Refreshments will be served. Members are requested to come to Room C at 7:30 p. m.

A combined meeting of Volunteers and Dunkard Club has been planned for March 14 in Founders Chapel. Mr. Ira Petre, missionary to Nigeria, West Africa, will be the speaker. The Rev. Petre, who is home on furlough, will speak on Brethren mission work in Nigeria. He will be available for conferences on Monday and Tuesday to any interested students.

Prof. Dubbel To Speak

Assistant professor of English, Silas Dubbel will speak to the IVCF on March 16. He has chosen Romans 3 as his subject. The club will hold election of officers next week. This meeting is scheduled for the Women's Day Student Room at 7:00.

The Lambda Gamma meeting set for March 15 has been cancelled to permit the members to prepare for home economics day on March 22. Election of officers will be held within the next few weeks.

Twenty-seven members of the Chemistry Club took a field trip last week to the Viscose Rayon Plant in Lewistown. Two chemical engineers acted as guides for the group and explained the entire process leading to the production of garment rayon and tire fabric.

CONSCIENCE STRICKEN—Papa Bob Frain is comforted by daughters Lois Miller, Laura Hollingshead and Jo Chiodi as he deplores his action of telling "an innocent fiction" to a band of pirate would-be-sons-in-law. He had prevaricated, claiming to be an orphan so the pirate band would not be "conjugally matrimonified" to his lovely daughters.

Gilbert & Sullivan Satire To Be Staged Tonight, 8:15

A lawless pirate band invades Oller Hall this evening at 8:15 p. m. and musical fun for all promises to be the result.

"More than one-third of the student body will have had a hand in 'Pirates of Penzance' through working on crews, serving in the chorus or cast, or playing in the orchestra," according to Lois Esaley, assistant to Prof. Donald S. Johnson, director of the comic opera.

Ask any Gilbert and Sullivan enthusiast and he will tell you that these writers have a style all their own, one which is a little difficult to understand and enjoy at first. The chief charm of most of the partners' work lies in its tricky rhymes and its satire.

Gilbert's intense hatred for old women trying to appear young, and people who do things out of a "sense of duty," are the principal targets for ridicule in "Pirates."

As it opens, Frederic, played by Charles Redenberger, has just become 21 and of age to leave the pirate brigade to which he had been apprenticed. His nursery-maid, Ruth, (Helen Wentzler) had misunderstood and bound him to a pirate instead of rightfully as a pilot. Not being able to to go back after having made this terrible mistake, she became a piratical maid-of-all-work. As he is about to leave, the 47-year-old Ruth pleads for his love, but all in vain.

Frederic then comes upon a

Choir Of 150 Will Present 'Saint Paul'

"Saint Paul," by Felix Mendelssohn, will be presented Sunday evening of commencement week.

The choir of over 150 voices will be composed of the A Cappella Choir, the Chapel Choir, undergraduates and graduates who are returning to Juniata's campus to participate in the performance. The soloists have not yet been announced.

Prof. Rowland will direct the performance of this oratorio accompanied by Prof. Johnson at the organ and Louise Cray and Elma Stine at the piano.

While the episodes in "Saint Paul" are not always chronological, the highlights of his life are represented. Some parts have been deleted to cut down the length of the performance.

The first oratorio was given in 1929, nine years after Prof. Rowland's coming to the campus. Since then, "Elijah" has been given 12 times, the "Messiah" five times, the "Creation" twice and "Saint Paul" once.

Audio Committee Completes Record Of College Year

The job of recording the history of 1949-50 on the Juniata campus has been completed, according to a member of the Audio Committee.

Two complete sets of wax discs have been requested by the Alumni Office for use at alumni dinners in Cleveland, Ohio, and Pittsburgh.

The records carry the voices of President Calvert N. Ellis, who waxed a portion of the speech he gave at the opening of the dining hall addition; Dick Coffman, telling the results of the JWSF Drive; Queens Gladys Gehman and Ronnie Gravlie; and Don Norris, with a portion of "Berkeley Square".

Accounting for the music department were the Girls' Trio, the Varsity Male Quartet, and the "Pirates of Penzance" orchestra. Sports were represented by Coaches Bill Smaltz, Dr. Arnold Greene, and Mike Snider. Carrying the continuity for the entire recording was Phil Chabody as campus observer Tommy Hawk.

Philadelphian To Speak

Dean Mays will lead next Monday's Chapel service.

Club Proposes To Build A Cabin Along The Juniata

Would you like to see Juniata College have a cabin along the Juniata River?

The Outing Club, or more precisely Bob Lowry and Rex Hershberger are the originators of this idea. With enough student support they hope to fulfill their dream of a "cabin in the sky."

Emery Zook, a graduate of Juniata, has offered 23 acres of land at a nominal sum for this purpose. The site is within a half mile of the Juniata River and nine miles from the Raystown Dam. There would be private access to the river for boating and swimming.

The president "favors the project" if there is enough enthusiasm for students to build the cabin themselves. However, there are no funds in the school budget for such a project. There has been a suggestion that the lumber from the old music house which is to be torn down could perhaps be used.

This cabin would be for the use of the entire College, not merely the Outing Club. It could be the scene of many week-end outings or week-end meetings of various campus organizations.

Any students who feel that this cabin plan is a good one should contact Dave Kennedy, Bob Lowry or Rex Hershberger. If there is enough interest it may be possible to begin building the cabin during the Spring vacation.

Chemistry Club Puts Juniata On The Air

"The Chemical Kingdom", a round-table discussion on recent chemical developments, will be presented by the Chemistry Club when Juniata is on the air Wednesday.

Last week's "Juniata on the Air" concluded a series of four broadcasts devoted to "The Pirates of Penzance".

Included on this presentation were Corrie Sollenberger, student manager for "Pirates", Dave Kennedy, chairman of the ticket sales contest, and Betty Savine, who piloted the winning group through the contest.

Also taking part in the show were Bob Frain, who sang "The very model of a modern major general," accompanied by Dottie Humphreys. Prof. Donald S. Johnson, "Pirates" director, spoke on the problems of staging such a musical. Jim Streiner, publicity chairman, served as announcer.

Two Juniata students will appear in "And Adam Begat", a mystery to be presented Sunday at 1 p. m. on the "WHUN Playhouse". They are Phil Chabody and Janet Boland.

Disc jockeys on "Turntable Terrace" next Tuesday are Joe Hulges and Harry Samuels, and on Thursday, Galen Freysinger.

Cordier Places In Contest

Sherwood Cordier won third place in the all-state Intercollegiate speaking tournament last week-end at the University of Pittsburgh. The topics of these addresses were "The United Nations" and "National Defense."

Library Purchases Microfilm Viewer

The first step in their Mid-century Development Program has been taken by the library with the installation of a Recordak Microfilm Viewer Tuesday.

According to the Library Bulletin, "the technical process of microfilming involves the use of a special camera and a sensitized film 1⅜ inches wide. One foot of film carries eight newspaper pages or approximately 825 pages on 100 feet of film. The film must be viewed on a special projector which gives an image of 1½ times that of the original printed page."

A $150 gift of the class of 1949 gave original impetus to the fund from which the viewer was purchased. Proceeds from library auctions as well as donations by friends of the library also helped finance the project.

At the present time only the scribed to in the microfilm editscribed to in the microfilm edition. Students may view these at any time by asking the librarian to set up the machine.

Formal Is Mar. 29; Corsages In Order

Climaxing move-up day activities, the annual spring formal, sponsored by the social committee, will be held in the gym Wednesday, March 29 at 8 p. m. Preceding the dance will be a formal dinner in the dining hall, beginning at 6 p. m.

Corsages will be in order, according to Betty May, chairman of the social committee. She added, "entertainment will be provided by an orchestra headed by Jack Shaffer." Throughout the entire evening, refreshments will be served.

Decorations to be concentrated around the stage and the baskets, will the ultra-modern with proper effects to be provided by lighting.

Discussion Today at 4:30

Today at 4:30 a meeting will be held in the Old Chapel to discuss the religious activities which the students would like to plan for next year.

The meeting concerns the proposed re-organizaton of religious-activities on campus.

Everyone is invited to attend the meeting.

Home Ec Day Set For Wednesday

The department with know-how about chocolate cakes and such is sponsoring a Home Economics Day on Wednesday.

First, in the program of events for the day is a tea in the afternoon for Dr. Henderson from Penn State. Throughout the afternoon there will be open house in the clothing laboratory with some of the student work on display.

During the evening meal, all the home economics majors will sit together in the dining hall. Following the meal, Dr. Henderson will be the guest speaker of the Lambda Gamma.

The home economics department was started in 1915 with a two-year curriculum and but two faculty members. It was not until 1919 that a four year curriculum was announced.

Today the department has 41 majors and 29 non-majors who take one or more courses in this field. It now has four faculty members headed by Miss Butler. The home economics department is on the Pennsylvania approved list for preparing teachers for vocational home economics education as well as being recognized by the American Home Economics Association. Graduates of this program find opportunities in government service and industry as well.

According to a choice made by home economics college clubs of this province, Juniata will be host at their fall conference in Oct. Over 100 students and faculty members are expected to attend.

Oslo U. Offers Summer Courses

The University of Oslo in Norway will hold its fourth consecutive Summer School for American Students, University authorities recently announced. This 1950 session will be held from June 26 to August 5.

Applications for entrance can be secured from the Oslo Summer School Admissions Office, St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn., and must be returned to this office not later than April 1. Some 250 American students having completed at least two college years by June, 1950 will be admitted.

Courses Conducted In English

The University of Oslo will provide lecturers and guarantee the educational standards of the courses, which will be conducted in English. Six semester credits may be earned during the six-week's course.

The main emphasis this summer will be on courses pertaining to Norwegian culture, with a six-weeks orientation course, The General Survey of Norwegian Culture, required of all students. The faculty for the session is composed of many prominent men, known not only in their native land of Norway, but recognized throughout the world.

Scholarships To Be Granted

The Summer School will grant 20 scholarships to American and Canadian students for the 1950 session. These cover the student's tuition, student's fees, and excursion fee, a total of $110 each. The Summer School has also been approved by the United States Veterans' Administration.

Letters To The Editor

Committee Denies 'Easy Way Out'

To the Editor:

Many things could, and should perhaps, be said about the editorial in the last issue of The Juniatian. We shall confine this communication to those facts which, we feel, are essential in understanding the whole situation.

First of all, this was not a Senate perpetrated thing. The situation concerning the use of school photographic equipment in the early campaign, which incidentally was even admitted as "bad" in your editorial, was brought to our attention by numerous students. These did not even represent one "group" but spoke for many.

Secondly, in answer to your query concerning the right of the elections committee to act, you should know as a Senator that the Senate has the power to formulate all student policies not otherwise delegated to the faculty or administration.

Committee Has The Right

Thus, the elections committee, as the official body acting for the Senate in this particular situation operates with full constitutional right in supervising and regulating as it deems wise, within constitutional limits, of course.

Now, in order to remedy the "bad" situation mentioned above, the elections committee, having been advised by the Senate—at which meeting you were present—called a gathering of all candidates for Senate chairs in order to let them decide what they desired to do.

At this meeting one of the candidates, not a Senate member, suggested a co-operative plan for advertising by which a photograph of each candidate could be taken on an equal basis, with the entire group sharing the expense. This plan, which was adopted by the gathering by an overwhelming majority, is the one which has since been carried out so successfully.

The committee decided to take the expression of those who were actually involved as what should properly be, and the decision was made by the committee on this basis. Is this, may we ask, what is commonly known as "regimentation?"

No One Had To Pay

Furthermore, concerning the point made in your article that candidates are required to "pay for group pictures which amounts to their paying for the right of running for office," let it be known that no one (in this case two people out of 28) was required to pay for a picture in which he did not desire to be included.

It was assumed since no one, including yourself, stated that he was not willing to abide by the majority rule—that all would have their pictures taken and each pay his own portion. The problem of whether or not one should pay if he refused to be included was never raised! Let it be said here that those who felt "regimented" were not asked for any money and, as you have seen, their names were included on the ballot just as the others. In addition, with the exception of this one restriction concerning photographs, all candidates were free to advertise as they desired.

You seem to admit that a "bad spot" existed but you indicate in your entire and more specifically in the second and third paragraph from the end, that absolutely nothing should be done about it. The best you can offer is that "any reasonable method" should be permitted.

Ask Meaning Of Words

What, if anything, do you mean by these words? We agree that any reasonable method should be used, but at the same time we have attempted, maybe poorly to fulfill our tasks as members of the elections committee by defining them.

You were present at both the Senate meeting, where we almost begged for advice, and at the meeting of the candidates and yet, while admitting that something should be done, you were strangely silent on just how this problem could be attacked more effectively. Vague words and sentences do not help.

"Easy Way Out"

In conclusion, what justification do you have for stating that the committee took the "easy way out?" We can honestly say that we weighed this situation in our minds for several days. You know the earnestness with which this problem was presented by us to the Senate and the many minutes (about an hour) which were spent on it in an attempt to be fair to all.

In light of this, we marvel at the ease with which such sentences fall from your pen into the editor's column.

Respectively,
The elections committee

THIS MORTAL COIL

by Don Brandt

Climb on the merry-go-round folks, here we go again. Someone has seen another flying saucer. You've certainly heard about it already, but we were thinking about it the other day and began wondering about the truth of it all.

A very reputable businessman (hypothetically speaking) announced to the world last week that he had seen the remains of the flying saucer which had crashed on a southwestern hillside. To top it off, he was analyzing a strip of metal which had been taken from the ship, probably in an attempt to decide which planet the contraption had deserted.

The news story then took on the shade of typically low brow twenty-fifth century fiction in describing the little "man" found dead in the wreckage. Poor fellow was dead before help arrived. We'll never know what caused him to crash. Maybe the "atomic" engines on the ship failed, or perhaps he developed acute peptic ulcers as he neared our complex civilization. At any rate, he's dead.

Forgot About U. S. And Russia

Fantastic as the entire story appears, citizens of our neurosis ridden planet briefly forgot about Russia and the United States when they heard the ominous news. One news commentator even suggested that the United States and Russia would have to band together to fight a common enemy in an interplanetary war.

The world doesn't want war. The world isn't preparing for war. How often have we heard that malarkey? Yet as soon as a hint of interplanetary invasion reaches our ears, we are required to check our rifles.

One of the professors on campus volunteered the observation that if the "Martians" did land on earth in an attempt at interplanetary understanding, we could make them fight. It's impossible that anyone on another planet, (behind the Ozone Curtain) could be interested in peace. No one is interested in such an archaic idea anymore.

'Ignore The Obvious Doom'

We immediately leap at the "inevitability of war" with these creatures, and completely ignore the obvious doom it presupposes. Any creature possessing the advanced scientific technology necessary for a successful interplanetary invasion would also possess knowledge sufficient to render our "powerful" weapons inconsequential. But still we cry "no"! Man the battle stations. Use the Hydrogen bomb! We must "preserve" the world at any cost!

About the only way to settle the question is to hope that the next 'organism' that crashes his flying saucer on earth survives the impact. Maybe he can give us the answers. Until that time, the unfortunate little man of the recent crash has been 'pickled' for science. This reporter thinks the originator of the tale was too.

TOMMY

Now that the elections are over, it can be expected that we should get some good farm legislation through the Senate, a la 4-H style, meaning of course from Hines, Humphreys, Howe and (s)Howalter. It seems to Tommy as though the past election was a display of some first class electioneering and political maneuvering. Tommy was offered a lollypop to back the Conservatives. They represented the group who were all out for coal rationing during the strike in order to keep school in session and the dorms in frigidity.

The Radicals were counteracting however with popsicles with the theory that more coal should be applied to the already hot embers. John L. Lewis solved the problem, however, and the voting issue was relegated to more pertinent political school issues such as deodorants for the old gym, noise proof wall for the Lodge, plush seats for the grandstand and retreads on the blow-out patches in the chow hall.

Now that the Intramural Basketball League is terminated, some friendly and pertinent awards can be made. The Chow Hounds were the hungriest team; the Beboppers disliked symphony more than the rest; the Meteorites had the biggest legs; the Betta Halfa Buckers had the most daring; the YHO's were the most virtuous; the Shmoos the cleanest players; the Skijans the oldest men; the BTO's the poorest coached and the Ranchers the best dressed team.

Ray Tesi, Stan Welch and Ray Korody have been doing some triple operating lately. But like Stan always says, "there's safety in numbers."

Now that the candidates for track and baseball are getting tuned up, it can be told that Mike Snider is in search of long-winded, long-legged, big-jumping hemen, while Bill Smaltz wants fellows who can use baseball bats with no holes in them.

Congrats to disc jockeys Beam, Chabody, Siren, McClain, Stein and Mervis. It is evident that there are some future Bob Pooles in the school. All they need is a Butterball and a sponsor.

Tommy believes the drive for better messhall manners is taking effect. He doesn't detect water in the napkin bombs anymore; butter is put on the knife in preparation for pea eating; the diggers are stopping at the third slice of bread now and the slapstick jokers are sticking to more unseen practices such as shin-kicking.

Sue Bieber and Annie Kirk are taking three-credit courses in Manner Approach and Donutology at Joe's Coffee House. Midterm grades are based on change-making, long memory and grin-appeal.

Miss Evans and Mrs. Clemmer certainly have been making the rounds of newspapers, looking at old encyclopedias.

Co-operators of the week: Don Raphael and Don Sikes. How do you keep it up fellows?

Orchids of the week: To the sportsmen on campus.

Poison ivy of the week: To the die-hards and moaners on campus.

Question of the week: Who doesn't want his Spring vacation? Why???

See you all later. Just remember, watch your lingo, Tommy is going to make records.

Love and Kisses,
Mrs. Hawk's boy, Tommy

Thought For The Week

Little cuts from classes,
Little slips marked "late"
Makes the student wonder
If he'll graduate.
Now I lay me down to rest;
Before I take tomorrow's test.
If I should die before I wake
Thank God! I'll have no test to take.

The Leader

Joe: I don't see where he gets off—springing a test like that. It was too long and he didn't even go over the stuff in class.

Mary: I flunked, too.

Gold Medal 'Loop' Race To Be Held Next Thursday, 4 P. M.

The 1950 track season will make its Juniata debut next Thursday afternoon, March 23, at 4 p. m. This time has been set as the starting time of the Mike Snider Gold Medal Race, an annual cross-country affair. It will be followed, on Wednesday, March 29, by the annual Interclass meet.

Originally scheduled for last Fall, the cross-country has this year been set back to the Spring. The race is open to all students and anyone interested in competing should be at the gym prepared to run at the 4 p. m. starting time.

The "coal burners" will cover a course about 2¾ miles in length. Commonly known as "the loop", it includes the terrain extending from the gym, out along the Cold Springs road, in the Warm Springs road to Twelfth St., and thence back up "sprinters hill" on Oneida St. to the gym.

Snider Presents Awards

P. M. "Mike" Snider, director of athletics and sponsor of the race, is the donor of the three awards, given to the winners of the first three places. Last year the awards consisted of handsome tieclasps with attached gold, silver and bronze medals for the respective places.

The wearer of the gold medal from last year's run is Joe Beyer, who will run his last race this year. Beyer streaked over the course in a record-breaking 15 minutes and 38 seconds. This clipped one minute and 27 seconds off the previous standard, set in 1942 by Ralph Harrity. Harrity, oddly enough, taught Beyer the elements of distance running.

Also finishing in record-breaking time was Don Brinton, a junior, who turned in a mark of 16 minutes and 4½ seconds. Bob Keim, also a junior, finished in the third place position.

Though primarily the basis of deciding the annual award, Coach Snider stated that he will also utilize this event to scout any natural ability and thus "spot" men for the varsity track team.

Includes All Events

The annual Interclass Track Meet will include all events except the two mile run. Featured will be the mile run, all the dashes and six field events. Last year the class of 52' topped the juniors by 10 points to secure the meet. Individual standout was Coy Hicks, who scooped 19 points for the third place sophomores.

Accomplishments in these events will be useful in determining prospective track candidates in the various positions for the coming season.

Wet Grounds Halt Outdoor Practice

Coach Bill Smaltz argues yes, but the weatherman replies no.

Due to the soggy condition of the field, the baseball squad has been tossing them inside in order to keep up the conditioning process. "They're throwing harder now," said Smaltz, "and there will be a few sore arms." So far the sidelining mishaps have been at a minimum.

With the opener against Lycoming less than four weeks away, Coach Smaltz expressed the doubt that the team would be able to hold many outside drills before that date. "Until then we will have to make the most of our indoor facilities," he continued.

Both the coach and the players have been taking voluntary warm-ups via the paddle ball game. Harry Frye and Squeeze Long revived the game that formerly was seen mainly in frosh gym classes, and it has caught the fancy of many of the ball players.

Mike Snider has termed the variation of indoor tennis as "Juniata's new sport," since it has gained such popularity. Coach Smaltz was happy to see so many of his players take up the "new sport." "If they would all play paddle ball," he stated, "getting in shape would be a much easier task."

The 1949 records of returning players:

Tennis Squad Holds Initial Workouts

Aspirants for the newly created tennis squad began informal workouts "against the boards" in the gym this week. As soon as the weather permits, the men will take to the outdoor courts for regular practice. Additional candidates are expected to report when the outdoor drills begin.

The recent addition of a new tennis stroking machine enables the charges of Coach "Mike" Snider to concentrate more fully on strokes and technique.

Six men will be carried on the team, each playing a singles match and pairing up to play doubles matches against every opponent met in competition. Six or eight matches will probably be scheduled.

Meteorites Take Intramural Crown

DOUBLE DUTY—In addition to serving as head coach for Indian football teams, Bill Smaltz now enters his fourth season at the helm of the baseball nine.

Mike Dzvonar's power-laden Meteorites closed their campaign in a blaze of glory last Wednesday night as they trounced the BTO's 58-44, to gain the Intramural League crown. They succeed the I-7, who copped the title last year.

The newly crowned champions jumped off to an early lead and were never headed. Paced by George Smith, Dick Young and Phil Chabody, they soared to a 17-5 first period lead. But the BTO's came storming back in the second frame to outscore the winners and reduce the margin to 29-21 at the half.

BTO's Close Gap

Harry Campbell and Bob Smith got two quick buckets for the BTO's as the second half opened to bring the score to 29-25, but that was as close as they got. Young and Smith resumed their scoring tactics at this point, as the Meteorites again increased their lead. The two teams then battled on even terms, with the Meteorites holding a ten point advantage at the three-quarter mark, 43-33.

The final chapter saw the BTO's lose the services of scrappy Earl Detrick, which proved to be a handicap. Sparked by Zimmerman's foul shooting, the losers kept pace with the winners in the opening minutes of the canto, but once again it was Young who exploded to put the game in the freezing unit for the Dzvonarites. The final score read Meteorites 58, BTO's 44.

Young High Scorer

Young walked off with the evening's scoring honors as he tallied 19 points on nine field goals and a foul. He was followed by Smith, who banked 14, and Chabody with 11. For the losers it was Campbell and Zimmerman squared off with 15 apiece. Zimmerman displayed uncanny accuracy from the 15-foot stripe as he converted nine of 12 charity chucks.

The Meteorites had previously defeated the BTO's on Monday evening, 54-37. Wednesday's victory provided the champs with the edge in an intended three game series.

Sliders Widen Lead In Bowling League

The red hot Sliders appear to be the team to stop in the second half race of the Intramural Bowling League. The current league leaders strengthened their hold on first place last Friday with a hard-earned 3-1 win over the Pirates.

Meanwhile the faltering Les Miserables outfit dropped into third place as they were upset by the Sky Pilots. After leading the league for most of the season, the Miserables have now been upset in two successive matches. The win gave the "preachers" an even split on their second half attempts.

Other matches saw the Hooks continue their strong comeback campaign with a 3-1 win over the Aces in a battle of second division clubs. The Senoritas moved into undisputed possession of second place in the standings by virtue of their forfeit victory over the lowly Strikettes.

Tonight's action finds Les Miserables meeting the Senoritas in a must battle for each team, since the Sliders will be expected to take the lowly Aces in their match. Also scheduled for this evening are the Sky Pilots against the last place Strikettes, while the Pirates face the Hooks in a fourth encounter.

Korody Named To Captain '50 Golfers

It is now Captain Ray Korody. The Greensburg flash was elected to that position on the 1950 golf team at an organization meeting last week. He succeeds John Burych '49, who led the putters to an impressive record of nine wins and one loss last season.

Also represented at last week's meeting were Art Allen, Bob Rhodes, Frank Stasenko, Dave Bayer, Jim Glass, Bud Kreider, Gordon Stroup and Stan Welch.

Allen, Rhodes and Stasenko are returning from last season's outstanding squad. Kreider, Glass, and Welch were entered in the intramural tournament last year while Bayer and Stroup won acclaim in high school ranks. Bayer at Woodbury, N. J., and Stroup at Bedford, Pa.

Formal practice will begin as soon as the weather warrants it. The first match is scheduled for April 14 against Western Maryland on the local greens. Dr. Ed Kiracofe will pilot the golfers again this year.

Frosh I Team Leads In Girls Volleyball League

The girls inaugurated their Spring intramural activities last week with the formation of a volleyball league. Two rounds of games have already been played.

Last Thursday evening's action saw the Frosh I team defeat their sister rivals, the Frosh II outfit, by a 35-23 margin. A second game saw the Upperclassmen have little trouble in scoring a 44-18 win over Soph I.

The frosh were well represented in the win column on Tuesday night as both of the yearling aggregations came through with victories. Capt. Barb Snively led the Frosh I team to its second straight victory as they edged the Upperclassmen in the opening contest, 33-30. The Frosh II squad completed the evening's festivities as they completely outclassed the Soph II's to turn in a convincing 56-15 win.

The standings:

Team	W	L	Pct.
Frosh I	2	0	1.000
Frosh II	1	1	.500
Upperclassmen	1	1	.500
Soph I	0	1	.000
Soph II	0	1	.000

Creaking Chair In Room G Given By Mary Geiger, 1916

Have any of you ever wondered what story or tradition lies behind the creaking wooden swivel chair in Room G? Probably you've just glanced at it, and thought, "Gee, I wonder why that chair has a golden plaque on it." If you've been racking your brains, cease thinking because the answer is here.

Mary Geiger, who had formerly lived with her husband in the house that bears her name, died in 1916 with no children to whom she could leave her possessions. Before her death, she had sought the advice of Dr. J. J. Myers, who had been her pastor prior to 1916 in Philadelphia.

Dr. Myers suggested what he thought was needed, and Mrs. Geiger carried out his ideas. After her death the swivel chair was transported from Philadelphia to Room G at Juniata, where Dr. Myers taught Bible and Philosophy.

It was then that the gold plaque inscribed with the words "Mary Geiger 1828-1916" was attached to the chair back. The reason for this unusual act lies in the fact that she used it daily in carrying out the duties of a fashionable doctor's wife. Many were the times she wrote sympathetic letters to friends while sitting in this chair.

Through the years the chair has been held sacred to her memory. In accord with the respect given to the chair is that given to the benefits derived from Dr. Myers' suggestions.

With his advice, Mrs. Geiger started an endowment fund for the teachers of Philosophy and Bible. At the same time, she established Geiger Memorial Church in Philadelphia as a mission project for the mill workers. Without her thoughtfulness they would have had no church.

It has often been said that "all is not seen that meets the eye." Such a saying would surely apply to the squeaking chair in Room G which so many see daily, but so few notice.

Pirates

bevy of beautiful maidens, and awe struck, asks if there is not one that will take pity and love him. Only one, Mabel, (Fran Roddy) responds.

In the meantime, the pirates have discovered that Frederic was born on February 29 of a leap year. Therefore, he is actually only 5¼ years old, and still indentured to them, legally speaking. He returns to piracy, but merely out of a sense of duty.

Before this paradox had occurred, Frederic had conspired with some policemen to overrun the pirates. They attempt to do so, but the pirates prove too strong a match for them. It is then disclosed by Ruth that they are not pirates, but members of the House of Peers gone astray. It all ends on a happy note, as each of the ex-pirates takes unto himself a maiden for a wife.

The orchestra, of course, is a vital part of any musical production. Under the direction of Prof. Jack D. Brammer, the members of the "Pirates" orchestra are as follows:

Violin I: Janice Carper, Margaret Beistline Kemp, Kay Wright.
Violin II: Dr. Raymond Davis, Donald Norris, Luetta McIlroy.
Viola: Audrey Campbell.
Cello: Jean Bailey.
Bass: Betty Longwell.
Tympany: Carol Trotter
Oboe: Joan Weaver
Flute: Raymond Chilcott, Beverly McIlroy, Carol Shoemaker.
Clarinet: Don Raphael, Paul Good.
Bassoon: Don Brocht.
Trumpet: Holmes Royer, Lon Schrock.
French horn: Joe Beyer, Mim Smith.
Trombone: Wesley Diemer.
Piano: Dotty Ann Humphreys, Doris Orner.

Theater Notes

Word Values Emphasized By Composer of 'Pirates'

The works of Gilbert and Sullivan, the authors of "Pirates of Penzance", have a charm peculiar unto themselves. This is largely the result of the duo's emphasis on words, rather than music.

In creating each of their 14 comic operas, the team followed a never varying pattern: Gilbert proposed the plot, usually a satirical fantasy; Sullivan suggested changes; Gilbert spent six to eight months painstakingly writing and rewriting; Sullivan procrastinated to the last moment, then wrote in incredibly short periods the music to his partner's verses; finally Gilbert staged the production while Sullivan directed the orchestra.

Gilbert's words always contained music. The composer tells how he set about finding it: "First find the rhythm by means of setting symbols of value over each word. Once you have decided between five eighth notes and a dotted quarter note in a measure or eight eighth notes, making a melody is simple.

In such "patter" songs as that of the modern major-general in "Pirates", Sullivan always had the music take a back seat so that the essential rhymes and rhythms of the words would not be lost.

On the other hand, he never hesitated to give beautiful melodies to songs such as "Poor Wand'ring One", whose theme is more romantic than clever.

Savine's Team Wins Contest

The team led by Betty Savine came out on top in the ticket selling contest for "Pirates of Penzance" which ended Tuesday. Dressed as a pirate, Savine and her crew invaded Taylor Highlands to sell 138 ducats.

Runner-up with 104 sales was the crew led by Anne Mullin.

There were 11 student teams taking part in the contest under the general direction of Dave Kennedy.

Masque Play Set For March 30; Debaters To Attend Convention

by Renie Hebrank

In spite of the fact that "Pirates of Penzance" has kept 1/6 of the student body busy this week, club activities have not taken a back seat.

The Masque will present a second script-in-hand production in Oller Hall March 30. Thurman Grossnickle will direct this just-for-fun performance of "The Merchant of Venice". A cordial invitation is extended to all students to see the play.

Tomorrow the Debate Club will leave for Penn State to attend the Intercollegiate Debators convention. The group placed third in the extemporaneous speaking contest at the University of Pittsburgh last weekend.

Harold Kenepp will be the speaker at the Volunteers meeting on March 21. The club will also hold election of officers at this meeting in Founders Chapel at 7:15.

Members of the IVCF will meet in the Women's Day Student room on March 23 at 7:00. Those who attended the conference at Lancaster will discuss their experiences with the group. The election of club officers is on the agenda for the evening and all members are urged to attend.

On March 14 the J Club nominated officers. Elections will take place on Tues., March 21 in the J Club Room.

Three Attend Phila. Conf.

Three Juniata students represented the College in a conference of Eastern states held at the Crozer seminary in Philadelphia.

According to Jack Padgett, who attended the conference along with Dave Kennedy and Joe Thomasberger, the discussion topic was needs of the world and how these needs can be realized through ministry.

Pre-ministerial students from states as far South as Georgia were present at the conference.

To Give Concert Wednesday

The Women's Chorus of the Huntingdon Music Club will present a joint concert with the VFW Glee Club March 22 at 8:30 p. m. in Oller Hall.

Students and faculty are invited to attend. The concert is free.

Letters To The Editor

Editorial Reply:

The elections committee does have the power to supervise and restrict election campaigns in any manner which "it deems wise." Therefore we were in error on this point.

We admit, also, that the elections committee had to act in haste to resolve a problem and that perhaps our censure was too harsh.

However, we hope if a similar problem arises again that equality of opportunity in campaigning will be assured not by eliminating one facet of advertising but perhaps by assessing a certain amount against each candidate's campaign fund for each photo he uses.

The posting of group pictures of all candidates is a splendid public service for the voter and should be continued. However, we hardly consider these co-operative group pictures which leave no room for individualism in the area of campaign photography as a valid substitute for campaign photography. The group pictures were no more advertising than were the appearance of these same candidates' names on the ballot.

2 Degrees Available

According to the current issue of "The Juniata College Bulletin," only two degrees are available to college students: Bachelor of Arts (BA) and Bachelor of Science (BS).

The distinction between the two is that a BA degree is given only to those who have concentrated in the fields of arts or humanities. Studies in the natural or social science fields earn a BS degree.

A major in division I earns a BA, division II has a choice of either degree, and division III receives a B. S.

JCA Planned To Unite Campus Religious Clubs; Constitution Outlined

In order to attain more effective organization of religious activities on campus, a plan has been drawn up by students active in the existing religious clubs to unite all such activities under the Juniata Christian Association.

This plan is awaiting the approval of those clubs whose functions will be taken over by the JCA if approved by them.

Constitution Outlined

A constitution has been outlined providing for the organization of the spiritual program with reference to functions that are considered essential to the religious life of the college students.

These functions will be fulfilled by four commissions—Christian heritage, social responsibility, personal-campus affairs and world relatedness. The chairmen of these commissions, the president of the JCA, publicity director and faculty advisor will make up the cabinet which will head the program.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock a meeting will be held in Founders Chapel for the purpose of nominating and electing officers for the JCA and to discuss the constitution.

Senate Officer To Preside

For the initial year, the chairman of religious activities will be the president of the organization. He in turn will appoint the publicity director. Commission chairmen will be nominated and elected by an open student meeting to be held this afternoon at 4 in Founders Chapel.

Secretarial and financial duties of the entire organization will be under the control of central officers elected by the president's cabinet from among its own members.

Various committees have been listed under each of the four commissions. These committees will be headed by student-elected chairmen. Assistants will be chosen by the chairman of each committee as he feels they are needed.

Membership Open To All

Membership in the organization will be open to those Christian students who agree to support the ideals of the organization. A nominal fee will be charged which will cover the cost of a membership card in the national YWCA or YMCA.

Claire Coci To Present Organ Recital On Sunday

An organ recital will be presented by Claire Coci, head of the organ department at the Mannes School, at 3:30 Sunday afternoon in Oller Hall.

Miss Coci is a faculty member of the Oberlin Conservatory at Oberlin, Ohio; the Westminster Choir College, Princeton, N. J.; and Union Theological Seminary. She is head of the organ departments at both Dalcroze School of Music and the Mannes School in New York.

Extreme sensitivity, rich nature and unfailing interpretations mark her flawless technique and phrasing. Miss Coci's rare personality and charm add to her outstanding performance at the organ.

Presented in the first part of the program are "Toccata and Fugue in D minor," Bach; "Adagio," Fiocco; Andante," Mozart; and Pageant," Leo Sowerby.

The second part includes "Jesus Comforts the Women of Jerusalem," Marcel Dupre; "Fileuse" (Suite Bretonne), Dupre; and "Sonata on the 94th Psalm" (Grave Larghetto, Adagio, and Allegro—Allegor Assai), Julius Reubke.

Senators, Class Officers Move Up Wed. In Chapel

The annual move-up day ceremonies will take place next Wednesday in the regular chapel period. There the old Senators, class officers and club officers will relinquish their duties to the newly elected officials.

After the old senate has assumed a position on the stage, Pres. Ellis will introduce the new senators. Black books, symbols of office, will be exchanged by the incumbents and their successors instead of the customary robes.

At this time also, new club and class officers will take over their respective duties.

After the ceremony the new leaders will meet with their various classes, and the ceremonies will be moved outside.

Under the observance of the upper classes, the new sophomores will be led down the diag-

The purpose of having move-up day early in the term is to relieve seniors of their duties so that they may have sufficient time to prepare for their comprehensives and to allow the new officials a period of guidance under the retiring officers.

Senators Favor Gym, Faculty Program

While Senators are in favor of the new gym and the building program, they desire to see as vigorous a financial effort expended "toward maintaining a high calibre of faculty personnel."

Consequently, as one of their last acts in office Senators asked a special committee to formulate the recommendation which follows:

"The Senate recommends to the trustees, administration and alumni of Juniata College that a greater consideration and emphasis be given toward maintaining a high calibre of faculty, first, by providing salaries adequate to dissuade proved faculty members from leaving Juniata because of more attractive financial offers elsewhere and, secondly, by increasing remunerations in order to encourage the best possible replacements."

Blackouts Produce Snowball War, New Study Habits

(Editor's note: This communique from the war front is the joint effort of correspondents Paul Good, the Cloister; Bob Keim, the Lodge; and Marj Seidel, the Girls' Dorm.

Under a blanket of complete darkness Tuesday morning the men slipped silently into formation a short distance from the enemy outpost. Zero hour was 12:05 a. m. when the Huntingdon power system would be shut down for repairs due to a fire Sunday.

As they neared their objective, the attackers opened a snowball barrage and invited the fortress defenders to come meet their fate. The "haunting" call to arms of Ray Siren's horn answered the challenge, and the battle between the Lodge invaders and the Cloistermen was on.

General Mike Mervis called a hurried staff meeting, strategy was formulated, watches were synchronized, and the counter-attack got underway. Overwhelmed by numbers, the attacking Lodgers withdrew hastily, to a vantage point within their haven.

Blame for the rout apparently was due to the fact that the num-

'Passion' Theme Of 'Juniata on the Air'

Wednesday's "Juniata on the Air" broadcast will be dedicated to Passion Week. Sponsored by the Ministerium, this worship program will consist of hymns and devotional readings.

"The Chemical Kingdom", a round-table discussion on recent chemical developments, was presented by the Chemistry Club last week. Those taking part in the discussion were Eleanor Seese, Percy Kay and Gene Calderwood.

Disc jockeys on "Turntable Terrace" next Tuesday are Jane Abel and Anna Mae Zimmerman; and Thursday, Bill Carpenter and Gene Kline.

Dragonwyck Film To Be Shown Sat.; Dance To Follow

"Dragonwyck," a movie adaptation of the novel by Anya Seton, will be shown in Oller Hall Saturday at 7:30 p. m. Following the picture, the social committee will sponsor a dance in the gym.

A historical melodrama, the film is set in the 1840's against a background of the Dutch patroon system in the Hudson River Valley.

The central character is Nicholas Van Ryn, played by Vincent Price. The last of a long line of patroons, he defends his inherited possessions over his rebellious tenant farmers who would like to buy the land they till. Into this gloomy manor house comes the beautiful Miranda Wells (Gene Tierney), a distant relative of the patroon.

Nicholas, brooding over the fact that his wife bears him no son, kills her and marries Miranda. The new wife fulfills his desire for an heir, but the child dies soon after birth and the shock drives Nicholas insane.

Becoming a dope fiend, he treats Miranda cruelly and finally tries to end her life. However, he fails as a local doctor, an admirer of Miranda's, rescues her in the nick of time.

Lights Out—Club Postpones Concert

A joint concert with the VFW Glee Club will be given by the Women's Chorus of the Huntingdon Glee Club Monday evening at 8:15 p. m. in Oller Hall.

Originally set for Wednesday evening, the program was interrupted after the first half hour when a transformer fuse blew out on the line back of the Cloister. Penn-Electric workmen restored service after an hour.

Choir To Sing Sunday

Another all-day trip is scheduled for the choir Sunday. They will present programs at Brethren churches in New Enterprise, Altoona and Tyrone.

New Chance For Radio Acting Offered Students

A new outlet is now available for Juniata microphone enthusiasts in addition to the disc jockey show, "Turntable Terrace," and the College's own radio program, "Juniata on the Air."

Sam Stroh, station manager, has announced that students interested in joining the casts for plays produced every Sunday at 1 p. m. should send their name and address to "The WHUN Playhouse." The letter should also state whether a comedy or dramatic part is desired and which weeks are preferred.

According to Stroh, practices are generally held one or two evenings in the middle of the week. Shows are then usually recorded.

This Sunday a Juniata student, Paul Schroeder, will be a member of the cast of a melodrama double titled "Her Fatal Beauty: or the Shopgirl's Honor."

Cabin Plans Going Ahead, Say Sponsors

Although plans for building a cabin along the Juniata have not been fully organized as yet, members of the Outing Club are working on the project.

Inquiries are being made as to costs and available materials. At present, the group leading this enterprise desires to know what students would be willing to work on the building, once it gets underway.

Though members of the Outing Club are pushing the plan, it will be for the benefit of the entire Juniata student body, according to Dave Kennedy, Bob Lowry and Rex Hershberger, Club representatives.

Pirates Review

All College Musical Acclaimed 'Delightful Production'

by Dr. George B. Clemens

Under the capable direction of Professor Donald Johnson, the music students and the Masque presented a delightful production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Pirates of Penzance" in Oller Hall Friday and Saturday, March 17 and 18.

The story of this seventy-year-old opera is almost too well-known to mention. Many persons have long had a special liking for these tender-hearted pirates who cannot bring themselves to mistreat orphans, despite the fact that all their captives claim to be such. Many also have sympathized with the hero who, because of the defective hearing of his nursery-maid, was apprenticed to a pirate instead of a pilot.

Playing a role in a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta presupposes a number of things: singing and acting ability; awareness of the meaning of the words being sung; and exceptional clarity of diction.

Hartzel Outstanding

In all these respects Gerald Hartzel was outstanding as the Pirate King, tossing off all his lines, both spoken and sung, with fine voice and excellent diction. Robert Frain also exhibited exactly the right amount of swagger as "the very model of the modern major general", handling his difficult patter music with ease and coloring his enunciation with an appropriate British tone. Completely winning their audience at every appearance were the policemen, led by Lloyd Newlin, who pranced about with a fine dash of slapstick.

As the hero may not forsake the pirate band because of "a most ingenious paradox" involving his birthday, Charles Redenberger sang his role in excellent voice. Frances Little Roddy, just over an illness in time to appear for the performance, sang beautifully and with real spirit. Her duet with the hero, "Stay, Frederic, Stay", was especially lovely.

Daughters Had Sprightliness

Also good in their respective roles were Helen Wentzler, as Ruth, Frederic's nursery maid, and Clyde Johnson as the pirate lieutenant. Josephine Chiodi as Edith, Laura Jane Hollingshead as Kate, and Lois Miller as Isabel, three of the daughters of the major general, did their parts charmingly. In fact, all of the daughters made a delightful picture, and their chorus work, both from the standpoint of music and movement, had the requisite sprightliness. The pirates' chorus was most colorful, and antics like stamping out a very-vigorous "cat-like tread" enormously amused the audience.

Credit for the choreography of the entire operetta goes to Mrs. Donald Johnson, whose work

'Thanks'—Johnson

Sincere thanks from the Music Director are due every person who participated in any way in the all-college comic opera "The Pirates of Penzance", both on and off stage in the weeks leading up to the performances and the nights of the show.

All credit artistically and financially is the result of our common efforts, which merit praise.

Prof. Donald S. Johnson

We Can Have Both . . . .

Juniata College will have a new quarter million dollar gym sometime next year, according to officials high in administrative circles.

The architect has the plans, and barring any unforseen events, bids will be let out in the near future.

In light of the above it might be well to point out that the trustees and the administration made the decision to build a new memorial physical education building after carefully considering the needs of the College.

In March, 1944 a Juniata Planning Commission was created to study the future needs of the College. One recommendation of this Commission was for the establishment of a postwar fund of $1,000,000. The fund, to be raised over a period of years, was to be used for endowment, scholarships, buildings and facilities.

At the beginning of this college year a total of $465,733.00 had been contributed to the fund.

Since administrators and trustees felt that the most pressing needs of the students could best be served by enlarged dining room facilities and a new gym, campaigns were launched to raise money for these two projects.

The new dining hall has been completed at a cost of over $100,000. And with $88,000 specifically given for a gymnasium, administrators are planning to go ahead with this second major project.

In answer to Mr. Smith's letters we feel that the question of the new gym is a closed one. However, we do not feel that this was or is an "either-or" issue. Juniata can and will have both fine buildings and maintain a "high calibre of faculty."

It should be pointed out that faculty salaries have increased 45% since 1940 and that about $200,000 has been added to the endowment fund in the years 1944-49.

We commend the recommendation made by the retiring Senate (see page one) to the administration, trustees and alumni of the College that a high quality of faculty personnel be maintained through salary increases to those outstanding teachers who receive outside offers and through boosting the salary scale in order to get "the best possible replacements."

Opportunity Knocks!

The old saying "Opportunity only knocks once!" is not always true but sometimes it is better not to take chances.

At any rate, when you are offered 23 acres on the beautiful Raystown Dam for $1 a year and perhaps the wood from the old music house to build a cabin it's really too good to pass up.

Along with President Ellis we endorse the project if "there is enough enthusiasm from the students to build the cabin themselves."

The Juniatian will keep you informed of project plans as fast as they are worked out by Outing Club representatives Dave Kennedy, Rex Hershberger and Bob Lowry.

Smith Clarifies His Position On New Gym

To The Editor:

Judging by the misapprehensions in last week letters on the proposed new gym, my original point needs clarification.

First, my argument is not a contention that present gym facilities are adequate; I clearly said: "I am for a new gym if the campus needs one." Both letters contained the argument that Juniata does need a new gym. I don't doubt that, nor argue against it.

However, the question I raised is not that at all, but this: Do we need a gym more than anything else? Will Juniata be able to serve its students beter by erecting a new gym than by improving the faculty? Until the gentlemen answer these questions they have not met the issue squarely. To further answer Mr. Garber, I must add:

Is Juniata College A Business?

1) when he chooses the language of economics to call the gym a "capital investment" and faculty salaries "operating expenses" we must assume that he places the College in a classification with business enterprises and, therefore, would adhere to the standard business policy of keeping operating expenses to a bare minimum in order to invest in capital facilities. Current faculty salaries indicate that he has had company in this adherence.

2) I have not proposed diverting Huntingdon's gift of $88,000, earmarked for the new gym, to some oher project. But I do contend that the promise to use those funds for a gym does not obligate the college immediately to turn to the alumni and ask for $162,000 more to finish financing the gym —unless the gym is more important now than anything else that almuni contributions might be used for.

I do not oppose a gym or any of the other building plans as such. But I strongly feel that the College should place as strong, if not stronger, emphasis upon the use of funds for the endowment so that salaries and scholarships can be raised to a level where they will better insure the academic excellence so important to Juniata in the long run.

Impression Wouldn't Last

3) When he argues that Juniata could use a gym to advantage in impressing prospective students, I agree. But I hasten to add that

THIS MORTAL COIL

by Don Brandt

This week the Senior class of Juniata College was summoned to Founder's Chapel for the express purpose of discussing the pending comprehensive examinations. Glancing at the faces around us, we noticed the apparent exuberance with which all the candidates faced their challenge. We began to do a bit of mental reviewing of the things we have been told about life after graduation and we wonder if others have come to the same conclusions.

Bewildered

Throughout our years here at college, we have been told of our responsibility in trying to aid society constructively. We accepted this challenge, altering our ideals to a level on which we felt we could best benefit the people around us. In recent weeks this reporter has heard so many scornful comments on any well-meaning idealism which the graduating class might hold that he has become extremely confused. Remarks such as, "It's all right to expect to do some good for the world while you're still in college, but wait till you've been 'out in the world' as long as I have, son"; or, "The principles you have learned in your courses, here, designed to govern the individual in an ideal life, are appropriate in a class discussion on theoretical methods in living, but are totally unapplicable to situations on the outside world."

What Lies Ahead

With graduation only ten weeks away, can we wonder at the doubt which some of the seniors now express? If the things we have learned are not applicable to the life which we will begin in June, why have we spent four years in college? Some people think we only attend school to get that bachelor's degree to get a job which will offer "more money". What will the shock do to them when they learn that people who went to work when they began college are making higher wages than they can hope to equal for some time?

A Challenge

We can see then a challenge to those of us who feel that we were not taught a lot of "silly, theoretical nonsense" in our four years here. The senior class may not produce any startling world leaders, but we are convinced that the people, for the most part, which it turns into the world will be much better equipped for citizenship than they would have been without college. Only time can prove or disprove this belief, and this columnist has enough faith in his fellow class-mates to justify the attitude that the results will be positive.

TOMMY

Tommy would like to dedicate his column this week to the newly elected Chairman of underclassmen Chuck Allison. He has some novel ideas in mind such as dinks with ear lugs, name cards which light up at night, "Scouts" with Braille printing, and "freshman susceptible" electrically charged wire for along the diagonal. Bob Keim the new chairman of athletics intends to use Doric Chancll No. 5 in certain vulnerable areas in the gym, heavyweight boxers to officiate intramural basketball games, a secretary (for typing) and a set of Charles Atlas Encyclopedias. Don Treese, the new chairman of religious activities, wants to give all male students a chance to lead chapel services or sing (no monotones can be used) and to encourage more students to volunteer for Volunteers.

Bud Kreider, as the new chairman of men's house, probably has as many urgent problems as anyone of the chairmen. His foremost problem is to make the male resident students realize that they must room together. He must get a new alarm system for female visits, he wants new shower doors, thicker walls, fewer bathroom tenors, and fewer post-midnight telephone calls.

Hot gossip right off the press: Joe Hulgus is trying desperately to limit his social calls to members of the administration only; Gene Kline can see an urgent need to hold some all-female committee meetings at once; Bob Yoho, the lounging lawyer, is seriously considering taking to the circuit with his globetrotters; Lois Winett has just finished her book on "Family Influence in Society"; more girls are finding out daily that Bob Stein is a happily married man; get Jo Ann Raney to tell you about "counteraction of medical offense"; where do Jack Middour and Ed Marschka go when they leave Skip's at 10:30 and head west?

Eligible bachelor of the week: Quayton Stottlemyer. Get on the ball girls.

Operator of the week: The one and only, smooth and suave Chet Gomeringer.

Corsages for the Spring Formal, as announced recently by Betty May, should not consist of cellophane, crepe paper, or tissue due to the Pennsylvania state fire ordinances. Of the cheaper variety, poison ivy, itch weed and water cress will be more acceptable.

The petitioning committee for the Men's Lounge intend installing platinum chandeliers, television, cocktail-less coffee servers, lounging sofas and collapsible bowling alleys. Nice work fellows.

Tommy could just imagine his grade dwindling on the curve method if he were a member of the class which included the two students who placed higher than Sherwood Cordier in the state speaking tournament at Pittsburgh.

Bob Asan is now selling Juniata "dummies". Don't laugh girls, one is a female. Don't take a chance of acquiring astigmatism just to see if No. 8 is T or F. Until next week, I remain your newsy, nosey correspondent,

Tom E. Hawk

Winter Returns

Wonder what happened to all of that Spring weather we had along about December? Bet Coach Smaltz wishes it would make a quick reappearance. Too bad he can't take his diamond artists south for Spring training. With the Spring vacation starting next week, and the first game scheduled for the day after its end, it is obvious that outdoor drills will be held to a minimum, if at all. Nothing else like it for developing sore arms!!

More Intramurals

All except the players themselves will agree that the recent intramural basketball program was entirely too long, and rightly so. As a result, such phases as volleyball and ping-pong, originally on the agenda, are now almost impossibilities.

The number of teams entered in the league, coupled with the limited floor facilities, made the job of arranging the league schedule most difficult. But the final decision should not have been made at the expense of these other, equally important phases.

Perhaps dividing the league into two sections would have been a better method? Many methods seem better to us now that we see the mistake. It is always easier to say what should have been done than to say what shall be. But this is not our point. The fact remains that an injustice has been dealt to those boys who have no direct interest in basketball. Let us seek to eradicate any similar circumstances in the future.

What About Statistics?

In an intercollegiate set-up, the recording of statistics is considered of utmost importance. But what is the status of this matter in relation to an intramural program? Answers to this question probably range fron one extreme to the other.

During the past season, the records of our own intramural program were never, to our knowledge, in a satisfactory state. Some teams, it appears, just didn't care to see any records kept. Others considered them important enough to attempt to correlate them. Their results, which are by no means official, appear elsewhere on this page.

It appears to us that those who did not wish to see the records kept could at least have been more cooperative to those who did wish to have them. It seems a simple enough matter for the captain of the team to turn the score sheets in to the chairman of athletics. But apparently there were those who thought differently.

The matter is now a closed case, in-so-far as the past season is concerned. This is another minor item which, in the long run, tends to promote the cause of the intramural program; one which should receive attention in the future.

Ulsh Gets Honorable Mention On A P All-Pennsylvania Team

Holmes Ulsh received a fitting tribute to his collegiate basketball career last week when he was given an honorable mention berth on the 1950 Associated Press All-Pennsylvania team. His name was among nine other players' from Juniata opponents' teams, who also gained recognition.

Ulsh climaxed his brilliant career this season as he scored 298 points for an average of 17.5 per game. In the three years that Ulsh has been performing for the Indians he has scored a total of 822 points in 56 games. His high for a single game is 36, a feat which he accomplished twice this season.

Heading the list of enemy-men to make the All-Pennsylvania team is Al McCullough of Westminster. The Titan's 6'3" captain was very successful this year, and his efforts won him a position on the first team. In being selected, McCullough joined such other greats as Paul Arizin of Villanova and Paul Senesky of St. Joseph's.

Indian opponents named to the second team included Albright's Ed Anlian, Bucknell's Joe Gallagher, Geneva's Al Vlasic and St. Francis' Bill Wanish. Anlian topped the 1600 point mark in his four year stay with the Lions, while each of the others led his respective team in the scoring department. Wanish scored 32 points when the Frankies came to Huntingdon this season.

In addition to Ulsh, four other players from among the Indian's opponents were given honorable mention ratings. They were Jackie Jones and Bruce Wagner, teammates of McCullough at Westminster, Captain Wes Overholt, Dickinson standout, and Don Strassner, sophomore sharpshooter for Bucknell.

Robinson Leads In Intramural Scoring

Statistics on the Intramural Basketball League reveal Don Robinson, I-7 gunner, to be the league's leading scorer. Robinson compiled a total of 226 points in 12 games for an average of 18.8 per game.

Duck Snyder won second place honors as he raised a total of 168 points in the 13 games in which he performed for the Skijans. Snyder's average was 12.9 points per game.

The Meteorites finished up the season with an 11-1 record, being defeated only by the YHO's in the middle of the season. After winning the pennant, the leaders went on to sweep the playoffs with three straight victories to gain the championship. Other first division clubs were the BTO's, Shmoos and I-7, in second, third and fourth places respectively.

Intramural Meet Opens Optimistic Track Season

One of Juniata's most optimistic track seasons in recent years will make its debut next Wednesday afternoon at 3 p. m. At this time, the annual Interclass Track Meet will begin, unless inclement weather forces its postponement.

Captains have been named for each class and they are as follows: seniors, Joe Beyer; juniors, Fred Shamlian; sophomores, Harry Campbell; and freshmen, Kelsey Edwards. Prospective entrants are asked to check with their respective captains.

All men, regardless of previous experience, are eligible to participate. Since this is the opening event of the year, no candidate is expected to be in top shape. The winning class will be crowned "King of the Cinders."

Events Start At 3

The schedule of events is as follows: 3:00; broad jump, javelin; 3:30 discus, high jump, 70 yard high hurdles; 3:40, mile run; 3:50, 100 yard dash; 4:00, 440 yard dash, pole vault, shot put; 4:10, 120 yard low hurdles; 4:20, 880 yard run; 4:30, 220 yard dash.

It was decided on Wednesday night to postpone the cross-country until Monday afternoon at 4 p. m., weather permitting. Persons interested are to report to the gym shortly before that time.

Though the present emphasis is being placed on the coming Interclass Meet, one cannot help but look to the future and the varsity program. This appears to be an excellent year for some extended record smashing performances, since several outstanding men are returning from last year's squad.

Beyer Holds Mile Record

Joltin' Joe Beyer will be out to lower his two mile record of 10:04.6 which he set at Dickinson last year. This eclipsed the former standard of 10:20, set by Al Carino in 1940. Beyer also forced record alterations in the mile run when he clocked a 4:38.6 in the triangular meet with Bucknell and Gettysburg. The previous top here had been the 4:41.5 second job set by J. Meyers in 1934.

Constantly inciting Beyer to better performances is Don Brinton, who has the welcomed tendency to finish close to the winner, copping important second place points. Brinton favors the mile, but he also performs in the two mile event.

Murray Excells in 880

Dropping distance and gaining speed we meet Bill Murray, who excelled in the half mile last year. He clipped George Weber's 1940 record of 2:02 to 2:00.6 at Dickinson and then further reduced it to 2:00.3 in the Middle Atlantics.

Coy Hicks, who was injured for a great part of last season, will be back for the pole vault, the low hurdles and the 100 yard dash. In the Geneva meet last year, Coy tied the ten second mark for the "100", set by Dr. N. J. Brumbaugh in 1906. This mark was also tied by one C. Easton in 1928.

Those returning from last season are Joe Beyer, Don Brinton, Bill Murray, Coy Hicks, Bob Keim, Kirk McDougall, Holmes Ulsh, Joe Hackman, Jack Rothenberger, Fred Stauffer, George Smith, Bob Hatala, Phil Chabody, Bob Morrisey, Tom Gates, John Stayer, Earl Detrick and Gerry Wogan. In addition, several promising freshmen are expected to bolster the ranks.

Bowlers To Resume Schedule Tonight

The Intramural Bowling League will resume action tonight after a week's layoff due to the showing of "The Pirates of Penzance." The regular schedule will be followed tonight. Last week's postponed games will be rescheduled later in the season.

The Sliders are currently leading the league, but will have to stall the onrushing Senoritas if they are to take the second half flag. Les Miserables and the Pirates round out the first division clubs.

In tonight's action, the league-leaders will be expected to strengthen their lead since they meet the hapless Strikettes. The second place Senoritas face a tough assignment in the Pirates in the other opening match. Additional action finds the Aces going against the Sky Pilots and Les Miserables engaging the Hooks.

The standings:

Team	W	L
Sliders	13	3
Senoritas	8	4
Les Miserables	13	7
Pirates	11	9
Sky Pilots	8	8
Hooks	6	6
Aces	8	12
Strikettes	1	19

Frosh I Champions In Girls' Volleyball League

The girls' intramural volleyball tournament completed its schedule this week with Frosh I emerging as the champions. The new titalists claimed a forfeit victory over the Soph I team on Tuesday night to finish their season undefeated.

Frosh I also won their game last Thursday night when they overpowered Soph II by 43-16. In another encounter Frosh II defeated the Soph I outfit, 29-18.

On Tuesday night the Upperclassmen squeezed past the Soph II's in a close contest, 39-35.

Two games must be made up this week after which the season will be officially ended.

Standings of the teams:

Team	W	L
Frosh I	4	0
Frosh II	2	1
Upperclassmen	2	1
Soph I	0	3
Soph II	0	3

Letters To The Editor

if that impressive gym is built at the expense of improving faculty conditions, then this all important impression will be something like that gained when one rides in a friend's new Cadillac only to find out that his wife and kids are starving while he pays for it. It makes one want to get out and walk. And when a student is frustrated by inadequate academic facilities he, too, will take a walk —in search of a better school.

Mark Hanna was right, and so was my grandfather when he emphasized to me the overriding importance of the teacher by saying, "Four walls do not a school house make." And new gyms alone do not a good college make —unless its curriculum is designed to attract physical education majors. And I seriously doubt that Juniata's curriculum will ever be so designed.

Elections Are Week's Major Club Activity

by Renie Hebrank

Leoda Hess, Portia Baugher, Beanie Roberts, Anna Wenger, Retta Weightman, Doris Harvey and Harold Kenepp attended the recent missionary conference in Lancaster. These IVCF members reported that over 20 schools were represented and 100 missionaries were present.

An emphasis was placed on the preparation of missionaries at the conference, stressing the academic training, personality development, spiritual growth and sincerity. The group was made aware of the fact that "crossing the ocean does not make a missionary."

The Outing Club has planned another rustic weekend to be spent at McCorkles' cabin. At a meeting of the group on March 21, tentative plans were discussed for the event to take place this weekend. Seven students from Wilson College will share in the festivities. Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Crosby will serve as chaperons. It was the hope of the club that more of these joint outings can be held in the future.

Don Robinson Elected

Following the club elections, it was announced that Don Robinson is the new president. Art Shriver is vice president, Secretary Anne Mullin, treasurer Jack Baldridge and the sizer chairman is Bob Asan.

A Lenten worship service will be the theme of the Volunteers meeting on March 28 in Founders Chapel. The Volunteer Mixed Quartet will introduce Christ in music to the group.

The new president of the J Club is Art Allen. Other officers are Mike Mervis, vice-president; and Jack Dickey, secretary-treasurer.

On March 21, the orchestra elected officers. Final returns revealed that the group will be headed by Charles Redenberger. Holmes Royer will be the new vice-president; Doris Orner, secretary-treasurer; and Don Raphael, librarian.

Masque Play Postponed

Masque members elected Glenn Felix as president; Vera Compton, vice-president; Janet Boland, treasurer; and Polly Bane, secretary. "The Merchant of Venice", Masque script-in-hand play scheduled originally for presentation March 30, has been postponed until April 20. This change has been made to enable students to see the local screening of "Hamlet."

Home Ec Day on March 22 was the climax of the year's activities for the Lambda Gamma. At an election held in the clothing lab, Ruth Armentrout was selected president. Vice-president is Lois Robinson; Esther Weaver, secretary; and Caryl Custer, treasurer. The club and invited guests heard Dr. Henderson, head of Penn State's home economics department, speak on Wednesday.

WAA's new president is Ceci ia King. Vice-president is Connie Sherman; secretary is Betty Snively and Eleanor Seese is the new treasurer.

Snowballs

ber as well as the allegiance of the defenders had been sadly underestimated by the Lodge brass. Also, "we just had too many generals and not enough privates."

In withdrawing, five Lodgers were captured, and after trial by the "Clositerburg Tribunal" they received capital punishment—scalping. Bob Pierpont and Bob Sames faced the clippers first. Following them in acquiring the new look were Don Raphael, Fred Dodge, and Marvin Hershey.

After a 12 hour respite to consolidate forces, the battle was resumed with a daylight snowball attack on the Cloister, whose occupants fell out en masse to defend their domain.

Combat General Steve(the arm) Finckle led his Lodgemen into Cloister territory twice. Both charges were repelled due to the strategy of Stan Welch and the overwhelming numbers of his entourage. Forced to withdraw once more to their operational base, the Lodgemen accepted General Welch's terms and a treaty was drawn and approved by all.

The only gloom and disappointment lay in the girls' dorm. From their grandstand view of the battle, the energetic 4th Brumbaugh crew cried woefully, "Why weren't we invited to join the forces?"

However, these girls had their own excitement Sunday night when they lined the dorm halls to study (?) by the gleam of the only lights on campus. Men and women headed hopefully for the bell and fire towers—to study, unique as it may sound. Of all places, these had the brightest lights on College Hill. In the darkened social rooms was quite a crowd: and the popular activity did not appear to be checkers.

Of course, there were some eager Abe Lincolns who wanted to study no matter what. The emergency scenes for these ambitious beavers varied from Miss Spencer's office (where Jim Streiner joined some members of the fairer sex) to bath tubs (where students studied with feet dangling over the side and a kerosene lamp close at hand.)

added greatly to the success of the performance.

Once again the audience had reason to admire George Parsons' skill in designing scenery. The set was made so that the pirates' hold-out of Act I could be converted with ease into the chapel of the major-general's castle for Act II.

Orchestra Responds Well

Special mention must be made of the orchestral work. The players, carefully rehearsed by Professor Jack Brammer, responded well to the direction of Professor Johnson and supplied adequate and accurate accompaniment with overbalancing the vocal music.

Miss Esther Doyle's ever-competent direction, confined in this case to the dialogue and to matters of diction in singing, was sometimes followed by the cast, and sometimes not. Any honest critical statement of the production must admit that Sullivan received somewhat better treatment than Gilbert, always, of course excepting delightful pieces of stage business like those mentioned above.

Some Acting Unimaginative

Some of the acting was completely unimaginative; too often the diction—a constant difficulty in Gilbert and Sullivan—was lacking in clarity; and there were surprising cases of disregarding rimes of which Gilbert must have been quite proud. In a few cases the rime-words would rime in British, but not in American pronunciation.

These matters, however, detracted but little from the general enjoyment.

Proceeds of the production will be used to bring a foreign student to Juniata.

Brethren Group To Study Peace Problems In July

The Brethren Peace Institute to study the problems of building a lasting peace will be held in Austria this summer from July 10 to August 20.

Individual and group research will be carried on in correlation with lectures by Austrian scholars, U. S. Military government workers and other authorities. Conclusions will then be drawn from this six-week study.

The Institute will accept approximately 25 qualified participants, about half of whom will be from the United States and the rest, a diverse group of a West European and refugee background.

Minimum expenses for transportation and Institute fees will total $450.00.

Dr. C. C. Ellis 'Improved'

Dr. C. C. Ellis, president emeritus, has been confined to the Washington Hospital and Sanitorium for the past two weeks. Yesterday morning his condition was "slightly improved."

Since November, Dr. Ellis has been hampered by a rare form of anemia. He has been receiving treatment at his home until recently.

It is hoped that he will return to Huntingdon within the next week.

FTA To Put 'Equality' Play On Air April 12

The FTA will present a play entitled "The Right of Racial Equality" on "Juniata on the Air" Wednesday, April 12.

Under the supervision of Elaine Mock, the play tells the story of how slaves were dealt with in the times of the Greeks and Romans. It continues up to the time of the Constitution, telling how the Constitution stated the rights of the slaves. Finally, an idea of what privileges the negroes have today is presented.

Corena Sollenberger will act as announcer for the program. Included in the cast are Lois Wible, Edith Roberts, Arlene Dunmire, Skip Smith, John Malenke, Jim Giordano, Charles Allison and Orville Keim.

Also on the program are Don Kagarise, Bill Bateson, Don Brocht, Earl Grover, Doris Mickle and Frances Harman.

Enacting roles on the "WHUN Playhouse" broadcast at 1 p. m. this Sunday will be Janet Boland, Joe Hulgus and Harry Samuels. A drama in which three unscrupulous members of the flicker industry are forced to repent of their sins, the show is entitled "Special to Hollywood."

On the air Tuesday with "Turntable Terrace" will be Harry Wood while Thursday's disc jockeys are Frank Conley and Paul Schroeder.

Officers Installed In Chapel Wed.

At the annual Move-up Day held last Wednesday during the regular chapel period, new Senate, class and club officers officially took over their new duties.

After their introduction, the new officers were installed by President Ellis.

Ex-Senate President Jack Padgett was unable to preside over the opening portion of the program as he was called home by the death of his brother.

Move-up Day activities wound up with a formal dinner at 6 o'clock followed by a dance.

Don Norris, who was master of ceremonies, introduced the guests who were President and Mrs. Ellis, Dr. and Mrs. West, Dr. and Mrs. Patterson, Miss Yvonne Beaver, Elma Stine, Joe Beyer and Vernon Showalter, new Senate president.

Entertainment for the evening included group singing led by Gerry Hartzel, several numbers by the girls' trio, the male quartet and a reading by Phyllis Link —"The Gusher."

The speaker of the evening was the Rev. Bottiger, protestant chaplain at the Pennsylvania Industrial School in Huntingdon.

Grad In Foreign Service Transferred

Charles Everett Bidwell, a Juniata graduate, now serving as a Foreign Service Officer, has been transferred from Zagreb, Yugoslavia, to Athens as Third Secretary and Vice Consul.

Mr. Bidwell was born in Huntingdon and received an AB degree in philosophy from Juniata in 1947. He also did graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania.

The diplomat served with the U. S. Army from 1943-45 and also as translator at the Nuremberg Trials. After the war he was attached to the Office of the United States Chief of Counsel in Germany.

Ground Broken For College Cabin

Ground was broken for the foundation of the new cabin last Tuesday and with this, the project is under way.

According to Dave Kennedy, construction of the cabin should start Monday. The structure, which will include a fireplace, will be approximately 20 by 30 feet. New lumber will be used.

At present, stated Kennedy, there are enough people to work during Spring vacation but there will be work for anyone who wants to help.

A 99-year lease has been obtained in this 23 acre property which is located along the Raystown branch of the Juniata River.

Highest Average Held By Seniors

According to a release from the Registrar's office, the senior class had the highest average grades for the Fall term 1949-50. With a total of 172 students, grades averaged 79.246.

The junior class, with 115 students, averaged 77.570. Next were the sophomores who, with 145 members averaged 74.997. The freshmen class of 153 members, averaged 74.758.

Averages for the 209 women students were higher than those of the 376 men. Their averages were 78.551 and 75.668 respectively. The all college average was 76.698.

Printer Hopes To Finish Annual May 1

"There is no forseeable reason why your yearbook should not be ready by May 1," states a representative of the McFarland Printing Co., publishers of the 1950 "Alfarata."

Ray Sidorsky, editor of the annual, recently spent a day at the Harrisburg plant of the company completing final arrangements.

Says Sidorsky, "All we have to do now is wait for the proofs to come back."

Former Russian DP Now On Campus Tells Soviet Story

by Dave Armacost

"Sooner or later there will be war," says George Dolnikowski, Russian displaced person, who is working as a janitor on Juniata campus.

According to George, "the Marxist theory means that the communists will take over the whole world. Stalin will never forget to take over the whole world. If he dies another leader will take his place."

The stocky, blond-haired Russian thinks that it will take the Russians 20-30 years to prepare for a war that she thought she could win. Like many of us he thinks that the next war will be the last one. However, he added hopefully that "maybe Stalin will see that it is not possible to start another war and so will start a cold war."

"Russia could easily overrun Europe," submitted the slav. He added that Russia has at least five million soldiers. That she has put everything into airplanes, bombs and submarines.

"Know About Ford, Strikes . . ."

The DP, who arrived on Juniata campus on Jan. 7, 1950, pointed out that "the people behind the iron curtain know about Ford, strikes, Truman, Wall St. cowboys, Chicago gangsters and that's all. If the government makes propaganda that America is preparing for war, they will fight to defend their country."

The slav pointed out that many homes have loudspeakers that can only pick up the programs of the central government. "There are not many newspapers in Russia," comments the DP. Among these are Pravda—the organ of the Communist party and Izvestia—the organ of the Soviet Government. Pravda means truth and Izvestia means news. There is the standard joke that "truth" is "news" and "news" is "truth."

"In Russia Is Everything Good"

"In Russian newspapers there is not one word of social life—it is all politic," says George. The newspaper and radio tell of America strikes and depressions and of what is good in Russia. "In Russia is everything good and everywhere else is everything bad."

The Russian explained the subtle way in which Stalin controls the people. The party spreads the idea that the people are the power. "We have a constitution, laws, we have everything —Stalin is nothing."

However, Stalin is the head of the great pyramid. The officals of the communist party follow him and then come the people. If any of his lieutenants veer too far to the left or right of the straight and narrow way they disappear.

One of the ancedotes of the land behind the iron curtain is what Molotov said to Vishinski when he was to take over. It seems there were two telephones for Vishinski to answer. One from Editors' note: This is the first in a series of interviews with foreign students now gaining an American education on the Juniata campus.

Although George Dolnikowski is not officially registered as a student, the editors feel that his story fits this classification because he, too, is very definitely "gaining an American education."

12 Artists Offer Training By Mail

A correspondence school for commercial art is now being conducted by 12 of America's best illustrators, a "Collier's" article recently announced.

This institute of Commercial Art has its headquarters in a one-time antique shop in Westport, Conn. to which students mail all completed assignments. With the Institute only 16 months old, the artists combined their talents and prepared a series of loose-leaf textbooks, which include more than 6,000 original drawings by the entire faculty.

The 12 Apostles of Art, including such popular artists as Norman Rockwell, Albert Dorne and Al Parker, are training several thousand students to become successful commercial artists or merely to develop quickly and inexpensively the amateur painter's abilities.

Communion Service Scheduled Tonight

An all-college communion will be held tonight at 8 p. m. in Oller Hall. Planned by Don Robinson under the jurisdiction of the Religious Activities Committee, the communion will be conducted by President Ellis. Parts of the service will be performed by ministers of the faculty.

All students, members of the faculty and administration are urged to attend.

Editorial Board To Aid Editor In Policy-making

The editor announces the creation of The Juniatian editorial board to consult with the editor on the formation of editorial policy.

The board, which will meet weekly, will consist of the editor, the assistant editor, the news editor, the features editor, the sports editor, the business manager and a Senate representative and Juniatian reporter to be chosen each week.

Tests Reveal Breakfasters Steadier, Clearer Thinkers

Tests made at the Pennsylvania State College Medical School reveal that persons who eat a good breakfast are likely to be steadier, calmer and clearer in their thinking.

With the group of women tested, results showed that with no breakfast, output went down, reactions were slower and tremor increased.

Move-Up Day--- A Great Tradition

"Move-up Day had real significance—I was very, very pleased with the co-operation of everyone," stated Lois Esaley concerning the ceremonies on Wednesday.

We, too, think that the ceremony was significant and meaningful—one which some of us will remember long after we are graduated.

During the program President Ellis talked about the traditions of the College and the community spirit which has always prevailed here. Actually, the Move-up Day ceremonies were a splendid example of the various College groups—administration, faculty and students working together as a team to carry on a worthy tradition.

The appreciation of The Juniatian goes to the students, the faculty, the administration and the Senators and club presidents for their participation.

Special thanks go to Lois Esaley for planning and directing the program, to President Ellis for his remarks, to the class presidents for their support, to Miss Doyle and Miss McCormick for their valuable suggestions, to Jim McClain, chairman of underclassmen, whose methods paid off in freshmen attendance, to Tom Shoemaker for the music, to Bill Wright, Don Johnson and Doris Quinnell for their assistance, to Gene Roddy, who presided in the absence of Senate President Jack Padgett, and to all others who worked to make Move-up Day the success that it was.

We Take To The Woods

"We have a beautiful site, the sooner we can get it finished the sooner we can really enjoy the cabin." These words from Outing Club representative, Dave Kennedy, indicate the enthusiasm and earnestness with which interested students are pushing the cabin for the entire Juniata community.

Actual work on developing the 23 acre plot near Paradise Furnace began Tuesday when Rex Hershberger, Dave Kennedy, Bob Lowry, John Malenke, Don Robinson and Mike Snider surveyed the building site and started clearing a road into the place.

Financially, the project is running smoothly also. The College has agreed to finance the estimated $500 cost of building the cabin. That is, they will give $200 and loan the rest. Club members hope to repay the loans through campus concessions and through gifts from clubs and individuals.

About ten students have volunteered to spend at least part of their vacation here to complete the cabin sometime next week.

The College is providing them with room and board. Incidentally, the builders are looking for a Huntingdon girl student who would be willing to aid in preparing their meals.

We are glad for the rapid progress of this project. We hope that the entire student body will get behind the cabin and assist when called upon.

"Professor Snarl should know better than lecture to engineering students after the whistle blows."

THIS MORTAL COIL

by Don Brandt

Last weekend, this reporter found himself sitting by the sickbed of someone who has done a great deal for him, discussing the current world situation. The talk got around to the inevitable conversation on current relations between the U. S. and Russia.

The man, reportedly suffering from the incurable demon cancer, slowly shook his head, when he considered the possibility of a war and said, "I hope I don't live to see it."

Sad Realization

We were suddenly shocked with the pain which accompanies a realization such as this. This man, to whom we owe so much, made a statement which would be realized much sooner than he suspected. Unfortunately, the shocks which bring us to our senses always seem to come too late, leaving us to wonder what we might have done to repay the debts we owe to those who have sacrificed so much for us.

We enter college with the idea that we are on our way to independence, and basically that is true. But many times we confuse this independence with disregard for the happiness and feelings of those we leave behind when we enter this new sphere. It's true that we should not allow ourselves to become overprotected, or "tied to someone's apron strings" for this would certainly interfere with our own development by eclipsing our interests in the interests of someone else.

Another Way?

The people who have sacrificed so much for us during our period of development and growth deserve more than a curf, "you've served your purpose and you are no longer needed. Thanks." There remain many avenues by which we are able to express our gratitude for those sacrifices and justify their being made. These are our responsibility, just as a financial debt is our responsibility.

If, through the many means we have available, we will repay these gifts made to us, we will not again find ourselves faced with the sudden realization that it is too late to remedy an unfortunate situation. Neglect is a vile way of repaying love, and most of us guilty of it, even in the mildest form, are totally unconscious of it until it appears like a slap on the face. We would propose a bit of "soul-searching" in this area in order to illustrate just what may come about in the future. Those persons close to us, who sacrificed for us, deserve a just amount of love and respect, even though they don't demand it.

GIRLS: KNOW THYSELF !

In keeping up with current trends, the editors of The Juniatian offer this quick, self-rating personality inventory, created by Dr. Heinrich von Schluszwig, noted Slobovian psychologist. To rate yourself, on this, subtract the position down on the list from the possible point score for each question, i. e., a) 8 points, (b) 7 points, etc. Then add up the total points and refer to the guide at the bottom of the test.

1. When you walk across campus (8 points), do men:
(a) Swoon, (b) Sigh, (c) Whistle, (d) Smile pleasantly and stop to chat, (e) Just smile, (f) Look through you, (g) Vomit, (h) Scream and run for cover.

2. In regard to dating (4 points), are you:
(a) Constantly rushed, (b) Dated frequently, (c) Dated occasionally, (d) Avoided like a leper.

3. On saying "good-night" (6 points), does your date:
(a) Drool and clutch for you in the bell tower, (b) Thank you for a lovely evening and ask for another date, (c) Offer to shake hands with you, (d) Says, formally, that he's had a nice time, (e) Casually mumble "See y'around", (f) Shoves you up the steps, saying " . . . don't think it hasn't been . . . ",

4. When you stroll across campus (4 points), do you resemble:
(a) A thoroughbred, (b) A work horse, (c) An elephant, (d) A duck.

5. When you go to classes (5 points), are you dressed like:
(a) A Fashion model, (b) A Career Woman, (c) A Flapper, (d) A high school sophomore, (e) A refugee from a rummage sale.

6. Does your hair (6 points), mark you as:
(a) Shampoo-ad material, (b) Natural beauty, (c) Cropped a la mode chicness, (d) Windblown and athletic, (e) Careless and casual, (f) Throwback from the caves.

7. With the boys (6 points), are you:
(a) Civilized and friendly, (b) Chummy, (c) Condescendingly friendly, (d) Aloof and reserved, (e) flirtatious and elusive, (f) Icy and inacessable.

If your score was 33-39, you are Hollywood material; 25-32, nobody's slouch; 17-24, you need some remodeling; 11-17, a general overhaul is required; and a score of 10 or below, suicide is the only way out.

TOMMY

Concerning the snowball battle of last week, one of General Eisenhower Welch's secrets can now be told. The dead giveaway as to who was leading the Lodge assault came about when certain Cloister spies heard a front line general by the name of Hansen say, "Now five of yuz git in de front row, an annudder five of yuz git in de secon row. When da foist five of youse is retreatin, the second five of yuz charge. Git it men?" With a chorus of freshmen "aye-ayes" and "yes sirs", the charge was on (preceding the retreat of course).

Anyone who missed (and approximately 525 did) George Dolnikowski's talk at IRC meeting last week really missed a chance to look through some of the obvious holes in the iron curtain. George inferred that the curtain was "bluff colored" and the biggest bluffer of them all could be seen if we'd insist on tugging on the curtain a little harder.

Did everyone see the false nose and glasses about campus? Don Brinton had the nerve to wear one to chow even if he did have to lift the "schnozz to sip the tea." "Squeeze" Long was asked to put one on on a dare from a buddy, and sure enough it was a couple sizes too small.

The firecracker boys have been up to their childish pranks again lately in the arch at Cloister. A fatherly suggestion to these boys might be for them to be regular listeners to the kiddies program every afternoon at 4 p. m. over WHUN. Overheard in the library: "I think I'll go down to Skip's to study, it's much quieter."

Prof. Glick claims the Cubs will be the strongest team in the league this coming season. They were last year—they held up the other seven teams. Some of the "peroxide purties" are depreciating slowly to avoid extreme recognition, but some of the others use it as Kreml. A good peroxide shampoo should do a good complete job, and in a uniform pattern too!!!

Coy Hicks thought the cross country race should have been run around the track, but the alert Tom Appleby claimed it was against the rules; that because of the nature and the name of the race, it must be run through a rural territory. Bachelors of the week: Toss up between Kirk MacDougall and Robert X. Yoho. Old Operators of the week: Don Johnson. Don Brandt and John Simes. Rookie operators of the week: Toss up between Joe Mullin and Dick Van Tries. Operation of the week: Bee Anne Hanks.

In case someone wants to see his name in a newspaper, he should be able to do so with this submission to "They'll Do It Every Time." When the sun is shining, the doors to the chow hall are opened for the men on time. When it is cold, or especially raining, "someone" holds the men up as much as five costly minutes.

Prof. Rowland reports the Choir as bringing to a close a successful season. Now that Elma Stine can keep her hair out of her eyes, she will furnish the accompaniment at the piano for a four part duet to be sung by Harold Bowser and Whitey Schaffner.

Question of the week: Should I do my term papers over vacation or not? Answer of the week: (after considerable deliberation and rationalization and rerouting of energetic motives, etc.)yes.

Closing thought for the week: Don't fail to miss the next column by Tommy, after you've completed your hop down the bunny trail with Gene Autry.

Parasymphetically yours,
T. Eugene Hawk

Baseball Squad Prepares For Opener At Williamsport Apr. 12

Juniata's diamond artists have one eye on the calendar in anticipation of the season's opener against Lycoming. The game will be played at Williamsport on April 12, just one day after the Spring vacation.

Editorial

Sportlites

by Artie Jay

Coach Mike Snider has issued his call for candidates and the initial track workouts are being held up only by the weatherman. With the opening of the season less than a month away, one begins to wonder of the cindermen's chances on the field this Spring.

A first look at last season's statistics reveals that the locals came out on top only once. A closer look, however, reveals that the true reason for this dismal showing was really a manpower shortage. Take the Dickinson and Albright meets as an example. Against each of these schools the Indians swept eight of the 14 first places. Yet both times they were on the short end of the total points column, the only one that counts in the final analysis. Two defeats which might have been victories except for a lack of depth on the squad!

With the exception of Jess Garber in the weights department, Coach Snider is expecting the return of most of the key men from last year's squad. These boys can be counted upon to take the brunt of the attack; but they need help, your help! Track is one sport in which high school training is not a requirement, and Coach Snider will be only too glad to teach you the fundamentals. If you can't run fast, try the longer events. If you can't run at all, try the field events. But if there is the slightest possibility of your being able to enter any of the recognized events, you owe it to yourself and to Juniata to report to Coach Snider after the Spring vacation.

Little is known about the strength of the Indians' newest opponent. "I hope they are having as tough a time as we in getting outdoor drills," said Coach Bill Smaltz as he watched his men go through their paces. "Maybe they will have a longer Easter vacation." It is known, however, that this will be the first season in which Lycoming will field a team. They were instituted as a four-year school only two years ago.

Expects to Win Opener

"I can't remember ever winning an opening day game", said Smaltz, "but this year it's going to be different. We'll wallop the daylights out of 'em." Last year's opener was at Bucknell, where the Indians suffered a 13-3 massacre.

Tuesday afternoon was the first time in several weeks that the squad was able to take to the practice field. This season's practice sessions are witnessing a new type of ball. It is a rubber coated affair which is washable, more durable and can't be socked quite as far as the conventional ball. Exceptions must be made for Coach Smaltz, of course.

Several Promising Rookies

Several promising first year men have revealed their true form in this week's rehearsals. First baseman and pitcher Ray Tesi has shown capability at either position and is equally effective in the batter's box. Southpaw pitcher Dave LeFevre also shows much promise, along with infielders Dave Hackett and Orle Loschiavo.

Coach Smaltz has been juggling his lineup this week in order to get the best possible combinations. He will probably keep to his policy of withholding the starting lineups until just before game time.

Bowlers Complete 2nd Half Schedule Tonight

The Intramural Bowling League will complete its regular schedule tonight by playing the matches originally scheduled for March 17, but postponed for the showing of the "Pirates of Penzance."

Two forfeited contests marred last week's program. Both the Strikettes and the Pirates failed to make an appearance, with the Sliders and the Senoritas gaining the easy victories. In games played, the Aces surprised the Sky Pilots, 4-0, and the Hooks lost to Les Miserables, 3-1.

Tonight's action finds the Senoritas meeting Les Miserables, the Strikettes going against the Sky Pilots, the Pirates engaging the Hooks and the Aces facing the Sliders. In addiiton, several teams have matches to make up.

Team	W	L
Sliders	17	3
Senoritas	12	4
Les Miserables	16	8

Titans Lead Indian Opponents In 1950

Juniata was not the only team to fall short in the win column this past season. A breakdown of the final statistics of the Indians' opponents shows only half of them finished above the .500 mark.

Most outstanding of the enemy teams is Westminster. Paced by Al McCullough, the Titans compiled a lofty 24-3 record. In addition, they advanced three rounds in the NAIB tournament at Kansas City, Mo., before being eliminated by a strong Davis & Elkins team.

Albright Wins MASC

Ed Anlian's 501 points led Albright to a 17-8 record and the Western Division title of the MASC. The Lions will prove dangerous again next year since four of their starters are returning. Only Anlian and three substitutes will be lost through graduation. St. Francis, who finished with a record similar to Albright's, will be back again with sophomore Bill Wanish, who topped the 300-point mark this season.

Dickinson enjoyed a successful season with 11 victories and six defeats, thanks to the combination of Dick Zilling and Wes Overholt. Zilling is only a sophomore, and did well in scoring 320 points this season. And Lebanon Valley's Al Murawski. 6'4" freshman center, will also bear watching in 1951. Murawski scored 170 points while playing only the last ten games for LV as they compiled a 12-8 record. Floyd Becker, Larry Kinsella and Ed Frazier all topped the 200-point mark for LV this season, with Becker hitting 352.

Vlasic Paces Geneva

Al Vlasic was outstanding on a Geneva team that compiled a 14-11 record. Vlasic has already broken his school's four-year standard and will be around again next season. The Covies will get additional support from six other returning players, all of who topped 100 points in 1950.

Up at Williamsport, a Lycoming College squad is to be commended for their 11-9 showing in their second season of intercollegiate basketball. Bill Graff led the scoring department with 307 points. Franklin & Marshall did not fare as well in bringing a 7 won, 10 lost standing. Bob Zink placed first in the Diplomats' scoring column with 301.

Beyer Takes Cross-Country; Sophomores Win Track Meet

The 1950 track season opened this week with the Cross-Country Run and the Interclass Meet, both annual affairs. Results show Joe Beyer took the X-Country for the second straight year, while the Sophomores had little trouble annexing the Track Meet.

Beyer came home ahead of five other entrants as he posted a time of 16:02.5, some 25 seconds slower than his record breaking time of last year. Don Brinton, who led for the first mile, finished 30 yards behind Beyer at 16:10 for second place. Freshman Dick Fusco placed third, while Jesse Frye and Bob Keim were fourth and fifth respectively.

P. M. "Mike" Snider awarded certificates to the winners of the first three places in lieu of medals which will be presented later.

Sophs Repeat As Champs

The class spirit of the sophomores enabled them to repeat last year's performance in the Inter-class Meet. In winning, the Sophs ran up a total of 58 2/3 points, way above the second place Juniors, who tallied 25 points. Close behind the third year men were the Seniors, with 24, and the Freshman, with 22.

Individual scoring honors went to sophomore Joe Hackman, who had three first places and one third for 17 points. Other good reasons for the Sophomore avalanche were sprinters Jack Rothenberger and Fred Stauffer, while the versatile Harry Campbell sparked the field events.

Coy Hicks led the five man Junior outfit with 10 1/3 points, while Don Brinton had eight, including first place in the half mile. Kirk MacDougall, Bob Keim and Quayton Stottlemyer were other Junior pointmakers.

Beyer Leads Seniors

The third place Seniors also faced a manpower shortage. Joe Beyer registered 12 of this team's 24 points and gained first place in the mile. Harry Frye took first place in the discus for the Seniors.

Dick Fusco spearheaded the Frosh attack as he acquired first place in the broad jump and second place in the 440-yard dash. Orle Loschiavo also had a first place for the first year men, heading the entrants in the javelin.

The schedule included all events except the two mile run and the pole vault. Points were scored as five for first, three for second, two for third and one for fourth.

Golf Tournament Planned For May 13

Juniata is scheduled to have a golf tournament all its own. "The first Juniata College Invitational Golf Tournament is now beyond the planning stages and invitations have been issued", stated Coach Ed Kiracofe earlier this week.

Schools which have been invited include those in the MASC, as well as several others in the Pennsylvania-Maryland area. The tournament will be held at the American Legion golf course in Mt. Union on May 13, according to present plans. Six trophies will be awarded to the appropriate winners.

The local golfers have been out on the greens at every opportunity for the past few weeks and Coach Kiracofe hopes to name his first six men soon. Four positions on the team will be occupied by last year's veterans Ray Korody, Art Allen, Bob Rhodes and Frank Stasenko. Fighting it out for the remaining berths will be Dave Bayer, Gordon Stroup, Jim Glass, Bud Kreider, Stan Welch, Glenn Zug and Ed Marshka.

Dickinson Added To 1950 Tennis Schedule

Another match has been added to the 1950 tennis schedule according to an announcement by director of athletics Mike Snider. The new opponent, Dickinson, brings the schedule to five matches. Since four of the matches are scheduled for College Hill, the local net men will have ample opportunity to perform before the home fans.

A general call for candidates was issued by Coach Snider yesterday. It is expected that an elimination ladder will be used in determining the squad members. Regular practice is scheduled to begin after vacation.

In order to avoid conflict with the intramural program, the team members will utilize the upper courts at the Village and the asphalt courts below College Field. However, on match days the gym courts will be pressed into service in addition to the others.

A decision as to whether or not tennis will be listed as a full varsity sport has not yet been reached. Should the Athletic Council decide in favor of the new sport, varsity J's will be varded those earning them.

Life Under The Soviets As Reviewed By Former Russian Displaced Person

Stalin and one from the West. Molotov told Vishinski that he would hold his job as long as he answered "yes" to the first and "no" to the second.

Explains Unfriendliness of Reds

The Russian explains the unfriendliness of the slavs in this way. "If a man is poor and hungry he won't be so friendly. If you have everything nice, clean —have some general things, you won't get mad. In Russia you don't have these things."

Needless to say, George Dolnikowski is happy to be in America. The world traveler has been in eight countries and he says that "the United States is the most beautiful country in the world. Why? The people look happier, eat better, have better clothes. The people are more friendly than in all the countries I ever saw. Here you feel free—you can do what you want."

Despite years of disappointment and tragedy, George is still enthusiastic about the future. In Russia he taught French and German. In America he would like to take some courses that would enable him to teach languages in high school. In this way George hopes to help people to understand each other by talking together.

Census Will Be Taken Here, Not At Home

The Bureau of Census has ruled that students are to be counted at college rather than in their respective home towns, unless they should happen to be at home when the census taker arrives, reports Wilbur Shields, superintendent of enumerations for this district.

Students should make it clear to their parents, Shields said, that they are not to be included in their home census. An enumerator, probably a student, will be hired to take the campus count sometime after vacation.

On Other Campuses

The Frill and Frown Club of Lycoming College agrees with Juniata's Masque that the farce "Out of the Frying Pan" is a comedy that's fun to produce. The Lycomingites have chosen the play for Spring production. Originally presented here Feb. 23 script-in-hand by the Masque, it will be staged again at the Masque-sponsored party April 15.

Wilkes College, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., has broken ground for their new gymnasium, according to the student weekly, The Beacon. Says the paper, "The building will have 22,000 square feet of floor space and a basketball court 98 by 150 feet."

A full weekend of outing similar to Juniata's traditional Mountain Day brought relief from the grind of classes for 350 students and teachers at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind., recently. No formal program was planned, but all were warned to come prepared to "rough it."

Six New Masquers Announced; Actors To Sponsor Party April 15

by Renie Hebrank

The final week of school before the Easter vacation has been packed full of club activities.

Perhaps the most outstanding news is the list of new Masquers which the club announced recently. The following people have earned this honor: Keith Binkley, Carrie Lou Green, Betty Longwell, Doris Quinnell, Jim Streiner and Marian Otsubo. A Masquer earns this title by acquiring 100 points in Masque shows or participation as a crew member. In addition the individual must have one major role in a play, or a crew chairmanship.

On April 15, the Masque will sponsor a party using the theater as a theme. Included in the evening's entertainment will be dancing and a second presentation of "Out of the Frying Pan." Glenn Felix is in charge of the arrangements.

The Rev. G. K. Landis spoke to the IVCF on Thursday in the Women's Day Student Room. His subject was chapter four of the book of Romans. At the next meeting, Prof. Silas Dubbel will speak on Romans five.

At an election held on March 28, FTA elected George Kensinger as the new president. Beanie Roberts will serve as vice-president and Lois Fretz will be the secretary-treasurer.

Bob Hatala is the new president of the Camera Club. Other officers include Galen Keeney as vice-president and Lois Miller as the secretary.

A carload of eight Juniata students is going to Penn State's IVCF meeting tonight to hear the Rev. Ferdimore Vogan speak on the "Resurrection."

Those going will be Kathy Foster, Erla Mae Weist, Phyllis Link, Leoda Hess, Janet Wenger, Beanie Roberts, Claire Schaffner and Doris Harvey.

juries and ineligibilities, Ursinus sunk to a 4-14 record. Bill Forsyth was the leading scorer with 295 points. Bob Swett, 6'7" freshman, brightens the Bear's pictures for next season. And Bucknell fans have real reason to rejoice, since their four highest scorers are sophomores. Joe Gallagher, with 366, and Don Strassner, with 334, led the parade as the Bisons posted a 5-16 standing.

Allegheny experienced a "tough luck" season, losing many games by just a few points, and compiled a 3-14 record. Proof that "Lady Luck" was against them is found in the many scoring standards set by this year's team. Bill Potter took individual scoring honors with 222 points, but was hard pressed by Bud McIndoe, 6'4" freshman, who tallied 212.

Final statistics have not yet been received from Drexel, Elizabethtown and Susquehanna, but none is thought to have been too successful. Thus our own Indians' 1950 final record of 4-13 is comparable to many of their opponents' and promising reserves make the future optimistic.

Diamond Dust

Miss Iris L. Miller of Hershey, Penna., will become the bride of Carl Curry at a ceremony to be performed at the Trinity Reformed Church, Palmyra, Penna.

A graduate of Temple University, Miss Miller is now a nurse at the Polyclinic Hospital of Harrisburg.

Curry, a senior here, is majoring in chemistry.

Y Camps Seek Counselors

Positions are available for men students to work as counselors in YMCA camps this summer.

The camps are for boys who range from nine to fifteen years of age. Young men are needed to serve as counselors for the boys, to instruct them in various activities and to give them general supervision.

Salaries will range from $50 to $150 for the summer, including transportation, room and board.

Application blanks may be secured in the office of the Dean of Students. The minimum age for applicants is 19.

Brethren Sec'y Will Speak In Chapel Fri., April 14

Dr. Henry will speak at chapel Wednesday, April 12. Friday's chapel speaker for that week is Mr. W. Harold Row.

Mr. Row is secretary of the Brethren Service Commission of the General Brotherhood Board of the Church of the Brethren. He is also director of Relief and Rehabilitation for the Church of the Brethren.

De Paur Chorus Invades Oller Hall Tonight, 8:15

The Community Concert Association will present the de Paur Infantry Chorus tonight in Oller Hall at 8:15.

This chorus is composed of a group of Negro veterans who, under the auspices of the United States Army and the USO, gave more than 2000 concerts for American troops from the ETO to the Pacific.

Leonard de Paur, their conductor, won his first fame as choral director for two famous Broadway productions. He also led the chorus in Moss Hart's AFF play "Winged Victory."

de Paur Is Conductor-Arranger

Mr de Paur, who rose through the ranks in the Army to captain, is now one of America's most gifted conductors. He arranged most of the numbers for his chorus.

The program will be divided into five parts: 1. Numbers by contemporary composers including "Morning Hymn," Henschel; "Thou Hast Made Me Endless" and "Here is Thy Foot Stool," Creston; and "Speak! for You Must," Hauf.echt.

Part 2 will be made up of songs from Latin America, such as "La Llorona," "Vidalita," "A Mourning Song" and "Ugly Woman," all arranged by de Paur.

Songs From World War II

Part 3 (songs from World War II) includes "I've Got Sixpence" and "Song of the French Partisan," both arranged by de Paur; "Ch'i Lai," Nieh-Erh and de Paur; "Meadowland," Knipper and de Paur; and "Roger Young," Loesser and de Paur.

Part 4 consists of such Negro spirituals and work songs as "Honor, Honor," arr. Hall Johnson; "Deep River," arr. de Paur; "Listen to the Lambs," Dett; and "Water Boy," "Tol' My Cap'n" and "Jerry," all arranged by de Paur.

Part 5 includes songs of faith—"O Bone Jesu," Palestrina; "Eli Eli," Schindler and de Paur; "Hospodi Pomiloi," Lvovsky; and "The Lord's Prayer," Malotte and de Paur.

Sec. Of Brethren Service Comm. To Lead JCA Conf.

"The Social Responsibility of the Christian" will be the theme of the final weekend conference of this college year to be held in the library at 8:30 p. m. this Sunday.

Harold Rowe, secretary of the Brethren Service Commission, will lead the conference which is designed to present the social responsibility of the Christian and to discuss the problems pertaining to this duty.

HAROLD ROWE

Mr. Rowe, who has a wealth of experience in the social service field, is especially interested in the Christian's relationship to the modern social order. He will discuss problems in such areas as war, morals, creeds and racial relationships, problems of vital importance to every individual, according to JCA president Don Treese.

Further information concerning the conference may be found in the mimeographed sheet distributed at Chapel today.

Three previous conferences have been held this year under the supervision of the Religious Planning Commission. The duttes of this commission have now been assumed by the newly formed Juniata Christian Association. The Social Responsibility Commission of the Association is sponsoring this final conference.

Education Dept. Host At Final Weekend Conf.

The education department will act as hosts to college-minded visitors this weekend at Juniata's final career conference. During their campus visit guests will speak with Dr. Edgar S. Kiracofe and Mrs. Evelyn E. Davis concerning the teaching profession.

Visitation of classes, a campus tour and an invitation to the first baseball game of the season is also on the agenda. As special guests of the Masque, the visitors will attend a party in the gym Saturday night.

Brumbaugh Led Project

Harold Brumbaugh of the Public Relations Office has supervised the entire conference program as a means of acquainting high school students with their prospective careers. The project was not only for prospective JC students, but for any interested persons who are anticipating a college career.

Approximately 110 students have taken advantage of the opportunity this year as they attended social studies, science, arts and language, home economics, business and education conferences on campus.

Demonstrations Held

Several departments held special demonstrations to further inform students about career possibilities. Kay Wright served as student chairman during the five conferences. Joe Beyer, Jean Bailey, Arlene Dunmire, Dottie Lehman and Doris Mickle assisted in securing rooms for the guests. Bill Wright planned several special parties for the group and Jim McClain conducted campus tours.

An Interview

Sam Apprey, African Prince, Is Typical Juniata Student

by Marj Seidel

On the roll of Juniata's foreign students can be found the name of Sam Apprey, a typical college freshman. But at Sam's home on the Gold Coast of Africa he is not considered typical; there he is a prince!

In Africa all sons and nephews of chiefs are princes. The chief would, in our country, be comparable to the President. In Sam's case his father was to be chief of Central Province in the Gold Coast but abdicated because of his work. The position then went to Sam's uncle.

Could Be Chief

"If I wanted to, I could be chief," Sam remarked. "I would merely have to write to my uncle asking him to resign, and he in turn would hand his resignation to the council."

The chief's term is for life; however, since Sam's father was originally to be chief, one of his sons could take over the office. In any case, this position will always remain in his family. "My four brothers and I do not choose to be chief," says Sam. "We would rather remain independent."

Skirts Shorter

As a prince Sam enjoyed several privileges in Africa. He was allowed to go into restricted areas where the "peasants" were not permitted. The palace was one of these restricted areas. In this modern building native dress is still the custom. However, outside the palace the dress is the same as here in America—"but the skirts are shorter over there," Sam added.

Editor's note: This is the second in a series of interviews with foreign students now gaining an American education on the Juniata campus.

Sekondi, which is located along the western coast of Africa, is Sam's home town. This industrial town represents the cross section of the Gold Coast. Here the temperature is an average of 75 degrees, the lowest being about 50 degrees. The Hamattan, or cold season, lasts from the middle of December to the middle of February: "but," Sam adds, "you never need an overcoat."

3 Oranges For A Cent

One thing which seemed so very different to Sam when he came to America was the varieties of fruit and their extreme costliness. "Over there I could buy three oranges for only one cent.

"Students have the right to go to farms to eat oranges and coconuts," Sam remarked, "but they may not take the fruit home. The law states that they are required to eat it under the tree from which it came."

According to Sam, flowers may not be sold in Africa "Africans believe that they are mother nature's and therefore may be picked freely.

From Juniata Sam plans to enter Temple University to study dentistry. And then by 1956 Sam will be rarin' to return to his home in the Gold Coast of Africa!

Faculty Hobbies To Be Displayed

The pastimes of Juniata's instructors will go on display at the Faculty Club sponsored hobby show Monday in Oller Hall.

Dean Edith Spencer will show her loom and examples of the weaving process. A glassware collection is to be miss Elizabeth Evans' contribution, while Prof. Jack Brammer will exhibit furniture he has refinished.

Marionettes are to cavort under the guidance of Dr. George Clemens. Assisting him will be several faculty members.

Faculty wives get in on the fun too, with Mrs. Edgar Kiracofe exhibiting her hand-made craft work and Mrs. Charles Shively placing on display her ceramics and the kiln used in their production. Other smaller items will also be shown.

Dues To Be Collected Tues.

Tuesday is Dues Day. On this day class representatives will receive student dues for the second semester from 9 to 11 a. m.

The $.50 levy per student provides the necessary cash for class parties such as the Junior-Senior Reception to be held on April 28.

The Welfare State

With legislation such as federal aid to education, socialized medicine and social security extention being considered in Congress, the question of how much control the government should exercise over the individual is an important one.

In an article in this month's "Medical Economics", Dean Russell of the Foundation for Economics says that "the people of a welfare state won't grow strong and energetic under government paternalism, but merely apathetic."

Mr. Russell uses American history to back up his point. He cites the "slow but steady emergence of the Negro as a self-reliant individual during the same period that the American Indian has declined into heiplessness under government 'security.'"

Government Guaranteed Security

Today 12,000 federal employes are needed to take care of 233,000 Indians who are wards of the state. "Instead of freedom," says Russell, "the Indian has government guaranteed 'security'. Instead of individual responsibility, he has a bureau to handle his personal affairs." Today thousands of Indians remain uneducated and diseased.

Mr. Russell warned of political parties which are outdoing each other offering more and more security and of instructors in schools and colleges and church leaders who are preaching the advantages of the welfare state.

Choice Of Freedom Never Easy

Mr. Russell concludes:" . . . If enough of us accept the degrading idea of a relief state, the process will soon be completed. But if enough individual Americans desire a return to the personal responsibility that is freedom, we can have that too.

"Such a choice will run counter to public opinion. But the choice of freedom has never been easy. It will never be easy. This capacity for personal responsibility is God's most precious gift to mankind. It requires the highest form of understanding and courage."

Bibler Draws For 75 College Papers

The top of this page is one of the first spots any reader of The Juniatian scans, to check on that small square with the Bibler signature and laugh at the hilarious experiences of Worthal and his collegiate friends.

The humor and artistic talents of Dick Bibler were discovered at Kansas University when he answered an ad in the college daily appealing for a cartoonist. Fifteen sketches, which he had whipped up in three hours, landed the job and he's been rib-tickling ever since.

His cartoons now appear in seventy-five campus publications under the Associated Collegiate Press, plus numerous other papers which he serves. Although he has graduated, he continues to brighten the pages of campus papers and the faces of his readers.

Worthal, the handsome (buck-toothed) hero of the first cartoons, now shares his place with numerous other personalities. Bibler has displayed immeasurable talent in depicting college life, slamming students and faculty alike, but so graciously that all cannot help but laugh with him.

"By George. I laughed too, Hansen—but all it needed was a little tuning up."

The Rebel Grill is one of the favorite on-the-campus haunts of students at the University of Mississippi. That's because the Rebel Grill is a friendly place, always full of the busy atmosphere of college life. There is always plenty of ice-cold Coca-Cola, too. THIS MORTAL COIL

by Don Brandt

The United Nations, along with the United States, shuddered again this week upon receipt of a note of protest from the U. S. S. R. They accuse a United States Air Force bomber of refusing to follow Russian fighter planes to an unidentified airbase, and of firing upon said planes. Although the United States has not as yet replied to the note, the air contains the odor of fear and suspense.

The U. S. Navy asserts that the mystery plane was a test model of theirs which was traveling the Baltic area—unarmed. Some "extremely optimistic" American has even accused the Ruskies of shooting it down.

Nerve Medicine

Vets on college hill, who still shudder at the mention of recruiting posters, will again be driven to nerve tonic in an effort to forget what they have already experienced at the wrong end of German and Jap rifles, as well as the realization that Uncle Sam may again point that index finger and say sweetly, "I Want You". Probably the only hope we have left is one of prayer for the best diplomats the U. S. has ever needed in its history if we are to avert more protest notes and tighter situations.

The announcement that U. S. planes will continue to patrol the Baltic area, fully armed, adds no note of relief to the already painful realization that war is closer than we would like. We feel sure that the vets going to college now would sooner send their children to college themselves, rather than have the government again give them the opportunity as a reward for risking their lives in another global conflict.

TOMMY

Now that Easter has come and gone, it can be told. One Sophomore girl thought the Easter bunny would be a "good egg" if he brought her a new outfit. A Freshman wanted to arise Easter morning to a dozen poached eggs. Needless to say, these students were all disappointed. (Wishful thinkers)

Overheard Concerning Grades: Two students simultaneously (together) chirping, "I was robbed." The only similarity was in the remark, since one got all B's and the other all C's. Similar in nature to Senator McCarthy's charges in the Senate, one student swears that a certain professor has an "affinity toward low grades." The security files need not be opened in this case.

The interclass track meet was quite interesting to some observers. For example, Gil McIntyre was high-jumping with a jacket on and his hands in his pockets. Under such adverse conditions, it's no wonder he could only jump 9 feet. Squeeze Long entered the 100 dash; Old No. 69 did O. K. too, but his wind resistor cut his time down. Bill Smaltz was asked to compete in the same event, but he graciously refused, admitting there wasn't a lane wide enough for him. Art Walters braved the cold wearing shorts and he braved the mile by simply running. Harry Frye, heretofore throwing his discuses in the form of baseballs, won that event—first time he ever tried it. There was no pole vault event due, according to rumor, to the fact that someone had baited the pole in anticipation of trout season.

The Spring Formal was a success of the first water. It had a seasonal theme to boot. There were wintry flowers inside, fall weather outside, and the band was springy as it played "Summertime". The banjo played by one of the band members plunked a new and novel note to the occasion. Each member wore a huge yellow tie, probably as a disguise. The punch was icy and foamy and presented the problem as to whether it should have been served from a barrel or with a spoon. So it was put in cups and your primeval nature had a chance to assert itself.

Wanted by a Senior: One time and motion expert for the final half of the semester. Qualifications: simply must be a success in the past for getting away with everything. Any "old hand" at the game should write T. S., Box 13 immediately.

Operator of the Week: Who knows what you guys were up to last week at home!

Bachelor of the week: Anyone who isn't married.

Orchids of the week: They're too expensive so there are none.

Hope of the week: That there's still hope.

So long, and a good last-half semester resolution for you Cloister and Lodge gentlemen would be to be in bed every night at 9:30. Just think how fresh you'd be in the morning.

Sarcastically yours,
Thomas Everguessing Hawk

Spring Intramurals Begin With Opening of 2 Softball Leagues

The Spring intramural program began this week with softball stealing the spotlight. Sixteen teams are entered in the league, which this year has been split into two divisions. Both the afternoon and the evening sections opened Wednesday.

Four different fields are being used by the league according to chairman of athletics Bob Keim. These have been numbered in order to simplify scheduling. The Sherwood forest field and the girl's hockey field have been numbered one and two respectively for both leagues. The number three field of the afternoon league is the playground below College Field. Number three for the evening league is the football field.

Afternoon games are scheduled to begin promptly at 4:15, while the evening encounters get under way at 6:40. Forfeits may be claimed within 15 minutes of the starting time if the opposing team is not represented by at least eight players.

Regulation games are seven innings, but may be called after 4½ innings if the home team is leading. Until daylight saving time goes into effect the evening games may be called after 3½ innings. All games are to be called at the discretion of the umpire and the home team will be the one listed first on the schedule.

Team managers are required to make a deposit of $3 in order to draw equipment for their teams. The teams are to consist of no less than 12 players and the results of all games must be submitted to Bob Volpitto not later than the day succeeding the game.

Additional regulations may be found posted on the bulletin boards in Student's Hall and in front of the gym.

The teams competing and their respective captains are as follows:

Afternoon League

Trojans, George Cobbles; Deadbeats, Art Walters; Aces, Bob Asan; Sky Pilots, Glenn Zug; Village, Ron Berkebile; Bullets, George Gaugler; Meteorites, Aldo Bonomi; Les Miserables, Jim Giordano.

Evening League

Rookies, Vern Beam; Lily Whiters, Jerry Africa; Faculty-Administration, Jack Buckle; Green Sox, Bob Volpitto; Mercaptans, Bob Witchey; Sports, Charlie Towns; B $/2, Bob Learn; Daylights, Bob Appleby.

Editorial

Sportlites

by Artie Jay

Juniata may be outclassed in some of the major sports, but not so in golf. Since its beginning a few years ago the Indians have enjoyed much success on the links against top-notch competition.

The return of four lettermen paints a rosy future for the 1950 squad. Still they face a tough assignment in their attempt to better last year's record of nine wins and one loss or to match the undefeated team of 1948. Nine dual meets appear on the 1950 card, in addition to the Western Maryland Invitational and our own JC Invitational at Mt. Union.

The success of this latter event may go a long way toward raising the Juniata standard to even greater heights. Can't you just see us winning nation-wide acclaim? That may be more than just a dream!

Everhart Returns

We're glad to hear of Don Everhart's return to town. "Suds" won many friends in Huntingdon during his stay on College Hill and his appointment as manager of the Huntingdon Community Center is a fitting tribute to his popularity. Here's wishing him all the luck in the world on his new job.

Juniata Claims Kiner

Did you know that Ralph Kiner once attended Juniata College? No, not the Ralph Kiner of baseball fame, but rather his father, the late Ralph Mackin Kiner.

Records reveal that the elder Kiner attended Juniata College from the Fall term of 1901 to the Summer term of 1903. It is reported that Mr. Kiner was born in the Huntingdon area and moved West after attending Juniata. Young Kiner now resides with his mother at Alhambra, California.

Pittsburgh sports writers first informed the college news bureau that Dad Kiner was a former Juniata student. A check with the official Alumni Record and the records in the registrar's office supported their discovery. It was just that no one at the college had ever made the connection.

So now when the $65,000 slugger of the Pittsburgh Pirates slams out a home run this season Juniatians may burst forth with an extra lusty cheer.

DON EVERHART

Grad To Manage Community Center

Don Everhart, a member of last year's graduating class, has been named manager of the Huntingdon Community Center. He was chosen from a field of seven applicants, his training and athletic background being big factors in his appointment. Don began his duties on Monday, April 10.

While on College Hill, Everhart participated in both baseball and basketball and served as co-captain in each. During the Summer months he coached the Huntingdon American Legion Junior baseball team. He also served as class president in his sophomore year and was a vice president of the Varsity J Club.

After graduation he attended the National Training School, Boy Scouts of America, and had been employed as a field executive with the Philadelphia Council of that organization prior to his new appointment.

Indians Bow To Lycoming, 2-1; Meet LV At Home Tomorrow

Coach Smaltz' hopes for an opening day victory received a severe jolt Wednesday as Lycoming scored a run in the last of the ninth to win 2 to 1. The Indians will attempt to compensate for their opening loss when they meet the Dutchmen of Lebanon Valley on College Field at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Fred Phenicie was Coach Smaltz' choice as starting hurler on Wednesday, and he came through in fine fashion. It was unearned runs in each of the last two innings which deprived him of a victory.

Indians Take Early Lead

Juniata was first to score in the error studded contest, raising one tally in the third frame. Squeeze Long started the festivities when, with one out, he was safe at first on an error and advanced all the way to third when the catcher threw wild attempting to stop him from stealing second. Afer Kensinger grounded out, Dick Young scored Long from third with a clean single, but Mike Dzvonar grounded out to end the inning.

The Billporters finally got to Phenicie for their first run in the eighth inning. Maltby popped out to Howett at second to open the frame, but Bellak followed with a long two-bagger. After Dresher grounded third to first for the second out, Musheno sent a high fly to Dzvonar in center which dropped out of the Meteor's glove allowing Bellak to score.

Win With Two Out

It was three up and three down for Juniata in the top of the ninth, but not so for Lycoming in their half. Phenicie retired the first two batters in short order. Jones, the third man up, was hit by a pitched ball and awarded first base, from where he stole second a moment later. On the next pitch Kensinger momentarily lost the ball and Jones streaked for third. The JC backstop retrieved the ball in plenty of time to make a play, but threw high at third and Jones came romping right around with the winning marker.

Score by innings.

Netmen Hold Initial Outdoor Workouts

Varsity tennis team hopefuls took to the wind-swept courts Wednesday afternoon for their first official outdoor practice. Ten racket swingers participated in the two hour drill under the supervision of Bob Yoho.

Plans are now set up to conduct a "ladder" tournament in order to determine the varsity team. Those interested in being included in this tournament should contact Coach Mike Snider or Bob Yoho immediately in order to have their name placed in the field of competition. The varsity squad will be named from the first six players in the final standing of this tournament.

Local fans will get their first taste of intercollegiate tennis on April 29 when the Eliabethtown team invades College Hill. The Indians will be out to avenge the defeat pinned on them last year.

Bowling League Plays Final Round Tonight

The Intramural Bowling League will make a second attempt to complete its regular schedule tonight. Due to the proximity of the Spring vacation, the games scheduled for last week were postponed until this evening.

Several of the teams have postponed games to make up in addition to completing their regular schedule. It is expected that these games will be run off next week.

Tonight's schedule is as follows:

J. M. Zuck, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa."

Founded April 17, 1876

April 17, 1876, three students handed over $6.50 each for tuition, and the institution was founded.

Dr. Paul Robinson will speak at Founders Day Chapel Services Monday. No speaker has been scheduled yet for Wednesday's Chapel according to Prof. Wayne Glick, but the A Cappella Choir will be heard Friday.

April 17, 1950, 74 years later, sticking out like the well known sore thumb is the fact that several changes have been made since the paying of the first tuition; the name (from the Brethren's Normal School and Collegiate Institute to Juniata College), the location (from one room on the second story of a Washington St. building to the present buildings located atop one of the thousand hills), and an increased number of students who shell out an increased amount for tuition and board.

Rev. Robinson To Speak

This year Founder's Day will be observed with the Rev. Paul M. Robinson as chapel speaker. Dr. Robinson is president of the Juniata College National Alumni Association and minister of the Church of the Brethren, Hagerstown, Md.

During the afternoon those faculty and administration members who have served the College for ten or more years will be recognized at a tea to be held at the Faculty Club.

These include: Harold C. Binkley, Harold B. Brumbaugh, Norman J. Brumbaugh, Gertrude L. Butler, S. Earl Dubbel, Calvert N. Ellis, Charles C. Ellis, Lillian M. Evans, Edgar S. Kiracofe, Margaret F. McCrimmon, Frances J. Mathias, Harry H. Nye, Jack E. Oller, Donald M. Rockwell, Charles L. Rowland, Charles S. Shively, Anne Groninger Smith, Philip M. Snider, Edith L. Spencer, J. Clyde Stayer, Homer C. Will and Paul R. Yoder.

Off-campus persons invited are Mrs. I. Harvey Brumbaugh, Mrs. Oscar R. Myers, F. A. McKenzie, Ralph R. Berkey, H. Elizabeth Fleck, Lewis S. Knepper and Joseph W. Yoder.

HUMPHREYS, HEBRANK PLAN JC's BIRTHDAY

22 From Chemistry Dept. Make Tour

Led by Dr. Donald Rockwell and Dr. Raymond Davis, the 22 chem dept. students who went on the annual four day industrial chemistry seminar class' field trip will return to campus this evening.

Tuesday the group toured the Armstrong Cork Co., plant at Lancaster, Pa. Wednesday they continued on to the Chambers works of the DuPont Co., at Wilmington, Del. This is the largest chemical plant in the world.

At Philadelphia the tourists spent Thursday morning at the factory of the Brown Instrument Division of the Minneapolis-Honeywell Co.

Two more stops complete the journey today: the Eastern Regional Laboratory of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture and the Cornwall Iron Mine with its old charcoal furnace.

Diamond Dust

Balmy Easter breezes carried the peal of wedding bells for two Juniata students.

Theodore Stroup, a sophomore, was united in marriage on April 2 with the former Betty Jo McCune, Torrance, Pa. The informal ceremony was held in the Methodist parsonage at Blairsville with the Rev. Hempsted officiating. Following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Stroup took an auto trip to Washington, D. C. The couple plan to make their home here next fall.

A former JC student, Dave Hill, married Miss Hazel Trice, Greensburg, Pa., at a formal ceremony on April 8. The First Reformed Church, Greensburg was the scene of the double ring service. Two former roommates of Hill, Jay Benedict and Bill Lehman served as ushers and Clyde Johnson sang several selections. Following a reception at the home of the bride, the couple left for Washington, D. C., for their honeymoon.

Cabin Construction Is Progressing

With almost two weeks of work behind them, the boys who have been working on the construction of the cabin along the Juniata hope to have the job completed by next Saturday.

Work on the 20 by 30 foot structure is under the direction of John Morningstar, of the Reynolds Construction Company. Plans provide for a fireplace to be added next fall.

Much of the work on the cabin was done during the Easter vacation. Those who helped were George Layman, Rex Hershberger, Dave Kennedy, Bob Lowry, Don Kagarise, Bill Cheslock, Jack Buckle, Bob Yoho and Don Robinson. Dr. Kenneth Crosby also worked on the project.

Food for the boys was provided by Miss Frances Mathias. Dean and Mrs. Melvin Rhodes took charge of the pots and pans detail.

Mock Heads Waitresses

Elaine Mock has been appointed by Miss Francis J. Mathias to the position of head waitress. She replaces Mim Landis who will be graduated this spring.

Gladys Gehman, at her own request, is retaining her former position of assistant head waitress.

FTA To Sponsor Party April 22; Apprey Will Speak To IRC Friday

by Dottie Hummer

Dear Spring,

College Hill is really buzzing again after that long Easter vacation. It seems like quite a few of our clubs are back on their toes for another busy week.

PROF. CHARLES L. ROWLAND HOBBYIST

On April 22, the FTA will sponsor a party in the gym, using a mock one-room school house as the theme. Doris Mickle, chairman of the party, has promised us an evening of fun and excitement.

WAA Meets Thursday

A WAA business meeting will be held Thursday evening at 7:30 in the WAA Club Room. With the new club officers presiding, it was decided to discuss and revise the award and point system of their constitution. The group will also plan a Hockey Play Day for next fall with extended invitations to other colleges. Last on the agenda will be a formation of tennis, archery and softball teams which will be open to all the students.

Thursday, Beanie Roberts will speak to the IVCF on Roman VI. This meeting will be held at 7:30 in the Women's Day Student Room. Last night Prof. Silas Dubbel discussed Romans V.

A closer insight on African life will be the topic discussed by Sam Apprey, one of our Juniata foreign students, at next Friday night's meeting of the IRC.

Radiologist Speaks

The monthly meeting of the Scapel and Probe Club was held Wednesday evening. Dr. Marlyn Miller, radiologist at the Altoona Hospital, was the guest speaker. A former graduate of Juniata, Dr. Miller was the first lab assistant to Dr. Will's General Biology class. This meeting was taken over by the new officers, with Don Schucker presiding as president.

The Rev. Earl Kerstetter will speak at a JCA sponsored meeting next Tuesday. Rev. Kerstetter will discuss topics which will be brought up at the conference this weekend.

Tuesday, the commission on mission study held their first meeting. Mrs. Jane M. Crosby spoke to the group.

Under the constitution of the Juniata Christian Association, the commission for mission study has taken over the functions of student Volunteers.

Well, guess it's time to get my bat and gloves and shuffle off to the baseball field.

Hobbyist Mixes Music, Woodcraft

Combining profession with hobby, Prof. Charles L. Rowland has successfully utilized his skill in the art of wood working in his career as professor of music.

As a boy on a farm near Hagerstown, Md., "Prof." Rowland learned the trade at his father's blacksmith and woodwork shop. It was there that he produced his first creations in wood—namely, a wagon and a pair of ice skates.

Music First, Then Hobby

As the years passed by Professor Rowland continued toward his goal in the field of music; but his hobby did not lag far behind. A course in manual training at McPherson College, Kansas and summers spent as a carpenter's helper gradually improved his workmanship.

Since he joined the Juniata College faculty in 1920, "Prof" has put to excellent use his combined skills of music making and wood working. For the past several years he has made the professional style conductor's batons used by the music department. In addition, he has designed a music cabinet with sliding drawers and collapsible stands and trunks used by the A Cappella Choir.

Creates Novel Articles

However, his creative ability is not limited to his musical profession alone. It is also found in his Huntingdon residence where Professor Rowland has designed and constructed many useful and novel household articles.

JC Broadcasts Barber-Shop Style

A student quartet will broadcast Wednesday over "Juniata on the Air." Bob Frain, Ray Siren, Fred Stauffer and Bill Wright will present a barber-shop style program accompanied by Walt Bandurak on the guitar.

Included on the program will be "Dry Bones," "Coney Island Babe," "If I Had My Way," "Kentucky Babe," "While Strolling Through the Park One Day," and "Gotta Get My Baby Out of Jail."

Turntable Terrace is being discontinued with the onset of baseball season.

Spoiled

A census taker was working down in Georgia.

One day he stopped at the cabin of a woman who seemed to have a great many children and while he tried to get the number, age and other statistics about the children from the woman, she fed a particularly noisy, ill-tempered, squawking baby.

Finally, the census taker said, for the baby was squawking louder than ever:

"That child's spoiled, isn't it?"

"No sir," said the woman. That's the way all li'l chillun smells."

Longwell Releases New Radio Plans

The new Senate-approved chairman of the Radio Committee, Betty Longwell, announces a series of radio workshops to be held Thursday, April 27, May 4 and May 11.

The first workshop on Thursday will feature Dr. George Clemens instructing in the principles of wire and tape recording and Prof. Oliver Bridwell discussing script writing.

Miss Esther Doyle will lead the workshop on May 4 with pointers on radio speech and play direction.

The final workshop on May 11 will deal with pacing, and sound and musicial effects. A WHUN technician will lead this program.

"All those interested in radio work are urged to attend these workshops," states Miss Longwell.

A 20-minute production of Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice," will be presented on "Juniata on the Air" Wednesday night.

The play is being produced by the Masque and is under the direction of Thurman Grossnickle. The student announcer is Frank Conly.

The faculty advisor of the new Radio Committee is Dr. George Clemens.

Mays Attends NEA Conf.

Morley Mays, dean of the College, returned to the campus yesterday afternoon after spending a week in Chicago. He attended the Fifth National Conference of Higher Education sponsored by the National Education Association. As a part of the NEA conference, Dean Mays took part in a seminar on "Evaluation of Faculty Services."

Saturday he spoke at a dinner for 40 members of the Chicago Juniata Alumni Association.

An Interview

Iranian Finds 'First Bit Of American Education' At JC

by Renie Hebrank

Perhaps it was the little girl's curly dark hair and sweet smile that caused Miss Leree Chase, Presbyterian missionary, to adopt her from the orphanage in Iran. Even so, the world must have seemed strange to five-year-old Ferdose as she began her new life after being made an orphan by a dreaded plague.

Since 1945, "Dosie" Chase has made her home in Rome, Pa. She had her first bit of actual American education at Juniata College.

"My life in Teheran, Iran's capital city, was a vastly different existence than the environment of the campus," said Miss Chase.

Fuedalism Still Dominant

She stated that the feudal system is still a dominant force in the area, much as it was in Western Europe of the Middle Ages. Throughout her homeland, nearly 85% of the population are primitive farmers and villagers.

"Actual poverty and ignorance is everywhere evidenced in the mud huts, poor sanitation and meager wages of these farmers," Dosie revealed. "Perhaps this is due to the climate which discourages agriculture; the entire area is lacking rain from May through Oct."

Miss Chase further stated that the theory of fatalism is a hindrance to her people. The Persians adhere strictly to the Moslem religion and it is regarded as sinful to attempt to change the status of one's life.

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of interviews with international students on campus to appear in The Juniatian.

Poor Class A Necessity

"The key to this religion is the giving of alms to the poor," she said: "thus a poor class is a necessity in the religion itself."

This bright-eyed JC student believes that the most notable difference is in the education. Even today, only a little more than 1% of the people are literate. Separate schools are established for boys and girls after fourth grade. The school system is compulsory for the first six grades and one may attend through the 12th grade.

This is comparable to the American prep school she stated.

Customs Differ From Ours

Native customs, particularly those of marriage, proved to be widely different from ours. A girl's marriage is arranged at the age of 14.

"She never sees her husband until after the ceremony and then it is only a reflection in a mirror," Miss Chase said in illustrating the variety of customs.

"These patriarchal families are characterized by 10 to 14 children," she continued.

Miss Chase declared that on the whole the Iran of today, with its heavily veiled women and agricultural civilization has been changed very little by modernistic trends.

'J C On The Air'

"It is the hope of the new radio committee to present programs of such calibre that it will be profitable for both students and public relations," said Betty Longwell, newly appointed chairman of the radio committee.

Now we feel that the Senate made a good choice of Miss Longwell as chairman. However, realizing the possibilities of "Juniata On The Air" as an asset or liability to Juniata College depending on the quality of the programs, we solicit the support of radio-minded students.

Students who are interested in radio or who are interested in learning more about it should contact Miss Longwell and also attend the radio workshops to be held soon.

Also it is hoped that students will take renewed interest in radio by participating in the programs and by listening to them.

The Wages Of Sin

Two weeks ago in Kansas City, Missouri, political boss Charles Binaggio and one of his henchmen were slain.

The whole affair added impetus to the proposed Senate investigation of crime in this country. However, it might be well also to heed the words of Rev. Raymond E. Jackson, Kansas City, who defended the Christian burial of the slain henchmen.

He said: "We condemn the underworld and all its barbarous and cowardly ways. But we condemn also the overworld—liquor executives, public officials in high and low places and the like, who though able to retain the aura of respectability, sacrifice, every decent principle for their own contemptible and selfish ends."

This is something to ponder in a time when someone has said, "America is fiddling, while freedom burns."

In State College, Pennsylvania, the favorite gathering spot of students at Pennsylvania State College is Graham & Sons because it is a cheerful place — full of friendly collegiate atmosphere. THIS MORTAL COIL

by Don Brandt

This writing finds us staring out the window to the warmth and activity of a balmy spring afternoon, wondering how many students have spring fever as seriously as we. Days such as this make us want to forget that there is anything but balmy, lazy placidity anywhere on this patched up world.

News comes to our ears incessantly on the world situation, and we shudder as we think of the consequences. It has not been too long ago that days such as this were shattered by the explosions of artillery and the crippling sensation of torn flesh and bones. How much longer may we enjoy this serenity before another shattering crash hammers our eardrums.

What You Do

As we sat in chapel on Founder's Day, listening to the speaker define our responsibility in life, we became especially impressed with his statement, "It's not what you get out of life, but what you put into it." In order to preserve the peace, this advice seems to be most important. The world as it now stands is a group of individuals, each frantically picking up rocks with which to cripple the first other individual to cross the line. Until these individuals learn to contribute to the well-being of the group, our present chaotic state will continue to exist.

Spring Fever

It seems to us that, so long as people continue to contract spring fever about this time every year, there are still hopes for peace. There is no time for spring fever in war, in fact, there is no time for spring in war. It is no re-spectre of seasons, as well as persons and those of us who enjoy this season must exert all our energies for peace. Spring belongs to the peacemakers.

It is, therefore, our responsibility to eliminate the necessity for fighting a war, since justification is not a characteristic of conflict. Defense is natural for self-preservation, but we must remember the lines found in a book of blank verse called Red Beach: "War does not determine who is right, but who is left."

Job Opportunities For 1950

The department of Labor of the United States Government has released a folder on job possibilities which should be of interest to all college seniors. Although the jobs are restricted to four fields, several of them hold promise for the undergraduate planning further study.

For those students planning to study law upon graduation, the Labor department has some rather discouraging news. The law field, already overcrowded in 1949, will become more overcrowded this year as many lawyers seek jobs. The future is expected to remain glum for the next two to three years. For those who are looking for the best possibility, there are a few jobs for specialists, along with some positions in medium size and smaller cities.

Teachers

A bright future looms for those who have majored in elementary education in college, since this is the most promising field for employment. Many more elementary teachers will be needed (500,000 for next ten years) due to the increase in enrollments and the necessity for replacements.

Tighter competition is promised the secondary teacher, since more teachers are trying for the few jobs. Some areas still suffer acute shortages, but on the whole the supply at present allows only the best a chance. The situation is expected to remain acute since the training rate continues to produce too many secondary teachers. The better field is elementary.

Dietitians

One of the most favorable categories listed by the department, and one of the least trained for is this field of dietetics. One thousand dietitians are needed yearly to fill new positions and to replace those who have left the profession for various reasons. The positions vary a great deal in location and content, and in addition they all contain very good opportunity for advancement.

Employment is available in hospitals, institutions, industry and schools. All offer very attractive salaries to the beginning dietitian. Some men with graduate credit in food administration are also needed at very handsome salaries.

TOMMY

Greetings cousins! Ah Spring, when a young man's fancy turns to things which girls have been thinking of all winter. The old planet Earth is having his 1950 suit tailor-made and new things are developing here on Juniata's campus. Tommy has been watching with keen interest the latest romantical developments since Easter vacation, and yearns to enlighten you.

The end of vacation brought several men back to campus with shackles, voluntarily assumed; on the hands of Mike Dunlavy and Carl Curry. Tommy congratulates them, and hopes their futures will be rosy!

Tommy understands that Dottie Smith (Home Management House) admires the administration more and more every day. Could Jack Buckle have anything to do with it?

This snooper noticed an exceptional amount of cheering, on the part of Betsy Wright, for Juniata's right fielder in the recent ballgames. Ain't uniforms grand?

Couples of the week: Frank Dolce and Marie Fogelsanger; Chip Ciccozi and Eleanor Zehmer; Ray Tesi and Dolly Shaffer; and last but not least, Vernon Beam and Sue Bieber.

Questions of the week: What prompted the recess (five minutes) of the Student Senate this week? Will Sam Woodring receive his master's degree from Penn State or Juniata?

Operator of the week: (for unexcelled operation during his four years at Juniata) George Gaugler.

Bachelor of the week: the latest vocalizer of that old tune, "Footloose and Fancy Free," Bob Elder.

In Memoriam: This paragraph is dedicated to the memory of those soon-to-be forgotten comrades who will go to the executioner's block on May 1. Comprehensives to you freshmen. For them, Tommy bows his head and observes a moment's silence.

Tommy injects a note of sympathy in the column this week for those Pittsburgh Pirate fans who expect the Bucs to wind up in the first division. Everyone realizes that this is the Phillies' year in the National League.

Students will be glad to recognize the acquisition of a new, 100 record juke box at Skip's Inn. We understand it has not been silent for as much as five minutes since its installation.

Moans and groans are in order for Marilyn Eastland. After a hurried visit to her personal denture specialist, she returned to campus with only thirty of her permanent ivories remaining. We note with regret the loss of two such close friends and associates of Marilyn's.

In closing, Tommy wishes to congratulate those academic giants who were appointed to the Honor Society. Theirs is an accomplishment to be envied by every member of the student body.

The time has come, chillun', so for another week, it's a cheery au revoir from your eagle-beaked reporter,

Thomas Ethereal Hawk

Trackmen Lose Opening Meet To Shippensb'g State Teachers

Juniata College opened its 1950 track season on Monday as it bowed to a strong Shippensburg State Teachers College team 102-24. It was the Indians' worst defeat in the track history of the school.

The Teachers moved out in front at the opening event as they swept all three places in the shot put for nine big points. From this point on the visitors' lead was never challenged as they went on to completely sweep six additional events and rack up their one-sided victory.

Beyer, Brinton Score Firsts

Joe Beyer recorded one of Juniata's two first places as he headed the entrants in his specialty, the two mile run. Beyer went out in front at the half mile mark and then steadily increased his margin to win in 11:00.5.

Don Brinton also copped a first in pacing the 880-yard run. Brinton turned in a time of 2:08.6 in winning the half mile event. He also took a second place in the one mile run, finishing close on the heels of Shippensburg's Singer. Don recorded eight points for the day to become the Brave's high scorer.

Other Juniata pointmakers were Fred Stauffer, second in the 220, Holmes Ulsh, tied for second in the high jump, Joe Hackman, third in the 120-yd. high hurdles, and Dick Fusco and Don Brocht, with second and third in the broad jump.

St. Vincent Scores 6-4 Win Over J.C.

Juniata's error-plagued Indians lost their third straight game to St. Vincent on Tuesday, 6-4. The Latrobe batters moved out to a 6-0 lead before Juniata was able to score. The Indians committed six costly errors.

St. Vincent took the lead in the opening frame without the aid of a hit. In the third inning, with one out, McAtee singled and Bilonich followed with a long triple, scoring McAtee. Kissel fanned, but Gruss' single scored Bilonich and St. Vincent led 3-0.

Score Two In Fifth

Hartsock's single and a double by McAtee added another marker for the home team in the fourth. St. Vincent completed their scoring in the fifth at the expense of fireman Dave LeFevre, who relieved Jack Dickey. Another error, coupled with Kmetz' double and Kocerka's single, was good for two more runs to make it 6-0.

The weatherman set up interference at Wednesday's scheduled baseball game with the University of Pittsburgh. The umpires called the game because of rain after three innings. Pitt was leading at the time, 2-0.

Juniata finally found its bats in the top of the sixth and came across with three runs. LeFevre started things with a walk and after Hackett was retired Dickey, now playing right field, also walked. Long singled to score LeFevre and when Kmetz fumbled the ball Dickey came home, with Long going to third. Moments later the Indian third-sacker scored on Pantalone's miscue.

Dzvonar Scores In Ninth

Mike Dzvonar was hit by a pitch to open the ninth for Juniata. The Meteor moved to second when Frye grounded out, and scored on Howett's bingle.

Squeeze Long took the lion's share of Juniata's hits, getting a double and single in four trips to the plate. Don Howett and Dave Hackett each contributed a single to the losing cause. The Indians had only four hits.

Miscues Costly As Indians Drop Home Opener To LV, 10-3

A big Lebanon Valley outbreak in the second inning spoiled the Indians' home opener last Saturday. LV scored four times in this frame to take a big lead and then went on to win, 10-3.

Errors Costly

Once again a loose infield, coupled with a weak hitting attack, resulted in the locals' downfall. Juniata committed no less than six errors, several of them costly.

The Indians appeared headed for a big inning as the contest opened, but were able to manufacture only one tally. After Squeeze Long went out, George Kensinger walked, moved to second on a passed ball and to third on an infield error. Mike Dzvonar popped out, but Harry Frye scored Kensinger when he beat out an infield hit. Frye was then picked off on an attempted steal to end the inning.

Score Four In Second

Wildness on the part of pitcher Ken Wenger plus an error resulted in the visitors' big second inning rally. Wenger got past the first two batters with ease, but Schadler then touched him for a Texas League single. Ken issued three consecutive free passes to allow one score and Ray Tesi's error permitted another. LV shortstop Tom Sawyer's hard single produced two more tallies and the Dutchmen practically sewed up the ball game.

Juniata added another tally in the fifth on Tesi's single, a force out, an infield out and Long's hard single down the left infield line. Don Howett singled to left in the seventh and after an error and a passed ball scored the Indians' final tally to make the score read 4-3.

LV Increases Margin

Victory hopes for the locals were dimmed in the eighth as LV combined two hits and two errors to produce two more runs and increase their margin to 6-3. The visitors added insult to injury in the ninth as they paraded across with four more markers to win going away. Dave LeFevre whiffed the last batter to put out the fire.

The Indians could garner only five singles off the combined efforts of Fore and Murawski. Long, Kensinger, Frye, Howett and Tesi managed one safety each. In losing, Wenger struck out ten, but seven bases on balls plus the six errors led to his downfall.

Juniata's golf teams have compiled an overall record of 20 victories in 23 contests since the sport was inaugurated four years ago.

Golfers Swamp W. Maryland, Dickinson; Meet Pitt Today

The Juniata golf team is just like "Ole Man River"; they "just keep rollin' along." They scored their eighteenth victory in nineteen starts Tuesday as they whitewashed Dickinson 9-0, after defeating Western Maryland 8-1 on Monday. The Indians meet Pitt at Pittsburgh today.

Western Maryland

Even a strong wind failed to thwart the Braves as they downed Western Maryland at the Huntingdon Country Club on Monday. Only freshman Dave Bayer's close 2 and 1 loss to Western Maryland's Joe Kovalevsh prevented a complete blanking.

Art Allen, playing in the number three position, turned in the low medal score of 74. He defeated Ed Coffman of Western Maryland, 7 and 6.

The summaries:

Ray Korody, Juniata, def Al Bright, W. Maryland, 4 and 2. Joe Kovalevsh, W. Maryland, def. Dave Bayer, Juniata, 2 and 1. Best ball won by Juniata, 2 and 1.

Art Allen, Juniata, def Ed Coffman, W. Maryland, 7 and 6. Bob Rhodes, Juniata, def Don Marowski, W. Maryland, 2 and 1. Best ball won by Juniata, 6 and 5.

Gordon Stroup, Juniata, def Roy Cushing, W. Maryland, 8 and 7. Frank Stasenko, Juniata, def Huck Hayzlett, W. Maryland, 3 and 2. Best ball won by Juniata, 7 and 6.

Dickinson

Captain Ray Korody paced his mates to their victory over Dickinson. Korody shot a one-under-par 70 as he scored a convincing victory over Wilson of Dickinson, 10 and 8. Ray's score was good for low medal honors.

Art Allen shot a 74, Frank Stasenko had a 75 and Gordon Stroup a 77. Dave Bayer lost the first five holes of his match, but came back to win all the rest from the sixth on to score a 4 and 3 win.

The summaries:

Ray Korody, Juniata, def Wilson, Dickinson, 10 and 8. Art Allen, Juniata, def McEntre, Dickinson, 7 and 6. Best ball won by Juniata, 9 and 8.

Full Week Ahead For 3 Indian Teams

Juniata's Spring athletic teams face a busy schedule this week, with five events on the card. Included are two golf matches, two track meets and a baseball game.

The golf team will be out to keep their perfect record intact when they meet a strong Pitt team at Pittsburgh today. The Indians defeated the Panthers last season 5-4. A return match with Dickinson is scheduled for the Huntingdon Country Club on Tuesday.

The track team will attempt to shake off their one-sided opening defeat when they travel to Reading to meet Albright tomorrow. The Lions are expected to give the Indians much trouble before the afternoon is over. A meet with Dickinson is also scheduled for the track Indians next weekend.

The baseball team will attempt to snap its current three game losing streak when they meet Lycoming at 2 p. m. tomorrow on College Field. In trying for their first win of the campaign, the local diamond artists will seek revenge for an earlier defeat at the hands of Lycoming.

Tennis Courts Will Operate By Schedule

Effective Monday, April 24, the tennis courts at the Village and the gym will operate on a strict schedule. The card will be arranged each day by means of signing a sheet posted at the boys locker room entrance. The courts will be reserved for the varsity tennis team from three to five in the afternoon.

Court caretaker Bill Germann stated that the courts will be held only five minutes after the scheduled time. Failure to be on time will result in a forfeit of the period to a group who is prepared.

Girls Softball Starts

The girls began their Spring interclass activities this week with the organization of a softball league. Games are played twice a week, on Wednesday and Friday afternoons at 4:15. All girls are welcome and encouraged to participate.

Concerts, People, Lessons Fill De Paur Schedule

by Margie Alleman

"Sights to see, people to meet, lessons to study, six rehearsals, 170 concerts"—that is a concert tour for the de Paur Infantry Chorus, according to their conductor Leonard de Paur.

"Yes," he explained, "we have our own school for the members of the chorus. Classes are taught in theory of music and voice. I teach, along with the assistant conductor and the librarian."

Concerts Old Business

Concerts for de Paur are old business. In an interview during the intermission in last Friday night's program, the conductor, perched informally on the corner of a bench on the curtained Oller Hall stage, related his history of music-making.

"I wouldn't know what to do if I didn't do this," he explained. "It's all I've done."

Since he left high school, de Paur has been in concert work. In 1931, he joined the Hall Johnson Choir and by the time he left in 1940 to set up his own chorus, he had become first assistant to Johnson. He became musical director of the Negro Theater in 1936. De Paur also directed the Broadway production of "John Henry" which starred Paul Robeson.

Became Special Attraction

"In July 1945, continued the energetic conductor-arranger, "this group of men who are with me now were organized as a special service attraction. Before this, these men, mostly from the National Guard of New England, New York and New Jersey, were on their own."

Since leaving the army, the Infantry Chorus has made three annual tours in the United States and Canada. About half of the appearances of de Paur's infantry chorus are sponsored by numerous independent organizations; the other half are arranged by the Community Concert Association.

WE BUILD A CABIN—"About 1/3 of the siding has been put on" the frame of the Raystown cabin JC's students are raising, reports Outing Club member Dave Kennedy. "The girls' turn is coming up," he adds, listing such tasks as "shellacking the knots and painting the siding."

Kennedy goes on to request the co-operation of the students in a push to further the job as fast as possible.

"Those interested are asked to tell Don Robinson, Bob Lowry, Don Kagarise, Rex Hershberger or myself what days they will be available so that transportation can be planned. Finding enough cars is our big difficulty now," Kennedy concludes.

On Other Campuses

Though it is more than 300 years since Shakespeare finished his dramatic career, audiences are still being delighted by his works. According to reports from La Verne College their presentation of the Shakespearean comedy "Twelfth Night" was a "great success."

themselves in the midst of a "Country Garden," gaily decorated by Doris Mickle and her committee.

According to Miss Hummer, all women day students planning to attend this May Day Breakfast should contact Dottie Humphreys by next Tuesday. A fee of $.35 will be charged for the meal.

After breakfast there will be group singing, a Girls' Varsity Trio selection and a sneak preview of the freshmen May Day dances. Connie Sherman, program chairman, promises suspense galore until the split second when the queen, the prince and the court will cleverly be revealed.

Exactly 14 years ago this month the women students at Juniata College gathered together in the dining hall in formal attire for the first May Day Breakfast sponsored by the YWCA. Before this time the queen and her court were kept secret until the very day of her crowning.

The following year 125 girls and faculty wives attended the breakfast. This year the deep, dark secret of the royal names was revealed amid a setting of flowers and Japanese doll favors on the tables.

In 1945 a Dutch atmosphere reigned at the breakfast, and on each table there was a windmill centerpiece. During the program one of the students sang "Someday My Prince Will Come." As she sang, she walked around to all of the tables lifting the roofs of the minature windmills. There were revealed the names of the queen, Prince Charming and attendants.

Another year the Cinderella effect was used at the breakfast. Prince Charming gallantly came in the dining hall with a slipper and proceeded to try it on the feet of the various candidates. But only on one girl's foot did the shoe fit—and she was named May Day Queen.

Frat Conducts Photo Contest

Kappa Alpha Mu, honorary fraternity devoted to photo-journalism, is now conducting the fifth annual 50-print International Collegiate Photography Exhibition. Deadline date for the competition is April 30.

Any student at an accredited college or university is eligible to submit as many as 10 prints (8x 10 or larger and mounted on 16x 20 photomounts), with a maximum of five in any one class. Classes are news, pictorial, feature, sports and industrial.

The Grand Prize in the contest is a two year scholarship valued at $1260 (tuition only) to the Fred Archer School of Photography and a copy of "Photography is a Lanuage." Anyone entering from 6 to 10 prints in 3 or more classes will be eligible for the award. There will also be special awards in each of the five classes.

For complete rules and entry blanks, write: George K. Morgan, Secretary: Kappa Alpha Mu; Room 18, Walter Williams; University of Missouri; Columbia, Missouri.

Ellis Celebrates His 46th Birthday

President Calvert N. Ellis celebrated his 46th birthday last Sunday in the new dining hall as a dinner guest of the student Senate.

Dean Edith Spencer decorated the large cake and also the cup cakes with the single candles which the other diners received.

A trio consisting of Bob Frain, Bill Wright and Ray Siren sang "Happy Birthday" whereon the student body rose to honor Dr. Ellis.

Diners at the president's table were Dean Spencer, Dr. Kenneth Crosby faculty advisor, and Mrs. Crosby, David Ellis and the 12 Senate members.

Arrangements for the birthday dinner were under the direction of Ruth Kimble, chairman of women's house.

Mrs. Calvert N. Ellis, who was unable to attend because of illness, also received a cake.

IRC Proposes To Establish $100.00 Grant-In-Aid Foreign Study Fund

by Dottie Hummer

In spite of a mixture of baseball, spring fever and comprehensive woes, many Juniata students have found ample time to enjoy their regular club activities.

Hummer

Perhaps the most outstanding news on a club agenda can be accredited to the IRC in this quotation: "The International Relations Club of Juniata College proposed to establish an award of $100 to be given annually as a grant-in-aid to a Juniata student of junior standing for study and travel abroad." We are sure this award will be invaluable to the lucky recipient.

The monthly meeting of the IRC will be held in the I. Harvey Brumbaugh House this evening at 7 p. m. A closer insight on African life will be the topic discussed by Sam Apprey, one of Juniata's international students. Everyone is invited to hear this discussion.

IVCF Continues Study

Thursday at 7:30 the IVCF will hold their regular meeting in the Womens' Day Student Room. Gene Seese will continue the Bible study project in his discussion of Romans VII. Last evening Beanie Roberts spoke on Romans VI.

Three carloads of Juniata students are going to Penn State tonight. Guest speaker for the evening will be Rev. Laird from Wilmington, Del.

A meeting of the Mission Study Emphasis under the JCA has been planned for Tuesday at 7:30 in the Old Chapel. There will be special music by a girls' trio.

Masque Stages Shakespeare

An arena style production of "The Merchant of Venice" was given Thursday evening in Oller Hall. A cast of 19 presented this script-in-hand play, with Thurman Grossnickle directing and Louise Cray serving as technical advisor. Masque members as well as townspeople and other students were present for this evening of entertainment.

Final arrangements for the Girls' Softball League were announced Thursday evening at the WAA monthly business meeting. These games will be played Wednesday and Friday afternoons at 4:15. An evaluation of the point and award system of the WAA constitution, and tentative plans for a hockey Play Day were among the business items discussed.

Ginny Masemer was recently appointed the president of the French Club by Miss Margaret McCrimmon and Dr. George Clemens.

Quakers Hold Weekend Confab

The annual Quaker "Institute of International Relations" will be held at Hershey, Pa., Friday evening, April 28 to Sunday noon, April 30.

The Institute, which is sponsored by the middle atlantic region of the American Friends Service Committee, has the following faculty members:

A. J. Muste, who has recently returned from a world conference in India. Mr. Muste is a leader in the world peace movement.

Joseph Barnes, lecturer and newspaperman, who served on the staff of The Institute of Pacific Relations and traveled in Manchuria, China and Japan. Mr. Barnes was on the staff of The New York Herald Tribune, 1935-40.

Student registration for the Institute is $1. Rooms are available at the Community Inn and also in private homes for from $1-$2 per night.

Those interested in attending the Institute should contact Mrs. Kenneth Crosby or should write Mrs. Ella Hanford, P. O. Box 201, Hershey, Pa., for reservations.

Author-Professor Is Chapel Speaker Wed.

Elton Trueblood, author of "The Predicament of Modern Man," will speak in Chapel Wednesday.

He will hold a discussion at the I. Harvey Brumbaugh House that afternoon for all interested students. The time for this discussion is to be announced in the chapel period which will be extended Wednesday.

Mr. Trueblood is a graduate of Earlham College, Richmond, Indiana.

The 75th anniversary year of the founding of Juniata College was formally initiated in a special Chapel service on Monday morning.

The Rev. Paul M. Robinson, D. D., president of the Juniata Alumni Association, delivered the Founders' Day address.

In the afternoon, a reception was held at the Faculty Club for all members of the faculty and administration who have served the College for 10 or more years.

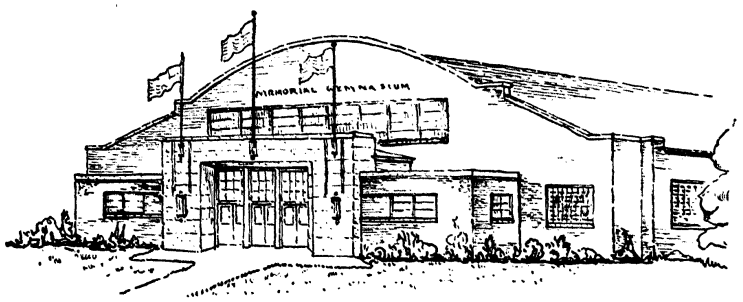
Gym Plans Now Out For Bid; Deadline Is May 20



PACESETTER—Setting the pace for Juniata's big 75th anniversary diamond jubilee year is this latest addition to her campus facilities. Publcation of the architect's drawing of the new gym as shown above marks the end of one phase in the Postwar Planning Commission's program—that of deciding just exactly what the proposed physical education building is to look like. In addition it marks the first step in a new phase, that of actual construction. According to plan, these steps should lead eventually to a dedication ceremony on JC's birthday, April 17, 1951.

College Hopes To Complete Structure By Next April

With hopes of completion by Juniata's 75th anniversary celebration next April, the College has sent the plans for the new gym out for bid, to be called in by May 20.

The structure, to face west, will be located north of 18th St., and west of Scott St. The main entrance of the gym will be through the memorial lobby, in memory of Chalender Lee Lesher, '39, who died in the second world war.

One main basketball court, which can be used for two practice courts, will be located on the first floor of the structure which will measure 112 by 180 feet. On this same level will be dressing rooms, a boxing court and two handball courts. Folding bleachers to seat 1100 will be provided.

On the mezzanine will be two more basketball courts, thus allowing for four intramural games to be carried on at the same time. Here there will also be space for an additional 1000 seats.

A memorial to John and Chester J. Langdon will be placed in the new building. Mr. John Langdon organized and continued a fund for physical education which is now providing $23,000 toward the cost of the gym.

Altogether, there is $100,000 towards this building project so far, most of which was given by

Altemus, Kagarise To Be Crowned At May Day Fete

by Marj Seidel

Through an arch of swords appeared Prince Don Kagarise at yesterday's May Day breakfast. And with the presentation of a flower, he revealed the identity of his royal companion ,Queen Ilene Altemus.

A few royal statistics disclose that Queen Ilene is a home economics major from Homer City, Pa. Last year the junior class chose this brunette beauty as one of their May Day attendents.

By the queen's side will be Margy Clemmer, her maid of honor. Margy is a sociology major of Huntingdon, Pa., (formerly from Hagerstown, Md.)

Prince Don hails from Martinsburg, Pa. In June this "tall, dark and handsome" prince will abdicate his throne and eventually teach biology in high school.

Foster, Stine Elected

Senior class attendants will be Kathy Foster, a day student from Huntingdon, and Elma Stine from McVeytown, Pa. A music major, Elma plans to enter the teaching profession after graduation.

The junior class will be represented by its vice-president, Polly Bane of Burlington, W. Va., and its secretary, Gladys Gehman of Windber, Pa., who is remembered as Homecoming Queen of 1949.

Attendants from the sophomore class will be Connie Sherman of Ebensburg, Pa., and Mary Lou McKee of Johnstown, Pa., who represented her class on May Day last year.

Frosh Attendants Named

The freshman class attendants will be Anna Mae Zimmerman of Bernville, Pa., and Ronnie Gravlie of Nesi Aadal, Norway who was chosen "Queen of the Deep" this year at the sophomore dance.

Before the door opened upon his highness at the May Day breakfast, the program proceeded as follows: invocation by Mrs. Morley Mays: breakfast; group singing led by Joan Weaver; remarkes by mistress of ceremonies, Renie Hebrank and a selection by the girls' trio.

Junior Reception To Be Held Tonight, 8:15

The Junior Reception will be held in the gym this evening, following a formal dinner and program in the dining hall.

Using the theme "A Southern Cotillion," the decoration committee plans to represent a southern plantation lawn. Music will be recorded, and "servants" will be present to serve mint iced tea, peanuts, pretzels and mints.

Those working on committees planning for the dance are the following: decorations—Erla Mae Weist, Dolly Shaffer, Jean Bailey, Polly Bane, Vera Compton, Lois Fretz, Bud Kreider; refreshments—Gladys Gehman, Doris Mickle, Portia Baugher, LaRue Seese; invitations—Frances Harmon, Polly Bane; programs—Quayton Stottlemyer; advertising and cover design—Lois Fretz.

JCA Meeting Is Scripted For Radio

The newly-formed Juniata Christian Association will broadcast a cabinet meeting on "Juniata on the Air" next Wednesday.

Aiming to present the purposes and plans of the JCA, cabinet members Don Treese, Don Bracken, Mary Lou McKee, Lois Miller and Jack Rothenberger will discuss the functions of the commissions which they head. They will also point out the reasons for forming the JCA. Margie Alleman, publicity director of JCA, is writing the script for the program.

The first of a series of radio workshops was held on campus last Wednesday, Dick Gill, of WHUN, gave information concerning technical angles of radio broadcasting. Betty Longwell, chairman of radio committee, is arranging these workshops.

Radio Poll Monday

The Juniatian, in co-operation with the radio committee, will conduct a student poll in the dining hall Monday designed to determine the types of radio shows which will most interest the student body and best meet the needs of the College.

An Interview

Americans Hurry Too Much, Says Xavier Leon, Honduran

by Carol Cook

To dark-haired, bright-eyed Xavier Leon of Honduras, the American people's way of rushing from hither to yon is quite a contrast to his "hometown" country.

He commented on this difference: "Everybody hurries here. Back home, nobody is in a hurry to go anywhere."

Otherwise, such things as dances and movies point to the fact that "life in Honduras is similar to life here."

Stork Kept Busy

"Back home," more specifically, is Tegucigalpa, Honduras, where Xavier was born 20 years ago, and where his parents, who are Chinese, have lived for 30 years. The stork did a wholesale business for the Leon family, leaving five "muchachos" (including Xavier) and three "muchachas."

After completing two years of high school in Honduras, Xavier crossed north of the border into Pennington, New Jersey, to enter Pennington Preparatory School.

Editor's note: This is the fourth in a series of Juniatian interviews with international students who are part of the campus scene.

Here he and the English language became better acquainted and to avoid confusion he changed the spelling of his name from "Javier" to "Xavier."

Four years later—1948—he and his diploma were south of the border in Honduras. But in 1949 he was back north again, walking up the diagonal and eating mystery cakes in the Juniata College dining hall as sister Alicia had done in 1944-45. Xavier plans to remain here a year, then enter the Cornell University engineering school.

Other Leons' Here

Xavier is not the only representative of his family in the United States, as one of his four brothers is attending Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, while another is at Pennington Prep.

Alicia works at present as a bookkeeper and secretary for their father, owner of a lumber mill and an import concern which supplies goods to local consumers.

$100 Aid Grant Plan Accepted By IRC Friday

A $100 grant-in-aid is to be awarded annually by the IRC to a Juniata student of junior standing for study and travel abroad.

According to the proposal which was accepted at the meeting of IRC last Friday, "the purpose of this award is to promote and to advance on the campus our knowledge of other nations, our sympathy with their problems, and thus to exert a real influence upon the attainment of international understanding and good will."

Cabinet To Nominate

Members of the IRC cabinet will nominate the student to receive the award in the latter part of the Fall term or early in the Spring. The nominee must be approved by a majority vote of club members.

The proposal provides that preference will be given to the applicant for the award who is

1."Of junior standing and an active member of the IRC.

2."Of unusual intellectual quality, mature character and industrious habits.

3."Pursuing a course of study which centers in the general area of the social studies.

Must Know Languages

4."Trained in the modern foreign languages and planning to study international problems, or the language, history, and culture of a particular country.

5."Zealous to share the knowledge and experience of cultural contact with students abroad and with fellow students upon return to the campus."

The club hopes to increase the amount of this award and invites other campus organizations to a joint sponsorship of this grant-in-aid.

It is hoped that "the initiation and promotion of this project may eventually interest a benefactor who will establish an endowment for foreign study, the income from which will be used to pay the entire expense for several Juniata students who desire to combine residence and undergraduate study abroad for one year."

Science Group Plans Summer Meet At JC

The Pennsylvania Academy of Science will hold its Summer meeting at Juniata College.

Dates for this conference will be announced later.

Two members of the College were elected officers of the association. Dr. Homer Will was re-elected editor of the Academy's Science News Letter.

Dr. Raymond Davis was chosen editor of convention proceedings.

Mays Schedules Comps For Mon., May 1 & Tues., May 2

According to an announcement made by Dean of the College, Morley Mays, written comprehensives will be held as scheduled Monday, May 1 and Tuesday, May 2 beginning at 1:30 p. m.

Students will report for comprehensives as follows:

Room A—biology and sociology; Room C—business administration, chemistry, elementary education and history; Chapel—all others.

IRC Study-Travel Award

The presence of international students studying and living here on campus has been an enriching experience for them and for us.

This is so because it has been possible, thus, to live with those of different educational and cultural experiences and to gain an understanding of and knowledge concerning their peoples.

Last week The Juniata Foreign Study-Travel Award was set up by the International Relations Club. This award of no less than $100 will aid annually one junior "of unusual intellectual quality, mature character and industrious habits" to work and study abroad for the summer or the entire school year.

Would Share Contact

This student would return for the senior year with a broader understanding of other peoples and their culture He or she would be obligated to share this cultural contact with the student body.

Specifically, the purpose of the award "is to promote and to advance on the campus our knowledge of other nations, our sympathy with their problems, and thus to exert a real influence upon the attainment of international understanding and good will."

Invite Others To Help

The club invites other clubs and organizations and friends of the College to aid in a joint sponsorship of this grant-in-aid.

It is hoped that through this aid and perhaps through the interest of other benefactors an endowment for foreign study may be set up, the income from which would be used to pay the entire expense of several Juniata students who wish to study and travel abroad.

THIS MORTAL COIL

by Don Brandt

Less than five years have elapsed since the close of World War II. Veterans of that war are now attending college to complete their educations interrupted by that period of service. Many have already completed their education. We suppose that many, if not all of you, are grateful for the aid which the Federal Government provided, but that you also feel you are deserving of that aid. This reporter feels that you should feel justified in that attitude.

Economical Mind

Before you jump to any conclusions about what your government thinks on the subject, mentally review your war time experiences. In many cases, we feel sure that the memory seems slightly repugnant, in fact sufficiently uncomfortable to warrant a sense of nausea. However, there are in Congress, at the present time, men who feel that the invaluable experience and travel you received from 1941 to 1945 is sufficient reward for the contribution you made to your country. Ohio's Senator Taft, a presidential aspirant in the last campaign, issued a statement last week in Congress concerning the things now being done for you by the United States Government.

The Same Mistake?

Never one to recognize the danger of foreign expansion, in the interests of economy, Taft stated, "We are paying out more than 12 billion dollars . . . to individuals whose contributions, if any, have been made in past years. At the moment, they are getting something for nothing." He is referring to you veterans now receiving an education as payment for the gamble you allowed the government to make with your life as the stakes. We feel sure that you are overwhelmed with the senator's sense of gratitude.

We feel that Senator Taft has overlooked one point in his attempt at economy. What would he be engaged in, or in what detention camp would he be residing, had you veterans all refused to make your "unworthy" contributions in the past?

The Patriot

The chamber was crowded with the dignitaries invited to witness the startling development which had been announced the day before. There were big men and little men—tall men and short men. Many had the sparse white hair so indicative of wisdom. They had been chosen well by the schools which they represented. Good men all, who in time of greatest need could be relied upon to underestimate the seriousness of that need.

Suddenly, as if in answer to an impending doom, the chamber became hushed—a tense quiet enough to chill and dampen one to the marrow. Quietly and with proper dignity, a lone figure flowed down the center aisle and up the steps to the rostrum. All eyes in the room focused on this lone figure as though unable to deny him their complete attention.

The center of attraction cleared his throat. The audience, in one body, cleared its aggregate throats. The figure spoke. "All among you realize the gravity of this meeting today. A serious accusation has been made—it's seriousness not to be disregarded since it has been made without the cloak of immunity. It is my duty as your chosen leader to request that this accusation be repeated before you. The chair calls Senator McSmeary."

One hundred ninety-two eyes shifted to the individual summoned by the chair. In the middle of the crowded room an erect figure stood alone, facing the podium. "Senator McSmeary accepts the challenge of the chair; he is prepared to repeat his accusation as demanded by His Honor, Mr. Sharkley. Gentlemen! I regret that I must stand before you today and perform the task put before me, but duty to my country comes before personal devotion. I sacrifice my all in the interests of my country's national security."

The body developed into a mass of mumbled gasps and sighs of devotion and respect for this man, brave enough to sacrifice everything for the group. All became quiet as the figure indicated he was again ready to speak.

"Gentlemen, I find myself almost incapable to make this condemnation". A soul-rending sob shook the frame of the speaker. "You see, gentlemen", the speaker stammered, struggling to get control of his emotions, and then continued, "my wife—my wife cooks with Red Pepper."

Individual scoring statistics on the past basketball season reveal Holmes Ulsh was 54th in the Nation and eighth in the state among small colleges. His average per game was 17.5. Westminster's Titans paced the field offensively, placing second in the Nation with an average of 78.8 points per game.

Juniata fans are in for a surprise when the Susquehanna tennis team invades College Hill early next month. The Crusader's lineup shows the third-man slot is not held by a man at all, but by lovely Barbara Stagg, 19 year old granddaughter of "The Grand Old Man of Football." Sophomore Barbara's superior play in practice sessions has enabled her to break a 92-year old tradition at the Selinsgrove institution. Do we hear a battle for the third-man spot on the Juniata team?

Westminster College has returned baseball to its Spring sports calendar after a lapse of several years. And the Titans lost little time in getting off on the right foot. Behind the sensational two-hit hurling of Jim Snow, the Titans upset highly favored Duquesne by 4-0 in their opening fray last week. Snow faced only 30 batters in pitching his nine inning masterpiece. He struck out nine and issued only one free pass.

Perhaps we should dedicate this week's column to those boys from New Wilmington, Pa. Now it is the Westminster golf team. Report has it that the local swingers will face their toughest competition of the season when the Titans invade Huntingdon tomorrow. Prior to this season, they had won 23 of their last 28 dual-matches. And they have already added at least one scalp to their collection for 1950. Juniata will have to be at their best if they are to retain their unbeaten slate after tomorrow.

The entrance of Daylight Saving Time this week will see the Intramural Softball League at full strength for the first time. The evening section of the League was forced into a temporary idleness two weeks ago after several attempts to play in the abbreviated period between the evening meal and darkness. It is hoped that the extra hour provided by the change in time will solve the problem. Due to the shortened season, the evening section will play only one round robin.

Thinclads Succumb To Dickinson As Season Enters Second Half

Brinton, Beyer, Stauffer, Ulsh & Fleck Win

Dickinson proved to be poor guests Wednesday afternoon as they downed the Juniata track team 76 1/3 to 49 2/3 on the College Field cinders. Though they lost their third straight match, the Braves showed their best form of the season.

Brinton Wins Mile, 880

Don Brinton, Coach Snider's "Old Reliable," once again was the workhorse as he garnered 13 points to support the losing cause. Brinton copped the 880 in 2:12.4, the mile in 4:44, and placed second to Joe Beyer in the two mile.

In the field events it was Ron Fleck and Holmes Ulsh leading the way. Fleck placed first in the javelin, while Ulsh tied for first in the high jump.

Lundstedt led the victors as he won both hurdles and tied for first in the high jump. Huntingdon's Gerry Miller took both the 100 and 220-yard dashes.

Girls' Softball League Delayed By Weather

The weatherman has been playing havoc with the girls' intramural program. Rain, cold weather, and wet grounds have already forced the postponement of several contests.

Last Friday afternoon, however, the fairer sex took advantage of clear skies as the Sophs outslugged Frosh II to gain a 22-6 victory. Home runs by Marj Seidel and Donna Huston led the murderous Soph attack.

Action today finds the Sophs gunning for their second win, this time at the expense of Frosh I. The game will be played at 4:15 on the diamond below the hockey field.

Instructions in the technique of archery will be given Tuesday afternoon at 4:15. All girls are invited to attend this period.

SLUGGER—Leading the team in batting is Squeeze Long with a healthy .353 avarage. He also cracked out a home run against Lycoming last week to win the first half-gallon of Sealtest.

Long Homers As JC Loses To Lycoming

The Indians made a fourth attempt to enter the win column last Saturday and for the fourth time were refused. Lycoming made it two in a row over Juniata as they took a 7-6 decision.

Juniata jumped off to an early lead as they scored once in the first and added two more in the second. But Lycoming struck back in their half of the third as they paraded three big runs across. Two more tallies in the fourth gave them a 5-3 lead, after which they were never headed.

Squeeze Long opened the game with a single to left and after a sacrifice, two walks and a force out scored the game's first run. Squeeze gave the Indians a 3-0 lead in the second when he drove a home run to deep left, scoring Ray Tesi ahead of him.

Lycoming got right back in the ball game in the third as Drescher followed a walk and a single with a circuit clout to left center, good for three runs and a tie score. The visitors went ahead in the fourth when Jones homered down the left field line to score Bellak ahead of him.

Bellak's triple gave Lycoming two more tallies in the sixth. Though the Indians scored three in their half of the sixth, they were unable to overcome the visitor's big lead. Both teams went scoreless in the final three innings.

Lions Sweep Field Events To Jolt J C

Stauffer Nets 13 Points As Indians Drop Second

Juniata ventured to Reading, Pa. last Saturday afternoon where they met Albright College in the second track meet of the season. But the locals were unsuccessful in their attempts to tame the Roaring Lions and went down to defeat, 85-41.

The brilliant running of Fred Stauffer highlighted the Juniata attack. Stauffer collected 13 points on two first places and one second. The sophomore sprinter copped victories in both the 100 and 220-yard dashes, and finished a stride behind Albright's Anlian in the 440.

Brinton Also Stars

Don Brinton also hit double figures in the point column. Brinton, a junior, won the mile run and finished second in both the 880 and the two mile. Joe Beyer copped the Indians' other first place in the track events as he easily won his specialty, the two mile.

Leading the way in the field events was Holmes Ulsh, who copped the high jump with a 5'10" mark. Ulsh also copped a third in the 120-yard high hurdles. Other Juniata placers were Ron Fleck in the javelin, Earl Dietrick and Mel McCorkle in the pole vault, Kirk MacDougall in the hurdles and Dick Fusco in the broad jump.

Harnly Impressive

Al Harnly spearheaded the Lion attack as he took 12 points. The respected javelin tosser took a first in his specialty, a first in the pole vault and a second in the broad jump. Ed Anlian, basketball favorite, placed first in both the 440 and 880 yard runs.

The Braves made a good showing in the track events, but were able to claim only eight points in the field, which led to their downfall.

Korody Medals With 73; Stasenko, Stroup Score

The undefeated record of the Juniata golf team received a decided scare at Pittsburgh last Friday afternoon. The improved Panthers played to a 4½ to 4½ deadlock with the Indians.

Art Allen and Bob Rhodes, playing the second foursome, were both off on their game. Allen shot an 84, while Rhodes carded 81. Freshman Gordon Stroup was forced to accept a tie when his opponent took to some fancy shooting to win the last hole. Stroup was one-up going into No. 18.

Music Instructor To Give First J C Recital Thursday

A piano recital of modern and classical selections will be presented Thursday by Miss Marion Thomas. Set for 8:15 p. m. in Oller Hall, the program will be the music instructor's first appearance before Juniata students.

The Oberlin Conservatory of music, Oberlin, Ohio, conferred on Miss Thomas her bachelor of music degree in 1948. She received her masters the following year from the University of Michigan.

"I have given recitals at both Oberlin and Michigan, as well as my hometown, Ocala, Florida," Miss Thomas says.

Her program Thursday will include Mozart's Sonata in C major; Variations Serieuses, Mendelssohn; an etude, a mazurka and a ballade by Chopin; Movements Perpetuels, Poulenc; Feux d'artfice, Debussy; and Suggestion Diabolique by Prokofieff.

On the completion of the new gym, the old building will be used exclusively for women's recreational activities.

The new gymnasium is the second big project in Juniata's post-war building program, the first being the dining hall addition which was completed last Winter.

Additional plans call for the enlargement of the library and the erection of a men's dormitory.

On Other Campuses

With students at Earlham College paying an extra $15 tuition each semester beginning next fall, profs of this college will have their salaries raised to a "position equal to the school's academic standing." Though the faculty is taking a front seat in financial benefits, a one dollar raise in fees is being used to purchase recreation equipment for the college.

Grad Devises New Penal Treatment

"A new spark of hope for remaking man" is the gift a Juniata College graduate of 1940 has given to society. Mr. Lloyd W. McCorkle of Altoona is the man behind a unique method of treating criminals, known as Guided Group Interaction.

Lauded for the project, which penologists called the most hopeful development in years, McCorkle has been demonstrating the system in several of New Jersey's penal institutions. The story of the career and valuable work done by him appears in the May issue of Readers' Digest entitled "Inside the Prison."

As stated there, Guided Group Interaction is based on man's natural instincts of association with his fellowman. McCorkle's sessions are usually spent in the midst of hardened criminals whom he urges to discuss their problems, gripes and hidden fears with the group. Invariably, these mutual discussions reveal a deeper understanding of the personalities of men as they see each other.

McCorkle attempts to teach two things: first, your problems are not peculiar to yourself; and second, if you want to change, you can. The program concentrates on the young, who are most malleable and offer best chance of reform.

While a student at Juniata, McCorkle did institutional social work at the Pennsylvania State Institution and was later appointed as a student intern there. He majored in sociology under Dr. F. A. McKenzie who recognized him as a superior student. For his contribution to the public welfare, McCorkle has been given a Distinguished Service Award of $2,500.

Guided Group Interaction developed in World War II from an army correctional program. McCorkle's work was invaluable in revising the Japanese prison system after the war under the supervision of General MacArthur. It is believed that the long-range effects of the new system will prove indispensable in rehabilitating men "behind the walls."

Mr. McCorkle's brother, Melvin McCorkle, is now attending Juniata. He is a member of the freshman class.

Membership Drive, Conference, Picnic Among Coming Club Plans

by Dottie Hummer

College Hill is no longer hush-hush and weary suspense, for yesterday the Prince consort appeared at breakfast and revealed his lovely Queen and her Court. And so, while May Day is still creeping around the corner, let's take a peep through the Club key hole.

Tuesday evening, the Mission Study Emphasis under the JCA held a very interesting meeting. Dr. Crosby discussed the needs of Cuba, reviewing the various aspects of Cuban life and the mixed races living in this Pearl of the Antilles. A girls' trio, consisting of Lois Wible, Doris Mickle and Jody Siemon, sang several selections.

Miss Hummer

"First Year" teacher's night was the theme of the FTA meeting Wednesday. Bob Anderson and Mim Dickey were among those leading the discussion. A short business meeting was held and tentative plans for the May FTA banquet were formulated.

ABC Arranges Banquet

Wednesday at 4:30 the Alpha Beta Gamma held a business meeting in Room B. Members discussed the possibilities of having the first Wednesday of each month as a definite meeting day. Lois Fretz was appointed to head the membership drive the first two weeks of the Fall semester. With the help of a committee, the club will try to get new members. It was also decided to hold the annual banquet at Helfricks on May 18. The program will be in charge of Skip Smith and Arlene Dunmire.

IVCF Plans Confab.

The IVCF is planning a Spring Conference for May 20 and 21. Sports, food, meetings and discussions are on the list for that weekend. Anyone wishing to attend this conference may contact Rietta Weightman or Austin Robbins.

Gene Seese will discuss Romans IX at next Thursday's IVFC meeting. A talk on Romans VII and VIII was given by Doris Harvey at last night's meeting.

May 3 is the date scheduled for the Tycoon Club Picnic to be held at the Raystown Dam. The guest speaker will be Mr. H. L. Lyle, a representative from the Studebaker Corporation.

May Day—

Then a preview of the May Day dances was presented while jesters Betty Savine and Eleanor Seese stirred up suspense. The freshmen dancers performed a Scotch Highland Fling, an Irish Lilt and an English Sword Dance.

With the final step of their dance completed this last group formed an arch with their swords at the men's entrance to the dining hall. The jesters opened the door, and with "oh's" and "ah's" issuing from the female-filled hall, Prince Don entered.

He then went to the speaker's table where he picked up a flower and walking to one of the tables he presented it to her majesty, Queen Ilene. Arm in arm they walked to the scene of his first appearance; and after Prince Don disclosed the names of the attendants, the entire May Day party passed under the swords and out of the dining hall.

Juniata College Student Weekly

Vol. 26 | Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa. | May 5, 1950 | No. 28

Juniatian Wins Top ACP Honor Award

The Juniatian received an All-American rating last week from the Associated Collegiate Press critical service with 925 points out of a possible 1,025. This award is for the Fall semester, 1949-50, at which time the editor of The Juniatian was Bob Smith.

The campus weekly was one of seven college newspapers in its class to receive this rating for "superior" achievement from ACP. This is the first time that the publication has received an All - American rating. For five successive semesters The Juniatian has received a First Class or "excellent rating."

Smith

ACP judges rated The Juniatian on news coverage, news writing, copyreading and proofreading, quality of headlines, typography, makeup, printing, sports coverage and treatment and editorials and features.

On a sliding scale which went from poor, weak, fair and good to very good, excellent and superior, The Juniatian was rated from very good to excellent on all counts.

Suggestions for improvement were these:

Under the section entitled "News Values and Sources"—more use of the feature possibilities of interviews and speeches.

In the "News Writing and Editing" section judges underlined these questions to indicate weakness. "Is reporting thorough; i. e., is sufficient information included in copy?," "Is there evidence of accuracy in copyreading and proofreading?" and "Is there a consistent style for abbreviations, etc.?"

Binkley, Hartzel Named Bus. Mgrs.

The faculty publications committee has approved the nominations of Keith Binkley and Gerald Hartzel as business managers of The Juniatian and "The Alfarata" respectively.

Binkley

Binkley, a business major from Huntingdon, served as circulation manager of The Juniatian this year. Last Summer, he assisted the advertising manager of The Juniatian in collecting ads for the paper as well as working on advertising for the May Day program and other publications.

Hartzel

The nominations were made by Binkley for advertising manager and circulation manager of The Juniatian. Jay Benedict will succeed Don Howe as advertising manager while Paul Good, who served as assistant sports editor this past year, will head the circulation department in the position vacated by Keith Binkley. Both nominations were approved by David Armacost, editor-in-chief of The Juniatian.

Gerald Hartzel is stepping into the shoes of Al Crease, as business manager of "The Alfarata." Hartzel was manager and treasurer of the A Cappella Choir during the 1949-50 term.

Five Read In Festival

Five Juniata students represented the College in the second Intercollegiate Reading Festival at Penn State May 3 and 4. These students were elected in tryouts a month ago to read drama, poetry and prose.

"Lilacs," by Amy Lowell, was given by Janet Boland. James Giordano read from Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind." Connie Sherman offered a group of poems by Robert Frost.

A selection from "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" by Rudolph Besier was read by Phyllis Link. Quayton Stottlemyer presented "Andrea del Sarto" by Robert Browning.

Grade System Is Revised

A new system for final grading was adopted by the faculty at a meeting Monday, according to Morley Mays, Dean of the College.

In the Fall term, 1950-51, the letter grades, A, B, C, D and F will replace the numerical grades now being used in final grading.

The new system for final grading will duplicate the letter system used for mid-term grading except that pluses and minuses will not be used in the final mark.

The letter grades are defined as follows:

A—distinguished attainment, three quality points per credit hour; B—attainment above average, two quality points; C—average attainment, one quality point; D—lowest passing grade, no quality points; and F—failure.

The reasons given for the change are these:

1. That letter systems are used almost uniformly over the coun-

May Day To Be Previewed On Air

Previews of May Day events will spark the radio committee's initial program for "Juniata on the Air," Wednesday.

Also making its initial appearance will be the program's new theme song. The number was chosen by Jack Ulsh, Bob Champion, Elly Formwalt and Galen Frysinger from the Langworth Music Library of Transcriptions.

As the third project of the radio workshop, members of the radio committee will make a trip to the radio station May 11 in order to watch the direction of a show, learn the use of the control board and other phases of radio work.

Last Wednesday at the second radio workshop sponsored by the committee, Sam Stroh from station WHUN spoke to the students about radio speech and the proper preparation of a script.

Mr. Stroh also discussed the main problems connected with microphone technique. Following this, he answered student questions concerning these problems.

Wins Scholarship

Sherwood Cordier was awarded a scholarship to Yale graduate school.

While working for his master's degree, Cordier plans to study international relations. After this, he hopes to work with the United Nations or teach in college.

Cordier attended Allegheny and Indiana State Teacher's College before coming here. At present, he is majoring in history.

Queen Altemus 27th In Royal Line

"RESOLVED—That a May Day Queen should not only be a lovely and gracious ruler, accepting with gentle smile and pleasant word the homage of her admiring subjects on the one day of the year they choose to set aside for her; but that she should be talented and useful as well." Here Princess-elect Ilene Altemus demonstrates that her skill with a sewing machine makes such a resolution unnecessary.

May Day Became Traditional, 1924

by Marj Seidel

Queen Ilene Altemus will be 27th in the royal line of beauties to reign over May Day ceremonies on College Hill. This day of gala festivities was celebrated on the Juniata campus as early as 1917, but only since 1924 has it become an annual event.

A look into Juniatians of the past discloses a variety of themes used at these festivals. In 1925 "Ye English Maye Day" was observed the evening of May 20 on north campus. Arrangements for the pageant, which includec Dutch and English folk games and the winding of the May Pole, were made by the YWCA. The identity of the queen was kept secret until the day of her coronation.

Visitors to College Hill for the 1930 May Day were surrounded by an atmosphere of colonial days. A student governor of Pennsylvania acted as master of ceremonies while Germans, Quakers and Indians danced before the crowd.

The queen was revealed only by her appearance in the processional and was then crowned by the governor. After the coronation the class attendants presented gifts to her Majesty—freshmen, a flower-decked footstool; sophomores, an orb: and juniors, a sceptor.

Senate Asks For Waitress Benefits

At an open meeting Monday the Senate found that what the waitresses wanted was not a raise in salary but an improvement in working conditions.

Accordingly, the Senate recommended that waitresses receive $1.25 for outside banquets, that they know about banquets at least two weeks ahead and that an effort be made to ease the waitress' job at formal dinners followed by formal dances.

Also the Senate recommended that waitresses be given one meal per week off in addition to breakfast and that a sub-waitress group be established to accomplish this and that an additional silver machine be purchased to facilitate the washing of eating utensils.

An Interview

American Winters Not Cold Enough For Ronnie Gravlie

by Elly Formwalt

Glistening blonde hair, twinkling blue eyes and a quick friendly smile—all this plus a quaint accent presents a perfect description of Ronnie Gravlie of Nesi Aadal, Norway.

Twenty years ago (as of March 15), Ronnie never dreamed that she would someday be crowned "Queen of the Deep" or be elected as one of the May Day attendants at a small, faraway American college. As she grew older, she was too busy playing tennis, riding horseback and skiing.

Skiing Is First Love

"I love to ski!" beams Ronnie. "I've skiied ever since I was three years old and am trying to master the slalom—that is, when we have snow." A smile flickers around her mouth as she sighs, "that's what I miss most here in America, because at home we lived on skis!"

Of course, Ronnie had to learn the three R's sometime, so she went to a girls' boarding school in Norway. When asked about this, she exclaims, "Oh, that was very different from Juniata. We had to be in bed by 8:30 or 9:30, and the whole place was very strict. Juniata is much friendlier and seems just like a family."

Attended Danish School

She also attended a school in Denmark and about this remarks,

Editor's Note This is number five in The Juniatian's series of interviews with international students now on campus.

"It was nice in the summer, but rainy and windy in the winter."

Ronnie came to Juniata to learn English so that she can someday work in the air lines office "back home."

"Since I have a married stepsister living in Huntingdon, and Juniata College is in Huntingdon, I just decided to come here," the blonde Norwegian says. "If I would go to college back home, I'd have to specialize right away. Besides, there aren't enough good universities."

Must Master Slanguage

Not only does Ronnie have to learn English, but she also has to master slang, the American sublanguge. "When I first went to Skip's, I'd always say warm chocolate instead of hot chocolate," laughes Ronnie. "It's hard, but I'm learning. Oh, I've also learned how to knit argyles (the co-ed's fad!)"

Comparing Norwegians with Americans, Ronnie remarks, "The people are the same there as here, but their ways are a little different. No one rushes like mad as they do in America, and it isn't quite so noisy there. But I love America!"

Music Students Plan Recital Sun.

Another in a series of recitals given by the music dept. of Juniata College will be presented Sunday at 2 p. m. in Oller Hall. Presented under the joint direction of Jack Brammer and Mary Ruth Linton, the program will be as follows:

Concerto in D minor, Vivaldi, Janice Carper; the Allegro from Beethoven's Sonata in C major, Beverly McIlroy; concerto in D for two violins, Bach, Janice Carper and Lois Winnett.

The Allegro Vivace from the Concerto in C major, Mozart, Doris Orner; Concerto in A minor, Accolay, Lois Winnett; Contemplation, Dallier with Earl Grover at the organ, Dorothy Ann Humphreys playing the piano part and Prof. Jack Brammer carrying the violin part.

Mendelssohn's Trio in D minor, to be performed by Mrs. Mary Ruth Linton, piano, Jean Bailey, Cello and Jack Brammer, violin will conclude the recital.

School Bells To Ring For Party Tomorrow

The College gym will be transformed into a one-room school house tomorrow night when the FTA entertains students and faculty.

Lloyd Newlin, acting schoolmaster, will lead the fun and entertainment, according to Doris Mickle, party chairman.

Slides of activities and campus life on College Hill will be shown by Harold Brumbaugh. Music by a quartet and trio will also highlight the evening, says Jane Baker, program chairman.

Square dancing will be demonstrated for anyone wishing to participate. Following this will be round dancing and refreshments.

THIS MORTAL COIL

by Don Brandt

ECA administrator Hoffman delivered a most interesting address this week to the National Chamber of Commerce, in which he stated that the death of Joseph Stalin was bound to bring world peace. He further stated his reasons. With the death of every dictator, Hoffman stated, a period of turbulence follows as the new ruler tries to pick up where the dead ended. He believes that Russia would become split as a consequence of the loss of their leader, and that the satellite countries would secede just as Yugoslavia has already done.

An Old Dream

This of course strikes a familiar note in our ears, since Stalin's death has been speculated upon by the world since the end of World War II. Pravda will probably denounce the world this week as a group of capitalistic assassins whose only weapons are wishes. Would Stalin's death actually precipitate the trend toward lasting peace? We can see the truth in Hoffman's argument from the historical standpoint, but is that a valid point from which to argue? The countries who have lost dictators in the past were not in the positions now held by Russia.

Only One Danger

Russia enjoys a position in the world today which has not been possible since before the advent of modern communication. It is so well shut off from the rest of the world that we are not aware of the many developments within its borders. It would take a revolution of large proportions to create sufficient noise to penetrate the Iron Curtain. We must, therefore, be waiting constantly for a development such as Mr. Hoffman describes. One question plagues this reporter as he thinks about the whole situation. Suppose Stalin is already dead.

"Well, we lived in a trailer house so long we got used to having everything handy."

What Is A Man Worth ?

Three brothers left the farm to work in the city, and all got jobs in the same company, starting out at the same pay. Five years later one was receiving $200 a month; a second, $300; and the third, $500.

Their father, hearing of these salaries, decided to visit his sons' employer and find out why they were paid on what seemed to be such an unfair basis.

"I will let them explain for themselves," said the boss, as he pressed a button under his desk. Jim, the lowest paid man of the three, answered.

"I understand the 'Oceanic' has just docked," said the employer. "Please go down there and get an inventory of her cargo."

Three minutes later Jim was in the office. "She carries a cargo of 2000 seal skins," he reported. "I got the information from the first mate over the telephone."

"Thank you, Jim," said the boss. "That will be all."

He pressed the button again and Frank, the $300 man, reported.

"Frank, I wish you would go down to the dock and get an inventory of the 'Oceanic's' cargo."

An hour later Frank was back with the list showing that the 'Oceanic' not only carried 2000 seal skins, but that she also had 500 beaver and 1100 mink pelts.

The employer pressed the button a third time and George, the $500 man, walked into the office. He was given the same instructions his brothers had received.

George did not return for three hours, and the office had closed for the day. But his father and the boss were waiting for him.

"The 'Oceanic' carries 2000 seal skins," he began. "They were offered at five dollars each, and I took a tentative option on them, subject to your approval. I got a bid of seven dollars for them from a prospect in St. Louis and have promised to wire him our reply in the morning. I also found 500 beaver which we normally don't handle, but since I had an inquiry for some, I bought and sold them at a profit of $700. There are 1100 mink pelts of excellent quality, but as you always handle the mink, I took no action on them."

"That's fine, George," said the boss. Then, turning to the father, "See what I mean?"

On Other Campuses

So you want to be a Cinderella! Penn State males have come across with some rather definite ideas as to what they want in a dream girl. With thumbs down on the new, short hair styles, most of the men seemed to go for brunettes with curly hair, average build and plenty of personality. Those with the high ratings don't spend too much of his money, either.

The play's the thing on many campuses now. Students at Allegheny are producing "Down in the Valley," while Earlham College's dramatic society has scheduled "Sea, Here!" The Valparaiso play directing class, should at least get an E for effort with the presentation of three one-act plays in one evening—"Drums of Oude," "Brothers in Arms" and "The Eldest."

TOMMY

Greetings Kids! Are you still recovering from the big week-end? Trying to keep up with the changing date-life on campus has really kept Tommy busy. Before the week-end, he noticed Nancy Stephens and Jack Dickey enjoying the beautiful walk down to Geiger House; Dott Taylor and Dale Zimmerman are being seen more frequently on the Geiger House porch, too.

Tommy was glad to see so many of you at the dance. Despite the absence of so many seniors, for obvious reasons, the underclassmen did rather well; among them were Steve Finckle and Carol Cook; Erla Mae Weist and Don Howe; Janet Boland and Coy Hicks; and Jo Chiodi and Glenn Felix. A fair number of you fellows and gals apparently were sporting "imports", if you'll pardon the expression. No wonder so many of you have been heard humming "Home Sweet Home."

Tommy had been wondering why Fred Bratton sported that gleam in his eye, but then he noticed Nancy Shiffler. Sure and 'tis a good reason for those starry eyes, Fred!

Have you ever noticed Jill Woodring's partiality for the color red? Well it seems rather obvious lately, don't you think? Congrats, Bill Korman!

Tommy is glad to see that Betty Longwell and Charles "Sphinx" Barklow are again exchanging tender expressions after a brief period of interpolated, non-communicative activity.

Question of the week—What do Tom Mix and Bill Cheslock have in common? Clue: It's not a tiger's eye ring.

Tommy has only one award winner this week. He awards a dozen orchids to every senior. You certainly deserve it after those first hectic days in May. It's quite an incentive to know that one is still able to exist even after taking "comps."

Your snooping reporter closes this week hoping you will take note of one of the newest couples on campus; Buzz Townsend and Betty McKee.

Oh, I almost forgot my little prophecy for this week.

The Dodgers are in first place,
Chicago is second.
The Phillies will never make it,
At least, so I reckon.

My apologies—or should I say regrets—to the feature editor and other staff members of this publication.

Love and goldenrod,
Thomas Sneeze Hawk

Golfers Win, Baseball Team Snaps Losing Streak

Titans Victim As Unbeaten Indians Gain 4th Victory

The Juniata College golf team added the highly rated Westminster Titans to its list of victims last Saturday by defeating them 7-2 at the Huntingdon Country Club.

Things looked dark for the swingers of Coach Kiracofe at the end of the first nine holes of play as Westminster held the advantage. However, as the second nine progressed Juniata made up the deficit and came on to win.

Korody Wins Low Medal

Ray Korody, playing in the number one slot, trailed Westminster's Fred Broad going out, Broad touring the first nine in 35. But Korody got hot on the back nine, firing a 34 to beat Broad and take his match 3 and 2. Korody had a medal score of 71 to his opponent's 75. Westminster's only victory came in the number two position when Jack Whitmer won a close one over Gordon Stroup, 2 up. Whitmer shot 74 and Stroup 76.

Art Allen, number three man, had trouble with his putter and had to overcome a three-hole lead held a Westminster's Bill Burke to gain a split decision. Bob Rhodes posted medal scores of 73 and 74 respectively.

Stasenko, Bayer Win

The final foursome saw Frank Stasenko and Dave Bayer take victories over the Titan's Bob Thomas and Chuck Kesslar.

The summaries:

Ray Korody defeated Fred Broad, 3 and 2; Jack Whitmer defeated Gordon Stroup, 2 up. Best ball halved, ½ and ½.

Art Allen tied Bill Burke; Bob Rhodes defeated Dick Whittaker, 5 and 4. Best ball won by Juniata, 4 and 3.

Frank Stasenko defeated Bob Thomas, 2 up; Dave Bayer defeated Chuck Kesslar, 2 and 1. Best ball won by Juniata, 3 and 2.

JC Finishes Third As Bucknell, Gettysburg Tie In Tri-Meet

Beyer Scores Two Firsts; Brinton Places In Three

Gettysburg and Bucknell battled to a first place tie in the triangular meet held on College Field on Wednesday. Each scored a total of 63 1/3 points, while Juniata placed third with 27 1/3 points.

Once again it was a lack of strength in the field events and all around depth which hampered the Indians. Proof of this is the fact that the locals tallied 25 of their total points in the track events.

Joe Beyer paved the way for the Braves by winning both the mile and the two mile to repeat his performance of a year ago against the same schools. Beyer ran the mile just one second slower than last year when he set the College record at 4:38.6.

Don Brinton registered in each of the three distance running events. Brinton scored two seconds for eight points. Third places in both the 220 and the 440 netted Fred Stauffer four points.

The remainder of Juniata's points came on Joe Hackman's and Kirk MacDougall's third and fourth respectively in the 120-yard high hurdles, Bob Morrisey's fourth in the shot put, Earl Dietrick's fourth in the pole vault and Holmes Ulsh's tie for fourth in the high jump.

Utech topped Gettysburg's point producers as he took firsts in both the javelin and the high jump. Bucknell's big guns were Strumbaugh, with a first in the pole vault and a second in the high jump, and Schaumberg with seconds in both the javelin and the broad jump and a tie for fourth in the high jump.

E-town Noses Out Braves In Opener, 5-4

The Juniata College tennis team dropped their opening match to a strong Elizabethtown College squad 5-4, on Saturday afternoon. The match was played under adverse weather conditions, but the Indians managed to keep things hot for their guests as they lost the close decision.

After splitting even in the six singles matches, the Betsytowners went on to win the first two doubles and cop the match. Captain Steve Finckel, Bob Frain, John Potteiger and John Simes paced the Indians attack.

Finckel, playing the number three singles, won a grueling three set match from E-Town's Schoster and then teamed with Potteiger in a doubles match which was lost in the third set. Potteiger had little trouble in winning his singles match.

Frain was the only two-time winner for Juniata as he copped the fourth singles match and then teamed with Simes to win the number three doubles in two long sets.

Singles Matches

Meminger defeated Wood, 6-0, 6-0. Roberts defeated Hollinger, 6-1, 6-1. Finckel defeated Schoster, 5-7, 8-6, 6-4. Frain defeated Grissinger, 1-6, 6-2, 6-4. Potteiger defeated Schneider, 6-1, 6-4. Sheetz defeated Sprague, 6-1, 6-2.

Smaltzmen Defeat Geneva And E-town After Dropping Four

Howett, Tesi Homers Defeat Geneva 12-3

After being held to a total of 20 hits in four previous contests, the Indian batsmen finally came into their own last Friday against Geneva. Paced by home runs off the bats of Don Howett and Ray Tesi, the Braves made 12 hits as they slugged out a 12-3 victory.

Geneva jumped off to a 2-0 lead in their half of the fourth and another Juniata defeat appeared to be in the making. But the Smaltzmen paraded across with ten markers of their own in the lower half of their inning to practically ice the game.

Long Starts Rally

Squeeze Long's single started the Juniata rally in the fourth. George Kensinger added another safety and Dick Young drove in Long with the first tally on a squeeze bunt. Young went out at first, but Frye followed and was safe on an error, Kensinger scoring.

Howett sealed the Covies' doom when he blasted his four-ply wallop to left center, scoring Frye ahead of him. Mike Dzvonar and Tesi hit successive singles and after Doug Fortune was retired, Dave LeFevre insured his victory with a three-bagger to left, scoring two more runs.

LeFevre Wins First Start

Long's second hit of the inning, followed by an error, a wild pitch and Frye's double, enabled the Indians to raise their total to ten big runs and the ball game. Geneva scored another run in the eighth, but LeFevre was in command all the way to notch his first win of the campaign.

Kensinger led the well-balanced hitting attack with three for four. Long, LeFevre and Tesi got two safeties each, one of the latter's being a home run in the seventh inning.

Dzvonar Shakes Slump In E-town Victory

The Indians definitely broke their losing skein on Saturday when they made it two in a row by defeating Elizabethtown, 7-4. Juniata also garnered 12 hits for the second time in as many days.

Both teams scored in the first inning as the contest opened in see-saw fashion. E-town's tally came when the Juniata defense added a series of errors to Martin's opening single. The Indians retaliated in their half when Squeeze Long walked and went to third on George Kensinger's bunt single. Dick Young loaded the sacks with another infield hit and Don Howett's ground out produced the marker.

Indians Take Lead

E-Town went ahead again in the second as pitcher Walters tripled to score Meyer, who had gained the basepaths via an error. It was tied again in the third when the Indians produced a run from two walks, Mike Dzvonar's infield hit and an error. Another E-Town miscue in the next inning enabled the Braves to take the lead.

The final two frames saw the locals solve the offerings of Walters to manufacture two runs in each stanza. After Harry Frye reached first on a free ticket to open the seventh, Mike Dzvonar tripled to left center.

The blow scored Frye easily, but the Meteor was out when he fell attempting to stretch his hit into a round-tripper. Ray Tesi walked and Joe Hulgus and Ken Wenger singled to score another before the inning ended.

Young, Frye Hit Doubles

Juniata completed its scoring in the eighth as Kensinger's walk plus successive doubles by Frye and Young made it 7-2. The Betsytowners rallied to score two in the ninth, but Jack Dickey, who had relieved Wenger, settled down to retire the side without further damage.

Dzvonar enjoyed his best day of the season as he collected three hits in five trips, including a triple. Young and Frye had a double and single each.

Badminton and table tennis are now in their final stages and will be completed soon. A tennis tournament is being planned for all those interested in this sport.

1936 Adds Prince Consort

The first in the royal line of Prince Charmings, of which 1950's Consort, Don Kagarise, is the latest, made his appearance that year as "Youth." Becoming dissatisfied with his lonely life, the 1936 Prince decided to choose a partner from the four seasons. Each season was represented by three class attendants; and from these he selected Spring to be his queen.

During the war, Juniata May Days suffered from a Prince Charming shortage. Therefore, in 1944, Mrs. C. N. Ellis, a former May Queen, performed the crowning of the new queen. That day all former May Queens were invited to the pageant which was dedicated to Juniatians serving in the armed forces.

Sherwood Forest Named In 1945

The following year, 1945, marks a significant highlight for College Hill May Days. That year "An Adventure in Sherwood" was presented "in the grove adjoining the Women's Athletic Field." After the crowning of the queen this "grove" was formally christened Sherwood Forest by the General Chairman of May Day.

In next week's issue of The Juniatian details of the 1950 festivities on May 13th will be added to this history of Juniata May Days.

Club Fun Open To All: Broad Smile, Willingness Are Sole Requirements

by Dottie Hummer

Dear Brainy,

There is never a lonely student at Juniata. Whether you major in education, home ec, history or religion, a smile and the expressed willingness to participate are the only passwords needed for clubroom entrance.

One of our clubs is planning a wonderful weekend for any interested persons. On May 20 and 21, the IVCF is sponsoring a Spring Conference at Camp Hate-to-Leave-it. Over 100 students from the Middle Pennsylvania Schools are planning to attend this camp in the woods, better described as 20 miles above Penn State. The cost will be about $3.50, according to Rietta Weightman and Austin Robbins.

Miss Hummer

Next week members of the Penn State Club will discuss Romans X at the regular IVCF meeting. Fred Stauffer outlined Romans IX at last evening's meeting.

Masquers Dine Thurs.

The annual Masquer Dinner will be held Thursday evening to initiate nine new 100-point holders. Immediately following this meal, many of the group are going to Penn State to see the Shakespearean play "Romeo and Juliet."

The Masque held a short business meeting Thusrday evening to discuss transportation facilities for this Penn State escapade.

China will be the topic discussed by Mrs. Amos Myers at the bimonthly meeting of the Mission Study Emphasis on Tuesday. There will also be special music on the program.

FTA Goes Back To School

The FTA has invited everyone to attend the mock one-room school house tomorrow evening in the gym. According to Janie Baker, chairman of the program committee, this recollection of childhood school days will include a dunce, Lloyd Newlin as principal, and a spelling bee composed of student volunteers from the audience.

During the "assembly program at the school", Harold Brumbaugh's campus slides will be shown. A rendition of special music followed by square and round dancing will conclude this evening of entertainment.

An outdoor picnic was enjoyed by the Lambda Gamma on Wednesday evening. Following this, Dr. and Mrs. Donald Rockwell took the group through their new home, pointing out its unique features and explaining how they had planned and built it. On May 5 and 6 several of the girls will represent their club at the PHEA to be held in the Adelphia Hotel, Philadelphia. Included in this group are Caryl Custer, Ruthie Armentrout, Lois Robinson, Esther Weaver, Ruth Kimble, Elinor Newcomer and Trudy Griffin.

Speaker at IRC Tonight

Tonight the IRC will hold their meeting at 7 p. m. in the I. Harvey Brumbaugh House. The program will feature Xavier Leon and his discussion on Central America.

I just saw some weary seniors discussing their comprehensives. And so, I'm off to join the ranks.

Jobs For Men, Women Open At Cabin Site

Students who have a bit of spare time are needed to work on the cabin which is being constructed along the Raystown branch of the Juniata River.

Women, as well as men students can be used for there is much light work such as painting that can be given them to do.

Those who wish to go should contact Don Robinson or Dave Kennedy so that transportation may be arranged.

try.

2. That the discrepancy of grading point by point above 85 and by five point intervals below 85 would thereby be eliminated.

3. That letters are now used at mid-term and should therefore also be used in final grading if the system is to be consistent.

4. That the "numerical grading system seems to imply that in adjudging a student's attainment it is possible to determine with mathematical exactitude the precise quantitative number which properly indicates his achievement."

Dr. Mays pointed out that the new grading system does not change any requirement for graduation.

Pay Debts, JCA Asks

Don Bracken, treasurer of the Juniata Christian Association, announces that any clubs or individuals owing money to the JCA or religious activities committee must pay him before May 15.

Queen To Reign Over Traditional Fete Sat.

by Marj Seidel

Just as the clans of the British Isles traditionally gathered together to wind the May Pole, so will the Juniata clans gather in Sherwood Forest tomorrow at 2 p. m.

As the orchestra, under the direction of Jack Brammer, plays the processional march, members of the 1950 May Day court will approach the royal throne.

First will come the heralds, Mary Taylor and Sarah Keller, followed by jesters, Dott Taylor and Nancy Stephens. Then a colorful group of dancers from Scotland, England and Ireland (alias Miss McCormick's three gym sections) will enter the scene.

Class attendants will appear in gowns varying from the palest blue for freshmen to a deep shade of blue for the seniors. Separating the different class attendants will be a sceptre bearer, Annadelle Thomas, and a crown bearer, Martha Sue Glick. Following the senior attendants will be the queen's maid of honor, Margy Clemmer, wearing a rose colored gown.

ROYAL BEAUTIES—Queen Ilene Altemus, who will be crowned Queen of May tomorrow, and her attendants Margy Clemmer, Elma Stine and Kathy Foster show that royalty and beauty go hand in hand for May Day festivities on College Hill. The program will include the winding of the May Pole and country dancing on the pattern of traditional celebrations in the British Isles.

Fire Damages Properties Of Two JC Profs.

Fires started by a railroad train Sunday afternoon did considerable damage to the woodland on the farm properties of Dr. Donald Rockwell and Prof. S. Earl Dubbel on Warrior Ridge.

Over 200 men were engaged in plowing furrows and constructing fire roads under the direction of District Forester Harry Miller of Petersburg. Through the efforts of these men, of which 65 were Juniata students, no buildings burned.

However, the blaze burned over 1,000 acres, 100 acres on the 160-acre Rockwell farm and a considerable amount on "Rocky Ledges" country residence of Prof. Dubbel. It was the worst fire in this area in 10 years.

Fanned by high winds, the flames threatened many homes in the area. Fortunately, neither the Rockwell farm buildings nor the Dubbel home were in serious danger. However, the fire spread to within several hundred yards of the buildings.

The Dubbels had a scare at their property about 4:30 p. m. They had returned from Harrisburg about an hour earlier only to find "menacing looking smoke" pouring from the rear of their 180-acre property. Prof. Dubbel comments that "it was a most terrifying thing. The smoke was pouring, you could hear the crackling. The fire seemed a mile away and within ten minutes it was there."

Among those of the administration and faculty who fought the fire along with the students and townspeople were Prof. Jack Brammer, Prof. S. Earl Dubbel, Mr. A. William Engel, Dr. Edgar Kiracofe, Dr. Donald Rockwell, Bill German, Bill Smaltz and Mike Snider.

Outing Club Plan Picnic On May 19

Celebrating the completion of the Raystown Cabin, Outing Club members and guests will lay down their hammers and take a lead from the pages of Emily Post. A picnic on May 19 will climax the weeks of activity when faculty and guests will be introduced to the new building and land.

The group will leave from the Campus at 4:30 p. m. Volley ball, horseshoes and badminton are included in the program for the evening, climaxed by a campfire and group singing.

Anne Mullin is in charge of refreshments, Bob Asan is chairman of clean-up and Jack Baldrige will plan the recreation. Club advisors are Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Crosby.

Faculty Talent To Spark Radio Variety Show

A faculty variety show will be directed by Dr. George Clemmens on "Juniata On the Air" next Wednesday. Instrumentalists, vocalists and readings will be featured according to tentative plans released by the radio committee's faculty advisor.

The following Wednesday, the library staff will be Juniata's voice on the air. The script was written by Miss Norrie Edwards who will also direct it. Various improvements in the library will be reviewed.

Voice Recital Set For Wed.

The Campbell-Wentzler recital, which had been postponed because of illness, will be held in Swigart Hall May 17 at 8:15 p. m. Soloists Audrey Campbell, soprano, and Helen Wentzler, contralto, are both members of the class of '51 and are majoring in music.

Outstanding numbers on the program are as follows:

Miss Campbell—Hear Ye, Israel, "Elijah," Mendelssohn; Voi Che Sapete, "Marriage of Figaro," Mozart; and Caro Nome, "Rigoletto," Verdi.

Miss Wentzler—Patiently Have I Waited for the Lord, "Christmas Oratorio," Saint Saens: Mon Coeur S'ouvre A Ta Voix, "Samson and Delilah," Saint Saens; and Ombra Mai Fu, "Xerxes," Handel.

An Interview

War Bride Student Describes 'Germany--Past and Present'

by Jim Streiner

"Buchenwald, Dachau—I had never heard of those until the war was over," the small strong voice of German war bride Mrs. Ruth Price says as she reminisces about her native land. Listed as a special student, she is taking American history while her husband attempts to master the integration courses.

Expanding her statement she says, "You had to be very careful. No one said anything or knew anything. It wasn't safe."

In illustration she points to the German government conrtol of radio. Although it was illegal to tune in BBC, "we did it all the time, since it was impossible to enforce the law. But we couldn't trust our own friends to keep the secret, so we always listened alone."

Mother Had Trouble

This raised the additional problem of trying to keep the propaganda and the facts separated. "Mother always got what she heard on the British radio mixed up with the German news. Once she blurted something out before a visitor, and did we hold our breath then! But he had listened (to BBC) too, so it was all right."

Most intelligent Germans were able to distinguish between propoganda and truth, Mrs. Price believes, adding "Father usually turned it off."

Before being converted to wartime uses, the German radio and motion picture industries were highly efficient, according to the former home economics and physical education teacher.

Editor's note: The sixth in a series, this is another Juniatian interview with international students now on campus.

"All stations have regular orchestras for dance and serious music. There is not so much . . . how do you say . . . transcription. This is possible because there are fewer stations and all are large."

These orchestras are utilized in the production of full length operas with shows sometimes running to four or five hours. Intermissions are filled by interviews with actors and the like. These programs are co-ordinated throughout the entire network, so that at any time the listener can choose his fare: Wagner, dance tunes, comedy, etc.

No Commercials

"There are no soap operas or commercials on German radio," Mrs. Price says, "and very little advertising in the newspapers or magazines. Newspaper ads are kept to separate pages of their own. Comics appear only on Sunday, but there are always special sections devoted to movies, literature, radio, opera, news and sports."

Sports interest is as high in Germany as in the U. S., asserts Mrs. Price. Handball is the favorite game, although baseball and basketball have gained favor since the arrival of American troops.

A different version of football in which the hands never touch the pigskin is also popular, she adds. However, instead of trying for the rosebowl, German teams aim for the European Championship.

Honor Society Sets Date For Dinner

The annual Honor Society dinner will be held May 16 at Helfrick's-Inn-the-Pines.

The 19 members of the Honor Society and the following faculty members are invited to attend the dinner: President Calvert N. Ellis, Dean Morley Mays, Miss Gertrude Butler, Dr. Dorothy Fulmer, Dr. Harold Binkley, Dr. Norman Brumbaugh, Dr. George Clemens and Mr. Paul Yoder.

Dr. Clemens will present a paper on the attractions of scholarship.

The members of the Honor Society are Richard Coffman, Mary Crouthamel, Thurman Grossnickle, Robert Lefever, Kitty Padgett, Margaret Roop, Ned Walter.

Women's League Gives J C $800

The Huntingdon Women's League presented the College with $800 last Tuesday, at the close of their banquet.

Three quarters of this money was contributed to pay for the public address system in the dining hall. The other $200 was used to purchase equipment for Miss Frances Mathias' new office, according to Miss Rebecca Barrick, past president of the organization.

Miss Barrick stated that there are 260 members of the league. Yearly dues provided a portion of the money which is contributed to the College.

In previous years, contributions from the Women's League have provided the drapes in the Faculty Club, a rug in I. Harvey Brumbaugh house and kitchen equipment for the Faculty Club. In addition, the College treasury holds $400 from the organization which will be used for landscaping after the building program gets under way.

2 Chem Students Receive Graduate Assistantships

Seven of 11 chemistry seniors have been accepted for admission to graduate school. Two students have assistantships at Harvard University and Yale University: Thurman Grossnickle will study at Harvard and Ned Walter at Yale.

Herman Groninger will attend Pennsylvania State College for graduate work in biochemistry. The Massachusetts Institute of Technology has accepted Robert Lefever for advanced study and the University of Minnesota has accepted Donald Kauffman. Gene Calderwood will go to Rutgers and George Wolf will study at the University of Pennsylvania.

THIS MORTAL COIL

by Don Brandt

This week, the United States armed forces staged a mock war in the area around Camp Mackall, North Carolina. The United States government also received a slight shock in the resulting summary of the whole undertaking.

Operation Swarmer, as the mock conflict was called, involved practically all the troops and equipment which the U. S. could mobilize in the first hours of a real war. The figures were not at all encouraging. The force consisted of the 75 per cent strong 82nd Airborne Division, the 11th Airborne Division, bulging with a total of two regiments and an opposing team of infantrymen belonging to a tank battalion which was pitifully unprepared. This grand total, the amount which we could mobilize tomorrow if war broke out, comes to 32,000 troops.

More Time

There are also, in the United States, 27 National Guard divisions which could be prepared probably within one year after a declaration of war. Time is an important factor in a bonafide war, and it was something which was used extravagantly by the planners for Swarmer. The mock attack took a total of four months in the making, and at the end of that time there were no headquarters from which to direct it. It took us at least a year to mobilize completely after Pearl Harbor, and any future war will make the tempo of the Second World War look like a snail's pace.

A Pound A Cure?

What can be done about the situation? The old proverb concerning the ounce of prevention was never more applicable. We realize the threat constituted by the power of U. S. S. R. and we can not have forgotten in only nine years the cost of isolationism. This reporter will never be one to advocate aggression on the part of the U. .S., but he remembers when artillerymen drilled with empty beer cans for "dry firing" and infantrymen ran bayonet drills with wooden rifles. There are no jet airplanes which we can produce by folding pieces of paper and there are no wooden A-bombs.

Peanuts

To top it all off, the United States is spending 12½ million dollars for guided missile research, while it spends a few dollars less than 34½ million to support the price of peanuts! Peanuts will not stave off an atom bomb attack, and the oil will heal no wounds. There will be no safety except in preparedness.

Thanks Firefighters

May I express through The Juniatian the warm thanks of Mrs. Dubbel and myself to all the Juniata men who fought the fire in the ridge last Sunday.

We are grateful to everyone who helped, and are not unmindful of those who saw to it that the fellows were served a good supper.

Sincerely yours,
S. Earl Dubbel

Letters To The Editor

Questions Advisibility Of New Grade System

To the Editor:

According to an article published last week in The Juniatian the faculty voted to adopt a new grading system. I would like to contest the advisability of this change on the basis of the reasons given in last week's Juniatian.

First of all, the fact that letter systems are used all over the country doesn't necessarily mean that we should change. In many matters, Juniata has been quite content to remain different from other schools. If need be, a numerical grade can easily be transposed into a letter grade for purposes of transfer.

No Particular Disadvantage

In the second place, there is no particular disadvantage in grading below 85 by five point intervals and point by point above 85. When this system was adopted in compliance with a resolution made at Leadership Conference, faculty and students felt that there were certain advantages in it.

If there is an inconsistency between the mid-term grades and final marks which is considered undesirable, a numerical grading system could be employed at both mid-terms and finals to erase this discrepancy.

The purpose of numerical grading is to determine a student's achievement by presenting some tangible comparison between him and his fellow students. Since this comparison is made closely all term, this measurement might just as well be shown on the term's grades.

It hardly appears fair to give a student whose work has averaged out to an 89 the same grade as a student whose grade would be an 80. That's almost the difference between an A and a C but if it's not going to show on the grade, many students will probably lose that extra incentive. True, the extra work will be an advantage to the individual but most of us like it to show on the report.

Impossible To Earn Honors

Finally, it will be almost impossible to earn academic honors if this new system goes into effect. Very few students will get their name on the dean's list if it takes all A's to do it, yet certain outstanding students are definitely worthy of distinction.

In light of the fact that some faculty members did not feel that this new system was advisable, I would recommend that the proposal be reconsidered before any final action is taken.

Respectfully,
Margie Alleman

Editorial Reply:

Before replying to this letter it might be well to more fully explain the new marking system. The new system, which consists of five marks—A, B, C, D, and F, is purely a letter system with "descriptive phrasing" appended to each letter. Thus A indicates distinguished attainment, B.—attainment above average, C—average attainment, D—lowest passing grade and F—failure. There are no numerical equivalents for these grades and thus they cannot be converted into numbers.

Under this system scholarship honors can be determined mathematically by dividing quality points by credit hours and arriving at a quality point average. Thus honor at graduation or Dean's List could be attained only if the student maintained a "stated quality point average" to be determined by the College.

Leaves Student Little Protection

Incidentally, this marking by definition would seem to leave the student with little protection against unfair or biased marking in that the teacher would be the sole judge of whose work merited the description "distinguished attainment" or "average attainment."

Now to the letter. We agree that just because 34 out of 40 colleges studied used letter grades that is no argument for Juniata changing her system. However, this fact may indicate an educational trend which should be considered.

As far as the policy of grading point by point above 85 and by five point intervals below 85 is concerned, we feel that this is unfair and unreasonable.

Average Student Needs Points!

Certainly, the student who is doing average or below average work needs those extra points as much or more than the student who is doing above average work.

Obviously, this discriminatory practice will be eliminated under the new system. However, it could be eliminated by marking point by point below 85 under the present numerical system.

Granted, a consistent marking system should be used at mid-terms and finals. And, as you point out, this could be accomplished by employing a numerical system at both marking periods.

Grades Cannot Be Precise

Furthermore, we agree with the faculty committee that it is foolish to assume that a student's achievement can be determined precisely. However, this change from a 21-grade system to a five grade system would seem to be going to extremes.

Finally, under the present system a student receiving a 75 and an 85 in final grades in two different courses would have an 80 or a B average, whereas under the letter system he would probably have to have a C and an A in order to attain a B average.

TOMMY

Your weekly "gossip-monger" has been kept rather busy with last minute studying and spreading the pages of unused textbooks; but he has had a little time to take note of a few of you sad sacks who have been love-smitten. Not that Tommy dislikes the fancies of young men and the emotions which usually accompany Spring, but might I say, "Your hearts are showing!" Excuse me, you love-bugs, for I must admit it is wonderful to have someone special with whom to share mother nature's most beautiful landscaping job. As a philosopher, Tommy is an excellent dishwasher.

Speaking of seasons, I am reminded of those things which are as changeable as the seasons. Yes, Kathy Plank has "another one"—in the form of our hook-shot basketball player, Mike Christie. Good-luck, Mike!

If any of you have been taking strolls between classes, you've probably noticed one of Huntingdon's contributions to our campus couple's list. Their names, in case you have not guessed already, are Marjorie Peightel and George Newcombe. And then if you happen to take your walks later on in the day, you could hardly have missed seeing Eleanor Formwalt and John Kisel taking their daily ambulation—or do you just happen to be a "Social Room butterfly?" Well, Tommy has a couple for you, too. Have you, by any chance, ever noticed Betty Snively and Tom Hoover sitting there side by side? These could be more than passing fancies!

My side-kick has just informed me that Jack Dickey has won the award as Operator-of-the-Week. Jack was slyly observed escorting Edna May Adams to Geiger House one night and entertaining Erla Mae Weist in Skip's the next night. Don't let Spring go to your head, my boy! And by the way, Erla Mae, what do you think of Lebanon Valley?

With the latest news hot off the press, Tommy would like to extend congratulations and best of luck to Julia Groh Johns and her husband, Leo Johns.

Tommy has a few more awards for some of you lucky individuals. Look closely, your name may be here!

Couple-of-the-Week: Jesse Frye and Doris Mason.

Orchid-of-the-Week: To our baseball team. Keep on that winning streak!

Bachelor-of-the-Week: Ward Smith—or hasn't Tommy been prying enough?

Basketsfull of A's: For our dear Profs to hand out with great leniency at the end of this term. Tommy is handing this award out early so they can be well distributed. Please don't overlook me.

Well, it is my bedtime, so I shall close my log for this week. "Two shores, the moors"—as they say in France; or do they?

Trackmen Win First Over LV As Beyer Sets New Record

Joe Runs Mile In 4:38

The Juniata track team won their final dual meet of the season on Wednesday, defeating Lebanon Valley 73 2/3 to 52 1/3. The Indians placed at least one man in every event as they recorded their initial win.

Joltin' Joe Beyer paced the strong Juniata attack. Beyer took complete command of the distance events, winning both the two mile and the mile. Joe ran the mile in 4:38, six-tenths of a second faster than his 4:38.6 of last season, and thereby set a new College record.

Brinton, Ulsh Star

Every member of the squad performed well in the final encounter. Don Brinton matched Beyer point-for-point in scoring a first in the 880 and seconds in both of the distance runs.

Holmes Ulsh netted 10 1/3 points, with firsts in the 120-high hurdles and the high jump. Hackman and Stauffer just missed double figures, with nine and eight points respectively. Cassel was outstanding for the visitors, scoring 16 points.

The squad will ring down the curtain this weekend when they participate in the Middle Atlantic Championship Meet at Newark, Delaware.

Dickey Stars As JC Defeats Crusaders

Three runs in the last of the ninth provided the winning margin as the Indians took their fourth game of the season Wednesday. Trailing 8-7, Jack Dickey's timely single in the last frame provided the margin as Juniata edged Susquehanna 9-8.

The Crusaders scored first in the opening frame, but Juniata came back to go ahead in the second when Mike Dzvonar's long fly was misjudged, allowing him to circle the bases with Dick Young ahead of him. A home run by Martin over the right field fence gave Susquehanna another lead in the third which the Braves broke in the same inning, making a 3-3 deadlock.

Dzvonar Relieves Wenger

Dzvonar relieved Ken Wenger on the mound in the fifth to halt a Crusader uprising after one run had crossed, with the Indians coming back to tie again in the home half. Juniata went ahead in the seventh, but a home run by Crusader pitcher Condon in the eighth created another tie and set the stage for the thrilling finish.

Susquehanna connected for four hits and two runs in the top of the ninth before Dave LeFevre, third JC pitcher, was able to put out the fire. Still, the Indians had a big job ahead of them.

Tesi Starts Rally

Ray Tesi opened the ninth sliding safely into first after the third-sacker had momentarily juggled his grounder. Dick Young followed with a sharp single to right, and Joe Hulgus walked to fill the sacks.

Tesi scored and the other runners advanced on Dzvonar's long fly to center. It was then that Dickey became the hero of the day as he hit his clutch single to drive in the game winning tallies.

JC Golfers Host To First Invitational At Mt. Union Saturday

Another chapter will be added to the Juniata golf annals tomorrow when the first Juniata Invitational Tournament will be staged at the 18-hole American Legion Country Club in Mount Union.

Invitations were originally sent to schools in the Middle Atlantic States Conference and others in the Pennsylvania-Maryland area. It is expected that some 20 colleges and universities will be represented at the starting time tomorrow.

Each team will enter four men in the competiton, each man playing 36 holes. Winning teams will be decided by those having the lowest total medal score of all four players. The match will be similar to that held at Western Maryland, in which the Indians will compete next week.

Six trophies will be awarded to team and individual champions in the medal score play.

Golf squads slated to enter the meet include: Bloomsburg State Teachers, Bucknell, Delaware, Dickinson, Gannon, Geneva, Indiana State Teachers, Johns Hopkins, Lehigh, Lycoming, Moravian, Rutgers, Scranton, St. Francis (Pa.), Temple, Ursinas and Western Maryland.

Outstanding Athletes Receive Alumni Awards

Juniata's six most outstanding athletes of 1949-50 will receive awards at a joint WAA and Varsity J Club dinner meeting next Thursday evening. Awards will be made for each of the following sports: football line, football back, basketball, baseball, track and golf.

The awards have been established by Juniata Alumni for the purpose of recognizing, annually, the most outstanding athlete in each major sport. The fund provides individual trophies to each player selected and for a plaque to be hung in the Memorial Lobby of the new Physical Education Building.

Award winners are to be selected by the coaching staff and varsity squad of each sport and be approved by the Athletic Council.

Golfers Win Sixth & Seventh From Bucknell And Geneva

Defeat Bisons 6-3

The Juniata College golf squad remained among the ranks of the unbeaten by trimming Bucknell at Lewisburg last Saturday. The win was their sixth victory in seven starts, a tie with Pitt being the only mar on the record.

The "Kiracofemen" made a clean sweep of the first two foursomes to defeat the Bisons 6-3. In the first foursome, Captain Ray Korody downed Harry Cholewinski, Mount Union ace, 5 to 3 to start the ball rolling.

Quickly following suit were Rhodes, Allen and Stasenko to insure a Juniata victory. Bayer and Stroup, playing the final foursome, had trouble with Bucknell's Anderson and Hoffman and came out on the lower end of the score.

Golf Summary

Ray Korody defeated Harry Cholewinski, 5 and 3; Bob Rhodes defeated Russ Long, 2 and 1; Best ball won by Juniata, 5 and 3.

Art Allen defeated Don Thomas, 1 up; Frank Stasenko defeated Van Johnson, 7 and 5; best ball won by Juniata, 3 and 2.

Ben Hoffman defeated Gordon Stroup, 3 and 2; Fred Anderson defeated Dave Bayer, 5 and 4; Best ball won by Bucknell, 3 and 2.

Tennis Team Loses To Dickinson, Susquehanna

Juniata's newly-created varsity tennis team dropped two decisions this week. The Indian swingers lost to Dickinson 9-0 last Saturday and took their fourth straight defeat from Susquehanna Wednesday.

The Red Devils' power was just too much for the locals last Saturday as they absorbed a complete whitewashing. Bob Frain avoided a similar experience Wednesday when he won his singles match for the home team's only point.

Miss Barbara Stagg lived up to pre-game expectations, displaying some fancy swinging in winning both singles and doubles matches for the Crusaders.

Trample Geneva 9-0

Coach Kiracofe's golfers won their seventh victory of the campaign on Tuesday at the Huntingdon Country Club. Geneva College became the Indian's latest victim falling in a one-sided affair 9-0.

Cloudy skies prevailed throughout the match, but the rain held off until the last few holes. The Indians held commanding leads in all six matches at the end of the front nine, leaving little doubt as to the outcome.

Today the Braves face the swingers of Johns Hopkins University in their final tune-up before the Invitational tomorrow. Juniata will be out to avenge the defeat handed them last year by Johns Hopkins, the only setback during the last three years.

Today's match will be the final dual meet of the season, since, in addition to the Juniata Invitational, only the Western Maryland Invitational remains on the schedule.

Golf Summary

Ray Korody defeated Bill Bell, 7 and 6, Art Allen defeated Paul Stevens, 7 and 5; Best ball won by Juniata, 7 and 6.

Bob Rhodes defeated Rende, 8 and 6; Frank Stasenko defeated Cott, 4 and 3; Best ball won by Juniata, 6 and 4.

Gordon Stroup defeated Fonduke, 10 and 8; Dave Bayer defeated Smith, 3 and 2; Best ball won by Juniata, 7 and 5.

Indians Top Dickinson With Run In Ninth

Juniata's baseball Indians won their third straight home game last Saturday, defeating Dickinson 3-2. Squeeze Long broke up the pitcher's battle in the last of the ninth, scoring on a Dickinson error.

The Red Devils were first to score, netting two tallies in the fourth. Stark and Zilling started the rally with blooper hits to center and an error on their attempted double steal allowed Stark to score. A single by Oyler scored Zilling with the second run before Wenger bore down to retire the side.

Indians Score In Sixth

Juniata evened matters in the sixth with a pair of runs, though they connected for four hits in the frame. Harry Frye's single plus an error on Tesi's grounder put runners on first and second for the Braves.

Dick Young's hit to center scored Frye from second and when Joe Hulgus rapped into a double play, Tesi tallied. Safeties by Mike Dzvonar and Wenger renewed the Indian threat, but Zilling's running catch of Long's drive to deep center ended the inning.

Long Doubles, Then Scores

The score remained knotted until the bottom of the ninth when Long got his second hit, a double down the left field line. Kensinger hit an easy roller to short, but when the Red Devil shortstop threw wild attempting to nip Long at third, the winning marker crossed the plate.

Long and Tesi paced the Juniata attack with two hits each, every other batter in the lineup getting one hit each. Fancy fielding by Hulgus, Dzvonar and Frye aided Wenger in notching his second win.

Frosh I Rallies To Win; Jrs., Frosh II Play Today

The girls softball league resumed action this week with a spirited contest between the two Frosh teams. Though they lost the opening game, the Frosh II team came back and claimed a forfeit win over the Juniors to gain an even split for the week's play.

Jody Siemon got the Frosh II team off to a fast start in the opening encounter when she connected for a boundary belt. But the Frosh I team came roaring back with three runs to go ahead and finally win out 14-10, scoring seven runs in the last inning.

A new ruling passed this week provides that teams represented by less than five players at game time must forfeit the contest.

Buckle Resigns Position; Beyer Takes Over In Fall

Jack Buckle, assistant to the director of admissions, handed in his resignation this past week. The position will be filled by Joe Beyer in Sept., 1950.

Buckle, of Cumberland, Md., was graduated in 1948 from Juniata where he majored in the division of social studies. Since that time he has served on the College administration. At the present he is uncertain as to whether he will continue his job for the Summer term.

However, in the Fall, Mr. Buckle plans to enter Syracuse University for graduate work in the field of education. He hopes eventually to become dean of a college or university.

His successor, Joe Beyer, of New York City, will receive a B. S. degree in business administration in June. Beyer has been outstanding on campus as a member of the track team, senior class president, senator for 1949-50 and a member of the band, orchestra and A Cappella Choir.

Diamond Dust

Another college romance terminated in matrimony last Saturday afternoon when the former Julia Groh became the bride of Leo Johns. The informal ceremony took place in the Methodist Church, Hanover, with the Rev. A. Turner officiating. Following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Johns took an auto trip to Harrisburg.

A senior at Juniata, the bride is majoring in psychology and Johns is doing post-graduate work at Penn State. Mr. and Mrs. Johns will make their home in Huntingdon for the Summer.

Home Ec Dept. Granted High Award; WAA, J Club Sponsor Joint Dinner

by Dottie Hummer

Picnics, group dinners and fond farewells are simultaneous evidence of successful clubs closing their pages for another year.

We are sure this week's praises can be directed to the home economics department. For the first time in the history of Juniata, this group has met their "Standards of Excellency," an award granted by meeting various designated requirements.

This award was made at the PHEA convention in Philadelphia last weekend. Miss Butler was also reelected treasurer of this association. Sixteen colleges were represented at the convention and they exchanged many ideas on vitalizing club programs. Further plans were made for the Province Workshop to be held on the JC campus next October.

Miss Hummer

Plan Dinner At Helfricks

The Lambda Gamma will have their annual dinner at Helfricks Wednesday at 6 p. m. Guests will be Miss Gertrude Butler, Miss Helen Fisher, Miss Frances Mathias, Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Crosby and Dr. and Mrs. Donald Rockwell.

Tonight at 7 p. m. the IRC will meet in the I. Harvey Brumbaugh House. The meeting will center around a panel discussion of "Point Four." The panel consists of Sherwood Cordier, Lillian Raycroft and Phil Kulp, with Keith Binkley acting as moderator.

A picnic has been planned for the Scalpel and Probe. Monday at 3:30 the group will leave for Spruce Creek, with Dr. and Mrs. Homer Will and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Bartha as their sponsors. Each member is allowed to bring a guest, and all are looking forward to an enjoyable day.

This same day a chicken and waffle dinner will be relished by the FTA. Everyone is expected to be at Helfricks at 5:30 so that oratorio members can return for the evening practice. Following the meal a short speech will be given by Dean Sollenberger.

WAA Schedules Picnic

About 25 or 30 girls of the WAA will assemble at Whipple's Dam on Tuesday. A weiner roast and outdoor sports is the menu for these hungry athletes.

The IVCF will hold its weekly meeting Thursday in the Women's Day Students Room. Lloyd Newlin will discuss Romans XI, as a followup of last night's discussion of Romans X by the Penn State group. Students wishing to attend the Spring Conference May 20 and 21 will have to contact Rietta Weightman or Austin Robbins by Tuesday.

Thursday at 6 p. m. the WAA and the J Club will sponsor a combined dinner in the College dining hall. Prof. Glick will be master of ceremonies at this dinner in honor of our Juniata athletes.

Pres. To Award Trophies

The speaker, President Ellis, will make trophy awards to the outstanding athletes in each field. Also, the awarding of letters in each sport will be made by the respective coaches. The entire student body is invited to this feat.

A group of girls will journey to Helfricks Friday for the Alpha Beta Gamma dinner. Following the meal, a program planned by Skip Smith and Arlene Dunmire will consist of group singing, special music and individual readings.

Wednesday evening the Scalpel and Probe and the Chemistry Club held a combined meeting. Dr. R. A. Dutcher, chairman of the dept. of biochemistry at Penn State, was guest speaker. His talk was centered on the topic "Thirty years of Vitamin Research."

The Mission Study Group held their last meeting Tuesday evening. Mrs. Amos Myers gave an educational talk on the confusion and suffering in China. A brief worship was led by Phil Kulp.

Doyle Granted 1-Year Leave Of Absence

Final Events To Be Led By Beyer

Before the seniors become graduates on June 5, they will have attended a variety of final events which will draw to a close their careers at Juniata College. Senior class president, Joe Beyer, will lead his class through these last few weeks of activities.

The first event for senior resident women will be breakfast to be served in Miss Edith Spencer's rooms on May 26 from 8 to 10 a. m.

Senior Picnic June 1

The senior picnic will be held June 1, or in case of rain, June 2. The site for this final informal gathering has not yet been decided upon by the committee headed by Gil McIntyre. Others planning this outing are Louise Cray, Mary Crouthamel, Ralph McIntyre and Pat Zug.

At noon on Saturday, June 3, the class of 1950 will formally be inducted into the Alumni Association at the Alumni Luncheon in the dining hall. (See story on Alumni Day.)

Senior Class Day exercises will be held that night in Oller Hall at 8:15. Following the orchestra concert, the senior class, in caps and gowns, will witness the Candlelighting and Mantle Ceremonies planned by Dr. Harold Binkley and Walt Bush.

Pictures Taken Sunday

Sunday, June 4, will be a busy day for the graduates-to-be. They will appear on the Oller Hall steps at 8:45 a. m. to have their picture taken. For this, and for each of the other events of the day, they will wear caps and gowns.

(See Graduation—, Page 2)

Grad. Class Gives Cabin Fireplace

The class of 1950 will present the College with a class gift in the form of a fireplace for the new cabin.

George Kensinger will direct the masonry work for the project. According to Don Robinson, president of the Outing Club, construction should begin during the second week of exams.

A minimum of $100 will be contributed for the fireplace which will include a built-in heat-olater to circulate the air currents around the whole cabin.

The committee which chose the gift included Bill Wright, chairman, Margaret Clemmer, Gene Roddy, Doris Quinnell and John Stayer.

Booth To Head Business Dept.; Replaces Thomas

Samuel Booth, at present an instructor in economics at Lafayette College, will replace Lyell Thomas in the department of business and economics administration beginning in the Summer term.

Mr. Booth graduated from Syracuse University magna cum laude in 1947, received his MA degree in 1948 and will be conferred his Ph D this June. From 1943-46 he served in the U. S. Navy Seabees and for the past year has taught at Lafayette College.

For the Summer term Mr. Booth is scheduled to teach principles of economics, introduction to business law and business principles. In the Fall he will teach principles of economics, business management and marketing.

New Exam Ruling Made

No student may leave an examination room hereafter except on account of illness, states an announcement from the office of the registrar. Anyone forced to leave for this reason must submit his blue book to the proctor, who will make a notation of the illness.

Alumni To Hold Reunion June 3

"Remember when . . ." will probably be uttered more than once on June 3 when members of the large Juniata family return to the campus for a reminiscent Alumni Day.

The ball will start rolling (literally) on Saturday morning at 9 when the alumni will have a golf match with the College Varsity team at the Huntingdon Country Club. While this match is being played, the Alumni Executive Committee will meet at 9:30.

At noon the Alumni Luncheon will be held in the College Dining Hall with Dr. Paul M. Robinson, '35, acting as master of ceremonies and Dr. Reynold C. Siersema, '30, speaking.

Baseball fans will attend the Juniata vs. St. Vincent game at 3, while those interested in the Library are invited to a tea in that building at 3:30. John H. Biddle will be the speaker.

Class reunions, ranging in years from 1890 to 1949, will begin at 5:30. To finish the day there are activities planned for Oller Hall, beginning at 8:15. These include an Orchestra Concert followed by the candle lighting and mantle ceremonies by the graduating class of 1950.

Vets Must Use Rights By 1951

Veterans who intend to use their GI Bill benefits are warned by a Federal release that "if they wish to continue their education beyond July 25, 1951, they must have been in school (during) the last semester or term of the 1950-51 school year or actually be enrolled in Summer session on July 25, 1951."

The official bulletin adds, "Veterans who have earned a baccalaureate degree and (who) plan later to do graduate work" must begin their studies in the same general field before the July 25 deadline.

Under this ruling, course changes are prohibited except while the vet is actually in training, and then only upon the approval of the VA office in Altoona. The bulletin concludes with the statement that such changes "will probably be difficult to obtain."

The report goes on to state that once having begun, the veteran shall pursue his course of education or training continuously until completion, except where his attendance is interrupted . . . for Summer vacation" or other reasons beyond his control.

An Interview

Student Escapes Germans In Italy By Taking To Hills

by Don Raphael

The big buildings and the Statue of Liberty are the things that made the first impression on an Italian undergrad, Frank Catanese.

Small, very dark, with flashing eyes and an engaging "Banty Rooster" manner, Catanese was born in Sicily in '28 and went to grammer school there.

Grammer school in Sicily, high school in Turin, North Italy and two years in a private college comprised Frank's Italian education. Catanese had aspirations of a career in aviation, intending to enlist in the Air Force Cadets upon graduation.

Armistice Brought Change

The war changed all this, for in his second year of college, his country signed an armistice with the United States. This led to a prompt German occupation of Italy. This occupation was extremely rough on male students, especially those who were capable of military service.

It seems that the Germans had a nasty habit of Shanghaiing young Italian men for military service. Frank had other ideas about the war, and so he and several of his "paisans" from the college took to the hills. They roamed about Italy for the duration of the war, and in 1945 Catanese returned to his native Sicily.

Editor's note: This interview, number seven in a series, concludes this paper's survey of international students on the Juniata campus.

Back in college again, Frank set about finishing his interrupted education. But providence, this time in the form of his father, again disrupted Frank's plans. His father wrote, asking him to come to America.

Passport Problems

There being no American Consulate in Messina, where he was going to school, it was necessary to travel to Palermo. Needless to say, securing a passport, etc, is a long drawn-out affair, and Frank had to spend much time in Palermo attaining these ends.

Finally on Feb. 3, 1947, Catanese took leave of his native Sicily with his brother and sailed for

Post Office Refunds To Begin Monday

Refunds of the $.50 breakage fees deposited to cover posible post office box damages will be made at any time after final exams begin.

According to a ruling by business manager Paul Friend, all boxes must be vacated as soon as the refund is received. It is important, it was added, that students claim their money before noon Saturday, June 3, since the post office books operate only on an annual basis.

Friend also announced that students living on campus may turn in their room keys at any time. "Someone will always be on duty during the regular office hours," he said.

THIS MORTAL COIL

by Don Brandt

This is the final publication of The Juniatian for another year.

The College begins its preparation for the flurry of final exams, graduation and then closing. We have seen and done many things this year here at Juniata. The College has expanded with a new music house, and much-needed addition to the dining hall. We have seen the beginnings of a brand new gymnasium.

These are the things we tell people when they ask us what has happened here in the last year. But what else has happened? We have made new friends, encountered new satisfactions and frustrations, and gained new knowledge and insight into the problems which will face so many of us within a few short weeks.

Great Chance

For many of us, the greatest transition of our lives will begin on the 5th day of June when President Ellis declares us the owners of a college education. After over sixteen years of attending school, we will be required to make the biggest and toughest adjustment in the course of our lives.

How many friends are you, or you, going to leave that day, never to see them again? How many times are you going to become nostalgic and remember the "tolerated" classes, the walks around the loop, and the students and professors who have been closest to you? Quite a few, don't you think?

Great Responsibility

We are however, also faced with a great responsibility to ourselves, the College, and our communities. Four years spent here at Juniata are now terminated, and it is our duty to apply as best we can, those principles and ideals we have learned here. If we fail, we will, of course, harm ourselves more than anyone else, but we will also betray the trust this College has placed in us by telling society we qualified for good citienship.

Fame and Fortune

We all have ideals concerning the life we expect to lead after school ends. In many cases, they involve making a substantial amount of money, in order to make our life more enjoyable. But this reporter is still impressed by the question put to us in chapel several weeks ago. "Are you making a living, or are you making a life?" This is our responsbility. Of course we want to enjoy life, but if we do not do our utmost, all of us, to make the world a better place in which to live, we have failed.

None of us, perhaps, will turn out to be world-shattering personalities, but no matter how small our contribution to the good of others, it will be valuable. This reporter feels that we are all in for an enormous disappointment in life, if we try to live a happy life without doing good for others. It will be better, undoubtedly, if we realize this here at the beginning of a life, rather than halfway through or at the end of one. Good luck, and so long to all of you.

New York City where his father awaited them.

The people rushing about and the general hustle and bustle of the metropolis took Frank slightly aback. He confides that not understanding English, he would have been completely lost had his father not been there to reassure him that he was safe at last. His father has been in this country since 1932.

After a week's stay in New York and a day in Pittsburgh, Frank reached his present home in Ambridge, Pa.

Americans In A Hurry

Reflecting on the American people's interminable haste, Frank says the rushing reminds him of the panic-stricken people who left the cities when the bombers came over. They milled about every way imaginable, and "everyone just ran, trying to escape the planes, with no idea at all of their destination." Of course, Catanese now realizes there is method in the American madness, but he was bewildered for a "month or two, and then I began to adjust myself."

In Italy, Frank played varsity soccer in high school and on the college team which won the Soccer Championship of Northern Italy for two years in a row.

About the women, Catanese thinks they are as pretty as Italian women, but sagely observes "women are women, no matter."

His other main interests are flying and chemistry, and upon graduation, he hopes to enter graduate school to become a chemical engineer.

tees and faculty to the Stone Church for the service at 10:30; Pres. C. N. Ellis will deliver the sermon, and special music will be provided by Prof. Charles Rowland. A section of the church will be reserved for parents of the seniors.

Pres. and Mrs. Ellis will hold a reception at their home from 3:30 to 5 p. m. for seniors and their parents. Next event on the agenda will be the traditional Senior Step Sing on Founders steps at 6:15 p. m. The class will join voices in singing "The Day Is Dying in the West," the "Senior Hymn," and the "Alma Mater."

Procession Planned

The senior procession will then walk past the home of Pres. Emeritus C. C. Ellis to its destination, Roundtop. There an inspirational vesper service has been planned by Prof. Wayne Glick. A graduating pre-ministerial student and a returning alumnus will address the group. For the recessional hymn, "Fairest Lord Jesus" will be sung.

Graduation activities will come to a climax on Monday, June 5. Seniors will meet in the social rooms at 10:15 to line up for the procession to Oller Hall where at 10:30 Commencement Exercises will begin. Dr. C. W. deKiewiet, President of Cornell University, will be the speaker.

Following graduation a luncheon will be held in the gym for students and guests. Tickets may be secured gratis by resident seniors at the Public Relations Office for parents who plan to eat in the College Dining Hall on June 4 and 5.

Committees for the final schedule of events are: music, Elma Stine; decorations, Mrs. Jane Crosby, Miss Jane McCormick, George Sprague and George Wolf; and gowns, Sara Gantt, Herman Groninger, Ruth Kimble and Bud Kreider.

New building projects seem to be all the rage. Lebanon Valley students witnessed the laying of the cornerstone for their new physical education building on May 6. TOMMY Greetings Chillins'! Old Tom is feeling mighty blue about the writing of this last bit of nonsense for the term. So many of you will be soon facing this cruel world—to use common terminology—while the rest of us will be facing this cruel, tedious college life. Good luck to you who will soon be "getting out;" wear your strongest armor and remember, excelsior!

Now back to the present and your future memories. Not many of you must be willing to take the fatal step of going steady so late in the term because Mr. Hawk has not seen many new couples strolling around—or are there still those covert affairs? But Thomas has noticed Nancy Meyers' new interest in the Brooklyn Dodgers. Could Harry Samuels be the deciding influence? I must admit she has picked a good team, winning or whatever.

By the way, Lena Bioletti, how was your walk the other evening? Sherlock Holmes Hawk peeked out his window and noticed you and Bernard Lilly tripping the light fantastic down Moore Street. After witnessing this hither-to-unseen, Tom decided that he better go down to Skip's and look for more new discoveries. Well, he sat and sat and sat, and then in walked Galen Keeney and Barbara Lape. Tom was certainly glad to see you two—mainly because he wanted someone to help him write this column, indirectly that is. A few minutes later another new couple entered. I do believe it was Glenn Felix and Portia Baugher: but with one flourescent light burned out, it was rather difficult to decide.

This will be another single-award week—just oodles of orchids to all of you wonderful profs who are leaving and from whom we have learned so much. Your favorite pupil, Thomas Hawk, hopes that your days will be just as profitable wherever you are.

Oh, and as a last bit of gossip, Tommy noticed Elaine Mock looking all around the campus the other day. The campus is especially beautiful in the spring, Elaine; but the queustion is, were you looking for a certain kind of Treese?

To all those on campus who feel they have had their share of trials, look at Dave Whitesel who has lived in the Lodge for four years.

This Tommy likes: While browsing through one of the Altoona newspapers Tommy discovered this little poem.

"They say" we're told. But who are they Who see and have so much to say?
"They" with glib tongue and watchful eyes
No spoken names identifies;
"They" the group pronoun gossip find
Convenient to hide behind.
"They" the dark mask that shields them well
Who have such bitter tales to tell.
My son, I warn you, trust them not,
"They" are a most malicious lot.

Edgar A. Guest

Well, a fond but sad Adieu to all you seniors; and, if one can have degrees of happiness, remember that the happiest happiness is that which is shared. I'll be seeing the rest of your smiling faces next fall, so Auf Wiedersehen to you.

Penn Takes J C Invitational; Indians, Lehigh Tie For 2nd

The University of Pennsylvania finished strong to overcome a first 18-hole deficit and win the first annual Juniata College Invitational golf tournament at Mt. Union last Saturday. Juniata, leading by four strokes after the first 18 holes, had to settle for a second place tie with Lehigh University.

Dave Baldwin, Lehigh's outstanding lefthander, copped the medalist trophy as he fired a 148, two under par for the 36 holes. The Engineers also placed the runner-up man as Larry Carpenter shot a 153.

The Juniata swingers were headed by Gordie Stroup's 157 good for a third place tie with Herman Bode, Penn star, in the medal scoring. Frank Stasenko, who was eligible for medal honors only, shot a sixth place 160.

Bobby Rhodes shot a par 75 over the first 18 holes, but faltered on the home stretch and wound up with a tie for seventh place on 161. Ray Korody also slumped on the back 18 and finished tied for tenth on 162. Art Allen's 173 earned him a tie for 25th.

Penn trailed Juniata by four strokes after the first 18 holes. But the Quakers, paced by Bode and McCabe, got hot on the final round and were two strokes up on the Indians and Lehigh, who also finished strong, having trailed by 11 strokes at the halfway mark. Penn's score was 651, while Juniata and Lehigh registered 653.

After the first three, the team scores dropped off sharply, fourth place Temple showing a 665 and fifth place Delaware a 668.

In all, there were 53 golfers and 13 teams represented in the tournament. Several teams, including Johns Hopkins, whom the Indians had defeated the day before, dropped out at the last moment.

Braves Place Two In Middle Atlantics

Juniata entered six men in the Middle Atlantic Track and Field Championships at Newark, Delaware last Friday and Saturday. Of this number, Joe Beyer and Jack Rothenberger were the only Braves to gain points. The meet was won by LaSalle College.

Beyer finished his college track career in fine fashion despite the fact that he failed to win the race. Joe placed fourth in the two mile event, though he turned in the fast time of 9:57.

Unofficially, this is a new College record, shattering the 10:04.6 mark set by Beyer himself last season. But since Beyer did not win his race last weekend the new mark will not stand.

John Kelley, St. Joseph's, won Beyer's race in 9:37, setting a new Middle Atlantic record. Another Indian distance runner, Don Brinton, placed seventh in the same event.

Jack Rothenberger took a second in the 100-yard heats Friday, but in doing so he aggravated his old leg injury and was sidelined. Others making the trip were Joe Hackman, Fred Stauffer and Bob Keim.

President Ellis officially established the awards last evening when he presented the first of their kind to Mike Dzvonar, Aldo Bonomi, Holmes Ulsh, Joe Beyer and Ray Korody. A sixth award, for baseball, is being witheld until the close of the present season.

The coaches of the respective sports presented Varsity J's to those players earning them. Prof. Wayne Glick served as M. C. for the affair.

Dzvonar, known to all as "Meteor Mike," was a unanimous choice for award as the outstanding football back. Dzvonar gained state-wide acclaim last season in piling up 672 yards by rushing and 144 through the air. Mike scored 93 points, second highest

Golfers Win Final Dual Match, 8-1

With five out of six men carding scores of 75 or better, the Juniata golf team of Coach Ed Kiracofe handed Johns Hopkins University a decisive 8-1 setback last Friday at the Huntingdon Country Club.

In winning, the Indians gained revenge for the only defeat handed them last year. A 5½-3½ loss to Johns Hopkins was the only mar on an otherwise perfect record for 1949.

Leading the way with medalist honors for the Kiracofemen was freshman Gordon Stroup, who toured the layout in 69 strokes, one-under par. Next came Ray Korody and Art Allen, with 72 and 73 respectively, while Bob Rhodes and Frank Stasenko shot 75's.

The victory gave the Juniata golfers a three-year record of 24 wins, one loss and one tie. It also marked the second year out of three in which the Indians have gone through the season's competition undefeated.

Ray Korody defeated Bill Morgan, 2 up; Bob Rhodes defeated Bob Patterson, 5 and 4; Best ball won by Juniata, 3 and 2.
Art Allen defeated Bob Simpson, 5 and 4; Frank Stasenko defeated Warren Hassler, 7 and 6; Best ball won by Juniata, 6 and 5.
Gordon Stroup defeated Newton Margolis, 5 and 3; Paul Zavell defeated Dave Bayer, 2 and 1; Best ball won by Juniata, 4 and 3.

Baseball Team Trips Frankies, Drops Close One To Bucknell

Win 5-4 Thriller

Juniata's habit of winning baseball games on late inning rallies has become as standard as "mystery cakes" in the chow hall!

St. Francis became the Indians' fourth such victim last Saturday, falling by 5-4. Three runs in the bottom of the eighth gave the home team the winning margin.

The Frankies scored singletons in the first two innings and added another in the sixth to go ahead 3-0. Pitcher Joe Sullivan, though wild, blanked the Indians on two hits through the first five frames.

Young, Dzvonar Start Rally

But Dick Young and Mike Dzvonar touched him for hits in the lower half of the sixth and Sullivan then contributed three consecutive bases on balls to force in two runs and reduce his lead to 3-2.

Juniata finally teed off on Sullivan in the eighth after being held to four singles up to that time. Dzvonar opened the stanza with his second hit of the day, a solid rap to right-center good for three bases.

Lefty Dave LeFevre aided his own cause when he duplicated the Meteor's feat in tripling, but down the right field line, driving in the tying run. Squeeze Long put the Braves in front for the first time when he blasted a double off the glove of the St. Francis shortstop.

Error Allows Final Score

After George Kensinger walked, the Indians attempted a double steal and when the third baseman committed the games only miscuse, Long scored the fifth Juniata run.

St. Francis was not to be denied in the final frame. Krall opened with a single and, after Lantzy went out, DelGrande and Perfett followed suit, scoring one run and putting the tying run on third base. But LeFevre got DuBeck to fly out and Bills' force play ended the fray.

Dzvonar and Long had two hits each for Juniata as LeFevre notched his third win of the season. Krall's three hits and pitcher Sullivan's pair, including a homer in the second inning, sparked the losers.

Lose To Bisons 4-2

Bucknell University stopped Juniata's five-game home winning streak Wednesday by squeezing through with a 4-2 victory. The Bisons jumped off to an early lead and staved off several Juniata bids for victory.

Lefty Dave LeFevre, starting his second game within a week, walked right-fielder Art Raynor to open the game. Raynor moved to second as LeFevre balked, went to third on a passed ball and scored when Mike Dzvonar dropped Shirk's fly ball.

Bucknell scored again in the third on Marty (Iriquois) McKibbin's double and a long single by Raynor, and in the fourth on pitcher Al Hegelein's home run, making the count 3-0 Bucknell.

Juniata Scores In Sixth

Juniata's two tallies come on singletons in the sixth and seventh innings. In the sixth, Squeeze Long doubled down the left field line and, after George Kensinger went out, scored on Howett's timely drive through the hole at short.

The seventh inning saw the Indians score their second and final run as Joe Hulgus drove a double to right-center field. LeFevre then made an attempt to win his own game when he singled to score Hulgus and bring the Braves to within one run of the Bisons.

But Bucknell added an insurance run in the ninth when LeFevre walked Webber, and allowed Sinclair a single, putting runners on first and third with only one out.

Misplay Allows Score

It appeared that the Indians would get out of the play unscathed as the next batter grounded toward short. Howett scooped it and threw to Young for the first half of a prospective twin kill, but Young froze with the ball and Bucknell's fourth run crossed.

LeFevre got the next man to pop out to Tesi, ending the inning. Raynor then proceeded to set the Indians down one, two three in the ninth and the Bisons won 4-2.

The loss puts the Indians' seasonal record at 5-6. Bucknell has been highly successful on the diamond this season. Included in their list of victories are two over Penn State and one over Navy.

13 To Take Grad. Study

Thirteen Juniata seniors will answer roll calls next year at 11 different graduate schools after registering for courses in medicine, business, theology, psychology, biology or history.

Dave Croft and Ed Podgorski will study medicine at Jefferson University, Philadelphia; Moses Nafzinger at the University of Maryland; and Mildred Rosenberger, Temple University, Philadelphia.

Harvard School of Business Administration has accepted Alfred Crease and Howard Long, while two pre-ministerial graduates, Jack Padgett and Maurice Strausbaugh will attend Boston University School of Theology and Bethany Biblical Seminary, Chicago, respectively.

The history department is represented by Lillian Rayeroft, who plans to take a degree at the University of Pennsylvania Law School; Gene Roddy, who will attend the University of Wisconsin; and Bob Smith, who is taking additional work at George Washington University, Washington, D. C.

An assistantship in the psychology department of Ohio State University has been awarded to Ray Sidorsky.

John Comerford will continue his studies in biology at Georgetown University, Washington, D. C.

English-Style May Day Held Sat.

Juniata College celebrated its annual May Day last Saturday in Sherwood Forest.

Heralding the entrance of the queen, Ilene Altemus, and her court were Sarah Keller and Mary Taylor. Upon her arrival at the throne, Queen Ilene was crowned Queen of May by Prince Consort Don Kagarise.

Following the coronation was the winding of the May Pole and the traditional dance around them for the audience of the queen and her court. In keeping with the British Isles country theme the colorful group of dancers then performed the Scotch highland fling, the English sleights sword dance and the Irish lilt.

About 100 of the spectators at the May Day festivities received a jostling let-down when one of the bleachers collapsed.

No one was seriously injured but six were treated at the College infirmary for cuts and bruises.

College authorities stated that the accident occurred when one side of the bleachers sunk into the wet ground, throwing the five-tier framework off balance and causing it to collapse since it was not properly supported.

MUSICIANS—Prof. Jack Brammer fills Swigart Hall with practice violin music as he prepares for the sonata recital he and his piano accompanist Miss Marion Thomas will present June 2 in Oller Hall. (See Music—elsewhere on this page.)

McKee-Stine Piano Recital Tonight

Mary Lou McKee and Elma Stine will appear as a duo piano team in Oller Hall, tonight at 8:15. This will be the first full two-piano recital for these girls who began playing as a team last year.

Miss McKee is a sophomore majoring in home economics, while Miss Stine will receive a BA degree in music education this June. Both are piano students of Miss Marion Thomas.

Included on the program will be the following: three Brahms Waltzes: a Chopin Nocturne; "Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairy," Tschaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite;" "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary," Copes; and "Mother Goose Suite," Ravel.

in the state, and was named to the AP All-State second team.

Bonomi Outstanding Lineman

Bonomi, Coach Bill Smaltz' sterling guard, received the outstanding football lineman award. Aldo teamed with Coy Hicks to form one of the best inside combinations in small college circles. Even a persistent knee injury failed to slow the "Little Bull" down.

Ulsh finished the past basketball season ranked 54th in small college scoring, putting him in line for the basketball award. Ulsh just missed the 300 mark for the second straight year in averaging 17.5 points per game. On two occasions he scored 36 points in a single contest. Like Dzvonar, Ulsh received mention on an AP All-State team.

Beyer Track Standout

Beyer, Juniata's distance running standout and recipient of the track award, has already inscribed his name in Juniata's athletic annals. Joe holds the College record for both the mile and the two mile, marks which may stand for some time. He and Don Brinton have been the mainstays of Coach Snider's trackmen.

Korody has gained much respect for his golfing tactics during the past three seasons. Captain of this year's undefeated, once tied squad, Ray has been defeated in only two of his 18 matches over the past two years. Korody is only a junior, and will be out to gain the golf award next year.

The baseball award will be presented sometime during the final game of the season against St. Vincent on June 3.

Orchestra Concert

Saturday evening, June 3, Prof. Brammer will conduct the College orchestra in a concert preceding the candle lighting and mantle ceremonies. The program for this concert includes: "Symphony No. 12," Haydn; "Serenade for Strings," Mozart; "Entrance of the Peers," Sullivan; "Chanson Russe," Moussorgsky; "Sleigh Ride," Anderson; and "Fiddle Faddle," Anderson.

St. Paul

The final program in this series will be given Sunday evening, June 4, at which time Prof. Charles Rowland will direct a chorus of approximately 140 members as they sing the oratorio "Saint Paul."

Written by Felix Mendelssohn the complete oratorio lasts three hours but has been cut for presentation at this time. It narrates the story of Saul's conversion.

Soloists for this presentation are Frances Roddy, Elaine Albert Briggs ('48), sopranos; Helen Wentzler, alto; Clair Shaffner, Charles Redenberger, tenors; Franklin Perkins ('49), Philip Fletcher ('48), Gerald Hartzel, baritones.

A Report

'49 Leadership Conference Successful In Carrying Out Resolutions

by Carol Cook

Members of the 1949 Leadership Conference were successful in carrying out the majority of the resolutions arrived at last Fall at Camp Kanesatake.

Resolutions were formed for the areas of underclass activities, social activities, general activities, publications, athletics and religious activities. Six resolutions were placed under the heading of special issues.

More specifically, all proposals made concerning underclass activities, publications, athletics, religious activities and the special issues were carried out as planned.

In the area of athletics, Miss Jane McCormick was the faculty member selected to coach the cheering squad, and tennis was reinstated this Spring as a varsity sport. A sport banquet was planned for May 18 at which time varsity letters and WAA awards were presented.

Frosh Rules Kept

Freshman regulations were maintained, while an attempt was made to eliminate unnecessary rough action by initiating organized game activity. A program of tutoring was established for those students desiring help. This program was carried out by the chairmen of men's and women's house.

Publication resolutions resulted in an increased remuneration for publication of "The Alfarata," and a program of coordinate advertising solicitation.

In carrying out religious activities resolutions, outside speakers and artists were invited to participate in chapel services and an attempt was made to establish a quieter atmosphere during the services.

Grade Policy Established

Members of the faculty agreed to carry out the policy of grading in multiples of 5 below 85. They also agreed to make clear to the students at the beginning of each course their policy on grading, including the effect of class cuts. The practice of shortening classes before holidays was continued this year. Two other special issue projects involved table assignments.

The social activities resolutions regarding corsages for dances, and student painting of the gym interior were carried out as proposed. The administration ordered 12 card tables purchased but refused to buy additional chairs, requesting that the ones in Oller Hall be used.

Music Credit Denied

The request for credit in applied music for members of a faculty-directed campus dance band was also turned down by the administration. This was refused with the provision that credit might be given if such a band should prove worthy of receiving it. The social committee failed to purchase a false ceiling for the gym when prices proved to be too high.

The provision made for collecting class dues was carried out with the initiating of Dues Day. Other resolutions in the area of general activities were changed the first week after classes began when it was realized that it would be impossible to carry out these proposals. They were concerned with May Day and All Class Night.

Stottlemyer To Edit College Yearbook

"Quayton Stottlemyer will be the editor of next year's 'Alfarata'," according to retiring editor Ray Sidorsky.

Stottlemyer reports that he has as yet laid no plans for the '50-'51 annual. He says "It's all new to me. They'll have to teach me the ropes."

Regarding the possibility of using the 75th anniversary of the founding of Juniata as a theme for the book, the new editor would only say "It's an idea."

Brethren Service Plans Service Project

The Brethren Service Commission is sponsoring a refugee suummer service project at Camp Haid, Linz, Austria from July 10 to August 20.

Various work projects will be carried out at the camp with time out for study, worship and recreation. The campers will help the International Refugee Organization in making valuable contributions, both spiritual and material, to the refugee group in this camp.

The camp group will be made up of about 25 persons—one-third, Americans; one-third, Austrians; and the remaining third, other nationalities. All campers should be between the ages of 18 and 30.

Anyone interested in this project should write to: Brethren Service Commission, 22 S. State St., Elgin, Ill.

Juniata College Student Weekly

Volume Twenty-seven | Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa. September 29, 1950 | Number 1

75th Year Events Begin

Heading off events on the 75th Anniversary celebration calendar is Community Week. Beginning Mon., it will be sponsored by the Radio Committee.

Representatives will be chosen from the prominent clubs in Huntingdon, preferably those affiliated with the College. As Juniata guests Saturday, Oct. 7, they will tour the campus and take part in a series of special activities.

Student Aid Fund Set Up

Honors C. C. Ellis, Late Pres. Emeritus

The Charles C. Ellis Memorial Scholarship Fund was officially established Monday.

In memory of the president of this College from 1930 to 1943, the Fund was proposed by members of the faculty, administration and board of trustees.

Endorsed by friends of the Ellis family and the College through advance contributions, the proposal was cleared by the Executive Committee of the Alumni Assn. It also has the approval of the Ellis family.

Dr. Ellis was moderator of the Church of the Brethren 1935, 1944, and 1950; president of the Pa. Assn. of College Presidents 1936; chairman, Genl. Education Board of the Church of the Brethren 1931-41; and pastor of the First Church of the Brethren in Phila. 1919-21.

He has also been president of the Huntingdon Rotary Club 1937-38 and a member of prominent educational associations, committees and commissions, as well as a counsellor and director in many church activities.

Dr. Ellis died June 27 in Presbyterian Hospital, Phila. after an eight month bout with leukemia.

At the time of his death, he was President Emeritus of Juniata. His son, Dr. Calvert N. Ellis, has been president of the College since his father's retirement in 1943.

Degrees Awarded To Ellis, Nye

Pres. Calvert Ellis and Dr. H. H. Nye each received an honorary doctor of divinity degree this summer.

Pres. Ellis, the only theological graduate of all the Brethren college presidents, was awarded his degree at the autumn convocation of the Bethany Biblical Seminary in Chicago on Sept. 6. As a part of the program, Pres. Ellis delivered the convocation address on "The Seminary Professor and World Crisis."

Dr. Nye received his honorary degree at Elizabethtown College on May 29 in recognition of his contributions toward the cause of religious education in two Brethren colleges, Juniata and Elizabethtown.

In addition, Dr. Nye received a citation at the Grand Rapids Conference of the Church of the Brethren on June 16. This award was presented to him in recognition of his 34 years of teaching in the previously mentioned Brethren colleges.

Meal, Class Times Changed

Beginning Monday, Oct. 2, the noon meal in the College dining hall will be served on weekdays at 12:45 p. m. and on Saturdays at 12:15 p. m. The afternoon classes will begin at 1:45 p. m. This adjustment is made to accomodate the large majority of waitresses who, under the present schedule, must either miss part of the last period classes in the morning, or be subjected to undue haste in preparing to serve the noon meal.

Dr. C. S. Shively Vacates Position

Upperclassmen returning to Juniata College this Fall from Summer vacations found at least 12 faces had changed among the faculty and administration since June.

One new instructor, Samuel Booth, joined the economics dept. at the beginning of the Summer term. Seven were added this Fall. The remaining four newcomers fill vacancies in the administrative staffs.

Phillip Bedient of Levering, Mich., will fill the position to be vacated by Dr. Charles Shively this month.

Dr. Shively, professor of mathematics emeritus, reached the retirement age in 1942 but continued to teach. He taught at Juniata from 1920 to 1942 and from the end of World War II until this month. During the wartime emergency he served on the faculty staffs of several other colleges.

Bedient Holds MA

His successor, Mr. Bedient, was graduated from Park College, Mo., in 1943 and continued with graduate work at the University of Michigan. He received his MA degree from the university in 1947 and has been a teaching fellow there for the past three years.

The appointment of Dr. Eva Hartzler of Belleville, Pa., as assistant professor of chemistry fills the vacancy left by the retirement of Dr. N. J. Brumbaugh and the subsequent promotion of Dr. Donald M. Rockwell to head the department of chemistry. An alumna of Juniata, Miss Hartzler received her Ph D degree from Old Student Gripes to Leave For Good If Conf. Resolutions Get OK From Faculty And Adm.

Some of the old Juniata student gripes may finally be chased, at least if resolutions passed at the 1950 Leadership Conference are carried through by the administration as proposed.

The College leaders who met at Camp Kanesatake September 15 to 17 hope to promote the social activities on campus by proposing to the administration that the old gymnasium be used for roller skating upon completion of the new building.

In the area of athletics, it was resolved that there be a system of training intramural officials in order to provide a sufficient number of referees for the intramural program. The following are the recommendations and resolutions passed at the student Leadership Conference:

We recommend that we leave it to the Calendar Committee to decide about the date for All-Class Night.

No Induction ofCollegeMen

Rule Applies For Length Of Term

According to Huntingdon local board number 75, selective service system, and information from President Ellis' office, no student of draft age currently enrolled at Juniata College and pursuing "satisfactorily" a full-time course can be inducted into the armed services.

Calls For Postponement

Regulation 1632.4 calls for the postponement of induction until the end of the academic year for all students who are enrolled at the College. This is provided that the draftee's draft board is assured of the student's actual enrollment and good standing in the College through letters from the registrar and dean of the College.

Students whose induction is postponed for the fall and spring terms may apply for further postponement to attend summer school provided that they are in the upper half of their classes.

These regulations do not apply to reservists who are subject to call at any time.

Reserves on Call

The local board here is presently inducting 21-year olds.

19 Prize Winners At Murphy Party

Nineteen Juniata students won prizes valued at more than $30 Tuesday evening at the Open House Party sponsored by Murphy's 5 & 10c store in Huntingdon.

Winners of the four door prizes of merchandise certificates were Jean Tait, $10; Bob Rauch, $10; Audrey Campbell, $5; and Joe Hackman, $5. Two hundred eighty-five Juniatians participated in the drawing, said Murphy Manager Paul Veon.

A treasure hunt with prizes of nylon stockings for girls and ties for boys was also held. Winners were Sara Apel, Nancy Bailey, Fritz Blets, Carol Borden, Peggy Brumbaugh, Tom Calhoun, Jack Dickey, Leslie Friedline, Carrie Lou Green, Harry Koehnlein, John Lenhardt, Art Shriver, Dott Taylor and Mary Taylor.

For laughs, a comic book "joke prize" was thrown in. It was won by John Kisel.

Entertainment was provided by The Cloistorians, a quartette made up of Ray Siren, Galen Keeney, Fred Stauffer and Bob Frain, who also was master of ceremonies for the party.

Faculty Reception Sat.

The faculty will extend its annual welcome to new and old students at their formal reception tomorrow night at 8:30 in the gym.

The following are serving on the planning committee: Edith Spencer, chairman, Violet Bartha, Helen Kiracofe, Jane Crosby, Frances Mathias, Prof. Donald Johnson, Dean Melvin Rhodes, Mike Snider and Dr. Harold Binkley.

No program has been planned other than dancing. Decorations will follow the theme of the Juniata 75th anniversary year.

The Challenge...

The 75th academic session of Juniata College has begun.

This will be a very important year not only in the life and history of our College but also in the history of man. The United Nations seems at last to be on the threshold of becoming a truly effective agency for collective security. However, the seriousness of our time is reflected in the vast re-armament programs of the west versus the east and the shooting war in Korea.

This year may well decide whether man must settle his differences by war or whether he can settle them around the conference table.

So you see, in this year of fear and uncertainty it is more necessary than ever for those of us here at Juniata College to approach our quest for truth with a seriousness equal to the seriousness of the times.

The Juniatian welcomes faculty and students to the Juniata family. We hope that you will make the best of this year at College.

The seriousness of the time demands it!

One of the most valuable suggestions to come out of Leadership Conference this year was that audible grace be given at the main meal of the day.

Although the plan has been in operation only a short time, it has greatly enriched our religious experience. It is to be hoped that many students will take it upon themselves to serve God and their College by offering grace sometime in the year.

Friendliness doesn't cost a thing but it pays big dividends!

This week a freshman commented, "I have never seen a friendlier place than Juniata." Another said, "I haven't met anybody that I don't like."

This is a good start—help make Juniata the friendliest College in Pennsylvania!

Senate Comm. Nominates Long Term Table Heads

A Senate committee nominated 46 long-term table heads Wednesday to serve as soon as table assignments can be made out. These persons will set the example for table manners and sociability.

They are: seniors, Charles Allison, David Armacost, Jay Benedict, Bill Bolt, Vera Compton, Hilton Hines, Ray Hollinger, Don Howe, Joe Hulgus, Cecilia King, Ray Kreider, Doris Mickle, Jack Middour, Howard Montgomery, Bob Rhodes, Bob Rotz, Clair Schaffner, Fred Shamlian, Vernon Showalter, Quayton Stottlemyer, Ray Tesi, Eela Mae Weist, Lois Fretz, Bob Elder, Phyllis Baughman and Eleanor Seese.

Juniors Nominated

At the Senate meeting Monday Edith Roberts was named to the social committee to fill a vacancy. Also Don Robinson, Ray Siren and Walter Bandurak were selected as announcers in the dining hall. Don Robinson is to serve as head announcer.

Announcements Regulated

According to regulations passed by the Senate, dining hall announcements are to be typed or legibly printed and handed in before the meal at which they are to be read.

The Senators decided to continue last year's practice of inviting non-resident faculty to eat in the dining hall with students and suggested that resident faculty be encouraged to invite students to eat at their tables.

Also the legislators gave the embryo dance band the go-ahead to organize under the direction of Prof. Brammer.

Women's House Lists Year's Plans

The Women's House Committee has planned a full program for this year. At the meeting this week, presided over by Ruth Kimble, committees were chosen and projects were planned.

Since Miss Kimble will be living in the Home Management House for six weeks, Doris Mickle was elected to be assistant chairwoman and is to be in charge during this period. The other officers are Lois Fretz, secretary-treasurer and Doris Harvey, fire chief.

The firelighting ceremony this year will be planned by a committee consisting of Eleanor Seese, Shirley Butler, Joan Weaver, Carrie Lou Green and Carol Cook. Bev Williams will handle invitations to the faculty for Sunday dinners.

Teas during exam weeks will be planned by Connie Sherman and Elinor Newcomer, while Cecilia King and Ginny Yohn will be in charge of the formal dinners. Entertainment for day students will be planned by Lois Miller and Marge Alleman. Jo Chiodi and Phyllis Link will direct club projects.

The Women's House Committee is composed of hall presidents and their assistants who were chosen by the women students last spring.

Cheer Squad Tryouts Mon.

Tryouts for the cheerleading squad will begin Monday in front of the gym. All interested students should report promptly at 4:30 in order to learn cheer motions.

The present squad includes Fred Stauffer, captain, Bob Frain, Ardelle Hemmig, Lois Miller, Lois Robinson, Marjorie Seidel and Connie Sherman.

TOMMY

Greetings Juniatians from your anonymous friend (?) Tommyhawk. Just as a warning to unsuspecting frosh and wayward upperclassmen, Tommy is watching you. Speaking of unsuspecting frosh, little do they know what is in store for them. But a word of advice to sophomores—the frosh number about 240. Rather uneven odds, Tommy would say.

Taking it for granted that everyone enjoyed his summer, Tommy is hard at work digging out choice bits of gossip and peering into personal life.

Merle Havard likes studying in the library and getting acquainted with Jerry Heinicke. It seems to Tommy that Ray Siren enjoyed a movie last week with our Windber beauty, Lorice Gehman.

Nancy Lee Bailey and Jack Dickey went to church Sunday evening. The next time Nancy don't forget your collection money.

Tommy is glad to see so many devoted couples still in our midst. To name a few—Nancy Shiffler and Fred Bretton, Della Fulton and Bob Volpitto, Portia Baugher and Glenn Felix, Ginny Masemer and Jay Benedict, Jane Abel and "Pap" Folk, Shirley Butler and Bud Rigos, Judy Shanabrook and Shorty Isenberg and even Joe Dobel has been seen regularly with his favorite strawberry blonde.

Bob Elder's mixer on Saturday turned out to be a mix-up, but Tommy gathered by the looks on quite a few faces it must have been fun. For instance Carroll Borden seemed to fascinate Bob Smith most of the evening. Audrey Campbell, Tommy thought you were off men or were you and Art Shriver only discussing the international situation on Saturday evening (Sunday, too!)

Tommy wants to know why Len Hickmen eats his dinner so fast. Could it be Lee, that you are eyeing the freshmen women.

It seems that the library induces romance. If anyone wishes to refute this feat see Claudia Ottosen or Sy Dubbel.

Tommy has noticed Betty Longwell gazing absently out the window lately. Grove City? The freshmen gals from Geiger House have made Chuck Knox their official sweetheart and pinned him with a nickname. Does their name fit you, Chuck?

Nancy Blanck actually likes to go to classes. It seems she thinks the freshmen have more than their quota of nice looking men.

Well, the gossip fairly well dispensed with. Tommy would like to give a word of advice to the frosh. Obey Chuck Allison, or else. Be sure that you know the Alma Mater, wear all your freshmen regalia and don't forget that cheery hello. Tommy has noticed that it could be a little more cheery. Oh, what lies in store for you culprits who disobey regulations.

Before ending this notorious column, Tommy wants to wish the football team a successful season. And remember, Juniatians, watch your step for Tommy is watching you!

Infamously,
Thomas Hawk

Illustrated Chapel Talk Mon. By Artist

Grant Reynard, artist, will speak in Chapel on Mon. For further information on Mr. Reynard see story below concerning his evening performance.

As a phase of the 75th anniversary community week, Dr. Harvey Green renowned author and lecturer, will speak in Chapel on Wed. Dr. Green, president emeritus of the Pennington School for Boys, taught English at Juniata from 1884 to 1888.

After attending West Chester State Teachers College, Amherst College and Harvard University, he received an MA degree from Dickinson College, an Litt D from Temple University and an LLD from Juniata. In 1921 he became headmaster at the Pennington School.

The speaker for Friday's Chapel service will be the Rev. John Marvin, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Lewistown.

Reynard's Works Hanging Here

Grant Reynard, one of America's contemporary artists, will present an illustrated lecture in Oller Hall, Mon. at 8:15.

Mr. Reynard visited the Juniata campus in Mar. 1948. At that time he made several paintings which now appear in the offices of Pres. Ellis, Harold Brumbaugh, Miss Spencer and others of the administration. These sketches and paintings will be exhibited in the Pa. Room of the Library sometime before Mon.

Born in Grand Island, Neb., Mr. Reynard studied piano in his childhood but soon changed to his main ambition in life—drawing. He later studied in Chicago and Europe and spent several summers painting and etching at the MacDowell Colony in N. H. He has taught art in schools all over the country.

Jackson Named As Ass't Football Coach

Cecil Jackson has been named as assistant football coach to the 1950 Indian eleven. He succeeds Bob Bayer, local businessman, who served in a similar capacity for several seasons. Jackson will help head coach Bill Smaltz with the line coaching duties.

A standout tackle and co-captain of last year's "best in history" team, Jackson is now attending Juniata as a special student. "Cece", as he is popularly known, is married and resides in Huntingdon.

Jackson transferred to Juniata from Penn State three years ago, but had to wait until his junior year to become eligible for football. In his two playing seasons, "Cece" has been named to AP all-state teams. Injuries have forced him to give up his remaining year of eligibility.

Intramural Football To Begin Mon. Afternoon

The Intramural Touch Football League is tentatively scheduled to get underway on Monday according to chairman of athletics Bob Keim. This will be the first of several sports for the fall season.

Prospective managers are asked to sign for their teams on the sheet provided on the Students Hall bulletin board. The deadline for signing is Saturday noon. If enough interest is shown, a schedule will be drawn up over the weekend with play beginning on Monday.

Tough Titans On Rebound; Lose Opener

Juniata without Mike Dzvonar plus Westminster without Dick Wharton equals a toss-up. This seems to be the consensus as the Indians head west for their opening test at New Wilmington tomorrow. Actually, Westminster is not without Wharton since he has been appointed backfield coach of the 1950 Titans.

Westminster already has one game under their belts, having dropped a 19-6 decision to Slippery Rock last Saturday. However, the mere fact that the Titans scored against the Teachers indicates strength since it marked the first time in seven meetings that they had adverted a shutout. Westminster has not defeated Slippery Rock in 16 years.

Teachers Are Jinx

As Coach Bill Smaltz put it, 'Slippery Rock is their jinx team. They seem to fold up at the mention of the name. But don't worry, that opening defeat will only make them stronger against us."

"They have a heavy, rugged line this year," Smaltz continued, "and their backfield is very fast. It was bad breaks which led to their defeat by Slippery Rock."

Both schools lost heavily through graduation last Spring. Westminster lost 11 lettermen and 18 men in all, while 13 lettermen are missing from College Hill. Freshmen are expected to play a big part in plugging these holes both at Westminster and JC.

Use T-Formation

Coach Mel Hetzler's charges work out of a T-formation, and use the two platoon system extensively. With only seven lettermen returning, Hetzler must replace the center of his line, having lost both guards and a center from last year's squad, and must fill the fullback and quarterback slots in the backfield.

Returning lettermen for the Indians include three Bobs, Wagoner, Morrissey and Smith, at end, tackles Don Brumbaugh and Joe Thomasburger, Coy Hicks and Gene Shaffer at guard and Jerry Africa at center. Returning to the backfield are Phil Chabody at wingback, quarterback Dick Young and fullbacks Mike Mervis and Joe Dobal.

Several Injuries

Injuries may force several players into limited action only. Don Brumbaugh is still recovering from a dislocated elbow. John Thomas, freshman end, is shelved with a broken arm. Mike Mervis' back is still not what it should be. And so it goes.

As usual, Coach Smaltz is withholding his starting lineup until game time. It is expected, however, that many players will see action in this first game.

Opponents Scores

Slippery Rock 19, Westminster 6
Susquehanna 27, Lycoming 0

Rhodes Plans Course To Aid Job Hunters

Plans for a course to aid seniors in securing jobs were introduced in a senior meeting yesterday by Melvin Rhodes, dean of students.

By this method Dean Rhodes will do for the group what he formerly did individually: "to teach seniors to seek their own employment."

This course will be entirely voluntarily Dean Rhodes said, but those who begin it must attend regularly. It will be held Monday evenings.

Limited to seniors, the course will run 15 to 20 weeks, depending upon the amount of time students wish to devote to various topics.

Topics scheduled for discussion include "The Occupational Outlook for College Graduates," "How to Write a Successful Application Letter," "Preparing for the Interview," "Making the Interview Pay Off," and "What Employers Want."

Two JC Policies To Be Stressed

Morley Mays, dean of students, has announced more strict enforcement of two College policies. These include Chapel attendance three times a week and application for excuse forms—the familiar "yellow slip."

Routine notices will be sent to a student after he has missed three unexcused Chapel services. In case of any mistake in the recording of attendance, the student should report the error to the Dean of Students office.

After six absences, the student will automatically be denied the registration privileges. The student may plead his case (telling his reasons for absence and his attitude toward future attendance) by writing to the Personnel Counselling Committee, c/o Dean of Students Office.

At a recent meeting this committee approved a new plan for securing yellow slips. The College nurses or doctors must approve the application for permission to make up assignments for those students who have been ill. Other excuses, such as illness or death in the immediate family, College approved activity or emergencies, must still be approved by the deans.

After the excuse has been presented to the teachers, it must be returned to the Dean of Students Office within one week.

The Juniata Christian Association council held a conference last Saturday at Newton-Hamilton to organize its membership drive which opened last Monday and to formulate plans for its initial year.

Regular meetings of the association are scheduled for Tuesday evenings.

In addition, there will be several weekend conferences to be held throughout the coming year. They will deal with Christian Heritage, World Relatedness, Personal-Campus Affairs and Social Responsibility.

The organization, which replaces all former religious groups on campus, plans to arrange vocational guidance and marriage counselling for Juniata students. The association also hopes to establish a date bureau on College Hill.

Ten Juniata Couples Marry This Summer

June 4, Jim Moore was married to Betty Jane Curry in Johnstown.

Phil Chabody and Florence Haight were married in Huntingdon on June 10.

The same day Holmes Royer married Phyllis Delhamer in York.

June 11 was the wedding day for Jim Mauery and Joyce Lose.

Aug. Had Its Share

Fran Harmon and Bill Bateson were married in Baltimore on Aug. 26.

Aug. 27, in Alexandria, Bill Conrad married Georgia Ann Wolfhope.

That same day in the same town Gene Shaffer was married to Connie Phillips.

Gwen Nyce, '49, and Gerry Hartzel's wedding day was Sept. 2. They were married in Soudertown.

In Westminster, Md., on Sept. 10 Elsie Beard and Bob Lowry, '50, were married.

Sept. 16 was the wedding day for Bill Carpenter who married Madelyn Young in Phila.

Volume Twenty-seven Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa., October 6, 1950 Number 2

75th Ann. Honored Sat. with Special Day, Dance

Community Day, the first in a series of events celebrating the 75th anniversary of the founding of Juniata College, will be sponsored tomorrow by the radio comm.

The purpose of this special day, according to comm. chairman Betty Longwell, is to "re-emphasize the interdependence of the College and the town and county of Huntingdon."

Representatives will be chosen by Huntingdon's leading clubs to be the radio committee's guests for the entire day.

After attending morning classes, the representatives will be guests of the College at lunch. Then they will be invited to attend the Juniata-Hartwick football game.

At 8:15 p. m. the delegates will adjourn to the gym for the first College social of the year.

One feature of this party will be a quiz program designed to test of audience's knowledge of Juniata and Huntingdon. Quizmasters will be Bob Champion and Jack Ulsh. Prizes for winners will be donated by Huntingdon merchants.

Dancing and refreshments will follow this entertainment.

Other guests will be members of the 75th anniversary committee's sub-comm. on civic affairs.

Skinner Comedy To Be Presented Nov. 3 and 4

A nice young lady all of 19 years old decides it's time she were "emancipated." Her girl friend agrees. And so off they go to Paris for an "education."

At this point the curtain rises on the latest Masque production, the comedy Cornelia Otis Skinner wrote about herself entitled "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay."

Climaxing the Parent's Day events, the play will be presented Nov. 3 and 4 with the following cast:

Phyllis Link as the about-to-be-emancipated traveler, Cornelia; Vera Compton in the role of her more naive friend Emily; Jack Malenke as her father, successful, actor Otis Skinner; and Helen Wentzler as the only woman who can cope with Otis, his wife Maude.

Others in the cast are Wilfred Norris, who plays De La Croix; Bill Korman, Leo: Joseph Dunn, Dick; Evelyn Clarke, Harriet; Elly Fo mwalt, Winifred; Judy Shanabrook, Therese: Betti Brumbaugh, Madame Eleze; Ray Siren, purser; Peggy Barrington, stewardess; Bob Rauch, admiral; and Homer Evitts, steward.

Students Forming J.C. Dance Band

The Juniata dance band, composed of 12 to 14 "Juniata Joes," will make its debut in the very near future. According to its advisor and director, Prof. Jack Brammer, "We will begin as soon as we learn some music and begin to play together smoothly."

Music will be furnished by the school, while instruments will be provided by band members. So far four saxophonists, three trumpeters, two trombonists, a pianist, a dummer and a bass player have signed up. There are also openings for another sax and guitar.

Until a constitution is written, the band will be under the jurisdiction of its parent organization, the Senate, which resolved it into existence one year ago. Where the band's first public appearance will be has not yet been decided, but the group has already gone into rehearsal.

Ellis, Yoder At Inaugural

Pres. Calvert Ellis represented Juniata at the inauguration yesterday of Dr. Milton Eisenhower as pres. of Pa. State College. Prof. Paul Yoder, Juniata asst. prof. of physics, also attended as a representative of McPherson College, Kansas, from which he received a BA degree in 1921.

Carlos Salzedo

Harpist To Give Recital Friday

Carlos Salzedo, internationally acknowledged as "the greatest figure in the contemporary harp world," will present a free harp public recital in Oller Hall next Fri.

Mr. Salzedo is the only harp virtuoso who has appeared repeatedly as soloist with such major orchestras as the New York Philharmonic, Boston. Chicago, and Cleveland orchestras.

Began Piano at 3

Now an American citizen, Mr. Salzedo was born in France of Spanish descent. Under the influence of his father, a singer in the Paris Grand Opera, and his mother, a pianist, the child began studies when he was three years old and made his concert debut at the age of five.

Young Carlos was enrolled at the Paris Conservatory where, along with his piano lessons, he began the study of the harp. At the age of 16 he was awarded "premier prix" for both piano and harp, an unprecedented record at the French music school.

Discovered by Met

After being graduated, Mr. Salzedo began a recital tour, playing both the piano and the harp. It was then he was discovered by Gatti Casazza, then the director of the Metropolitan Opera.

Within the four years since he had become first harpist in the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra under the direction of Toscanini, the reputation of this brilliant young harpist had grown so rapidly that he was able to resign from the orchestra and devote himself to his own solo recitals and to composing new works for the harp.

(Editor's Note: Next week's issue of The Juniatian will include Mr. Salzedo's program for his Oller Hall recital.

Journalists Hear Editor

The editor of the Bedford Gazette, Hugo Frear, spoke yesterday to the advanced composition (journalism) class.

Seniors Sponsor Pep Rally, Parade Tonight At 7:15

Starting the first home football game of the year off with a bang, the senior class is sponsoring a pep rally tonight beginning at 7:15 on Founders Porch.

Team co-captains and several other campus personalities will be on hand to speak on a program with Fred Shamlian as master of ceremonies. Led by the band, JC students will then march downtown to the Huntingdon Hotel to serenade the members of the opposing football squad. Those who wish to do so may bring torches to carry in the procession.

Following this, there will be a bonfire at Round Top where an effigy will be burned and the students will be introduced to some new cheers. Refreshments will be supplied by the senior class.

Members of the class of '54 are required to be present at this rally. All other students are urged to support the evening's activities.

JCA Will Show Film At Meeting

Charles Crist, of the American Leper Mission, will be the speaker at the next JCA meeting scheduled for Tues.

Beginning at 7:15 p. m. Mr. Crist will show movies in Founders Chapel on work in leper colonies.

The JCA has also planned a candle-light vesper service to be held in Oller Hall Sun. from 6:30 to 7 p. m. A faculty member will present a short devotional message at this meeting.

Tues. the first mass meeting of the association was held. Following a short worship service at which The Rev. Marlin Bottiger of the Pa. Industrial School spoke the commission heads of the organization presented their plan of action for the coming year.

A non-student JCA advisory board was approved by the association members at this meeting. Under the chairmanship of Prof. Wayne Glick, the board consists of Pres. and Mrs. Calvert Ellis, honorary members; Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Crosby; Dr. and Mrs. Morley Mays and Prof. and Mrs. William Engel.

Library To Hang C. C. Ellis Portrait

A portrait of the late Dr. Charles C. Ellis, President Emeritus of Juniata College, is now in the possession of the library and will be hung sometime in the near future. Painted in 1938 by E. Abeking, it was a gift from Dr. and Mrs. Charles Evans, whose three children graduated from Juniata.

First presented to the college in a ceremony in 1938, the portrait remained with Dr. Ellis until his death.

Mrs. Rowland Joins Faculty

Mrs. Luella Rowland, wife of Prof. Charles L. Rowland, has joined the Juniata faculty this fall as instructor in the fundamentals of English and English conf.

After receiving a BA degree in English from Juniata, Mrs. Rowland continued her education at Columbia University where she received an MA degree.

Mrs. Rowland has previously taught at Kutztown State Teachers College and Elizabethtown College.

Home Ec Conf. Here Oct. 12

For the first time in the history of Juniata College the home economics province workshop will be held on this campus from Oct. 12 to 14.

Two invitations have been sent to home economics clubs at 61 colleges. Students from Pa., Del., Md., N. J., N. Y., Va. and W. Va. will attend the workshop to discuss plans of vitalizing college home economics club programs.

JC To Send Two

Ruth Armentrout, president of the Lambda Gamma, and Miss Gertrude Butler, home economics instructor at Juniata, and Miss Hazel Haskett, club advisor at New York University, will serve as co-advisors for the conference.

The workshop opens Thurs. night with a get together in the I. Harvey Brumbaugh House. The guests will spend Thurs. and Fri. nights at hotels and faculty homes.

Delegates To Eat Here

Discussions will begin in the Old Chapel Fri. morning. The girls will eat both lunch and dinner in the College Dining Hall. The advanced foods class will hold a tea in their honor Fri. afternoon, and that night they will attend the harp recital in Oller Hall.

Everything that was discussed on Fri. will be reviewed Sat. morning. In the afternoon they will travel to Big Valley for an Amish dinner. Upon returning to Huntingdon, they will take an hour and a half tour of the Swigart Museum before their departure.

Training Course to Aid Job Hunters

Dean Rhodes will begin his training course to help seniors in their task of securing positions, Mon., Oct. 9.

The course will survey job opportunities available in several professions which are of interest to Juniata graduates. After this initial survey, the class will consider the supply and demand for professionally trained people in selected fields of specialization.

Also it will consider how much advanced training a college graduate needs in his field in order to be in the "wanted class of employees."

Dean Rhodes' students will also be encouraged to note "the competitiveness of job seekers, and the requirements in the way of qualification and self-presentation in obtaining employment."

In order to accomplish this, Dean Rhodes is prepared to present to the group methods and sources of information relating to this subject.

Yearbook Pictures Due Soon

The individual picture schedule for the Alfarata will be posted soon. Seniors and juniors are asked to check the bulletin board for their picture appointment.

Video Out, But Senate ok's Movies

The Senate ruled as "impractical" Monday night a suggestion that the College secure a television set. However, they made other recommendations which they felt would be of more value to all students.

They recommended that the administration purchase a new movie projector for Oller Hall. It was the opinion of the twelve that the present equipment is old and inadequate.

Also the Senators recommended that the administration investigate the fire alarm and fire-fighting equipment in the Lodge and in other campus buildings.

A third recommendation asked that the administration look into the possibility of repairing the radio in the Social Rooms.

The men's house committee and the orchestra constitution were approved by the student lawmakers.

Tues. Is Dues Day; Collections—8 to 1:30

Dues Day will held Tues. for the purpose of collecting all class dues. Representatives from each of the four classes will be on duty at a table in front of Students Hall from 8 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. only.

The sum to be paid is decided by each class; and the four class presidents have submitted the following amounts: seniors and juniors, $1 per semester and sophomores and freshmen, $.50 per semester. Students are asked to bring exact change in order to facilitate the collection.

Class dues are collected to pay for class parties and a gift to the College at the end of the senior year.

Why Paint?---'I Like It'

by Carol Cook

When Grant Reynard, who lectured here Mon., was a member of the grade school set, he studied piano and composition. But during recitals his foot jumped around on the pedal too much, so he decided that he would seek the glory of the world in a less nerve-wracking way.

So he became an artist.

He started out by copying pictures from magazines and books. Then, as he said, "I became more courageous, and I began drawing characters in my town."

Became an Illustrator

Then followed a correspondence course in art, a year at the Chicago Art Institute, three years at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, and several successful years as a commercial illustrator.

However, he stated, "I decided that this wasn't what I really wanted to do. I wanted to paint for myself."

So taking brush and copper plate, he turned to painting and etching.

"But, even the most famous artists don't sell enough to live," Mr. Reynard stated. "So they become teachers or lecturers or illustrators on the side." Mr. Reynard chose teaching as his on-the-side job, and taught at Grand Central School in N. Y. City and the Millbrook School, N. Y.

Will Teach At Art Museum

During the coming winter the artist-etcher will be teaching at

(See Reynard—, Page 4)

Wed. Will Be Mountain Day

by Marj Seidel

"No more lessons; no more books"—for next Wed., that is. That day the Juniiata Indians will leave ther camping grounds to celebrate the annual Mountain Day.

The site for this year's outing will be Greenwood Furnace, an ideal setting beyond McAlevy's Fort and approximately 25 miles from here.

Spruce Creek Next Year

According to the four year cycle of sites chosen for Mountain Day, Spruce Creek would be the next in order for this year. However, due to the detour to Spruce Creek, the sites for this year and next year have been reversed.

All students, faculty and administration and their wives and families are invited to attend. Buses will leave from the front of Founders at 8:30 Wed. morning. In case of rain, the outing will be postponed until Thurs.

Plan Transportation Mon.

Students should be ready by Mon. in Chapel to tell whether or not they need transportation to Greenwood. All students with cars are urged to use them and take other students needing transportation.

Activities at Greenwood will include a two hour hike, lunch and games.

The committee in charge of Mountain Day arrangements is composed of: Prof. Paul Yoder, chirman, Mike Snider, Frances Mathias, Lorena Hebrank and Bob Keim.

Danger ... Inflammable

The fire alarm system and the fire-fighting equipment in the Lodge are not in proper functioning order.

This fact was brought up in the Senate meeting Mon. and investigation bears it out as true.

The bell alarm system does not work. This is probably due to dead batteries.

Moreover, the wire which is supposed to set off the alarm when exposed to heat is completely severed in the shower room. Additional wire seems to be on hand but not in use.

Five of the six "fire extinguishers" in the building are dry. The sixth is half full.

Not "Calculated Carelessness"

Now we don't believe that this is "calculated carelessness" on the part of the adminstration. However, the fact remains that the administration and the business manager's office have been made well aware of the problem on several occasions.

The Lodge is constructed entirely of combustible materials and it is not pleasant to speculate on what could happen to its 84 occupants if fire should come in the middle of the night.

Incidentally, the fire prevention and control system in the Cloister seems also to need investigation. Hoses are rotten and full of holes. Also some alarm stations have no hammers with which to break the glass.

Should Investigate

These things being so, we would suggest that it might be profitable for the administration to investigate this situation.

Also we feel that the administration and student leaders should take the initiative in organizing fire drills in the mens dorms, particularly in the Lodge. Fire drills are held in the girls dorm and are evidently deemed essential.

Projector Needed!

Winston's Dictionary defines as necessity "that which is indispensable, unavoidable, or obligatory." It defines luxury as "anything pleasurable but not necessary."

We realize that fifty years ago the "talking pictures" were a "pleasurable but not necessary" item. However, in this 20th century where so much more is required of us in knowledge and in understanding, motion pictures have ceased to be a luxury but are indeed a necessity.

It is in the light of the importance of motion pictures for healthful recreation and for education that we ask the administration to view the Senate recommendation that new projector equipment be purchased for use in Oller Hall.

Machines Inadequate

That the present machines are woefully inadequate for an auditorium as large as Oller Hall is demonstrated by the dark, gray appearance of all films that are shown there. It is also demonstrated by the strained and tired eyes of spectators who cannot make out what is going on and by the large numbers of students and faculty who do not take advantage of films because of the eyestrain and sight frustration involved.

The social committee has scheduled at least four feature films this year. Will those faithful movie-goers have to brave dark and indistinguishable figures again this year? Will students and faculty stay at home to avoid eyestrain and headache.?

Answers Soon?

These are questions which will be answered soon. We hope that the administration will see its way clear to make some commitment on this question.

Otherwise, the great classics that can and will be brought to Juniata will go a-begging for the want of adequate projection.

Poll Shows Film Equipment Poor

Out of 178 students and faculty voting in The Juniatian Poll Tues. on the question of whether the projector equipment in Oller Hall is adequate, 148 or 83% voted no.

Only 30 or 17% felt that the machines were adequate.

"Do you think that the College should purchase new equipment?" was a second question. One hundred seventy-one voted on this question. The results were: yes, 167 or 98%; no, 4 or 2%.

A third question was whether students would go to see recreational and educational films if they were brought here. Yes, 98%.

Arclight Projector Superior

Under the section for remarks students and faculty commented that the arclight projector sampled last year was far superior to the present equipment. Many suggested that a new screen would help.

One polee wrote, "The light source doesn't seem to be strong enough for the films I've seen. It's very hard on the eyes. Many of the films could be enjoyed if presented with equipment which would bring out detail and eliminate eye strain."

"Terrible," was one comment on the equipment. Some said also that the sound reproduction was not good.

Should Be Up-to-Date

Others said that films should be "up-to-date" and not outmoded." That " we need more good films—modern and classic."

In Skips, where all great problems of state are settled, I noticed the great male thinkers all conglomerated into one great mass. I call them thinkers, because, as they eyed the opposite sex, sparks of thought seemed to arise from that cranial section known as the head. These philosophers think subjectively from an objective point of view.

The young Republicans have sent Harry Martin, an immigrant from New York, to run for president of the freshman class. Campaigning is now in progress, and he is carefully studying Dewey's last victory speech.

Miss Mathias is feeding us all those carrots for the benefit of lovers who have trouble seeing their way in the dark.

Recent statistics show that the Infirmiry has taken care of more men in the first two weeks of school than it did all last year. After seeing Nancy smile, I understand why. "Doc" Patterson has listed many of the high fevers as "infatuosis feminosis."

"Tee for Two" is fast becoming the favorite of Art Allen and Sarah Keller. Nancy Meyers and her beau "Franko" are reviving that old hit, "Slipping Around." Bill Hanson is trying to apply for license as justice of the peace. He says, "I hope to put an end to all frustration." Marriage counselors state that a fellow should date at least 50 girls or ladies before he loses his reason and marries. From the looks of things Leonard Hickman filled his quota the first two weeks of school.

The Kid from Colon should slow down to a mere Semi-Colon.

The faculty reception committee should be lauded for their fine work of decorating the gym and also for their tact. The dance floor was just slippery enough to make my girl hold on tight. Now what more could a guy ask for???

Free swimming instructions will be given to any co-ed who desires such. The location will be the site of the new gym—after the next rain.

Notice to freshmen: Juniata's dances reach the maximum of semi-formal affairs, and the music consist of a number of top-leading bands which have passed on to greater heights. And you must understand that for the convenience of their fans, their music is relayed by special wire. In times of inflation, financial considerations out-weigh all others.

That's all for now, but I'll be "Seeing You In My Schemes."

With Love,
Tom

Indians Meet Hartwick Tomorrow In Home Opening Game

THREE BOBS—Morrissey, Smith and Wagoner, have definite assignments in Coach Bill Smaltz' plans for 1950. All three are ends, and each won his letter last year. Morrissey is a six foot, 180 pound senior, married, a proud papa, and lives in The Village. Smith, younger brother of last year's George, is 5'11", weights 165 pounds, and resides in Huntingdon. Wagoner hails from Johnstown (Ferndale High) and is a 5'11", 160 pound sophomore.

Seek First Victory; Risk 6-Game Perfect Record With Iroquois

The Warriors of Hartwick College will provide the setting for tomorrow's College Field football opener. Both teams will enter the fray in quest of victory number one, each having lost its initial start.

Hartwick opened their season two weeks ago when they dropped a tough 18-14 decision to Kings College. The Iriquois enjoyed an open date last weekend while the Indians were losing to Westminster in their opener.

Sixth Meeting of Series

This will be the sixth meeting of the two tribes since 1937, and in each contest the tribe from College Hill has been victorious. Furthermore, Hartwick has scored a total of only 12 points in the six games, half of them coming in last year's 26-6 romp by the Indians.

But past performances mean nothing. Hartwick was plagued by serious injuries last season which removed several stars from the lineup for the entire season. This year the key men are back in the fold.

Heading the list of Hartwick's bullwark is triple-threat star Eddie Gates. Fullback and co-captain. Gates was out with injuries for most of last season, as was Rog Bauman, 9.9 second sprinting back. These two, along with Morrie Axenfeld and Fran Cardillo, six foot-200 pound end and center respectively, are expected to spearhead the Warrior's attack.

No Opening Game Injuries

Meanwhile, the Braves of Juniata are fairly well intact after their struggle with Westminster. Jerry Africa was badly shaken up during the game and was removed to a New Castle hospital. Observations showed no serious injury, however, and he is expected to start tomorrow.

Don Brumbaugh and John Thomas are still sidelined with pre-season arm injuries, though Brumbaugh may see limited action tomorrow. Mike Mervis missed the Westminster fray and probably won't see much action tomorrow. In addition, several players are nursing minor injuries and bruises of the charley horse variety, but are expected to be ready for the Hartwick battle.

Hartwick football is noted for its wide open tactics. This, matched against the single wing of Juniata, should provide a most interesting contest.

Chabody and Hicks Named Co-captains

Hicks Chabody

Phil Chabody and Coy Hicks have been named co-captains of the 1950 grid team in an election conducted by their teammates. Both men have been standouts for Juniata during the past three years. They succeed Mike Dzvonar and Cece Jackson who captained the 1949 team.

Chabody will start tomorrow at wingback, the position at which he has played for the Indians since he joined the team. Phil is a 23 year old senior, is married, and hails from Johnstown.

Hicks is the vanguard of the Indians' line. He is of the "watch-charm" variety, but one of the finest for his size in the business. Coy is a 21 year old senior and resides in Huntingdon.

Chabody and Hicks both are three-time J winners, the only players on the team in that distinctive class.

Smaltz Team Adds 8-lb Star Tues.

A new fan was added to the Bill Smaltz household this week. Last Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Smaltz presented the Indian's coach with an eight pound baby daughter. Bill spent most of the afternoon handing out chocolate bars in place of the customary cigar, as he happily shouted, "It's a girl".

This is the second child born to the Smaltzs since their arrival at Juniata. The first, Bill, Jr., is now 19 months old.

Extra Points Defeat Indians 13-12

The Juniata Indians lost their initial game of the 1950 season to a strong Westminster eleven at New Wilmington last Saturday. After taking a convincing 12-0 lead at halftime, the charges of Coach Smaltz were baffled in the second half as Westminster scored twice to win 13-12.

The Warrior's powerful single wing formation, highlighted by the brilliant running of Joe Dobal and the passing of "Lundy" Loschiavo, continually overwhelmed the Titans during the first half. The hard charging Coy Hicks and Ron Clapper continually ran through the Titans forward wall to break up their offensive power.

Dobal Scores First

Starting with Phil Chabody's pilfer of Dick Banick's pass on the Westminster 38, the Braves started to roll. On seven plays, Loschiavo and Dobal carried for two first downs to the alien 17. "Lundy" then passed to "Bucko" Morrissey on the nine and from there Dobal cracked over for the score. Segalovich missed his first try for conversion and Juniata led 6-0.

Minutes later, after the Warriors held for downs on their 45, Loschiavo again took to the air. He hit Chabody again for 28 yards to the enemy 37 and a first down. Successive passes to Dick Young, for 12 yards, and Bob Smith, for seven more, set up a first down on the Titans one-yard line. "Lundy" promptly broke off tackle for Juniata's second TD. The locals chance for an eventual tie was eliminated when Jim Cooley broke through and blocked Segalovich's try for the extra point. Juniata led, however, 12-0.

Sistek and Campbell Hurt JC

The second half was in complete reverse. Westminster's two platoon system was too much for the rapidly tiring Juniata eleven. Sistek and Campbell, who had been thorns in the side of the Indians in the first half, really made things rough in the home stretch.

Westminster took the kickoff and promptly marched 69 yards to score, taking but eight plays to do it. Campbell carried for 30 and 18 yards during the advance, finally scoring from the three. Ron Clapper blocked Hoaglund's attempted drop kick for the extra point and the score read Juniata 12, Westminster 6.

Titans Score On 3 Plays

After "Reds" Orler punted beautifully to the Westminster 46, the Titans moved into high gear. Taking only three plays, the home team scored the tying touchdown. Mantz dashed 37 yards to the 20 and the pesky Mr. Campbell circled left end for the remaining 27 and his second TD of the afternoon. Sistek's placement was good and Westminster led, 13-12.

With their backs to the wall, the Indians mustered the fight they had left and put up a futile attempt for a late score. An Orler pass to Segalovich set the ball on the enemy six with the clock running out. After a five-yard penalty, Chabody made a great catch of another Orler pass, only to have the play and the TD nullified because he was out of the end zone. In the waning moments, Segalovich's try for a field goal went wide, and time ran out with Westminster the victors, 13-12.

Campus Clubs Are Buzzing Despite Infancy Of School Year

By Dottie Hummer

The fall semester is only two weeks old, but campus clubs are already buzzing in every corner.

The Outing Club has held several meetings and is getting prepared for a successful year. The purpose of Wednesday's meeting was to initiate new members and acquaint them with the point system. These points are earned by working at the cabin and attending club meetings.

Miss Hummer

Membership cards will be issued to new members, while permanent members who have gained their 50 points will receive sweater emblems.

At this past week's meeting the purpose of the Club was fully explained. Next Wed. the constitution will be read.

IVCF Meets

Thurs. at 7 p. m. the Inter Varsity Christian Fellowship held their weekly meeting in the Women's Day Student Room. Fred Stauffer led a discussion on I John, Chapt. 2. Although next week's leader is, as yet, unannounced, thoughts will be centered around Chapt. 3.

A group of Juniata students, as well as Bucknell and Mansfield, spent a very profitable weekend at the Penn State Campus Conf. Dr. Francis Steel, archeologist at the University of Pa, was the guest speaker. The main emphasis was on "How to Study the Bible." Other discussions were centered on helping others to become Christians, plus an interesting talk by Dr. Steel on his recent work at Iraq.

Parsons Speaks At Masque

The Masque extended an open invitation to new members at its meeting on Thurs. evening. Following a review of the club ideals and schedule for the year, George Parsons discussed his present work and his recent dramatic training at Penn State.

Clubs—Order Food Early Miss Mathias Suggests

Miss Frances Mathias, College dietitian, asked this week that all requests by clubs or groups for refreshments and special tables be made at least two weeks in advance.

This action is necessary because many of her food contacts are out of town and thus the kitchen cannot meet the many requests on short notice.

Also Miss Mathias requests that students and faculty contact her after the evening meal on the night the refreshments are to be used so that arrangements can be made for delivery.

In the past persons have had to wait in the kitchen all evening until someone showed up to make such arrangements.

Five From JC Announce Their Engagements

Several JC coeds have been sporting smug smiles, announcing that they have captured their respective men.

Several coeds on campus who have not yet spoken the "I do's" are now making plans to do so.

Elinor Newcomer has announced her engagement to Bill Shoaf of Uniontown.

Phyl Baughman has received a ring from Bill McCleaf of Hanover, Pa.

Also making "I do" plans are Ronnie Gravlie and Dave Kunz from Alexandria, Pa.

Lewis Whetzel, Beaver Springs, Penna. has pinned Mim Smith.

The secretary for Mr. Harold Brumbaugh, Vonnie Beaver, has announced her engagement to Fitz Saunders, Huntingdon.

Webster Production Of 'St. Joan' Nixed By Money Troubles

The Margaret Webster production of "St. Joan" originally set for presentation here Oct. 2 has been cancelled.

" . . . inability to continue to finance the productions . . . , from their private resources" forced Miss Webster and her group to cancel their entire tour this year. She says, however, that she "does not regard this as the end," and expects to resume the tours next season.

Last Nov. the Webster Players presented Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" here.

Reynard—

Mount Clare, N. J. Art Museum where for the past two years he has been chairman of the Art Committee.

This Was Fifth Lecture

This is Mr. Reynard's fifth lecture for the Assn. of American Colleges. He tours two months during one year, visiting two colleges each week, and spending two days on each campus. He has a series of three lectures which he presents using slides of his various painting, "Painting My Way Across the USA", "An Artist Draws N. Y.", and "Enjoyment of Art".

"I do most of my work in my car. You might say my car is my studio," Mr. Reynard said.

Works Hang In Museums

Having advanced beyond the copying-pictures-from-magazines stage, Grant Reynard is represented now in several of the leading United States museums, including the Metropolitan Museum, the Fogg Museum at Harvard University, and the Library of Congress.

He also has had several one man showings, and is a member of the American Artists Group which prints Christmas card paintings drawn by various group members.

Though winner of the Carrigan prize, Mr. Reynard stated, "I do not like the idea of awarding prizes for the best painting. I do not paint for winning awards, but because I feel a desire to paint."

Statistics also show that there are approximately three men for every two women on College Hill and that 60 J. C. students are married.

Men students fall into five registration divisions: 271 full time resident; 98 full time day; five part time day; six special; and one music.

For woman students the breakdown is: 194 full time resident; 30 full time day; four part time day; four special; and four music.

The second presentation of the series is "Papa Is All," to be presented Nov. 1. "The Male Animal" will be given April 27, 1951. Plays selected for production for the fall circuit were the most popular productions presented at Allenberry, Boiling Springs, Pa.

Richard Gage, Allenberry's managing director, will maintain an equity company of New York players throughout the year, sending one unit on the road with the current show while the other is rehearsing the next play at Allenberry.

Under the joint sponsorship of the Business and Professional Women's Club and the Huntingdon Kiwanis Club, a percentage of the proceeds of the production will go in financial aid to these service organizations for carrying on their work in the community. Tickets for the series are being sold by the sponsoring clubs to the public. However, students will be admitted on their activities cards.

Ellis Memorial Fund Now Totals $3,342

Contributions to the C. C. Ellis Memorial Scholarship Fund established two weeks ago now total $3,342, according to Harold Brumbaugh, assistant to the president.

This has been achieved, he added, through the generosity of friends of the Ellis family and of the College. No special campaign was used to promote the fund.

On the porgarm last week, representatives who visited the campus on Community Day discussed student attitudes, activities and relations between the College and the community.

Those participating on the program were Mr. Hetrick of the Woodcock Valley Lions; Mrs. W. E. Burket, Associated Clubs; and Mrs. Karl Knecht, AAUW.

Grad Schools Ask Early Application

"Seniors expecting to go to graduate schools next year should apply as early as possible," Dean Morley Mays has announced.

The dean advised that there is much to be gained by applying early, especially in view of the large numbers of students in the graduate schools of the country.

Typical advice from the graduate schools is the following from the Dean of the Graduate School of Yale:

"Students should send for information and instructions concerning the procedure of application early in their senior year, preferably in October or November. They should not hesitate to ask for information even though they may not be certain about their plans for graduate study.

"Many applicants are excluded from consideration because they start their applications after the places available in a department have been filled."

U N Week - A Time To Take Stock!

Oct. 16 to Oct. 24 is United Nations Week. Tues., Oct. 24 is United Nations Day, an international holiday.

During this week it is important for us to think about the many very notable contributions that UN has made to the cause of peace and to look at the glorious future which it can hold for all mankind.

In the five years of its existence the UN has prevented or ended wars involving 500 million people in areas such as Palestine, Kashmir and Indonesia. Through the moral influence of the UN the processes of conciliation and meditation have brought peace in troubled waters.

Real Test Came This Summer

The real test of the UN came this summer when Red-inspired North Koreans attacked the Republic of South Korea. Would the UN be able to check aggression in Korea—with force if necessary?

This question was answered when on June 25, UN authorized the use of its forces in Korea. Now the UN had come of age.

Compare the decisive, penetrating policies of the UN today in Korea with the hesitant. vascillating efforts of the League in the Manchurian crisis of 1931-33.

UN Forces Cross 38th Parallel

Consider the facts that the UN has authorized its forces to cross the 38th parallel in Korea to punish the aggressor and has already voted $34 million in economic aid for that country.

Furthermore, the U. S. has suggested a plan whereby all countries would earmark fighting units to be sent into action by the General Assembly whenever the veto of the Security Council bars action against aggression.

Despite what the cynics and warmongers say, the UN has made real progress in the areas of international co-operation and collective security.

We Should Ponder These Questions

As a member nation of this world organization it might be well for us to ponder these questions:

Are our leaders sometimes not as idealistic as we in their policies and actions?

Is our nation the united, confident force it should be in world affairs.

Are we prepared to share our wealth, our resources—our country with other peoples of the world?

Should the United States work more within the framework of UN for military and economic assistance to other nations and for the building up of an international army?

Are we willing to relinquish the title "top man" and work with other nations which may surpass us in industrial and material wealth?

Re-affirm Your Faith In Freedom

General Clay has said "what men believe to be true has been as important as the truth itself in determining human events."

The purpose of the Crusade for Freedom Drive which ends Sunday is to carry the truth to the nations behind the iron curtain by means of the Freedom Bell and Scroll and Radio Free Europe.

Asked To Sign Scroll

All Americans are being asked to re-affirm their faith in freedom by signing the Scroll and perhaps making a contribution to Radio Free Europe, the American people's radio station in Western Germany.

On United Nation's Day, Oct. 24, the Freedom Bell in the Western Sector of Berlin will peal out this message inscribed upon it's rim: "That this world, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom."

Millions of Americans will have their names enshrined in the base of the 10 ton bell as their testimony to the following "Declaration of Freedom:"

The Declaration of Freedom

"I believe in the sacredness and dignity of the individual.

"I believe that all men derive the right to freedom equally from God.

"I pledge to resist aggression and tyranny wherever they appear on earth."

Will your name be on the roll-call of those who are honestly dedicated to the cause of freedom?

How To Pick Your Homecoming Queen

by Fred Shamlian

There are times that primogeniture is negative when a succession of royalty is necessary. Thus at Juniata we have our chance to elect the Queen who would reign on Homecoming Day. The election, though it does not claim any international position of significance, should be considered on the same level since the Queen will exemplify the typical co-ed.

The drawing card for any election is the list of aspirants nominated for a specific post, and here at Juniata, the wild cards are removed to make the selection as perfect as possible.

Consider All Qualities

In the selection of a Queen one should not consider her physical qualities as the only royal asset. Personality, disposition and sincerity are just as important, since one is no good without the others.

Personality is that something which brings out the person. It is like a mirror in which the image can be seen by everyone except the person involved. Inasmuch as many mirrors are polished for certain important occasions, the same image is still apparent. When the time arrives to cast a ballot, be sure you've taken a good look.

A queen, like any other girl, can have many moods and temperaments. But a queen, unlike many woman, is one who can restrain the many moods that lower the dignity expected of one in royalty. It is apparent that the co-ed you want as a queen should be the lady who does not expect to be treated as a queen, but one who is, because of her attitude.

Sincerity Is A Bubble

Sincerity is a bubble which bursts leaving little beams of warmth and friendliness that make one feel glad the other person is around. There are always these sceptics who consider sincerity as not being in existence. We, being far from sceptics, believe in that quality which we seek in all peoples, and when we find it, we raise that person to a high position in life to become our ruler—as a king or queen.

It is impossible to cover in one essay all the qualifications for a queen, but on Homecoming Day, when credit is due, you the voters can be proud that your kingdom is ruled by a co-ed fit to be a Queen.

Atomic radiation, though it seems comparatively new, has been used since the days of Adam and Eve. It is a form of an electrical radiation caused by the fluttering of the eyelashes. Its direct result is a weakening of the male's reflexes and reasoning, and thus ultimate domination by the weaker-sex.

The history of man in many instances is traced by his use of words. I wonder what the historians will think ten-thousand years from now when they uncover the ruins of a primitive colony of Baldwin, New York. The words have peculiar ending such as MarkO, BuckO, and FrankO.

Anne Webber is Cooking up something very important. "Jocko" Sikes, the unassuming character, has many star-eyed lassies groomin for swoonin. Vernon Showalter is carrying out his duties of table head as perfect as Simon Legree. Jean Link has given up dating for waiting. Nevertheless, she's still on the go. Christner, Middour, and Marshka are the big three delegates on advanced social activities.

The caliber of Juniata's waitresse advances every year. If one notices the men, their eyes are more on the waitresses than the food.

It seems in many cases, that when materialism becomes the highest good man strives to make it his king and humanism a very meek subordinate. I hope Joe's king abdicates so we can get a better cup of coffee.

Say Jairo, is that mustache the continental touch? It seems to be spreading because Bill Hanson has swapped his razor for a pair of scissors in preparation to sway the public as agent for the Martin-for-President Campaign.

It seems that with all the U. S. fan mail, the only difference between a veteran and any other guy is that the vet had his training for standing in line.

What waitress is taking meat out of the mouths of hungry freshmen to feed her roommate's dog? Eh! Dagmar.

I leave you now. May your spirits be high and your marks the same.

As Ever,

Indians Fall To Hartwick; Face Crusaders Sat.

Dobal, Reese Score As Juniata Drops Second Straight

by Bob Myers

The Juniata Indians lost their second straight game to an underrated Hartwick team at College Field last Saturday. After leading 7-6 early in the second quarter, the Indians could not cope with the Iriquois' pass defense, and went down to defeat 20-13.

Midway in the opening period Joe Shattan, Hartwick end, took a 40 yard pass from Lew Bradley to set up Hartwick's first score with a first down on the JC 5 yard line. At this point, Rog Bauman hit the middle twice and finally went over from the two for the initial six-pointer. George Bills' placement was wide and Hartwick led 6-0.

Dobal Scores

Juniata immediately took to the offensive and scored on eight plays. Co-captain Phil Chabody ran three times on reverse plays and was good for 53 yards. "Lundy" Loschiavo completed a nine yard pass to Dick Young for a first down on the five. Seconds later, Joe Dobal scored on a plunge from the one. Tony Segalovich's placement split the uprights and Juniata moved out in front 7-6.

From here the game see-sawed back and forth until late in the second quarter when Ken Iyenaga intercepted one of Loschiavo's passes on the Juniata 45. Bennett threw to Shatton, good for 35 yards and a first down on the ten. After Bauman ran for two yards, Bradley again hit Shatton, this time with the latter standing unmolested in the end zone. Bills' conversion attempt was good and Hartwick held a 13-7 advantage.

Chabody Scores Two

With time running out in the first half, "Reds" Orler passed to Chabody for 33 yards; then to Phil again, who lateraled to Bob Smith, for 25 more and a first down on the ten. On the next play it looked as though the Indians had tied the score as Don Patricelli took a pass from Orler. But the officials ruled that Patricelli had caught the pass out of the end zone and the score was nullified. The half ended before another play could be started.

Juniata came soaring back in the second half on long gains through the center by Dobal. The advance was halted, however, when Bob Veitch pilfered the first of five Orler passes to be intercepted. After a series of plays put the ball in Indian territory, Eddie Gates threw a pass to Veitch on the 18 and he hurdled two would-be tacklers to score. Bill's placement gave Hartwick a 20-7 edge.

Orler To Reese For TD

The Indians covered 60 yards to paydirt in the final stanza as freshman Eddie Gould made two nice runs and took a pass from Orler, which, with the aid of a penalty, put the ball on the one yard line. After Juniata failed to cash in on three successive running plays, Orler flipped a jump pass to Bob Reese for a five yard touchdown. Segalovich's try for the extra point went wide. Two plays later the final whistle sounded with Hartwick in front 20-13.

Gym Construction To Resume With Arrival Of Steel Nov. 1

Workers will swing into action again in the construction of Juniata's memorial physical education building "on or about Nov. 1," according to Pres. C. N. Ellis.

He added that "the foundation is practically complete" but that work has been delayed by a revision in the original plans. Steel was substituted for wood in the main arches, which meant new drawings and an order for specially fabricated steel were required.

College business manager Paul Friend says that the bulk steel order has been placed "for some time" but that the order for the special steel was not processed until Aug. 1. Very little can be done until this material arrives.

Work Began June 19

Work began on the building June 19, after the College board of trustees awarded the construction contract to Ritter Brothers of Harrisburg. An additional contract for electrical work was given to Corcelius Electric Co., Huntingdon.

It had been hoped to keep construction costs within the estimated $250,000, but no bids were submitted which made this possible. Latest estimates indicate that a budget of "nearly $300,000" will be needed.

Mid-April Dedication Planned

Present plans call for dedicating the new gym in mid-April as one of the highlights of Juniata's diamond jubilee celebration. The building is a memorial to the 675 men and women of the College who served in World War II.

According to the summer Alumni Bulletin the new memorial physical education building will be "approximately 112 by 180 feet (in area) with a ground floor level and a mezzanine level. There will be a large main gymnasium area measuring 91 by 110 feet which include a varsity playing floor of 50 by 90 feet.

66 Lockers

"On the same level will be a general locker room, a varsity locker room with 66 lockers, shower and toilet areas, a supply and equipment room, a training room, and a heat room.

"Entrance through a memorial lobby will be at the mezzanine level. Off the lobby (which measures 20 by 34 feet) will be the director's office, a staff office and showers, ladies and men's rooms, and ticket booths.

4 Basketball Courts

"On the mezzanine level in the main part of the building will be two additional basketball courts on each side of the main floor but approximately 10 feet above it. This will provide four courts for simultaneous playing.

"Folding bleachers on the main floor will permit the seating of 1080 and space is provided for movable rolling gymstands on the mezzanine level to seat an additional 1080."

Invade Selinsgrove For Grudge Battle With Unpredictable S. U.

A third bid for victory will be made by the Indians tomorrow when they invade Selinsgrove for the annual grudge battle with Susquehanna University. The razzle-dazzle Staggs have been victorious in two of their first three starts.

This will be the ninteenth meeting between the two neighboring rivals. In the long series, Juniata has won seven and lost nine, while two contests have ended in deadlocks. The locals have scored one-touchdown victories over the Crusaders in each of the past two seasons, winning 13-6 in 1948 and 21-13 in last year's thrilling battle.

Crusaders Open Strong

Susquehanna opened their season with a convincing 27-0 decision over Lycoming College three weeks ago, and followed it up with a 6-0 win over Wagner. But last week the Crusaders were humbled by a strong Johns Hopkins University eleven, 34-0 to ruin any hopes for an undefeated season.

Under the reins of the father and son Amos Alonzo Staggs, Susquehanna has an offensive attack all of its own. Relying on speed and trickery, they use a spread formation which does not conform to any of the conventional systems employed by other schools. In addition, the Staggs have a wide open passing attack and much of their offensive yardage will be made through the air. In the opening game with Lycoming, passing accounted for a net of 116 yards.

Young Is Man To Watch

The passing and running of Richie Young is the chief threat of the Staggmen. In the Lycoming game, Young completed nine of 16 pass attempts, one of which set up a touchdown. The hard charging back also scored two touchdowns personally on running plays and was the afternoon's leading ground gainer.

Other backfield standouts are Ed Menapace, who has already scored two touchdowns this year, Ed Palkovich, punting specialist and Ken Lenker, defensive safety man who doubles on offense as a dependable pass receiver.

Chabody Injuried

Juniata injuries were at a minimum in last week's contest. Gene Shaffer and Bob Smith were both shaken up, but returned to action later in the game. Phil Chabody, however, received injuries to his ribs which will probably force him into limited action.

Coach Bill Smaltz has been stressing pass defense in this week's drills in preparation for the fancy aerial attack of Susquehanna. It was Hartwick's passing that contributed greatly to the Indian's downfall in last Saturday's game.

Brumbaugh Returns

The starting line for the Indians will probably remain much the same as last week. However, Don Brumbaugh has notified Coach Smaltz that he is ready to return to action and may break in at the tackle slot. Brumbaugh, a returning letterman, is recovering from a dislocated elbow, incurred during pre-season training.

The backfield lineup is still a big question mark, pending the condition of Chabody. In addition, several freshmen looked promising in last week's game and will be giving lettermen a battle for starting assignments this week. Coach Smaltz probably won't decide for sure until just before game tomorrow.

At any rate, the Indians face a tough assignment. Susquehanna is not to be taken lightly at any time and if the locals are to win they will have to show much improvement over last Saturday's exhibition.

Opponents Scores

Juniata lost its second straight start last Saturday, but they were not alone in defeat. In addition to Hartwick, who beat the Indians, only Haverford and Washington were able to record victories. For Washington it was their second straight and they have yet to be scored upon.

Four opponents, Grove City, Dickinson, Susquehanna and Westminster all joined the local eleven in going down to defeat. Lycoming College was not scheduled.

The scores:
Johns Hopkins 34, Susquehanna 0
Geneva 33, Grove City 0
Washington 32, Swarthmore 0
Haverford 20, Ursinus 12
F & M 7, Dickinson 0

IRC Hears Dolnikowski

An interesting talk on "Displaced Persons" was led by George Dolnikowski at the IRC meeting last night. After refreshments were served, a short reception was held for foreign students on the Juniata campus.

The IVCF also met last night in the Women's Day Student Room at 7:30 p. m. An analysis of I John, Chapter 3 was led by "Whitey" Schaffner. Several groups are making tentative plans to attend a Friday night meeting at Penn State in the near future.

6 Alfarata Posts Filled By Editor

Six Alfarata posts have been filled by editor Quayton Stottlemyer. They are Jerry Hartzel, business manager; Ray Hollinger, advertising manager; and Bill Carpenter, photo editor. Claire Schaffner and Bev Williams will edit the senior news, while Dallas (Duffy) Duffield will do the photographic work.

The style of the Alfarata will be slightly different this year, says the editor. The staff plans to make the yearbook more informal, thus providing an opportunity for more unposed snapshots.

2 Elected To Offices

In special elections this week, Ronald Berkebile was elected Village representative and Jack Trish was elected vice-president of the sophomore class.

Senate to Hold Open Meeting

The Senate will hold an open meeting in the Women's Day Student Room on Monday beginning at 8 p. m. All students are invited.

Lodge Fire-Alarm Fixed

The bell fire-alarm system in the Lodge was put in working order this week when the dead batteries were replaced.

Rally, Game, Show, Dance Fill Weekend Calendar

Homecoming weekend will begin to show signs of life tonight when the junior class puts on a pep rally, and will not reach a climax until the J Club dance tomorrow eve.

Between these two activities will be a program of activities which includes the traditional frosh-soph struggle for supremacy, a football game between JC and Haverford, the crowning of Miss Homecoming IV and a pre-dance variety program in Oller hall.

Pep Rally

Tonight at 7:15 p. m. a junior class promoted pep rally will get underway to help boost the Indian braves to victory over the invading Haverford Hornets. (See page 3.)

Students will meet at Founders steps for a short session of cheers led by cheerleaders and the band.

Torches will then be distributed to light the cheerers way in a march about town.

The evening will close on Round-Top with a bon fire. Cider and doughnut refreshments will be served.

Morning Activities

The activities of Homecoming Day proper will get underway at 9 a. m. when the registration center for campus visitors will open.

At 9:30 the traditional hockey game between freshman and sophomore girls will begin, followed at 10 by the men's frosh-soph touch football game and the underclass tug of war at 11. Class winning best in all three contest will have the privilege of placing their numerals on Lion's Back.

Big event of the afternoon will be the varsity football game and the crowning of Miss Homecoming IV at half-time.

Variety Program

Saturday evening at 8:15 the scene shifts to Oller Hall for a Home Varieties Program with alumna and students. Ray Siren will MC the attraction through these four divisions, representing four periods in Juniata's diamond jubilee history as listed in C. C. Ellis' book, "Juniata College":

1876-98—"The Humble Beginning"; The Cloistorians. Interlude—Glenn Cave, violinist.

1894-1924—"The Normal English Period"; Varsity Quartet. Interlude—Ray McHenry, trombone.

1924-43—"The Transition Period"; Junior Varsity Quartet. Interlude—Bob Brumbaugh, trumpet.

1943—Present and Future—"The College of Arts and Sciences"; ensemble under the direction of Cassel Coffman '48.

These periods will also appear as part of the half-time coronation program.

J Club Dance

At 9:15, following the variety program, the J Club-sponsored annual Homecoming Dance will be held in the gym.

The campus dance band under the direction of Prof. Jack Brammer will make its debut at this time, according to J Club president Art Allen.

Homecoming Queen Lois Miller will be the guest of honor and will be presented with a gift sometime during the evening, he added.

A simple blue and gold color scheme is planned for the decorations.

QUEEN FOR THE DAY—Lovely Lois Miller's every wish will be our command as she reigns over tomorrow's game and J Club Frolic.

419 Students Elect Queen

Lois Miller was elected Miss Homecoming IV in a Juniatian-sponsored election Monday. Four hundred nineteen ballots were cast by 68% of the eligible voters, as compared to the record number of 513 voters who appeared at the Homecoming Queen election polls last year.

Nicknamed For Home City

The new queen, nicknamed Tuckahoe in her freshman year in reference to her home city, is the second junior to win the royal mantle. She is a JCA commissioner, cheerleader ,member of the Women's House Committee, Camera Club secretary and has been a member of the hockey team for three years. Her major is sociology.

Juniata's anniversary queen (her subtitle since this is the 75th anniversary year of the college) will be given her royal crown at half-time in the Homecoming Day football game tomorrow between the Juniata Indians and the Hornets of Haverford. She will be the guest of The Juniatian at this event.

Gehman To Help In Coronation

The half-time coronation ceremony will be conducted by the new queen's predecessor, Gladys Gehman. Other details of the program are being kept secret, since a departure from the custom of past years is planned.

Saturday evening Miss Homecoming IV will be guest of honor at the J Club sponsored Homecoming Dance.

Vets May Keep GI Rights

A veteran in the reserves who is recalled to active duty while studying under the G I Bill will still be eligible for the benefits of the bill if he returns to training within a reasonable length of time.

However, the termination date of all benefits, July 25, 1956, will still be in effect, according to word received by the registrar's office from the Veterans Administration.

Official Explains Ticket Hold Up

Holdup on student tickets to "The Hasty Heart" Tuesday evening was due to a combination of misfortune and misjudgment which could not be avoided, according to Harold Brumbaugh, assistant to the president.

An original estimate that 250 tickets would be needed to supply student demand was given Kiwanis and BPW club officials, sponsors of the play, when the contract was signed for the three-play series. This figure was based on student attendance at similar events in the past.

Therefore there had to be last-minute arrangements made to accomodate the 294 college residents who wanted to attend the performance Tuesday.

(See Tickets—Page 2)

Senate To Hold Meeting Oct. 31

Election to fill the Senate seat of Chairman of Athletics will be held Tuesday, Oct. 31. Petitions went out Wednesday and will be collected next Wednesday.

At the open Senate meeting Monday in the Women's Day Student Room, President Showalter reported Administration views on Senate recommendations. According to the report, the College will continue to bear the expense of inviting non-resident faculty to eat in the dining hall.

Business Manager to Investigate

Also the business manager will look into the matter of the Social Rooms radio repair and the fire alarm systems. The projector question will be brought up at today's meeting of the Board of Trustees.

The Senate passed regulations to control the new dance band. They added that the dance band be available for six functions, namely, the Christmas and Spring Formals, the class parties, and at other occasions as the advisor and band see fit.

A petition from the music students that the closing hour at Swigart Hall be extended from 8 till 10 p. m. was acted upon favorably and a recommendation was sent to the President of the College.

Two Committees Appointed

Two committees were appointed by Senate Pres. Showalter—one to study the regulation of dining hall announcements, another to study the problem of class dues.

Women On Loose Beginning Monday

by Margie Alleman

Under cover, men! Twirp week on Juniata campus is almost here-but don't run too fast. Remember that "twirping" means " the lady pays" as well as "girl chases boy" (what's so new about that, anyway?).

No, this isn't just a rumor. Beginning next Monday the girls are definitely expected to give the men a rush, which includes anything from going to the movies to taking a walk.

For the benefit of would-be twirpers, the Lambda Gamma is sponsoring an informal dance in the WAA room Thursday evening.

Climaxing twirp week activities will be the Sadie Hawkins party on Saturday evening. According to Bob Elder, chairman of the social committee, an outside square dance will be the order of the evening. Jeans and plaid shirts are the appropriate garb for the festivities.

A mystery Sadie Hawkins, whose photographs will be around campus, will be unveiled at the party. The first one to guess her identity will lead the dance with her.

Reserves Call Keim

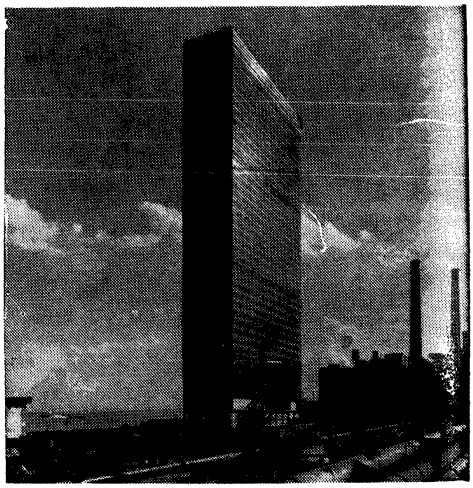
Bob Keim, Senate chairman of athletics, recently received Uncle Sam's regards, with an invitation to serve in the U. S. Army.

Keim, a member of the Army Reserves, is to arrive at Camp Campbell, Kentucky, on October 26.

Mathias Attends Dietetics Confab in Washington , D. C.

Miss Frances Mathias, institutional manager and assistant professor of home economics, has been attending the national conference of the American Dietetics Association in Washington, D. C. this week.

'Peace Capital'



A SYMBOL of the spirit of the United Nations is its modern glass, steel and concrete permanent headquarters, pictured above, which towers over New York's East Side. Already many units of the UN staff are housed in the 39 story office building. In two years the "peace capital" will be completed with the addition of the great auditorium and meeting halls which are rising nearby. The entire six-block site will be landscaped and the buildings surrounded by parks.

A Juniata Tradition

The dictionary definition of tradition is "any belief that owes its general acceptance to habit rather than to reason."

Now, Homecoming Day at Juniata seems to fit this definition rather well. It was established in 1922 so that alumni could come back to their alma mater and re-live a few moments of their college life with old friends and classmates.

All of the Homecoming activities, the football game, the J Club Frolic, the decorations, and even the crowning of Miss Homecoming have become traditional and even habitual at JC.

A High Point Of The Year

Homecoming with its many and varied activities is an established fact at Juniata—one of the high points of the year.

So we see that Homecoming satisfies one facet of our definition. The second part of the definition seems to imply a lack of reason.

The only thing non-reasonable about the affair of Homecoming will be the wistful looks and suppressed memories of youthful hope and anticipation of many of us who attended.

Brings Back Memories

For some it will bring back memories of times long past in the College history. For others it will mean the beginning of a new life out of College. For freshmen it will be the beginning of a colorful and memorable college career.

For all of us it should become a habit—a time to come back to Juniata and re-call past happiness.

Letters to the Editor:

Student Criticizes 'Hasty Heart' Ticket Policy

To the Editor:

It was curtain time at 8:30 last Tuesday but more than a few students had to wait until that time before they could be seated. This was because there was an insufficient number of tickets.

These tickets could be had by presenting one's activities card on Tuesday afternoon. That was the only time these tickets were available. What should those students who are busy in labs and otherwise do to get tickets, cut classes?

To accommodate those who couldn't get regular tickets, special tickets were to be distributed which would allow the holder entrance to the auditorium at 8:15. At 8:25 there was still a large group which had to wait until the curtain at 8:30 even though they had 8:15 tickets.

If tickets would be distributed throughout the day instead of just the afternoon and if a sufficient number would be available everyone would be satisfied. This would not only be a convenience to the student but would also to late coming ticket holders by overcoming the congestion.

Something should be done to make it easy, or at least not so difficult, for the student to attend such programs if he is willing to take time off from work to do so.

Respectfully,
Bob Asan

TOMMY

Tommy would like to dedicate this column to all the students who cheered for our team at Susquehanna, and to the team for a fine victory.

Saturday night proved rather interesting. Elder's party turned into a pleasant interlude of card playing, dancing and entertainment. Among the celebrated guests were Coy Hicks, who made some completed passes to Janet Boland, Kathy Kuehne, who desrves an orchid for dancing with more than one anxious stag, and Charley Redenberger, whose Irish tenor melted the hearts of his many feminine admirers. Edie Talbot was there trying out some Main Line maneuvers, but the music wasn't fast enough.

With music in the McHenry style, the college dance band should be something worthwhile listening and dancing to. Let's get it on the road, for the music Saturday night was perfect. It made one feel as if he or she were back in old Vienna when it was written.

Since Twirp week is soon to make its appearance, Tommy has prepared a list of eligible men for any interested co-ed. Howard Montgomery, Ray Siren, Walt Bendurak, Bud Kreider, and Don Howe.

Fred Shamlian and Beverly Chamberlain were seen following an old custom of strolling in the rain. This is the only time a Chamberlain was without an umbrella.

Selected writings for the campus scholar are being published. The first one being a complete history of Juniata titled, "Life in a Fogbank."

Betty Longwell is still working on the first sock for her Paul Bunyan. She hopes to finish the second one early in 1952. He takes a size fifteen—on each foot.

Maryland should be proud of itself for producing such co-eds as Peg Brumbaugh, Carroll Borden, and Sarah Keller.

There were many JC students at the theater in town last week when it showed twenty-seven cartoons. It just goes to show that some college students will do anything to advance their education.

Is it the custom of the Athletic Department to send Nancy Meyers to scout Haverford? By the way Nancy, was Harry very informative.

Till the next time I fly by your way, I remain your faithful friend,
Thomas E. Hawk

Tickets—

A printing company accident which delayed arrival of tickets here until Tuesday noon and thus made it difficult for students with labs to obtain theirs before the 4 p. m. deadline when the supply was exhausted added to the complications.

Nothing can be done to increase the 250 tickets per performance limit, Mr. Brumbaugh says, but a you-will-be-seated-after-8:30 policy similar to that used Tuesday will continue to be used to handle overflow, if any, at the remaining two productions.

Mr. Brumbaugh also promised that henceforth distribution will begin at a time when students with labs can be accommodated.

So Little Time

Quietly he called the men to muster and waited patiently till he had them all assembled and accounted for. An uneasy feeling came upon him as he slowly approached the first line of the soldiers who waited for him to speak. Somewhere in the distance the enemy was encamped and ready to charge at a moment's notice. Time was precious and speeches were unnecessary, and not one of his soldiers stirred as he gave the orders for advancement to the front. He raised his head and looked about him waiting for that voice that would be heard at any time.

The soldiers knew that in just a short while they would be fighting, but still they stood motionless, and when they were piled into the trucks, not one word was spoken among them. He stood back after the job was finished and prepared to give orders to each truck driver as to his specific duty. He listened for that voice while advancing to the front and hoped that it would wait a little longer.

Men Readied For Battle

The sun was melting into the clouds when the soldiers arrived at their designated field of encampment, and without any noise, they were hastily assigned into little groups to man the big guns or to charge upon the enemy. The uneasy feeling almost left him as he checked each group to see that they would be ready for the battle that would start any minute. He could not give up now.

He gave the orders to charge and the men opened fire with such deadly accuracy that the enemy was taken by surprise. He charged with them as they stormed across no man's land, and as quickly as they fell, he was there to see that replacements were on hand. The sky was growing darker and with each shot he knew his men would have the victory in their grasp within a short time. But it all depended on that voice.

The War Is Over

The battle lost momentum as he pushed his infantry forward to swallow up the last of the enemy, and as though a great trumpet had sounded, the fighting ceased. The war was over and he had won his battle against the enemy and time.

By now it had grown very dark and his soldiers were tired and sleepy, and he too had grown very weary. He marched his men to the trucks to be taken back to camp, and then he heard the voice and listened patiently for what it had to say. And with a smile of victory on his face, the young commander picked up each soldier tenderly, put them back on the shelf, said goodnight to his mother, and trudged happily off to bed.

Steve Suhey has returned to Penn State! But this time he is serving in an advisory capacity. The former Nittany Lion lineman and All-American is serving as freshman line coach under the system of head coach "Rip" Engle.

The 1950 season finds Bill Germann back once again as trainer for the Indian eleven, and doing a swell job too! Last year Bill used what seemingly amounted to miles of tape in "holding" the squad together, and his 1950 "yardage" is rapidly approaching those proportions.

* * *

Everyone knows of the famous Staggs, father and son coaching duo at Susquehanna University. But few people know of the third Stagg on the staff, Mrs. Alonzo Stagg, Sr. Though in the vicinity of the "four score" mark in age, Mrs. Stagg is the chief scout for the Crusaders. All during last week's game the elderly woman sat quietly in the press box overlooking University Field in Selinsgrove taking notes and watching for mistakes made by the Crusader eleven. When she finished, she had quite a few sheets which her husband will, no doubt, make good use of in this week's blackboard drills.

While speaking of the Staggs, one of them is no longer associated with Susquehanna, much to the dismay (or delight as the case may be) of tennis teams on the Crusader schedule. Miss Barbara Stagg, daughter of Alonzo Stagg, Jr., and first girl to play on the men's tennis team at Susquehanna in 93 years, has transferred from the Selinsgrove institution to Ursinus College in order to complete her studies in physical education.

* * *

Some teams go through a season winning most of their games; others losing most. However, the University of Rochester has presented a different angle. Three of their first four games have ended in a tie. (P. S., They lost the other one!)

* * *

And here's one for every loyal Juniatian's "Drop Dead List." Jim Cooley, former Westminster lineman, is now in the U. S. Army. He played his last game for the Titans when they defeated the Indians by one point (13-12) on September 30. The irony of the situation is that the man who blocked Tony Segalovich's second try for the extra point was, you guessed it, none other than Jim Cooley.

Basketball Practice To Begin Monday

Coach "Doc" Greene has made that "initial call" and varsity basketball candidates will report for opening practice Monday at 3:30 p. m. Regular practice sessions will continue until the opening game December 2.

Only two members of last year's starting team, Ray Korody and Dave Bayer, will be back this year. In all, only seven members of the '49 varsity are returning. Jayvees and freshmen are expected to bolster the ranks considerably.

This past week Coach Greene has been working out with 15 freshmen candidates and these men will continue to work out with the varsity candidates this week.

Indians Capture First Over S.U. 19-12; Homecoming Game With Fords Sat.

Defensive Play Sparkles; Mervis Returns To Action

Juniata finally hit its winning stride in their third bid for victory as they defeated Susquehanna University 19-12 at Selinsgrove last Saturday. After completely outplaying the Crusaders in the first half, the Indians staved off a second half rally by the razzle-dazzle Staggs to emerge with their first victory of the campaign.

The Crusaders started the game with an unexpected running attack that drove all the way to the JC ten yard line before the Indians held for downs. From here, the Braves took off on a ground and air attack of their own.

Smitty Scores on Pass

Every man in the backfield took a turn in bringing the ball out to the 45. From there "Lundy" Loschiavo passed to Bob Smith on the Susquehanna 40, and the latter outraced the defenders to the goal. Phil Bartola added the extra point with a perfect placement and the Indians led 7-0.

Four plays after the kickoff, Co-captain Coy Hicks broke through to block Stamfel's attempted punt and Juniata took over on the SU 24. Loschiavo gained nine yards off tackle and Mike Mervis did likewise through center to move it to the six. Two plays later, Mervis cracked over from the four for JC's second score. Bartola missed the conversion, but the Indians led 13-0.

Clapper Intercepts Pass

Ron Clapper intercepted one of Young's passes, three plays after Juniata had again kicked off, and returned it to the Susquehanna 26. Loschiavo and Mervis, making his first start of the season in the absence of injured Joe Dobal, alternated carrying to the one yard line. Loschiavo then sliced off tackle for the third and final score. Bartola's placement was wide as the Indians took a 19-0 advantage.

Patricelli's Catch Nullified

Juniata appeared to be on the way to a fourth TD when LeFevre recovered a fumble on the Susquehanna 40. After running plays, Don Particelli made a diving catch of Loschiavo's long pass on the five. But the officials detected an ineligible receiver down field, and penalized Juniata 15 yards.

The Crusaders took over on their own 39, and Rich Young engineered an aerial attack for 61 yards and a score. His 13 yard pass to Ken Lenker gave Susquehanna a first down on the six, and Gene Fenstermacher crashed over for the Crusader's first six-pointer. The try for the extra point was not good and the score read 19-6 at halftime.

Young Passes Well For SU

The third quarter was all Susquehanna. Young passed brilliantly in a 79 yard advance, climaxed by a 27 yard aerial to Lenker for a score. The try for the extra point was missed but the Crusaders were only one TD behind at 19-12.

The fourth quarter developed into a see-saw battle with the action confined between the 20 yard lines. The entire team, but led by Coy Hicks, adapted themselves to the wide open formation used by the Crusaders and it was mainly their defensive maneuvering that gave them their first win.

Tribe Seeks Second Win; GarrisonLeadsHaverford

The Indians of Juniata and the Fords of Haverford will clash tomorrow at College Field in the annual Homecoming game. This will be the fifth meeting between the two schools with each team having won twice. As an added feature, Miss Lois Miller will be crowned Miss Homecoming IV during halftime ceremonies.

Juniata will be out to make it three in a row over the Main Liners tomorrow. The Indians took a 34-21 decision two years ago and repeated with a similar triumph last year, winning 33-20. However, last year's victory was saddened by the injury to Meteor Mike Dzvonar which kept him out of the succeeding Grove City game and contributed greatly to Juniata's downfall in that contest.

In games played to date, Haverford has defeated Ursinus 20-12 and last week lost to Rider 28-7. Juniata opened losing to Westminster 13-12, followed with a 20-13 loss to Hartwick and then won last week 19-12 over SU.

Garrison Stars

Coach Roy Randall has centered his attack around Co-captain Harry Garrison. An exceptionally good passer, Garrison has been a standout on Haverford's grid machines for the past three years. Other men to watch in tomorrow's contest are backs Andre Briod and John Hume, and on the line, Co-captain Pete Steere.

The Smaltzmen, on the other hand, hope to even their season record tomorrow and have a good chance of doing just that. Spirit is high after last weeks triumph and if spirit can overrule the several injuries, success may join the Indians once again.

Mervis Back in Action

Mauler Mike Mervis made his first appearance last week and was very instrumental in the Indians victory. Mike will probably start at fullback tomorrow. In addition, Tony Segalovich may start at one of the halfback posts in place of the injured Phil Chabody. The latter will see only limited action tomorrow.

The remainder of the squad is fairly well intact and should be ready for duty tomorrow. Starting assignments will probably be much the same as last week.

Washington, Dickinson Again Win Handily; Haverford Defeated

Washington and Dickinson Colleges continued to roll toward highly successful seasons last Saturday, both scoring convincing wins over Bridgewater and Ursinus respectively. Outside of a Westminster-Bethany tie, however, the remainder of the Indians' opponents went down to defeat.

Washington, in defeating Bridgewater College 34-0, retained its unbeaten, unscored upon status. In three games the Sho'men have rolled up the staggering total of 98 points while holding the opposition scoreless.

Once defeated Dickinson poured it on Ursinus to the tune of 39-6. The Red Devils also hold a convincing 25-0 victory over Grove City. Their lone defeat came at the hands of the strong Franklin and Marshall team, and it was only 7-0.

Westminster, whose lone win came at the expense of Juniata, just managed a 7-7 tie with Bethany, while Haverford, next week's opponent, took it on the chin from Rider, 28-7.

The scores:

Juniata 19, Susquehanna 12
Washington 34, Bridgewater 0
Dickinson 39, Ursinus 6
Westminster 7, Bethany 7
Rider, 26, Haverford 7
Hiram 25, Grove City 6
Upsala 13, Hartwick 7
Kings 31, Lycoming 0
(Teams in dark type are Juniata opponents.)

A History

29th Homecoming To Be Celebrated Tomorrow On Juniata's Campus

by Marj Seidel

Juniata will observe its 29th annual Homecoming Day tomorrow on College Hill. Just as in 1922 when the tradition was established, alumni will return to reminisce with old friends as well as get acquainted with new students.

The Juniatian sponsored the first Homecoming queen election four years ago. It all started as a stunt for arousing pep and enthusiasm and adding color to Homecoming activities. Betty Kiracofe was elected Miss Homecoming I to reign over the day's activities. The following two years found Mary Lou Cannon and Gladys Gehman, respectively, in the royal throne.

Sports Always Important

Sports have always played a dominent role in the week-end activities. Davis and Elkins College in Virginia was the opponent with which J. C. vied at the first traditional Homecoming football game in 1924. The Indians suffered defeat to the tune of 21-10.

As far as evening entertainment was concerned there was no definite program until several years ago when the J Club dance became traditional. Prior to this time the Homecoming calendars varied from movies to masquerade balls.

Frosh-Soph Battles

Freshmen and sophomore athletic contests have been featured as a part of the Homecoming week-end for many years. The first hockey game was played in 1930. The only difference between that event then compared to it at present was the long black stockings considered an essential part of women's athletic equipment.

A variety of sports has been recorded as Homecoming frays between the frosh and soph men. The contests have included speedball, basketball and now the annual touch football game, as well as a tug of war.

Another tradition established by the Juniatian was a decoration contest of displays on Campus made by various dorms. A prize will again be awarded this year for the best exhibit.

Bell Dedication 12 Noon Tuesday

On Tuesday, which is United Nations Day, at 12 o'clock E. S. T. the Freedom Bell will be dedicated in Berlin.

General Lucius Clay, national chairman of Crusade for Freedom, will give the dedication prayer. The prayer and the ringing of the bell two or three minutes later will be broadcast in a five-minute ceremony over all major networks except Mutual.

According to a spokesman of the IRC, Juniata College will also observe this ceremony with the ringing of the tower bell at about 12:02.

During the Freedom Crusade Drive which ended Sunday, 281 students and faculty signed the Freedom Scroll.

Pulpit Rocks Part Of J C

It's surprising how few people on campus have ever heard of Pulpit Rocks. And since it is a part of our great Juniata College domain, we should all know at least a few facts about it.

This natural curiosity is located along the old "Harrisburg, Huntingdon, and Pittsburgh turnpike", three miles west of Huntingdon. The rocks and their surrounding site of 1½ acres of land were presented to the College by the late J. Murray Africa for preservation as a landmark.

The Honorable J. Simpson Africa, father of the donor and former historian of Huntingdon County, gives in his history the following description: "The elements have worn some of these (sandstone formations) into grotesque shapes, which form a fancied resemblance to that object are called Pulpit Rocks."

Sunday at 3:30 p. m. Prof. Donald Johnson will present his seventh annual organ recital in Oller Hall. He will be assisted by Miss Marion Thomas, pianist.

Prof. Johnson will open the program with five chorale preludes by Johann Sebastion Bach. Miss Thomas will join Prof. Johnson in playing Franz Liszt's "Concerto No. 1, in E Flat Major."

For his concluding numbers Prof. Johnson has chosen American compositions: "The American Hymn" by Biggs, "Cathedral Prelude" by Clokey, Roger's "Arioso", Edmundson's "Elfin Dance", and "Toccata" by Farman.

Juniata Radio To Give Corwin Drama

"Seems Radio Is Here To Stay", a drama by Corwin, will be featured Wednesday on the Juniata on the Air program at 8 p. m. Students interested in participating should contact Betty Longwell.

This history and plans for Homecoming were presented in play form last Wednesday by the Juniatian staff. Fred Shamlian and Dagmar Silldorff wrote the script, while other staff members performed in the play.

American Chemistry Society To Meet At Juniata Wednesday

By Dottie Hummer

As Madame Zana looks into her little crystal ball, she sees an exciting day in store for all Homecoming fans. But she tells us we must all wait until tomorrow, so until then let's take a look at the cub news.

Chem Society To Meet

Wednesday the central Pennsylvania section of the American Chemical Society will meet on the Juniata campus.

Miss Hummer

A lecture on "The Thermochemistry of Proteins" will be presented by Prof. Julian Sturtevant, associate Professor of Chemistry at Yale University. Preceding this lecture there will be a dinner meeting at 6 p. m. at the Penn Koffee Shoppe. This will be an open lecture and anyone who would like to attend should contact Dr. Rockwell or Dr. Davis today.

I John, Chapter 5 will be outlined by Gene Seese at the IVCF meeting Thursday evening. A discussion on I John, 4 was led by Portia Baugher at last evening's meeting.

Outing Planned at Cabin

The Outing Club is holding a party at the cabin Wednesday evening. This party is being held for the club members and the new adult advisors, Dr. and Mrs. Booth. Anyone desirous of becoming a member should contact Jack Baldrige or Kay Wright. An evening of entertainment and refreshments is promised for all.

The Outing Club's new point system was explained at a recent meeting. These points may be earned by working one hour on the cabin or by attending a meeting, while fifteen points will be gained by attending one week-end outing. A total of 50 points is required to become a full-fledged member.

Wagner Speaks On Mexico

Wednesday evening the Spanish Club held a short business meeting in the Women's Day Student Room. Following this, Lois Wagner directed an illustrated travelogue of Mexico. Many interesting factors were discussed, after which Spanish songs and dances concluded the evening program.

That same evening the Clothing Lab was also a scene of cultural education as Miss Fisher spoke on her recent trip to Europe. The Lambda Gamma sponsored this program which also included a short business meeting and refreshments.

The JCA will meet in Founder's Chapel Tuesday at 7 p. m. Charles Walker from Philadelphia, will favor pacifism in a panel debate on "Militarism vs. Pacifism". His opponent will be a faculty member from Juniata and Prof. Wayne Glick will take the "middle of the road." Dr. Kenneth Crosby has been appointed as the discussion moderator.

2 To Attend Seminar

Arrangement for a United Nations Seminar in New York City is being arranged by the Friends Service Committee. Two members of the IRC, Jay Benedict and Dave Armacost, have been given the honor to attend this convention November 9-12. This week-end will feature a visit to the UN and conferences with many prominent men, plus an opportunity to tour Lake Success and Flushing Meadows. It may be noted that only selected and qualified persons are participating in this educative trip.

The Tycoon Club is planning round table discussions on the efficiency of U. S. Steel, the pros and cons of Socialism, why small business fails at the rate of several hundred per month, etc.

Miss Doyle Doing Work At Boston U.

Miss Esther Doyle, assistant professor of English on a one-year leave of absence from Juniata, was unable to accept the teaching fellowship offered her at Northwestern University. Because of the illness of her mother, she is spending the year at Boston University which is near her home.

Alfarata Photos Delayed

Henry Horton, Alfarata photographer, began taking individual photos of seniors yesterday, after several days delay caused by shortage of film and a broken shutter. He expects to begin photographing juniors Monday if additional film supplies arrive.

Medical School Accepts 2

Tom Gates and George Montgomery, both seniors, have been accepted at Jefferson Medical College for the fall term, 1951.

Gates was president of his class here for two years and a member of the Scalpel and Probe. Montgomery, a married veteran living in the Village, is also a member of the Scalpel and Probe.

Lois Miller Engaged

Floyd McDowell, '49, announced his engagement to Lois Miller at the J Club dance last Saturday night when he told the guests that he planned to make Homecoming Queen Lois his queen for life.

Senatorship Voting Tues.

The campus-wide election for chairman of athletics will be held Tuesday, weather permitting, in the front of Students Hall from 7:45 a. m. to 2 p. m. and from 5:30 to 8.

Bob Jones and Jack Rothenberger, both juniors, are in the race for the chairmanship on the Senate.

Jones, from Llewellyn, Pa. is sports editor of The Juniatian and editor of the Indian. Last year he was business manager of the Scout. The candidate is also active in intramural sports. He is majoring in math and science with an eye on the teaching profession.

Rothenberger comes from Boyertown, Pa. He is social responsibility chairman of the JCA, and a member of the J club and the Scalpel and Probe club. Also he is a three-year varsity track man. Rothenberger is majoring in psychology and hopes to become a clinical psychologist.

According to Hilton Hines, chairman of the elections committee of the Senate, two-thirds of the student body must vote before the election is valid.

Parking Lot Dirt To Become Gym Fill

"Two birds with one stone" is the motto of the College building contractors, as they obtain fill for the new memorial gymnasium by enlarging the parking lot near Oller Hall.

Contractor for the parking lot digging is Robert Ross. Ritter Brothers are doing the gym work.

The foreman for the latter outfit reports that a new building schedule has been set up dependent on the arrival of steel. "It (the steel) will get here when it gets here," he adds.

Carr Granted Deferment

Phil Carr received new orders Tuesday superseding those requiring him to report to Camp Hood, Texas. These revised orders, signed by the acting assistant adjutant of the N. J. military district, defer him until April 19, 1951. He is in the reserves.

Sat. Classes Shortened To 40 Min. For Game

"The administration has agreed to shorten classes Saturday to 40 minutes each so that students may attend the football game at Dickinson," according to Senate president Vernon Showalter.

"This privilege will not be extended again if students cut weekend classes," Showalter added. Classes have not been reduced for an away game since the Lebanon Valley game of November, 1948.

Saturday classes will run as follows:

Second period—8:45 to 9:25.
Third period—9:30 to 10:10.

Ronald Cherry has been appointed business manager for the Masque play, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," according to the director, Miss Lois Esaley.

Miss Esaley has also announced two changes in the cast. Len Hickman will take over the part of the Purser; Jan Wenger will double in the roles of the Stewardess and the Inspector.

JCA Affair Planned Tues.

According to the JCA calendar, it's pretty near time to break off from the books for an evening of fun.

Next Tuesday evening, the JCA is sponsoring a hayride for Juniata students. Wagons will be brought to the school about 7:15 to pick up the students who plan to go.

After the ride, the route of which is still more or less of a mystery, the wagons (and exhausted horses) will end up at a near-by barn for a barn party. Square dancing and games are on the agenda for the evening along with plenty of refreshments. Music will be furnished by records, and Dr. Donald Rockwell will be caller.

Wagons will return to school about 10:30.

Gallant From Brazil Proves Chivalry Alive

by Jan Wenger

Is chivalry really dead?

Not while gallant Jairo Silva is on campus. Judging from this particular freshman, Brazil is a land of manners and mustaches.

Silva was born in Racife, Brazil. He came to New York in Feb., 1949, where he began pouring over catalogues of colleges and universities in search of a small college. In his own words, he "fell into sympathy" with JC and is now very glad that he made this college his choice.

He says, "I thoroughly enjoy Arts and Humanities and also the friendliness of the Juniata coeds." When asked about his previous education, Silva explained that his six years of grammar school, four years of high school and one year of College were all spent in a European school system where all courses are compulsory.

Now a pre-medical student, Silva is very much interested in history of civilization and languages. He speaks Spanish, French, Portuguese and English.

In the little bit of spare time that he has, Silva enjoys collecting coins as a hobby. Photography is also a favorite pastime. While he is an ardent lover of classical music, Silva is very emphatic in his denunciation of bebop.

Although Silva has long since become accustomed to the scurrying ways of Americans, he says he still has difficulty keeping up with the rate at which his fellow Juniata students eat their meals!

Oller Hall Was Ten Years Old Last Week

"A big thrill is on hand for those alumni and friends of the College who have not been on the campus recently when they come to the dedication of the $130,000 Oller Auditorium on Homecoming Day, October 19".

This statement appeared in the Oct., 1940 issue of the Alumni Bulletin. And so in Juniata's 75th Anniversary year Oller Hall celebrated its 10th birthday last Thursday.

The auditorium, with a seating capacity of 875, was dedicated by the late President Emeritus C. C. Ellis who was president of the College at that time. Keys to the new Oller Hall were turned over to Dr. Gaius Brumbaugh, chairman of the board of trustees, by Mr. John Hunter, architect.

A special dedication for the pipe organ donated by Rello Oller of Waynesboro took place Dec. 1, 1940.

An Interview

Director Needs Ingenuity--Esaley

by Jim Streiner

This business of directing a play "taxes one's ingenuity and ability to devise," Miss Lois Esaley says she has learned from her new jobs as instructor in English and advisor to the Masque. She is directing the Masque-produced comedy, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay."

Miss Esaley, who graduated from here last June, says that as a student she has "tried most every phase of play production except lighting, set design and, of course, directing."

Asst. to Doyle, Johnson

Last year she served as assistant to both Miss Esther Doyle, whom she replaced this fall, and Prof. Donald Johnson. In this capacity she was able to observe and take part in additional phases of theater art, both musical and dramatic.

"However," the director says, "until now, I never had the opportunity to realize the overall aspects of directing—my work was always laid out for me by Miss Doyle. She knew all the people, the proper addresses, etc."

Miss Lois Esaley

A Director Defined

This new insight into the problems of stage direction leads Miss Esaley to define a director as

Daisy Maes:-

Tote Your Mate To Square Dance

by Marj Seidel

Daisy Maes on College Hill will call for their Lil Abners Saturday night to escort them to the final Twirp Week event, a square dance to be held on the lawn in front of the gym. The "festive time," according to social committee chairman Bob Elder, will begin at 8:15 but will be transferred to the gym in case of rain.

Highlighting the evening will be the unveiling of the mysterious Sadie Hawkins. The person who guesses her identity this week will receive a prize and the honor of leading a dance with her.

Corsages (dogpatch style) will be the order of the evening. Girls are to make them of anything at hand and pin on their dates' lapels. A prize will be awarded to the couple with the most original corsage.

Another event of the party will be the appearance of the girls varsity trio composed of Jo Chiodi, Doris Orner and Joan Weaver. They will sing country songs.

The history of Sadie Hawkins Day began long before its exponent, Daisy Mae. Seems there was a Dogpatch gal name of Sadie Hawkins, who liked all the Dogpatch boys. Only trouble was, they wouldn't reciprocate.

This apathy on the part of the valley's potential husband-material troubled Sadie's old man. So in a burst of genius one day, he invented the girl-chase-boy tactics we know now as Sadie Hawkins Day.

FROM TORRID AFRICA to the Far North, UN activities, directed from the new United Nations headquarters in New York, will make their influence felt. Shown here is the sled-borne arrival in northern Finland of supplies for mothers and children by UN International Children's Emergency Fund.

The Caste System.....

Now that the freshman initiation is over and the smoke has cleared we can view the program with the advantage of hindsight.

We would like to commend Charles Allison chairman of underclassmen, and his committee for their very fine handling of the program. Their tireless effort is reflected in the fact that there was no haircutting, painting of buildings or vandalism on campus Friday night.

The entire freshman program was carried through with an efficiency and human understanding that has not been equaled here at Juniata for several years.

This having been said, we will concern ourselves with a consideration of the merits of initiation. It is granted that the name cards, the dinks and certain restrictions such as not using the diagonal and the front steps have their value.

Freshman Should Not Be A Slave

However, we don't think that the freshman should be any more the slave of the sophomore than the sophomore should be the slave of the junior and so on. The freshman has a right to be treated as a self-respecting individual.

When he comes here in September we are supposed to be friendly and helpful—giving him advice when needed. Four weeks later such antagonism has been built up between sophomore and freshman that 15-20 upperclassmen and two policemen with squad car and firearms must be stationed on the campus for a whole night.

Cold Coffee With Soap Fun

The foul-smelling acid that the boys had to put their hands in, the penny pushing with the nose, the painting of the face with vegetable dye, the cold coffee with the soap in it that the girls had to drink and the paddling were fun—for some. Requiring the girls to do exercises and getting them out of bed at 11 p. m. and keeping them up until 1 a. m. was obviously great sport.

But these activities surely left hard feelings and gave some individuals a chance to spite others and degrade them. Furthermore, these tactics could have led to mob violence and physical harm had it not been for the vigilance of Charles Allison and his militia.

Parts Of Program Have Value

Some parts of the freshman initiation that we have mentioned and others may have value in orienting the freshman and helping him to find his place here. But those activities and regulations which suppress and enslave the freshman have no business in a Christian college with mature, rational students.

Let's take that long step and rid ourselves of the caste system here at Juniata.

TOMMY

This week's column is dedicated to those who made Homecoming a warm one. The weather man should be blessed for showering us with his sunshine smiles.

Bill Korman is trying to find a way to spend $6 prize money on 26 men. It should be a gala affair. Peggie Barrington surprised many sophs by her lady-like actions. Nice going, Peg. Fran Townsend, Dave Hackett and Jerry Walker should make good top-kicks. If you don't think so, ask any frosh.

A lot of gals were happy with the arrival of their beaus. Among those gals were Sarah Keller, Mary McKee, May Ikeda, Carroll Borden, Lois Miller, Ginny Tyson, and Jo Ann Barksdale.

More people wrote home for money last week so they could pay for all those little items that seem necessary at a college football game. Maybe Juniata won't graduate many great scientists or philosophers, but they'll pass on to the world the greatest high pressure salesmen ever before known.

A Hawk's eye view of Campus Couples who seem to hit the Steady Sign: Bee Ann Hanks and Steve Finckel, Marj Seidel and Bill Eicher, Helen Lawson and Don Sikes.

Bob Donaghy was seen sporting around in a new Buick. Say Bob, does Betty always let you drive? Remember, you can't pay attention to the brakes when your mind is on the clutch.

The play "See How They Run" is a takeoff from Sadie Hawkins Day. After watching Judy Rohm, Dagmar Silldorff, and Dorcas Mertz start off Twirp Week, Tommy began to realize the possibilities of an All-American Girl Track Team. "Mike" Snider should take careful note.

At the J Club Frolic, Tommy was pleased with the number of faculty members who danced to the music of Prof. Brammer's Kollege Kats. Among the many dignitaries were Pres. Ellis, the Crosbys, the Friends, and the Rhodes'. It was more than a Homecoming—it was a successful college reunion.

Prediction of the Week: The records used in the dining hall won't last for more than three months. That is, if somebody doesn't change 'em.

I leave you now with this mighty phrase.

It's great to be an Indian!!!!

Indians Face Strong Foe In Dickinson 'Red Devils' Tomorrow

Fords Hand Indians Homecoming Defeat; Hume Scores Twice

by Bob Myers

Playing before a near capacity Homecoming crowd, Juniata went down to defeat for the third time this season as they bowed to Haverford College 13-7 at College Field last Saturday. The Indians outpointed their opponents in every other department, but they lacked the punch to score the winning touchdowns.

Early in the second quarter, the Fords started the scoring when Lundy Loschiavo fumbled and Andy Briod recovered for Haverford on the JC 11. Hume picked up one yard and Juniata was penalized five yards for offsides to the JC five yard line. Hibberd gained three and then lost one, but on the last down, Hume took a reverse from Garrison and scored from the three. Briod's attempted conversion went wide and Haverford led 6-0.

Indians Miss First Half TD

Juniata started a rally when a Loschiavo-sparked offensive thrust marched to the Haverford 13 yard line. Briod, however, intercepted Lundy's pass in the end zone and the half ended with the Fords still one TD ahead.

Shortly after the half-time ceremonies, co-captain Garrison engineered another scoring drive. After being set back by a holding penalty, he tossed to Dick Bourne for 19 yards, but the Fords had a last down and one situation. Garrison gambled and Briod rammed through center for a first down on the Juniata 47.

Garrison's pass to Vance was good for 11 yards and Hume followed with 21 more on another reverse for a first down on the 15. Garrison then completed a pass to Hume on the eight and the later raced across for the score. Briod converted and the Fords led 13-0.

Mervis Scores In Final Period

Just after the beginning of the last period, the Indians carried for six first downs covering 77 yards in 16 plays with Mervis and Loschiavo carrying the burden of the attack. After Loschiavo was hurt dashing to the enemy 21, Mervis took over and carried for four plays and a touchdown. Bartola converted and Haverford's lead was cut to 13-7.

The rest of the game was featured by short gains and exchanged punts with neither team penetrating deeply into the other's territory. The contest did, however, have a dramatic finish as Gene Shaffer recovered Hume's fumble on the Haverford 14 yard line with only seconds remaining. But Don Patricelli's pass fell incomplete in the end zone as the game ended, and Haverford won

WATCH-CHARM—Coy Hicks, 155 pound guard is the vanguard of Bill Smaltz' Indian eleven. A senior, Coy is a three-time letter winner.

Frosh Dinks Stay As Sophs Win 2

For the first time in two years the freshman class failed to cop the annual frosh-soph Homecoming battles. Only a victory by the fairer sex of the yearlings averted a complete whitewash.

Eleven determined freshmen girls took the field on Saturday morning and out-scored the sophomore maidens 3-1. Headed by Captain Joan Lenhardt, the gals saved the honor of their class in accounting for the lone victory. The frosh scored twice in the first half and once more in the second to accomplish their feat.

Frosh Completely Equipped

The high-classed team of '54 was as well equipped as a varsity team with warm-up suits (strangely resembling pajamas), a water boy, a trainer and a stretcher, complete with bearers. Coach Jane McCormick would take no chances with her squad.

On the male side of the ledger it was all the sophomores. The class of '53 notched a 13-6 triumph over the frosh in football. In the tug-of-war it was the sophs again in an easy win.

The first quarter of the football game was all even with neither team making a serious threat. It was the freshmen, however, who drew first blood midway through the second stanza. On a sleeper play, Fran Zimmerman tossed to Dick Bowker for a 15-yard touchdown. Clem Rosenberg's extra point attempt was blocked.

Five Opponents Join Indians In Defeat

October 21 was a bad day for Juniata footballers and a majority of their opponents as well. In addition to Haverford, who defeated the Indians, only Westminster was able to come out on the long end of the score.

Washington College was handed some of its own medicine when a strong Randolph-Macon team shattered their undefeated, unscored upon streak with a smashing 13-0 triumph. Prior to this game, Washington had rolled up 98 points in three games while holding the enemy scoreless.

Westminster won their second game of the season when they defeated Grove City, another Indian opponent 19-0. The Titans now have a record of two wins, two losses and a tie.

Dickinson, next week's opponent, was defeated by Western Maryland, 29-13. It was the second time the Red Devils have been defeated this season, having lost to F & M 7-0.

Other games saw Alfred breeze over Hartwick 31-12 and Mansfield rout Lycoming 40-0. It may be noted that Lycoming, Parents Day rival, has yet to score in four games this season.

Susquehanna was not scheduled this week.

The scores:

Haverford 13, JUNIATA 7
Randolph-Macon 13, Washington 0.
Mansfield STC, 40, Lycoming 0
Westminster 19, Grove City 0
Alfred 31, Hartwick 12
West. Maryland 29, Dickinson 13

Walker Scores For Sophs

The sophs came right back in the same period to even matters once again. After intercepting a pass on the frosh 20, they moved the ball to the eight. From there Jerry Walker scored on an end run and Dave Hackett's placement gave the sophs a 7-6 lead.

Frank Jarrett was on the receiving end of a twenty-yard touchdown pass in the third period that increased the soph margin to 13-6. Hackett's try for extra point was blocked. No further scoring developed and the sophs walked off with their close win which kept the frosh dinks in style.

High Scoring Golbrecht Paces Dickinson; JC Injuries Mount

Juniata travels to Carlisle tomorrow where they will enter the home stretch of the 1950 season against Dickinson College. In meeting the Red Devils, the Indians will encounter their toughest opposition of the current campaign.

HEAVYWEIGHT—Gene Shaffer is the only Indian player to top the 200-pound mark. Gene teams with Coy Hicks to solve Coach Smaltz' guard problems.

Paced by halfback Wilbur Gobrecht, the Lawmen have fielded a powerhouse this season, having lost only six from last year's squad which won four and lost two. Their record this season is all even with two wins and as many losses.

However, both losses were at the hands of much stronger schools, dropping 7-0 to undefeated Franklin and Marshall and 29-13 to an equally strong Western Maryland eleven. On the other side of the ledger, the Red Devils have trounced Grove City 25-0 and two weeks ago outclassed Ursinus 39-6.

Gobrecht Leads State Scorers

In Gobrecht, the Red Devils have the Keystone State's leading scorer. Four-game totals show the Dickinson ace has tallied eight touchdowns, good for 48 points and the lead among Pennsylvania colleges. But stopping the hard-running Gobrecht will be only one of the Indians' troubles.

Other sore spots for the Tribe are to be found in the persons of Johnny Mathewson, Paul Lyter and Gene Oyler, all three backfield veterans. Returning to the line are such stalwarts as Bill Fallen and Stew Harkness, two "sixty-minute" ends, and guard Dan Dombroskie.

Coach Bill Smaltz will have to reach deep into his bag of tricks in order to find the winning combination. At that, he will be hampered, once again, by several injuries. The 1950 squad is rapidly approaching last year's record number of injuries.

Chabody Returns to Lineup

Phil Chabody has been working out this week and will be ready for tomorrow's contest. Also expected to be available are Bob Smith and Lundy Loschiavo, who were injured in the Haverford game. But Reds Orler's bruised hip and the bad ankles of Joe Dick Land Bob Wagoner are still troubling. In addition, Coy Hicks has a badly bruised right leg which may hamper him in playing his usual good game.

With all the injuries, Coach Smaltz has been able to amply test his reserve power. Freshmen Fred Hamor and Tom McNeal broke into the lineup last Saturday and teamed with classmates Ed Gould, Don Patricelli and Ron Clapper in bolstering the Indians' attack. All are expected to aid the cause against Dickinson.

Tomorrow's contest shapes up as a series of question marks for the Indians. At their best they would be rated underdog to the Red Devils. But, Indiana and Purdue were rated underdog to Notre Dame, too!

Trojans Capture First Half I-M Crown

The Trojans captured the first half flag in the I-M football league by virtue of their undefeated slate. The second half of the league will begin this week with six teams represented.

Managed by Ray Korody, the newly crowned champs had little trouble in annexing the pennant as they swept through their five game schedule. Jack Dickey and Jerry Walker were the main cogs in the Trojan offense.

Coming in runner-ups were the Sky Pilots with a 3-2 record, while the Bruins and the Whiz Kids tied for third with two wins and two losses apiece.

The standings:

Team	W	L	Pct.
Trojans	5	0	1.000
Sky Pilots	3	2	.600
Bruins	2	2	.500
Whiz Kids	2	2	.500
Red Skins	0	3	.000
Dirty Shirts	0	4	.000

'Director Must Lead, Teach'

"the one who must guide each member of the cast into 'seeing' the character of the person he is portraying so that that character 'comes to life' for him. The director must also help each cast member feel the unity of the play and know where his part fits into the whole."

Definite Program Developed

To achieve this, Miss Esaley has developed a definite program for guiding the Masque play. "I have worked toward a more divided authority," she says. By this she means that persons whose ability she remembers from her student days have been given positions of responsibility on crews. They are required only to keep her informed of their plans.

In addition, Miss Esaley says, a director of College plays must "recognize the training aspect of her job. Students are not just presenting a play under a director's guidance; they are learning, creating, improvising. One's ingenuity is taxed to keep a step ahead of them."

Training Future Technicians

Another part of this program is training students for future responsibilities. Under this program, it is hoped there will always be someone available who is proficient with lighting, set building, etc.

All these problems are, of course, incidental to the main job—preparing "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay" for presentation next Friday and Saturday.

"The time we have been given to ready 'Hearts' is less than for any previous show," Miss Esaley believes. "Since neither time nor my limited experience in directing would permit anything else, the play we chose had to be simple in scope."

Variety Show Song Makes Big Hit

One of the biggest hits in the variety show presented in Oller Hall last Saturday night, according to the audience, was the Varsity Quartet's rendition of "The Game Was Played On Sunday." Members of the quartet (Charlie Redenberger, Whitey Schaffner, Gerry Hartzel and Bob Landes) have been swamped with requests for the lyrics of that song.

Sung to the tune of "Solomon Levi," the words are as follows:

Oh, the game was played on Sunday:
'Twas in J. H.'s yard,
When O. R. he played fullback,
And Dupler he played guard.
The students on the sidelines,
Oh how their voices blend
When Dr. M. G. Brumbaugh
Came tearing round right end.
Chorus:
Oh, Juniata, tra la la la la la la la
Dear Juniata, tra la la la la la la la
They loved her in the days gone by,
We love her still today.
We've got a football team with guts
That carries the ball away.

2.
Oh, the game was played on Sunday;
'Twas in McKenzie's yard,
When N. J. played fullback,
And Shively he played guard.
The students on the side lines,
Their voices blended fine
When Dr. Francis Harvey Green
Came crashing through the line.
(Chorus)

3.
Oh, the game was played on Monday;
'Twas in Clyde Stayer's yard,
With Lillian Evans fullback
And "Queenie" on the guard.
The students on the side lines,
Oh how their voices blend
When dashing Gertrude Butler
Came tearing round right end.
(Chorus)

How To Catch Man?---Why Chase Him!

by Deedee

There are any number of views on the subject of how to catch a man, but at this time of the year the most efficient way is to chase him—literally. The nice part of the arrangement is that right now it's legal; we're celebrating Twirp week and paying homage to the reigning queen of Twirp week, Miss Sadie Hawkins. Pick your man, girls; snare him for the Sadie Hawkins party on Saturday night.

These "bear-trap" methods might be all right for Twirp week, but what about your man-hunting tactics during times other than this week? Are you what is commonly known as a predatory female? Or in other words, a man-chaser?

But Don't Try Too Hard

The people who know say "uh uh" to that sort of thing. The best way to leave yourself out in the cold when it comes to finding your man is to try too hard. It just doesn't work. And above all, don't try to impress "that man" with your intelligence. That's guaranteed to scare off any eligible bachelor.

The experts tell us that the only way to catch a man is to be your own sweet, demure, little self. "Too many brains and too many obvious intentions showing are a sure way to keep the men at an overly proper distance", is how it is expressed by someone supposedly well versed on the subject.

Sadie Had The Idea

But just how you go about being sweet, demure and natural during Twirp week is something no one cares much to attempt to say. Sadie probably had the best tactics of all—just run them down and when they're properly cornered, use tact.

Happy hunting, girls. See you at the square dance!

Two-Feature Show Set For Radio Wed.

A double-feature, spotlighting both the production "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay" and Parents Day, will be presented on the Juniata on the Air program Wednesday at 8 p. m.

A new angle will be used whereby crew and committee members, and not the play cast, will take part in the radio show.

The history of Parents Day will be presented along with the forthcoming plans for this year's Parents Day program.

With Our Clubs

Campus Gains Another New Club--- This One's For The Sociologists

By Dottie Hummer

There's a new club on the Juniata campus. Mr. William Conner and Dr. Tobias Henry have been meeting with the Sociology group and are organizing a Sociology Club. After appointing a committee to frame a constitution, the group met on Wednesday eve to consider the reports, adopt the constitution and elect officers. Any new members will be welcomed into this organization.

The ABC Club will meet in Room B Wednesday at 7 p. m. Miss Miriam Schlegel, the new elementary education instructor, will talk on her recent experiences in Egypt. All members are invited to attend and share the wonders of her trip.

Movie For Chem Club Miss Hummer

At that same time, the Chemistry Club will hold their monthly meeting in Room 104. Their program will feature a movie and a short business meeting. It was noted that the club helped in the ACS entertainment this past week.

The IVCF will hold their weekly meeting Thursday at 7 p. m. in the Women's Day Student Room. A discussion on II John, Chapter 1 will be led by Jo Ann Barksdale. Gene Seese concluded the study of I John at last evening's meeting.

Tonight at 7 p. m. the IRC will meet in the Old Chapel. Three guests, Miss Mildred Tausch, Miss Glenora Edwards, and Miss Helen Fisher will speak on their summer escapade to Europe. This will include illustrated slides of their trip.

The Sunday's issue of the New York Times will feature a forum section relating expert views on present-day problems. On the basis of this forum, the IRC is holding a meeting Thursday evening to supplement its ideas.

Paris was reviewed by a talk and illustrations at the French meeting Wednesday evening. Prof. Jack Oller led this program. French songs also tinged the atmosphere in this evening of reverie.

The Tycoon Club met in the I. Harvey Brumbaugh House Wednesday evening. Ray English, Huntingdon merchant, spoke on "Today's Market Conditions in the Retail of Clothing and Furnishings." This talk proved very educational to interested business majors.

The J Club held a business meeting last night to discuss who was eligible for club sweaters. A financial report was made on the expenses of the Homecoming Dance, and the results of booster tags and Indian sales were announced.

29 See Farce With Masque

Twenty nine Juniatians took in the farce "See How They Run" at the Mooresville Community Hall Monday. The theater party was sponsored by the Masque.

Directors of the play presented by the Neffs Mills Players were two JC alumni noted for their theatrical activities while studying here. They are George Parsons and Bill Fegan, who staged the comedy in arena style.

The newly-formed Sociology Club has chosen the name Sigma Gamma, after the Greek letters SC. Officers are Joe Hulgus, president; Bill Carpenter, vice president; Barbara Warner, secretary; and Jack Overholt, treasurer.

Cloister Arch Wins 1st Prize

Cloister Arch captured first prize money in the campus display contest sponsored Homecoming Day by The Juniatian and the Public Relations Office. Winning display was a giant replica of the 75th anniversary seal hung from second floor windows over the arch.

Second prize went to third Founders and wing. Honorable mention was given fourth Brumbaugh. Ten residence groups competed.

The $10 prize money was split between first and second winners only, $6 and $4 respectively.

Contest judges were Mrs. Janet Utts, '44; Mrs. Hollis Zwicker; and Mr. John Carper, '48.

Lobbyist To Speak Here

A Stauffer Curry, executive secretary of the National Service Board for Religious Objectors, will be the speaker in Chapel next Friday. He is at present a lobbyist for the Church of the Brethren in Washington, D. C.

Masque Comedy Opens Tonight, 8:15 P. M.

After the shortest preparation time y[illegible] granted to a Masque play by any College calendar committee, the comedy "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay" is ready for presentation. Tonight at 8:15 a cast of 15 directed by Miss Lois Esaky and led by Phyllis Link and Vera Compton will bring to Oller Hall stage a series of amusing adventures in the lives of the Misses Cornelia Otis Skinner and Emily Kimbrough, her ever-faithful friend.

* * * * * *

The tale is not so much one of plot as it is events. Cornelia feels that at 19, it's time she were "emancipated." Emily quite agrees. So off they go to Paris where Cornelia, ever the actress, hopes to take lessons from the famed French actor M. de la Croix. Emily tags along for the ride, hoping to get a dancing lesson in somewhere along the line.

One Thing After Another

Once aboard ship, it's just one thing after another. First there are the two boys who live up the hall. They have to be impressed. Then there's the two English

Since most of the townspeople and Perents Day visitors will be interested in attending "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay" Saturday evening, students are asked to see it tonight. Activity tickets will be honored for student admission.

Tickets for the play will be on sale in the P. R. Office until 5 o'clock and then will be on sale in the lobby of Oller Hall tonight and Saturday.

girls who live next door. They have to be put up with. And there are the matters of the shoes, and the man who fell overboard and even a case of murder. They have to be—well, come around tonight and see for yourself.

These bring our two mis-adventurers to Gay Paree and the second act.

Here they seek a good night's sleep, but instead find a bedful of heretofore missing bedbugs, very historical and very hungry. Here too they meet a man who combines window-washing with awakening late-sleepers and who has thereby developed a most interesting philosophy of life. He also develops some consternation in the lives of Cornelia and Emily.

Paper Sponsors Ad Program

The business staff of The Juniatian is sponsoring a program to makes its readers more aware of the many varied products and services which its advertisers offer.

According to Jay Benedict, advertising manager, "We are asking students wherever possible to patronize those stores which advertise in the College newspaper. This should prove of mutual benefit—the student helping the merchant and the merchant helping your newspaper financially through advertisements."

Accordingly all Juniatian advertisers have been asked to display the blue and gold sticker which reads "This store is a Juniatian advertiser."

Town Ministers, Glick To Speak In Chapel

Chapel speaker for Monday will be Father Edward Peddrette, Rector of the Huntingdon Episcopal Church. Wednesday the speaker is to be the Rev. Marlin Bottiger, of the Pa. Industrial School.

Friday Prof. G. Wayne Glick will conduct a worship service prepared by the Student Christian Movement. The Chapel Choir will conclude this program with a number.

Today's speaker, A. Stauffer Curry, is executive secretary for the National Service Board of Religious Objectors.

Senate Passes New Rules

The Student Senate passed new dining hall announcement rules at their biweekly meeting Monday. These rules were set up to relieve diners from having to listen to details which are not of general college interest.

They are as follows:

All announcements must be typed or neatly printed.

Only two announcements will be read for any one event and only one of these will be read in one day.

List of individual names shall be excluded from announcements.

Must Concern Six Or More

Announcements concerning less than six individuals will not be read.

Announcements must be presented within ten minutes after the meal has started.

Notices may be presented to the head waitress or assistant head waitress or, if need be, to the individual table waitresses.

Generally, there shall be only one reading of announcements at each meal.

Moreover, the president of the Senate or other Senate members will review announcements and consider emergencies which necessitate an exception to the rules.

Senate Approves Constitutions

At the Monday meeting the legislators also approved the constitutions of the Sociology and Cheerleaders Clubs.

The Senate acted on a petition presented by College music students asking that Swigart Hall hours be extended to 10 p. m. so that they would have more time to practice.

They recommended to the administration that Swigart Hall be kept open until 9:30 p. m. for a trial period of six weeks.

Looky Here!

'Bedraggled'Frosh Now 'Dignified'

by Joyce Grove

Ah! At last the day of the dink and name tag is over. No longer do we see the freshman girls running around carrying wastecans and wearing duckfeet or pajamas, nor do we see the boys with those darling little red bows tied under their chins.

Yes, 'tis sad but 'tis true, the freshman have now breathed a sigh of relief, so happy are they in the knowledge that finally they too can be dignified instead of bedraggled.

No More Suspense Tuesdays

Just think! No more suspense every Tuesday night at 9 p. m. (Now it will be only once a month.) You freshman can go on your merry way instead of sweating it out in your room while you wait nervously for the knock on your door and that voice that says, "Come with me!" Then the zero hour is over and you could almost cry with a broken heart because your roommate has been taken to court instead of you. Lucky!

The minute the roommate returns, the questions fly fast and furious. "What did they say? What did you have to do? Were you scared?" When the questions have subsided the story of the court is told . . . .

The Scene Shifts

Silence pervades. There is an air of mystery and somberness all around. In the darkness you wait . . . and wait. Finally your name is called. This is it!

You are pounced on. Questions are fired from all sides. Before you can find your breath your sentence has been imposed and the court has passed on to the next delinquent.

As you leave you are absolutely horrified at the thought of what you have to do. How are you ever going to do cheers on the steps of Students Hall one hour a week? Why you've never been a cheerleader in your life! And in front of all those people! Well, that's tough kid. You do it anyway.

Court Is Teacher

Actually court teaches you many things. For example, how to collapse in a nice neat pile when your knees are shaking so badly they can't support you anymore and how not to be frightened by strange voices calling your name in the dark.

Initiation for the first time this year was organized and the sophomores really planned a bang-up program. Shoe-shines were free, all the girls were expecting rain,

Parents Day Plans Include Game and Play

Parents will become honored guests of the College tomorrow for the annual celebration of Parents Day. Registration will begin at 9 a. m. in the Social Rooms.

Parents who sent their reply cards back to the College will receive complimentary meal cards and tickets to the game. Additional tickets, programs and football favors will be sold at the registration desk.

$30 In Prizes For Rooms

Room judging will be conducted at 10:30 a. m. Prizes amounting to $30 will be contributed by an alumnus of the College to be awarded to resident men and women students in the open house room contest. Five dollars will be presented to each of the occupants of the winning double room and single room in both the men's and women's dorms.

In awarding the prizes, the following will be taken into consideration: originality of room plan, neatness and attractiveness, adaptability to given physical limitations, and suitability and utility values. Condition of the walls, floors and the kind of furniture presumably available when the students entered will not detract from the occupant's score.

Open House 11:30 to 1:30

Open House will be held in the women's and men's dorms from 11:30 to 1:30. Parents are also invited to visit the following classes tomorrow morning. Classes open for visitation will be made known at registration.

The new cabin will also be open to parents and guests tomorrow from 10 to 1:30. (See story on Page 4.)

Buffet luncheon will be served in the College Dining Hall from 11:45 to 1:00.

Game, Play on Program

Parents Day activities will continue with the Lycoming football game at 2:30 and the Masque play, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay" at 8:15 that night. (See stories elsewhere in this issue.) At the game half-time speeches will be delivered by Dr. Clarence Pentz, representing the parents, and Vernon Showalter, representing the student body.

Assisting Harold Brumbaugh, chairman of Parents Day planning committee, has been Frances Mathias, Deans Melvin Rhodes and Edith Spencer, Ruth Kimble, Bud Kreider, Lorena Hebrank and Elaine Mock.

2 Students To Attend UN Seminar

The American Friends Service Committee is sponsoring a United Nations Seminar for college students to be held in New York City next Thursday through Sunday. Jay Benedict and David Limacost were selected by the IRC to attend this conference.

These delegates will join with about 33 other students from eastern colleges and universities in a seminar on "The Student, the United Nations and Peace."

The object of the seminar is to discuss the relationship of these three subjects and to encourage the building of a more secure and prosperous world.

Delegates will attend discussions at the Manhattan Towers Hotel, hear prominent speakers and visit Lake Success and Flushing Meadows to see the UN in action.

Book Auction Set For Next Week

The Pennsylvania Room of the College library will be converted into a temporary bookstall Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday when the first book auction of the year gets under way.

Approximately 200 books in all fields of knowledge will be offered for sale to the students. Bidding on the volumes will begin with a minimum of five cents, the student placing his name and bid on the little marker inside each book. Books will be given to the highest bidder when the auction closes at 4:30 p. m. Wednesday. The Library uses proceeds from these annual auctions in purchasing such items as the new display letters, microfilm for the new Recordak and pictures for the loan collection.

Panel To Discuss Dating Tues. Eve

A JCA student panel will discuss dating etiquette Tuesday evening at 7:30 in Founders Chapel. All students are invited to attend.

The panel will consist of about ten members, including married couples from the Village. A suggestion box will be put up Sunday on Founders Porch and the panel would appreciate questions from interested students.

Lois Miller Chosen Alfarata Literary Ed.

Lois Miller has been chosen to serve as literary editor of the 1950 Alfarata. This was announced by Quayton Stottlemyer, editor.

According to Stottlemyer, "We have contacted one engraving firm and will, in the near future, confer with others. The dummy for the 1950 edition is about complete but is of course not final."

Freshman and sophomores will be photographed in groups as in past years. The pictures will be taken starting the middle of next week.

Jones Wins Senate Post; Cook Elected Frosh Chm.

Bob Jones, a junior from Llewellyn, Pa., is the new Senate chairman of athletics.

Although the exact number is unavailable, approximately 80% of the student body voted in Tuesday's election.

John Cook has been elected temporary chairman of the freshman class. Elected to his committee were Gene Felix, Vince Loschiavo, Ray McHenry, Bob Rauch and Dagmar Silldorff.

'Hearts' Cast, Crew On WHUN

The cast and crews of "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay" were featured on Wednesday's "Juniata on the Air." Phil Norris scripted the show, which is heard every Wednesday from 8 to 8:30 p. m.

Also heard on this program was mood music from the '20s—the era of flappers, racoon coats and the Charleston. This was chosen since the Masque comedy is supposed to take place in 1923.

Spinning the records on "Turntable Terrace" next week will be Peggie Barrington on Tuesday and Fred Shamlian Thursday. Shamlian has taken over the Thursday spot regularly, but Tuesday is open to interested students who want to try playing disc jockey for a day, according to Betty Longwell, chairman of the radio committee.

JC Honor Graduate Now At Stanford U.

A summa cum laude graduate of Juniata college in 1943 is now employed in the physics research department of Stanford University. He is Dr. Edwin L. Hahn.

Dr. Hahn received his doctor degree from the University of Illinois for his assistance in the betatron development at that university.

Previously he spent a year at Purdue University and two years in the Navy as a radar instructor. He has also been doing research on nuclear induction.

While at Juniata Dr. Hahn was president of the senior class, vice president of the Chemistry Club, vice president of the orchestra and a member of the Honor Society.

It Can't Happen Here.....Or Can It ?

A certain man had a different philosophy of life than many of his countrymen. This man traveled over the country explaining this philosophy. He was sincere and obviously was more concerned about the welfare of his country than were many of the country's less active citizens.

His philosophy was so different that a majority of the citizenry did not agree with it. Indeed, there were some who felt that he should not be allowed to speak.

Strangely enough, this happened not in fascist Spain or in communist Russia but here on Juniata campus.

After Charles Walker, of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, spoke in chapel last week on "Non-violent Resistance," some persons said that such an individual with such views should not be allowed to speak in the College chapel.

Restriction Of Free Speech Is Serious

Fortunately, this group was small. However, we feel that the advocacy of a restriction of the right to disseminate new and different ideas is very serious.

It is granted that many of us disagreed with the principles of non-violent resistance which Mr. Walker proposed. But whether we agreed or not, the chapel address probably caused all of us to do some thinking. And after all, isn't that what we are here for—to learn to think logically on our own? If this is true, how can we learn to think logically and learn new truths if we only hear what we already believe?

The motto of Juniata College is "Veritas Liberat", which is translated, "the Truth sets free." Are we to assume that these person who would restrict such ideas as were presented in chapel have a monopoly on the Truth of the subject and therefore know definitively what is the Right and the Good?

We are inclined to question whether this is the case!

Furthermore, it cannot be argued that Mr. Walker is doing anything less for the ultimate good fortune of the United States than are we. He is actively working for a philosophy in which he believes.

What Are We Doing?

On the other hand, most of us say "let the government pay for it." We have to be asked to vote. We allow democracy to fail in action for the want of consecrated leadership.

What America needs today are more men and women like Charles Walker who will actively work for whatever philosophy in which they believe provided, of course, that that philosophy is in the best interests of the brotherhood of man.

America needs also men and women who will say with Voltaire, "I disapprove of what you say but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

TOMMY

Now that Twirp Week is over and all the girls have put away their track shoes, we can start cleaning our rooms to impress our parents. Tommy noticed that few of the co-eds chose to be aggressive. Maybe because it lacked that interesting spark of curiosity which was prominent in past occasions.

Prof. Rockwell, in an up-to-date straw hat, called the numbers better than a backwoods farmhand. Nick Bruno's lovely corsage made by Vera Compton won top honors at the Man-Trap Ball. Helen Wentzler solved the Sadie Hawkins caper and will receive a Sam Spade badge of honor.

Special honors are bestowed by Tommy on the best waitress at Juniata. Jodie is one of those waitresses who serves, not only with speed, but also with a smile.

Vernon Showalter was given a bale of straw to build a nest in his room—too tired to fly south.

Helpful Hints from Mr. Hawk. It pays to get up for breakfast, even at dawn, because the other two meals just about fill the daily requirements.

The old harvest moon has caught many students in its spell. Take for instance Ray Korody, Jack Dickey and Dale Zimmerman. This sleepless bird also noticed Patty Hetrick and Don Patricelli star gazing. Bill Bolt has been seen charging around with Audrey Campbell.

Barbara McClure went to the Sadie Hawkins shindig in hopes of capturing off Bob Elder but he was tied up with other socializing activities. Better luck next time Babs.

Whitey Shaffner seemed to be extra busy during Twirp week with many gallant gals. Tell us your secret, Whitey—we're dying to know!

Prediction of the week: There will be quite a few bruises occurring under Founder's porch. Without lights it's hard to tell where the steps begin or end.

Phyllis Link and Nancy McCahan are really drawing quite a crowd of males wherever they go. Watch the heads turn when they walk by Skips.

Tommy has to leave now for more food for thought. I hope all the visiting parents are proud of the high grades which everyone will be making—this week.

g'bye now,
Tommy

Dickinson Hands Indians First Shutout In Two Years, 26 - 0; Mathewson's Passes Hurt Juniata

by Bob Myers

Dickinson College had little trouble rolling over a badly crippled Juniata eleven 26-0 at Carlisle last Saturday. In blanking the Indians, Dickinson performed a feat that had not been accomplished since the opening game of the 1948 season.

With the one-two punch of halfback Wilbur Gobrecht and quarterback Johnny Mathewson, the Red Devils were just too much for the injury-riddled Indians.

Dickinson moved 82 yards for score the very first time they gained possession of the ball. Bowers broke off tackle from the DC 29 and got into the clear until Ed Gould, brilliant freshman find, hauled him down on the Juniata 21. Gobrecht then carried to the six on running plays and scored the first touchdown when Mathewson hit him with a pass in the end one. Lyter missed the attempted conversion and Dickinson led 6-0.

Mathewson Pass Again Scores

Juniata was held for downs on the 15 and Mervis was forced to punt. Putting the ball into play on the JC 48, the Red Devils went to score again. Gobrecht gained 27 yards in three running plays and Mathewson climaxed the drive with a 15 yard pass to Harkness for Dickinson's second TD. Lyter missed for the second time and Dickinson led 12-0.

On an exchange of punts in the second quarter, an Indian kick traveled only 19 yards before going out of bounds. With a first down on their own 42, the Devils drove 58 yards on only seven plays. Mathewson passed to Bowers on the ten, and Jim promptly romped the remaining distance for the score. Lashley converted to give the opponents a 19-0 halftime advantage.

With Ron Clapper, Dave LeFevre, and Eddie Gould playing brilliantly on the defense, it appeared as though the Indians had solved Mathewson's tricky ballhandling and Gobrecht's running. However, with key backs such as "Lundy" Loschiavo and Joe Dobal injured, the Juniata eleven had little hope of making a comeback.

JC Threatens In Third Period

The Indians most promising threat came in the third period when Dick Young returned the second half kick off to the 46. Rocco Ortenzio, substitute fullback, and Co-captain Phil Chabody carried to the Dickinson 19 yard line, but Juniata was penalized 15 yards for unnecessary roughness to blot out their only serious offensive thrust.

The Devils sewed up the game in the last quarter when Tom McNeal was tackled on his own 38 trying a desperation pass on last down. Gobrecht took over the passing chores and tossed to Ulrich on the Juniata two. Gobrecht lost three when Tony Selavich smeared him on an attempted sweep, but Wilbur followed with sweep around right end for the final tally. Lashley again converted, and Dickinson emerged the victors 26-0.

Fords, Crusaders Win, Washington Defeated

The element of defeat was a presiding factor among Juniata opponents for the second weekend in succession. In addition to Dickinson, JC conquerors, only two elevens were able to claim victories.

Haverford, a team which wasn't supposed to do much this year, defeated Hamilton in a breeze by 32-0. The win was number three for the surprising Fords, giving them a 3-1 record on the season, tops among enemy ranks.

Susquehanna, the other victor, squeezed past CCNY 7-6. In winning, the Crusaders gained sweet revenge for the drubbings handed them by the Gothamites over the past two years.

After taking their first games by shutouts, the Shoremen of Washington College proceeded to do an about face, losing their next two and being held scoreless. Drexel Tech, who incidentally is one of the states undefeated teams, turned the trick on the Marylanders last Saturday 21-0.

Lycoming, tomorrow's opponent, lost once again, this time to Wilkes 26-14. However, the Warriors really scored a moral victory since it marked the first time they have been able to cross the enemy goal line this season.

Juniata Opens Gridiron Relations With Lycoming College Tomorrow In Annual Parents Day Classic

The Warriors of Lycoming and the Indians of Juniata will meet on the gridiron for the first time tomorrow in the annual Parent's Day game. These two rivals have met before in both basketball and baseball, but this is the initial football contest.

A glance at the records show the Lycoming gridders are having a dismal season. They have yet to win after five games and have scored only 14 points all season. However, those 14 points were scored against a strong Wilkes College team last Saturday. If this is an index to progress, the Indians may be in for a surprise.

Coach Vince Chimente, now in his first season at Williamsport, stepped into a tough assignment last September. Since Lycoming was inaurated as a four-year college only two years ago, football is still in the infant stage of development. However, Chimente has worked wonders, and despite their record, the Warriors are steadily improving.

Both Teams Injury Riddled

To make matters worse, the Billporters have been further hampered by injuries. Mike Ripepi, 6 foot-200 pound tackle, has already been lost for the season. Fullback George Bellak was kept out of last week's game because of injuries but may be ready for tomorrow. Bellak is 6 foot, weighs 190 pounds and has been the sparkplug of the Warrior offense.

Juniata has also had more than their share of injuries and the outcome of tomorrow's game may well depend on this fact. Phil Chabody made a fine showing in his return to the lineup last week and Bob Wagoner will be back in shape for tomorrow.

Mike Mervis got a nasty cut over his eye at D'son, but will probably be ready tomorrow. However, Joe Dobal, Reds Orlet, Joe Thomasberger, Lundy Loschiavo and Coy Hicks are all question marks. Hicks and Dobal were both re-injured in last week's game, while none of the others saw action.

Clapper, Gould and LeFevre Star

On the brighter side last week was the defensive showing of Ed Gould, Dave LeFevre and Ron Clapper. On numerous occasions one of the aforementioned broke through the enemy defense to trap a Red Devil behind scrimmage. It was this defensive play which kept the Indians as much in the game as they were.

Both schools are having building years this year. Both teams have been riddled by injuries. Since the won-lost records of each are similar, tomorrow's battle should be a corker.

As an added feature for tomorrow's game, Lycoming College will bring their band, under the direction of James Shaffer, to Huntingdon to entertain at the halftime.

16 Candidates Drill For Basketball Opener

Basketball candidates are rounding out their second week of drills in preparation for their December 2 opener against Lycoming College. Eighteen men have been reporting for regular practice under Doc Greene, who begins his second season at the helm of JC cagers.

Returning from last year's varsity are Ray Korody, Dave Bayer, Jack Dickey and Leo Kuhn, while Dave Hackett, George Newcombe, Fran Townsend and Jerry Walker represent last year's JV's. New faces include Karl Park and Tommy Green, transfer juniors, and the following freshmen: John Cook, Ed Feldkircher, Harry Kochnlein, "Bud" Mills, Bob Rauch, Bob Simon, Ed Weirauch and Fran Zimmerman.

The end of football season will add several additional members to the squad. With the Lycoming opener only two weeks after the end of football season, Doc Greene will be forced to work overtime in preparation.

"Every position is wide open" commented Coach Greene. "We have just as tough a schedule as last year and will have to fight hard for every game."

Regular sessions will continue each afternoon, beginning at 3:30 p. m. until the close of football season. A new practice schedule will have to be arranged at that time in order to accomodate the junior varsity.

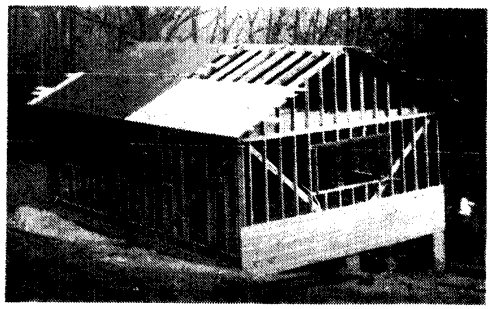
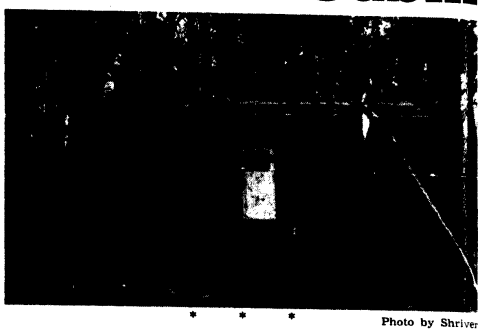
Open House Planned Tomorrow at the Cabin



* * * Photo by DeHart

BEFORE—Here is the cabin as it appeared in April from the rear. Student workers had just begun putting up the siding and applying the roofing materials. Half the flooring was installed. "The boys are still doing all the work," Dave Kennedy said, "but the girls' turn will come."

AFTER—Siding, roofing and flooring are finished and the girls have gotten their licks in with paint brushes, hammers and brooms. This front view taken Monday shows a nearly completed cabin awaiting only a fireplace, minor carpentry, and of course a pair of front steps.



* * * Photo by Shriver

"Open house will be held at the College cabin tomorrow for students, their parents and other friends of Juniata," according to Don Robinson, president of the Outing Club. This organization has sponsored the construction of the cabin and is arranging the details of the open house.

For the benefit of those unable to arrange their own transportation to the cabin, which is located ¼ mile from the Raystown branch of the Juniata River, the Club will have cars leaving every 45 minutes between 10 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. from the front of Founders.

Route Maps Will Be Available

A starting depot for the tour will be set up on Founders porch. Here persons with cars may obtain maps showing the route to the cabin. Here also, those without transportation may register.

Visitors to the cabin will be shown through the student-constructed building and will have a chance to see a portion of the 23 acres of land leased to the College for this purpose by Emory Zook. Jack Baldridge, Club treasurer reports, "There will also be refreshments."

The purpose of this open house says Club vice-president Art Shriver, is "to show parents and students that this thing they have been hearing about for the past six months is a real and useful possession, and not some wild dream."

College, Student Backed

He emphasizes, however, that "the cabin is not only for the Outing Club. It has been backed by the resources of Juniata College and the energies of the student body. When entirely completed, the cabin may also be used by other campus clubs."

Current construction plans call for the addition of a 15' by 20' kitchen in the rear "in the very near future," the addition of a fireplace built around a heatolater, and later, 15' by 16' dorms to the left and right.

First use of the cabin was Oct. 25 when the Club held a party there. Here the permanent name of To-Ke-Sa-a was selected. Suggested by Dean J. Melvin Rhodes, it comes from an indian-type yell written by Juan Miranda in about 1906 and popular for many years at Juniata.

It All Began In January

According to Bob Lowry, one of the original promoters of the idea, and a report filed by Club pres. Robinson, the Cabin Story begins in January of this year. Lowry, Dave Kennedy and Rex Hershberger, all '50, had just returned from a between-semesters trip to Canada. It was then they proposed to themselves—and shortly, to Pres. Calvert Ellis and his assistant, Harold Brumbaugh—the idea of building a cabin near the College.

Feb. 23, 1950 the idea was proposed to the Outing Club, then just an infant. A search for suitable land was made, culminating in the acquisition of a 99 year lease at $1 a year from Emory Zook with the possibility of it becoming College property in time.

Progress By Spring

By the end of Spring vacation last year, the cabin had progressed to the stage shown in the picture to the left above. This in large measure was due to the fact that a number of students and faculty stayed over during vacation to work on the project.

Since then, students have spent weekends and afternoons at the cabin site painting, laying flooring and putting on roofing. Principal difficulty from the beginning has been in obtaining transportation to and from the cabin site for these workers.

Frosh—

and a new style was set with the wearing of clothing inside out and backwards.

In The Gym, Action

Over in the gym on Friday night of initiation, action was the keynote. The freshman boys got into shape for their football game the next day by doing calisthenics. There were three advantages to this. They either lost weight, gained muscles or found themselves plain tired. After this, they were soundly paddled. Ouch! Home was never like this!

Now that the dinks have been worn an extra week and freshman initiation is all over for another year, we hear the ever popular "Wait 'till next year!" We're waiting.

Alarm Repair Not Needed

According to Paul Friend, business manager of the College, it is not necessary to repair the Lodge fire-alarm system since fire regulations do not require such a system in a one-story building.

However, Mr. Friend said that the fire extinguishers have been filled—"Where we could find them."

Future Teachers Invite Penn State FTA Officers To Meeting Here Fri.

by Dottie Hummer

Tomorrow our parents will be our guests for the annual Parent's Day festivities. Next week's celebration will include mid-term exams and hazy minds. Perhaps all this can account for brevity of this week's club news.

Each member is requested to bring his own prints to the Camera Club meeting Thursday at 7 p. m. These prints will be analyzed, pointing out their good and bad points. Slides will also be shown.

Miss Hummer

The WAA has scheduled a short business meeting for that same evening. A movie, originally scheduled for that date, will be shown November 16.

The first meeting of the FTA will be held next Friday at 7 p. m. An invitation has been extended to the Penn State FTA officers to attend this meeting and relate some of the important aspects of their organization. The second part of the program will feature a movie.

A discussion of III John will be led by Whitey Schaffner at the IVCF meeting Thursday night. The meeting will be held in the Women's Day Student Room at 7 p. m.

With all these activities to prepare for, do you mind if I catch a few winks of sleep while the catching is still good?

Forever,
Busy

Ah—a Villain!

Not to be forgotten is the reason for this whole Parisian adventure, M. de la Croix, who comes into the picture about this point. His visit puts the drama-struck Cornelia so high in the clouds that she overlooks his obvious interest in her father, the famous American actor, Otis Skinner.

And so—does that villain de la Croix get his due? Will Cornelia ever become a famous actress? Were the boys impressed enough in act one to come back for act two? Take your seat tonight well before 8:15 (since no seats are being reserved) and learn the outcome of this fascinating comedy "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay."

Approximately 40 students attended the meeting. Some of the questions brought before the panel were: what boys think of as the ideal girl and vice versa, the problems of college marriages and going study.

Director, Cast, Crew Praised For Latest Masque Play

by Jo Pentz

All Aboard! With a background of chain clanks and fog horns, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay" set sail last Friday and Saturday nights to fill many rain-chilled people with warmth and laughter.

Directed by Miss Lois Esaley, the play was excellent proof of her ability as a dramatic instructor. The leads, Phyllis Link and Vera Compton, portrayed two unique personalities who kept one jump ahead of their audience at all times.

Phyllis Link took over a very difficult part when she was cast as Miss Skinner. Acting within acting was necessary to keep the character of this unusual 19 year old always before the audience. The success with which she played this part assures the fact that she will be seen on the stage many more times before she leaves Juniata.

Kimbrough—What Next?

Vera Compton as Emily Kimbrough, excitable and fun loving, also made herself at home in the hearts of her audience. Her mad escapades kept everyone wondering what she would do next and sighing at what she had already done.

Joe Dunn and Bill Korman, as the two dashing males from Harvard, were typically American. Their wholehearted success in their adventures with the unusual girls down the hall were well played and entirely enjoyable.

Mr. and Mrs. Skinner, played by Helen Wentzler and Jack Malenke were parents the likes of whom have never been seen before. "Bed Bugs Away" Malenke showed that fathers can be human after all.

Entire Crew Congratulated

The entire crew from purser to bandleader should be congratulated on their excellent portrayal of their part. A special note of sympathy goes out to Homer Evitts for all the trunks he must have had to carry during rehearsals.

As much care went into the choosing of the characters for the smaller parts as for the main leads. The English girls, Ellie Formwalt and Evelyn Clarke, bothersome though they were, won the applause of all. Wilfred Norris as M. de la Croix was a villain above all villains. He looked and played the part excellently, showing his ability to act and his fluency in the French language.

Brumbaugh's Entrance Striking

Needless to say, Betti Brumbaugh's entrance in the third act was one of the most striking of the whole play. Betti, Clair Schaffner and Judy Shanabrook should all three be congratulated for their convincing acting. They fit their parts, and gave added interest to the whole atmosphere of the play.

Too often the people behind the scenes of these productions fail to receive the praise which benefits them. The scenery showed long hard work and the properties, costumes and make-up contributed their full share to the success of the play.

To all concerned we give our highest praise and hearty thanks for an evening of complete enjoyment. Congratulations to director, cast and crew.

New Movie Projector Purchased

Juniata College has purchased a new Bell & Howell Filmoarc movie projector complete with twin speaker system.

Authorized several weeks ago by the Board of Trustees of the College, this purchase represents an expenditure of $2000.

The machine, model no. 140-R, projects 16mm film. It has a high-intensity electric arc with a motor-driven carbon feed which insures uniform illumination. The light output is approximately 1300 lumens.

Two B & H high-fidelity, heavy-duty permanent magnet, dynamic speakers are included with the equipment. They give a frequency range from 50 to 7000 cycles.

The movie equipment, which is being installed by the James Lett Co., Harrisburg, will be used in the showing of the film tomorrow night. (See story below.) Since the College could not purchase dual machinery, several breaks will be necessary in the feature film tomorrow.

However, this temporary inconvenience will be more than offset by the brilliant, sharp pictures which the new equipment will provide.

Film On Agenda For Sat. Night

The social committee will present the movie "Up in Central Park" tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. in Oller Hall. This will initiate the newly purchased Filmoarc motion picture projector.

"Up in Central Park" is the story of Boss Tweed in a Currier and Ives setting. A colleen (Deanna Durbin), just off the boat from Ireland, flirts with a muckraker (propagandist) from the New York Times played by Dick Haymes. Her illiterate father fattens zoo pheasants for the table of Boss Tweed (Vincent Price.)

When rake Tweed entices the colleen down to an intimate supper, papa tags along and spoils everything. However, it all comes out right in the end.

The movie is based on a hit Sigmund Romberg musical play which played on Broadway in 1945. Book and lyrics were written by Herbert and Dorothy Fields.

P. G. Bhagat To Speak In Chapel

An elder of the Church of the Brethren who is also a native of India will be the Chapel speaker next Friday. He is P. G. Bhagat.

Elder Bhagat will be here Wednesday through Saturday and will talk with students interested in missions. Friday evening he will meet with the Brethren Student Fellowship in the basement of the Stone Church.

He is traveling with Wendell Flory, recruiting secretary of the Foreign Missions Commission of the General Brotherhood Board of the Church of the Brethren.

Chapel speaker this Monday will be Dean Morley Mays. Wednesday it will be the Rev. John Martin, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Belleville.

Trip To Pittsburgh For Opera Planned

Students interested in a proposed trip to Pittsburgh Saturday, Dec. 2, to witness a performance of Mozart's opera "The Marriage of Figaro" are asked by Prof. Donald Johnson to sign the paper posted on Founders bulletin board by this weekend.

Estimated expenses are bus (round trip), $4.50; opera ticket, $3.90; meal, about $1.00. If less than 25 persons sign up, the sponsors of the trip say they "may try to recruit private cars."

Tentative plans call for the bus to leave here at 12:45 p. m. and to return after the performance. Some sight-seeing will be included before supper.

Letter Is Course Topic Monday

Dean Melvin Rhodes' job course for seniors will continue Monday night with the topic, "How to Write a Successful Application Letter."

Hurray For The Projector

It's new, it's different, it's the new Juniata College Bell & Howell Filmoarc movie projector with the sharpest, brightest picture ever!

Yes, we are enthusiastic about the new $2000 movie projector that the Board of Trustees has authorized for Oller Hall. This equipment which was tested here last Spring promises to put an end to our movie illumination and sound problems.

On behalf of the student body we thank the Trustees for this valuable and costly addition to the College equipment. And we thank President Ellis, Mr. Friend and Prof. Yoder for their thought and planning in this connection.

Thank you Trustees and administrators, we are sure that this equipment will prove invaluable in the educational and recreational life here at Juniata.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Anyone sitting in a public gathering, particularly in a Juniata chapel service, cannot help but be disturbed very frequently by the almost incessant coughing. But a few realize that this cough may lead to the coffin and usually for the other fellow.

2/3 of Coughing Not Needed

Doctors tell us that two-thirds of all coughing is absolutely unnecessary and that most coughing can be inhibited. Many of us cough only because we heard some one else cough; we seem to do it to be sociable.

Of course, inhibiting a cough requires self control. We are told that many soldiers when captured by an enemy have saved their lives by feigning death. To do this requires absolute immobility even with very urgent impulses which we ordinarily think we cannot inhibit.

We Don't Slap Our Neighbor

Most of us do not realize the seriousness of spreading germs by coughing and sneezing. We are too civilized to slap our neighbor in the face, yet we will spread germs all about him without any attempt to protect him from a disease that will cause him much discomfort and frequently loss of time from work.

A few suggestions: first, prevent a cough if at all possible; second, use tissues to prevent the spread of germs when we do cough or sneeze. A mucous encrusted handkerchief is both foul and dangerous. Disposable tissues are far more sanitary.

Respectfully,
Charles L. Rowland

Mid Semester-- Time To Check

Here it is mid-semester and a good time to stop and take inventory.

Mid-semester grades will give us an idea of the quality and quantity of work we are doing in our courses.

These marks should be regarded as guideposts. Depending upon whether they are high or low, they may serve as a source of satisfaction or as a challenge to do better during the second half of the semester.

Our marks may indicate a trend towards high or low grades. Whatever the case, we should remember that it is up to us whether this trend shal be continued or whether it shall be reversed.

Should Evaluate Our Progress

We should evaluate our progress in light of these grades and set new goals and objectives.

Also we should consider whether we are maintaining the proper balance of studies and extra-curricular activities. Studies should always come first. We should take on only as many extra-curricular and outside activities as we can handle well—doing full justice to our abilities as students. Extra-curricular activities should be used as a supplement to the maturing process of our studies.

Consider Personal Development

Finally, in our collegiate self-criticism we should consider our development as sympathetic, mature persons. Here we should remember that marks are not the only criterion for progress. Well chosen and carefully balanced extra-curricular activities and the associations with other students may broaden our interests and develop the mature individual.

A consideration of the significance of the mid-semester grade, the balancing of studies and extra-curricular activities with a proper emphasis and an evaluation of our personal and social development will help us to get more out of College life.

A Book Review.....

The Mare's Nest

....by Jo Pentz

An unusual and intriguing story winds it way through the pages of a first novel, "The Mare's Nest," by the Huntingdon-born son of a Juniata graduate, Paul Griffith. In a small Arizona town in the middle of the "badlands," the lives and characters of several unusual people unfold.

Molly Shaver, old, but still possessive of her family and her town, is the main character. Like the other characters, she has had a frustrated love life, but unlike the others she has resolved into a rather normal, although garrulous personality.

"Fantastically Unreal"

The plot of the book appears fantastically unreal in most places. Although normality need not always be present in a story, a slight resemblance to the normal is usually better understood.

In reviewing Mr. Griffith's book, the New York Times makes these two comments, one concerning plot, the other concerning the writer's ability: "In Mr. Griffith's badlands even a stone is a frustrated firecracker . . . In this bizarre account of painful, pathetic passions, Mr. Griffith gives vivid, sustained proof of his creative ability."

Author Educated At Yale

Mr. Griffith received his college education at Yale University. There he won the Curtis Prize for creative writing. Since then he has been a teacher, researcher, magazine editor and college instructor.

[illegible] book, "The Mare's Nest", shows excellent ability in the writing, well thought out [illegible], it foretells better books to come.

TOMMY

This week the Laurel Wreath is presented to the football team for their magnificent portrayal of sportsmanship on the mud flats at Juniata.

Naomi Kulp has been scurrying from the dining hall early to meet her beau. The Chairman of the campus Smile Department is Betti Brumbaugh. Tommy lists Diane Bramhall and Ruth March as the leading lassies of the week.

Since every home is usually equipped with a bathtub baritone, Juniata can be proud of Charles Redenberger and Whitey Shaffner, "The Cloister Canaries."

It seems that as soon as boy catches girl, they are forgotten and placed in the hall of fame of forgotten possibilities. Here are a few couples who are still going strong, but never mentioned. Bob Folk is still Abel to pal around with Janie, "G. G." Gehman and Bob Rhodes, and Harold Bowser and Betty Hyre—this being a newly formed partnership.

In reference to the quotation in front of the Stone Church about voting: There could be a lot of 'good' votes polled if colleges would allow eligible voters time off, regardless how insignificant one vote may be.

Elaine Wilson showed Mike Pestuszek her room on Parents Day, and then escorted him to the pre-football dinner in the dining hall. It was unusual watching everyone balance the milk on one knee and the food on the other.

After seeing the dresses that were worn by Vera Compton and Phyllis Link in our recent successful comedy, I wonder if it is really worthwhile recalling the good old days. Congratulations to Miss Esaley; also the play production class, which played a great part in presenting the play.

When Nancy Meyers and Dottie Humphries visited the men's dorm they were overwhelmed at the cleanliness of the rooms compared to the girls' dorm. Maybe it's just one of those little items proving women to be the weaker sex.

It's high time I fly,

Juniata Meets G C Seeking Third Win; Mervis Sidelined

With a smashing Parents Day victory behind them, Juniata's rejuvinated Indians will depart for Grove City this afternoon for their final test away from College Field. The Braves will be seeking their third success of the season in this, their seventh battle.

Anyone in the dressing room after last week's battle had little trouble in recognizing the upsurge in the spirit of the Juniata team. This was their reward after a series of heartbreaking defeats. And they could not have picked a better time for their win, following as it did, the 0-26 loss to Dickinson. As Coach Bill Smaltz put it, after being carried from the field in the arms of the jubilant team, "It sure is a wonderful feeling."

Mervis Lost Via Injury

The only sad note to the whole day was the injury to Mike Mervis. The Mauler's knee was badly twisted in the second period and remains in a painful condition. Mervis will be lost to the Indians for tomorrow's contest and is a doubtful starter against Washington next week.

The remainder of the squad is slowly coming back to normal, at least as far as injuries are concerned. Reds Orler saw action in the passing and punting departments last week and may be ready for running chores tomorrow. Joe Thomasberger and Joe Dobal may also be ready, along with end John Thomas.

Grovers Have Yet To Win

Meanwhile, at Grove City, the charges of Coach Jim Loveless have yet to claim a victory. In fact, the Grovers have dented the scoring column in only one of their six defeats. The Grovers have undergone a tremendous rebuilding program this season after losing all but six from last year's squad.

Though pre-game statistics probably give Juniata the edge, the Grovers can be counted upon to put up a stiff battle. The Indians have a two-fold purpose for victory in tomorrow's game. First they will be seeking revenge for the 13-6 setback GC handed them last year, and secondly, they have their eyes set on a .500 average for 1950 and a win tomorrow will go a long way toward that goal.

DEFENSIVE HALFBACK—One of the newest additions to the Juniata defensive backfield is Herry Campbell. After playing some on offense at Dickinson he came into his own against Lycoming by intercepting a Ralph Johns' pass and sloshing 57 yards for the Indians' second TD.

Les Miserables, Aces Win In I-M Bowling

The Intra-Mural Bowling League got into operation last Friday with the scheduling of two matches. Les Miserables under Jack Malenke took up where they left off last year by sweeping the No-Names of Carole Hagen 4-0 by more than 500 pins.

Bob Asan's Aces took three of the four points from Bob Muchoney's Sneaks by winning the first two games handily. The Sneaks made a strong bid to gain a split by taking the third game by 143 pins, but this still left them short of the split by 15 pins.

The high single and triple went to Ed Marschka of Les Miserables with scores of 187 and 479 respectively. Carole Hagen led the girls with scores of 110 and 310.

The whole league moves into operation tonight with the schedule being:

6:45—Sliders vs Trojans
Strikettes vs NoNames
8:45—Les Miserables vs Aces
Faculty vs. Sneaks

Washington Regains Winning Stride But Other Opponents Lose

Washington College of Maryland was the only Indian opponent to match the Juniata win of last Saturday. Five of the opponents went down to defeats in which the margins ranged from one point all the way up to 59.

After losing two games in which they failed to score, the Shoremen of Washington College broke loose and ran up 32 points against Hampton-Sydney. Hampton-Sydney, with 27 points, gave Washington its closest battle in which the men of Coach Dominic Mentesano emerged the victors.

Grove City's Grovers are having a hard time of it this year. In five games played before they met Thiel the Grovers had scored only six points. They didn't add to their total Saturday and they certainly didn't hold Thiel down. The undefeated Tomcats really poured it on and when the smoke had cleared the score read 58-0 against Grove City.

Dickinson, victor over Juniata by 26 points went down to a 7-6 defeat at the hands of the Gettysburg Bullets. Extra points seem hard to get for the Red Devils and this missed point cost them the tie game.

Also meeting with defeat last week were Westminster, Hartwick and Haverford. Susquehanna, resting for their Homecoming game against Haverford, did not play Saturday.

The scores:

Long Runs By Phil Chabody And Harry Campbell Feature J C Win

by Bob Myers

The Juniata Indians celebrated Parents Day by sloshing their way to a 33-0 victory over Lycoming at College Field last Saturday. Before a near capacity crowd of shelter seeking fans, Juniata scored its second victory in six starts in a steady downpour that lasted the entire game and reached torrential proportions during the second quarter of play.

Juniata got its first break when Don Brumbaugh blocked Hamm's punt and Tony Segalovich recovered on the Lycoming 32. With first down on the eight yard line after several trys by Mervis and Co-captain Phil Chabody, Mervis bit for three and then the final five yards for the score. Phil Bartola's conversion went wide to the left and the Indians led 6-0.

Lycoming seemed to be trudging through the mud with considerable consistency late in the first quarter. Then Harry Campbell intercepted Foster's pass on his own 43 and ran 57 yards for a touchdown. Bartola made good the conversion and Juniata's lead grew to 13-0. Juniata's third score, in the second period of play, was just as dynamic as the second.

Chabody Runs 69 To Score

After taking the ball on their own 20 after a punt, the Indians used four downs to make it first down on the 31 yard line. From here Chabody sliced off-tackle on the 31, received a key block from Fred Hemor on his own 45 and slopped right down the middle of the field for 69 yards and six points. Bartola's conversion gave the Indians a 20-0 halftime lead.

Midway through the third period, Harry Campbell retrieved a Lycoming fumble on the LC 46. On third down Fred Hamor took off on a deep reverse, got a nice block from Co-captain Coy Hicks and galloped 21 yards to the visitor's 30 yard line. Reds Orler, whose activity had been confined to punting, passed to Bob Wagoner on the 11 yard stripe. Wagoner made a brilliant catch with defenders hanging all over him. On first down Rocco Ortenzo smacked off tackle and went over to score. Bartola's conversion was blocked, but Juniata went ahead 26-0.

Lycoming Threatens In Third

Lycoming's most serious threat came in the last quarter when George Bellak cut over left tackle, reversed his field and streaked down the sidelines. Harry Campbell made a diving try on the 25 yard line but Bellak kept his feet until he stumbled and fell on the six. Two plays netted nothing and Juniata recovered a fumble on the next play to end the threat.

The Indians last score of the game came when, with fourth down and seven on the 21 yard line, Don Patricelli took a reverse to the eight. Two penalties and a running play that failed moved the Indians back to the 20. From here, Tom McNeal pitched to Lundy Loschiavo in the left flat and the latter evaded no less than three tacklers on his jaunt into the end zone. Bartola kicked the point and Juniata won the game 33-0. It was the Indians most one-sided victory since they beat the New York Aggies 66-0 in 1938.

Trojans Sweep I-M Football Crown

The Trojans of Ray Korody went throught the second half of the Intra-Mural football schedule undefeated and thus swept both halves of the split season. The Champs, adding this half's five wins to those of the first half, ended with an over-all record of 10 wins and no defeats.

With Earl Detrick, Jack Dickey and Jerry Walker doing most of the scoring, the Trojans had too much class for the rest of the league. In the last two games the scores showed the Trojans trouncing the Bruins 35-0 and the Whiz Kids 35-9. This last game was played in the rain and mud of Wednesday.

Captain Ray Korody's championship squad also included: Art Allen, Karl Christner, Jack Middour, Bob Rhodes and Ray Tesi.

Teachers Describe Adventures Abroad

Tell Of Summer Trip To Europe

by Carol Cook

It all began June 26.

Miss Nory Edwards, Miss Helen Fisher and Miss Mildred Tausch carried their suitcases from the Quebec dock onto the S. S. Volendam, a student boat sponsored by the National Student Association of America and the Netherlands Students Bureau.

Ten days later their ship reached Rotterdam. The Prince Consort of Holland was on dock there to greet the seafaring trio and the American and Canadian students. They, in return, gave him a sweat shirt covered with the names of Canadian and American colleges and universities, including Juniata.

Bicycles, Flowers and Herrings

"Holland," Miss Fisher remarks, "is a land of bicycles, flowers and herrings (the national food). "While in this bicycle-flower-herring area, the trio attended a Monte Carlo ballet in an open air theater and went swimming in the North Sea.

They also met two Dutch girls who, according to Miss Tausch, "knew more popular American songs that we did." In their Dutch hit parade, top spots were "Music, Music, Music" and "Forever and Ever."

From the flat Dutch lands the three excursionists went by train to Belgium, and after four days touring there, including a visit to Ghent, they moved on to Western Germany.

In Western Germany, where 15 days were spent sightseeing, the globe-trotters sailed up the Rhine, visiting the ninth century Marksburg castle and the beautiful health resort, "Boppard" (Pearl of the Rhine.) They attended the Passion Play at Oberammergau, viewed the "badly bombed" city of Cologne, traveled by bus to the Black Forest, and visited the gaudy castle of "The Mad King" built by Louis II.

Prison An Honor Apparently

While in Heidelberg they saw the prison where university students were placed in solitary confinement on a bread-and-water diet for breaking university rules. Apparently it was considered an honor to mark time in this place, for many students proudly wrote their names on the walls. Miss Tausch said they noticed a number of American names on these walls.

Switzerland was the next stop. In Zurich the three travelers attended the International Association of University Women conference at which approximately 600 women representing 20 countries were present.

While in this mountain country, the three prospective mountain climbers purchased walking sticks, and "climbed" three mountains—by cog train.

No Popcorn At European Circus

Here they saw their first European circus. "It was not like any other circus," Miss Fisher observed. No popcorn, or peanuts for the elephants, or candied apples; but beer, good ham sandwiches and hard candy.

While visiting Lucerne, a little 14th century town with covered bridges and red gabled roofs, the trio heard a concert given by Nathan Milstein. "At concerts here," Miss Tausch said, "the people stomp their feet to show their approval, rather than applauding as we do."

In Paris the voyagers went to the opera, shopped for gloves and perfume, and refrained from climbing the Eiffel Tower because of its high degree of swayability.

After a week of eyegazing in France and a ride on a double decker train, the traveling trio crossed the English Channel to Dover and the White Cliffs. "The White Cliffs weren't as white as we expected them to be," Miss Edwards said, "but they were beautiful."

Ice Cream In Intermission

The three sipped their first "real English" tea while on the train from Dover to London. In London they saw three plays and followed another English custom, that of drinking coffee, or tea, and eating ice cream served at their seats during intermission.

However they did not care much for English food, particularly the breakfasts. They had become accustomed to the Continental breakfast of coffee, hot chocolate or tea and hard rolls with butter and jam, and failed to appreciate a British breakfast of baked beans on toast, grilled tomatoes and fried potatoes. They had enjoyed, though, the French food, and the pastries and chocolate of Switzerland.

One of the most colorful spectacles which they saw in London was the changing of the Palace guard. Among the most impressive sights seen on the whole tour throughout Europe were the cities illuminated at night by huge floodlights.

After seeing England "through the rain", the misses Edwards, Fisher and Tausch returned to their European starting point, Rotterdam, and thence home.

All Class Night Chm. Appointed

Korman and Wright Organize Performances

Bill Korman and Kay Wright will serve as chairman and assistant chairman respectively for this year's All Class Night. These appointments were made at the Senate meeting Monday night.

* * *

Korman, a senior from Smithmille, is majoring in biology. He is active in the Scalpel and Probe Club.

Miss Wright is from Johnstown, and is a psychology major. She is a member of the Outing Club, orchestra, JCA and the freshman committee.

All Class Night April 14

All Class Night will be held April 14. This 15th annual presentation will emphasize full class participation and will be "better organized than in previous years," according to the two chairmen. Keener competition among the classes will be encouraged. Each class is urged not to let the other classes learn anything about its production.

The script committees should be organized as soon as possible since the deadline for scripts will be Dec. 9. Script writers are asked to limit their performances to 20 minutes.

Spencer, Rockwell Advise

With Dean Edith Spencer and Dr. Donald Rockwell acting as faculty advisors, a student-faculty committee will choose the most suitable scripts. After the scripts are chosen, a schedule of rehearsals will be posted. Most rehearsals will be staged in Oller Hall.

The chairman and his assistant agree that this will be "the most successful All Class Night ever staged at Juniata."

At special meetings called yesterday, the class chairmen for All Class Night were elected. They are as follows:

Senior, Phyllis Baughman; junior, Glenn Felix; sophomore, Phil Norris; and freshman, co-chairmen Bob Rauch and Joe Dunn.

Bill Korman

Ellis Attends Policy Confab

At the invitation of the Department of State, President Calvert Ellis attended a national conference on U. S. foreign policy Wednesday and Thursday in Washington, D. C. From there he went to Harrisburg to attend a meeting today of the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Universities. He is treasurer of this group.

Next Friday and Saturday he will be at the 64th annual convention of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, which will be held in Atlantic City. Dr. Ellis is a member of the commission on institutions of higher education.

Classes Short Wednesday For Thanksgiving Vacation

The schedule of classes for Wednesday, Nov. 22 is as follows:
First period—8 to 8:40
Second period—8:45 to 9:25
Third period—9:30 to 10:10
Fourth period—10:15 to 10:55
There will be no chapel period. Lunch will be served at 11 a. m.
This short schedule has been arranged "in order that students may make satisfactory arrangements for going home. Work for that day is to be regarded as normal and regular," according to the office of the President.

Asks Advance Notice On Equipment Use

According to Prof. Paul Yoder, who is in charge of the motion picture and public address equipment, slide projector and screens, all requests for the use of this equipment must be presented to him or to David Armacost at least one week prior to their use.

He commented that those who did not give this advance notice would risk disappointment in obtaining equipment or operators.

Stafford Offers Prizes For Folklore

Singer Jo Stafford is now offering for the third consecutive year cash prizes of $125, $75 and $50 to college students who compile the best collections of American folklore.

Hector Lee, folklore professor at Chico State College, Chico, Cal., is chairman of the national committee composed of professors from four universities and colleges in this country, who will judge the contest.

In publishable form, the student collection of folklore—what people do, say, sing and pass on to following generations—should be sent to Dr. Lee before Jan. 15, 1951. The judges also request that the theses and dissertations be gathered from primary sources and be submitted as original research.

Entries are to be accompanied by letters stating when, where and how the materials was collected, together with a listing of the scholarly assistance supplied by others. All papers are to be typewritten on good quality paper and double spaced.

Contest Entries Due January 15

Tomorrow Magazine has announced the fifth annual College Writer's Short Story Contest and offers a first prize of $500; second prize, $300; and third, $200. Anyone taking at least one course in any United State College or university may enter.

Manuscripts, not exceeding 5000 words, may be entered by sending them to College Contest, Tomorrow Magazine, 11 East 44th Street, New York 17, N. Y., before midnight, January 15, 1951. Students may enter any number of manuscripts that have not been published previously. Each entry must be accompanied by the student's name, home and school addresses.

The contest will be judged by the editors of Tomorrow and the editors of Creative Age Press. The Prize-winning stories will be published in the Spring and Summer of 1951 but all other manuscripts will be considered for publication as regular contributions and if accepted will be paid according to regular rates.

Asan Is New Sports Editor

Bob Asan was appointed sports editor of the Juniatian by David Armacost this week. He will fill the post vacated by Bob Jones, recently elected Senate chairman of athletics.

Asan is a sophomore business major from Sewickley, Pa. He is a member of the Outing Club and was assistant baseball manager last Spring.

15th Firelighting Ceremony Plans For Sunday Eve.

The Firelighting Ceremony will be held in the Social Rooms this Sunday evening at 10. This service, an annual Fall event, is exclusively for the women students.

Since 1936, when the first fire was lit in the fireplace, this ceremony has been a tradition of the College. Until a few years ago the original log was burnt each fall.

As in the past, the theme will be Indian. However, this year, to enhance the beauty of the program, new costumes are being bought and made by the House Committee.

Included in the program will be an original poem written a few years ago by one of the Juniata students. This year it will be presented by Connie Sherman. The Women's Trio—Joan Weaver, Josephine Chiodi and Doris Orner —will sing the Alfarata Song and other musical numbers adapted especially for this service.

Ruth Kimble, house committee manager, will read the kneel poem while day student president Janet Kough lights the fire. The prayer will be given by a JCA active member, Mary Lou McKee.

Due to the nature of the program, both freshmen and upperclass girls should attend.

Seniors To Hold 'Turkey Ball'

A Thanksgiving atmosphere will prevail in the College gym tomorrow night when the senior class entertains at the Turkey Ball.

Beginning at 8:15 p. m., the dance will be informal. The campus dance band will provide music for the evening, and refreshments will be served.

Working with Walt Bush, senior class president, are the following committee chairmen: Charles Allison, decorations; Hilton Hines, programs; and Cecelia King, refreshments.

David Brubaker

'Papa Is All' To Be Staged Tues.

The Allenberry Players, who presented "The Hasty Heart" here last month, will return to Oller Hall next Tuesday. This time they will stage a comedy based on Pennsylvania Dutch life and entitled "Papa Is All."

David Brubaker, the Jigger of last month's offering, will play the fanatical parent, Papa. The comedy, which will be given in the Pennsylvania Dutch dialect, revolves around his two cowered offspring's attempts to throw off his yoke. In dialect, the title indicates Papa's feeling about his own importance.

The children will be played by Hazen Gifford, the Lachie of "Hasty Hearts," and Ann Dearing, who portrayed Sister Margaret.

Lorraine Bagley, who did not appear last month, will essay the part of Mrs. Yoder. This woman is a nosey neighbor who has the bad habit of walking in at the wrong moments. When not acting, Miss Bagley has charge of properties for the Players.

A ticket distribution system similar to that used last time will be employed, but details are not yet available. The sponsors of the plays emphasized that these student tickets are not transferable.

20 To Attend SCM Conference At Bridgewater

Twenty Juniata students will spend their Thanksgiving vacation at Bridgewater College in Virginia attending the Brethren Student Christian Movement Conference.

They will be participating in actual activities of the conference from registration time at 3 p. m. Nov. 3 until approximately 1:30 on the afternoon of the 26th.

The conference will be under the supervision of various resource leaders from the Church of the Brethren, including Prof. G. Wayne Glick of the Juniata faculty.

The group will be concerned mostly with the discussion of four problems which have been chosen by the BSCM Cabinet. Galen Frysinger of the Juniata student body is an active member of the cabinet.

The questions which they have chosen are: Will we have to answer to God for every cent we spend?; Is it possible for us to imitate Jesus?; How can prayer become a dynamic force in my life?; and Is Christ the only way?

These topics will be discussed by the representatives at a series of three problem discussion sessions; also the subject of work projects will be taken up.

The students who will attend the conference are: Anna Winger, Barbara Warner, Carmen Sollenberger, Carol Shoemaker, Don Robinson. Elaine Mock, Galen Frysinger, Galen Keeney, Janet Carper, Jo Pentz, Naomi Kulp, Phil Norris, Phil Kulp, Ronald Cherry, Vernon Showalter, Don Treese, Nina Alley, Frank Byers and Alethea Hoff. Prof. Glick will also be present at the conference.

Chapel Choir Begins Cantata Rehearsals

The Chapel choir has begun rehearsals for the annual Christmas cantata which will be presented in Oller Hall Dec. 10. This year's selection is "A Mystery for Christmas" (in the medieval manner) by Howard McKinney.

Clair Schaffner has been named student co-ordinator for the production. He will work with Prof. Donald Johnson and Miss Lois Esaley.

Elinor Newcomer Married

On Thursday evening, Nov. 9, in her home near Uniontown, JC coed Elinor Newcomer answered the "I do" questions with William Shoaf. Ben Newcomer, brother of the bride, sang for the wedding, accompanied by Doris Mickle. Two other Juniata students present were Elaine Mock and Martha Ann Ziegler. The bridegroom has since left for the Army.

Benedict And Armacost Study UN In Session At N. Y. Last Week

Jay Benedict, IRC president, and David Armacost, a club member, hitch-hiked to New York City last week for a seminar sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee. The topic was "The Student-the United Nations-and Peace." Its main purpose was to present a clearer understanding on the UN.

In New York, they joined an interracial group of about 50 students from Temple, Colgate, Haverford, Swarthmore and other colleges.

At the opening session, Mrs. Laura Vitray, staff member of the UN World Magazine spoke to the group on "Your United Nations."

The delegates then met with the United States Mission to the United Nations. This is a body of 185 State Department representatives and private citizens. Charles Bolte, political adviser for the Mission, and Frank Nash, member of the commission on armaments, spoke about the purpose of the Mission and U. S. policy in regard to the UN.

Visited Quaker House

Quaker House, situated near the new UN building, was the next stop for the students. It is here that some UN officials gather in an attempt to reach agreements on world problems.

The second day the group traveled to Lake Success where the Security Council was discussing the position on the agenda of the Korean problem. There the two JC delegates saw such notables as Dr. Ralph Bunche, Eleanor Roosevelt, Warren Austin and Jacob Malik. They also attended a meeting of the Trusteeship Council and a conference on human right.

Heard Indian Adviser

In the evening, Dr. Amiya Chakravarty, adviser to the India delegation, discussed the question "Is the United Nations the Answer to Peace?" Other speakers were Leon Edel, newswriter from the N. Y. Daily Compass and Jim Bristol, Associate Secretary of the Middle Atlantic Region of AFSC, who spoke on "Pacifism and the International Situation".

Although there were three sessions a day (each two or three hours long), the delegates managed to attend the stage show "Member of the Wedding" and the movie "Trio."

Tonight at the IRC meeting Armacost and Benedict will discuss further the seminar and present the viewpoints of some of the speakers.

Editorializing

We Can Be Thankful...

By David Armacost

New York City is well-known for its rushing taxis, automats, skyscrapers, nightclubs, first-run theatres and stupendous signs and displays.

What is less known or considered is the crippling effect which the hurry, the anonymity and the sensual satisfactions of the big city has on its citizens. This is not to say that New York is any worse than any other city but just that the situation is magnified here.

When I was in New York last week, I was amazed by the number of perplexed, unhappy and physically crippled persons.

There were the lonely, poorly clad, individuals who made their way into the automat and elbowed themselves a breakfast of coffee and toast . . .

Many Seek Satisfaction

. . . the men and women who roamed the streets of Times Square and of Greenwich Village. They frequented bars and nightclubs seeking a satisfaction in life that they could never seem to find.

These observations gave me a realization of many things for which all of us should be thankful to God. They made me say, "I complained because I had no shoes until I saw a man who had no feet."

On Thanksgiving Day and throughout the year we can be thankful that we are not social misfits. We can be thankful that we live in a democracy (as inefficient as it may be.)

Thankful For The UN

We can be thankful for the United Nations, for an opportunity to go to college, for pleasant surroundings and for three meals a day. We can be thankful for friends and family.

Indeed, it is trite to say that we have a great number of things for which to thank God this Thanksgiving—quite as much as, or more than, the Pilgrims at Plymouth had in 1621.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS — by BIBLER

"Happy vacation, son! Glad to have you home for a few days. Say, mind slipping into these overalls—just happens we're laying tile floor and painting 'round here this week."

TOMMY

With the change of seasons, also comes the change of temperature. The blood runs thicker and the pulse runs wilder. Nancy Vaughn has her pulse running at the boiling point for "Antny" Segalovich. Lately, "Hoby" Heistand's extra-curricular activities have centered around Marilyn Eastland. Lois Bratton has been getting a Keener outlook on life.

With Christmas only a few weeks off, (Tommy you dreamer) Santa's fairies, Messrs. Witchey, Dixon, Kauffman and Creps, are working overtime to bring the spirits of yuletide to the College campus.

Here's to the chem major, who is always smelled but rarely seen. Sometimes I wonder about Ray Siren—er schlaft zu viel. Sue Harrington has turned to studying philosophy and right now she has turned her interest to Aristotle. Other industrious males have switched to studying figures. (Accounting, etc.) To Peggy Barrington, this word of prophecy—"There's a Ford in your future." (A yellow convertible with masculine trimmings.)

Monday morning's mail was crammed full of circular letters from a book company announcing a bargain sale of texts on sex and marriage. They must think the college student a rather unstable character.

Joan Weaver enjoys the chats and walks along Moore Boulevard with her favorite Irish tenor. Nancy Newman likes receiving long distance calls from her beau. The Outing Club activities are so full of fun that even the College truck is turning over with joy. Next time, make sure that Robinson, with all his advoirdupois, walks up the hill. Sometimes I wonder about Bob Frain. What's his major here at school—phys. ed. or pre-med?

The debut of the projector was successful despite intermissions. The machine is a magnificent work of art—hope that it will be used more than 4 times a year.

Dobal and Chabody Run Wild As Indians Trounce Grove City 19 to 6

by Bob Myers

Continuing on their winning streak, the Juniata Indians made it two in a row by defeating Grove City 19-6 last Saturday on the latter's field. With Joe Dobal and Phil Chabody leading the way, Juniata compiled more yardage by rushing than they have been able to collect since they defeated Hartwick College in 1948.

Chabody and Dobal led the ground assault with 147 and 144 yards respectively. Joe scored twice and passed for the other touchdown, while Phil accounted for the game's longest run with a 72 yard jaunt in the second quarter.

Gould Intercepts Pass

Eddie Gould, one of the outstanding defensive backs, started the touchdown parade when he intercepted Bob Koitzsch's pass on his own two and returned the ball to the Juniata 19 yard line.

On first down, Chabody sliced off tackle and tore down the middle for 72 yards, touchdown bound, but Coats caught him from behind on the Grove City nine. From here, Dobal took over and gained three yards. Then he passed to Lundy Loschiavo in the left flat. Lundy took the pass in the open and crossed the goal for the Indian's first score. Phil Bartola's attempted conversion was blocked by Spitzer, and Juniata led 6-0.

Juniata took advantage of a third period fumble as Gene Shaffer recovered the ball on his own 45. Dobal and Chabody again combined on alternate carries for two first downs.

With first down on the Grove City 27, Joe blasted for 26 yards and a first down on the one yard line. Dobal hit guard again and went over for Juniata's second touchdown. Bartola's second try for the extra point was again blocked, this time by Ralph Larsen, but the Indians led 12-0.

Dobal Scores Second TD

Sam Restivo fumbled on the following kick-off, and Joe Thomasberger recovered for the Indians.

Following the fumble, Dobal picked up 12 yards on three plays for a first down on the GC 12 yard line. Chabody got one yard and Dobal smacked through for ten more and another first down. Going through right guard, Joe went over from the one. Tony Segalovich concluded the Indian's scoring as he kicked the extra point that gave Juniata a 19-0 lead.

Juniata's first punt led to Grove City's only score. Reds Orler was forced to kick from his own 48 yard line in the fourth period. Receiving the punt on the 12, Ralph Christy eluded three tacklers and raced 78 yards before Chabody finally caught him on the JC 10.

Two plays later Dave Winland scored as he outreached two Juniata defenders to catch Walt Kelly's pass in the end zone. The try for the extra point was fumbled and Juniata came out on top 19-6.

Officials Club Forming To Aid Future Refs

If enough interest is shown, an Officials Club will be organized under the supervision of Mike Snider, director of athletics, and Bob Jones, Senate chairman of athletics. Interested students should sign the list in Students Hall or see either Jones or Snider as soon as possible.

The purpose of the club is to better the quality of the intramural sports program by having organized officiating and to give experience in athletic officating to those who desire it. The club will also assist men who intend to take PIAA exams for high school officiating.

Weekly meetings will be held at which rules will be discussed and their applications explained. Assignments for the games of the coming week will be given at these meetings.

Award emblems will be given out at the end of the year to those who have done satisfactory work under the club program.

Washington Game To Be Last In Careers Of Hicks and Chabody

by Bob Asan

When Coy Hicks and Phil Chabody take the field tomorrow it will mark the end of two brilliant gridiron careers. Both have won three letters and at the start of the season were named to co-captain this year's squad.

Hicks is majoring in history in preparation for graduate work at Dickinson Law School. He will still root for the Indians when they play Dickinson, however.

Chabody, a sociology major, intends to go into juvenile recreation work. "Work on the nature of a Boys' Club Athletic Director would be okay," he says.

Both Play Football As Freshmen

Chay broke into football as a freshman in Juniata's backfield and has been carrying the ball ever since. He believes that the best game of the year was the one against Lycoming. Chabody's biggest football thrill came in the game against Susquehanna at Selinsgrove in 1948. In this game he took the second half kickoff and raced 85 yards for the touchdown that insured an Indian win, the first away win since 1942.

As a junior in high school Hicks was given a line assignment, which came as quite a surprise as he was only about five feet one and weighed 110 pounds. It must have been the right spot for him though, because that is where he has been ever since. Except for time out due to injuries Hicks has been in the Juniata line-up since he was a freshman and he was named Co-captain of this year's eleven.

No particular game stands out for Hicks as he says, "I just like to play football." He will say, however, that the game against Susquehanna was the one which he thought was the best of the season. "Winning is nice and even more so against Susquehanna."

Both Hicks and Chabody look forward to tomorrow's game with Washington. They feel that it will be a good game and the better team will win.

Freshmen Playing Good Ball

In answer to this reporter's question about next year's team, both men were of the opinion that the freshmen have acquitted themselves very well this year and with their experience will go far with the rest of the team next year.

This will be the last game Chabody and Hicks will be playing but it will be a long time before they forget their football afternoons.

Frosh Takes Track Medal

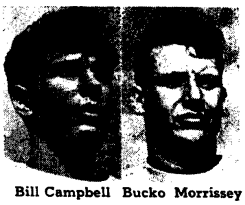
Bill Blakeley, freshman from Haddonfield, New Jersey, copped the fifth place medal in the Middle-Atlantic Track and Field Association Cross-Country run held recently. Participating in the race were 49 freshmen from the various schools of the Conference.

Also representing Juniata were Bob Flory, Bob Fahrney and Wilfred Norris. Flory finished eighth while Fahrney and Norris finished among the first 20.

Indians Seek 3rd Over Shoremen

An attempt will be made, as the Indians meet the Shoremen of Washington College, to even two Juniata records. A win will not only bring the season log up to a four and four mark but it will also tie the series with the Shoremen, who have won three of the five games played between the two schools, the last game being played in 1941.

This promises to be one of the best battles of the year as it will be the last game on the schedule of both schools and both teams would like to have it in their win column, number six for Washington and number four for the Indians.



Bill Campbell Bucko Morrissey

Co-captains Coy Hicks and Phil Chabody will be leading six seniors into their last collegiate game. On the offensive platoon with Hicks and Chabody will be Jerry Africa at center and Bucko Morrissey at end. Gene Shaffer joins Hicks and Morrissey on the defense, while Bill Campbell adds reserve strength to the guard position.

Jerry Africa Gene Shaffer

The Indian attack will be spearheaded by Phil Chabody and Joe Dobal, who between them ground out 291 yards against Grove City. It will be matched against the Split T employed by Washington.

Running the Washington team from quarterback will be sophomore John Wilson, who has the reputation of being a better than average passer. To supplement his passing game Wilson calls on Bill Miller, who operates from a halfback position. Miller is a hard runner and in the Swarthmore game he racked up three touchdowns.

The Shoremen have rolled up 155 points in winning five of the seven games they have played. They have limited the opposition to 68 points.

Bhagat Here Until Tomorrow

Today's Chapel speaker, the elder P. G. Bhagat of the Church of the Brethren, will be on campus until tomorrow afternoon to talk with students interested in missions. Last evening he met with the Brethren Student Fellowship in the Stone Church basement.

P. G. Bhagat

Traveling with Elder Bhagat is the recruiting secretary of the Foreign Missions Commission of the General Brotherhood Board of the Church of the Brethren, Wendell Flory.

Monday the Chapel speaker will be President Calvert Ellis. There will be no Chapel Wednesday due to shortened classes for Thanksgiving vacation.

Back In The Good Old Days

The following is from the "First Catalogue of the Brethren's Normal School and Collegiate Institute of Huntingdon, Pa., published 1878:

"Tuition, Fall term of 15 weeks —$12.00; room, per week—$.25 to $.75; board, per week—$1.50 to $2.00; light and fuel extra; total expenses for year of 42 weeks should not exceed $150."

Clubs: Report Meetings

All clubs are reminded that meeting times should be reported to Miss Edith Spencer as far in advance as possible. By doing this, the clubs will receive publicity in the Juniatian Campus Calendar prior to the time of meeting.

'Let Me Do It Now'

I expect to pass through this world but once; any good thing therefore that I can do, or any kindness that I can show to any fellow creature, let me do it now; let me not defer or neglect it—for I shall not pass this way again.

On Other Campuses

The Wilkes College Cue 'N' Curtain is using a new twist in presentation of their dramatic productions. On three consecutive nights the club presented three different one-act plays directed by three different student directors. The plays presented were "A Night At An Inn", "Submerged" and "No Orchids." The productions were given in the college gym and were followed by dancing to "canned music."

Speaking of gyms, and who isn't now that the Juniata gym is well on its way, it seems that this building of physical education plants has been taken up on a grand scale. Lebanon Valley College has nearly completed a new gym, and Albright College, at Reading, broke ground for theirs Nov. 2, Albright's Charter Day.

From the Yale Record:

The doctors came out of the bedroom to the anxious wife. "Frankly," he said, "I don't like the way your husband looks at all."

"I don't either, Doc," the wife replied, "but he's nice to the kids."

The Playshop at Allegheny College, a J C basketball rival, has presented their second play of the season, "Playboy Of The Western World." The play is an Irish comedy which was written in 1907 by John Synge and recently revived on Broadway with Burgess Meredith in the lead.

Haverford College has had to restrict the use of their Record Library to the record rooms. Formerly the students were allowed to borrow them from the collection but a startling loss of records put an end to it.

* * * * *

McPherson College, way out in Kansas, staged their thirtieth pajama parade and snake dance in the streets of McPherson recently. The affair is put on every year on the eve of the first home football game in cooperation with the McPherson police force and the college cheerleaders.

A freshmen revolt at the University of Pittsburgh fizzled this year when the frosh got cold feet. There were rumors that the freshmen body was planning a mass dink cremation of the front walk but the plot collapsed because of a lack of leaders.

This little gem of humor, or whatever you may want to call it, was gleaned from the pages of the Missouri Show Me.

"Too bad my hen got loose and scratched up your lawn."

"That's O. K., my dog just ate your hen."

"Great! I just ran over your dog."

Rhodes Reports Employer Query

"How can I secure a good job when I am through college? In what manner should I conduct myself during an interview?"

Answers to these and other questions can be found in a report distributed to the students of Dean Rhodes' vocational guidance class. The report was prepared through the co-operation of 156 companies.

Interests, Activities Count

The companies report that they are interested in a person's activities and interests as well as his college courses and work experiences. Most employers want a person who not only has a good scholastic record, but also has participated actively in school activities and community affairs.

Experience in part-time jobs, in work during the summer months, or in military service is taken into consideration by the employing company.

Make Hand Shake Firm

Preparation for the interview and conduct during the interview are of prime importance. In preparation for the interview, the person should make a study of the company and its product. A well-groomed, clean-cut appearance and a firm handshake give the feeling of vitality and are much to be desired.

During the actual interview, the job-applicant should be poised and attentive. In a pleasing voice, he should give honest, straightforward answers to all questions. Interest in the company, enthusiasm for the job, and a willingness to start at the bottom are also considered important by the companies surveyed.

A Capella Choir To Start Trip To West Jan. 26

The Juniata College A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Prof. Charles Rowland, will begin their annual trip Jan. 26.

This year the choir is traveling west and will sing at Youngstown and Canton, Ohio, Uniontown, Greensburg, Johnstown, Everett, Somerset and other smaller towns in Pennsylvania. They will return to school Sunday, Feb. 4.

Rowland To Retire

Since this is to be Prof. Rowland's last year at Juniata, the choir's program is expected to be a tribute to his long and devoted service to Juniata. The selections will consist mostly of the best numbers of former years.

Mainly sacred music, the program will open with "Cast Thy Burden Upon the Lord" and "The Lord's Prayer." The men's choir will do "Angus Dei," and the women's choir will sing "Setting of the Sun."

Sacred, Secular Music

Some of the other numbers are "Oh, Sacred Head." "In the Night Christ Came Walking" and several spirituals, including "There Is a Balm in Gilead."

Secular numbers will be on the program especially for the high schools. These will include "I Am Music," "The Italian Street Song" and the Fred Waring arrangements of "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "You'll Never Walk Alone." The women's trio and the men's quartet will also present several selections.

Choir Began 28 Years Ago

The Juniata A Cappella Choir was originated 28 years ago. Men's and women's glee clubs were organized prior to this time and worked separately until 1932 when the combined choir was formed under the supervision and direction of Prof. Rowland.

Singing primarily a cappella, the mixed choir remained intact until wartime shortages of manpower caused its abandonment in 1943. For two years an all-girl choir was substituted, but the return of veterans in 1946 resulted in the reorganization of the mixed voice choir.

Dance Troupe To Be Here Mon.

The first Community Concert of the season will be presented in Oller Hall Monday, Dec. 4, at 8:30 p. m. Featured will be a six-member dancing troupe headed by Mata and Hari.

These dancers, who have performed in New York, Chicago and Hollywood, as well as in Europe, are not to be confused with the notorious World War I spy of a similar name.

Born in the same town, instructed in the same dancing school, Mata and Hari never met until they joined the troupe of Trudi Schoop in Paris. While touring the US with Miss Schoop's group, they were married.

When the others returned to Europe in 1939, they remained here to dance on their own. Since then they have appeared in such varied entertainment spots as the Diamond Horseshoe and Carnegie Hall, as well as Olson and Johnson's hit show "Laughing Room Only" and an MGM movie.

The success of their "Dance Theater," and entire play interpreted through dancing, led to a contract with Columbia Concerts for a cross- country tour, of which Monday night's performance is a part.

5 J C Alumni At Ft. Bliss

Juniata is well represented at Fort Bliss, Texas, according to Kenneth Sheetz, ex'53. Mervin Metz, Thomas Hooper, Robert Giffin, Robert Appleby and he are now stationed there. However, Sheetz expects to be overseas in the Far East Command within a few short weeks.

Senate Selects Benedict Head Of JWSF Drive

Jay Benedict has been chosen by the Senate to head the Juniata World Service Fund Drive. He is a senior from Waynesboro.

This campaign has been scheduled for February. It is the only such fund raising campaign on campus which has Senate approval.

The money raised will be distributed among various worthy agencies which will be announced later by the Senate.

Benedict, a history major, hopes to enter Dickinson Law School next year. He is the president of the IRC and advertising manager of the Juniatian. In addition he is a member of the Tycoon Club and the JCA.

Senators Ban Gambling Pools

At their meeting on Monday, Nov. 20, the Senate ruled that gambling pools should not be permitted on Juniata campus.

Also the Senators recommended to the administration that the Christmas holiday be extended to January 2 so that students would not need to travel on New Year's Day.

In considering days off for winning football games, it was pointed out that in communications to the Senate by President Ellis that this only happens occasionally and should not be considered the rule.

JCA To Hold Christmas Party

The JCA is planning a full calendar of activities for next week. Sponsored by the Social Responsibility Commission is a Christmas party for Juniata students and the children of Huntingdon.

Following the tradition started by the YWCA, many children of the community accompanied by their college "parents for the night" will attend the affair scheduled for next Friday from 7:30 to 9 p. m. Entertainment for the evening will consist of a program given by the Masque members, and games which will be directed by Beanie Roberts and Galen Keeney.

A sheet will be posted on Founders bulletin board and Students Hall bulletin board for individuals and couples interested in taking children to the party.

The Social Responsibility Commission is also sponsoring a conference this Sunday evening at 9 in Founders Chapel. Luther Harshbarger, secretary of the Penn State Christian Association, will discuss the social responsibility of the Christian.

Tuesday evening, the JCA will hold its bi-monthly business meeting at 7 in Founders Chapel. Preceeding the business meeting which will be led by President Don Treese, Lois Miller will conduct a candle-light worship service. Refreshments will be served.

Allen, Volpitto To Assist With 'Scout'

Margie Alleman, new Scout editor, has named Art Allen and Bob Volpitto to aid her. Allen is business manager and Volpitto, advertising manager.

Allen, a business major, was business manager of the Indian. He is also president of the junior class and of the J Club.

Volpitto, also a business major, served on The Juniatian staff for two years.

Reserve Book Lowdown Offered

"Is South Pacific showing in Huntingdon?" asked one confused "J. C.er" to another, as they watched a long, slow-moving line which was headed in the direction of the Library.

"No," replied the smarter of the two, "those are just freshmen waiting to reserve a book for Nature of Science."

It seems that a recent Nature of Science assignment required over 200 students to use a reserve book from the library—all 23 of them. The results were confusion, late papers and questions as to the Library's policy concerning reserve books. Here are the answers.

Day students may take books on reserve in multiple copies when they leave campus to be returned the following morning, unless these books are in great demand (for example, the Nature of Science assignment.) At such times, the day student must have permission from the professors to take the reserve book.

Freshmen reserve their books for overnight use on the green cards the particular day that they wish to use the books. Only one book per course can be reserved a given day; but if at 9:30 p. m. extra copies of other books are available, the student may take them. Freshmen resident students may use a book in their rooms for two-hour periods any time during the day.

Upperclassmen reserve their books in the same manner but they do not have the two-hour room privilege that the freshmen do. Upperclass day students can take books out during the day if there is more than one copy of the book on reserve or if the book is not in great demand.

Another tip from the Library for more effective study is to help maintain silence. Concentration, and thus better work in a shorter amount of time, is aided by the lack of noise. "Maintaining silence in the library is a co-operative affair," the Library staff states. "It demands co-operation not only from the students at the desk or in the lobby, but also from each reading table."

9 Juniata Seniors Elected To Latest 'Who's Who'

Charles Allison, Walter Bush, Gerald Hartzel, Lorena Hebrank, Hilton Hines, Donald Howe, Dorothy Ann Humphreys, Ruth Kimble and Vernon Showalter have been selected for inclusion in the 1951 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Nominations to "Who's Who" were made by a faculty and administration committee. Selection was based on student's scholarship, his leadership and co-operation in educational and extra-curricular activities, his general citizenship and his promise of future usefulness.

The Tuscaloosa, Ala., institution offers the student a certificate of recognition, publication of his picture and personal record in the yearbook and the use of student placement service.

Juniata's nationally-recognized student leaders are all seniors. Seven of them are members of the student Senate.

"A Mystery for Christmas (in the Medieval Manner), arranged and composed by Howard D. McKinney will be presented by the Chapel Choir, under the direction of Prof. Donald S. Johnson, organist and choirmaster. This pageant, which is the fifth of its kind presented at Juniata, will be staged in Oller Hall on Dec. 10 at 3:30 p. m.

Working with the Chapel Choir will be the following cast members—shepherds: Robert Brumbaugh, Wesley Diemer, Glen Gress; Gabriel and attendants: Raymond McHenry, Jr., Clyde Johnson, Holmes Royer; Mary: Janet Boland; walking angels: Audrey Campbell, Jo Chiodi, Rhoda Clemmer, Doris Mickle, Claudia Ottoson, Doris Orner, Miriam Smith, Joan Weaver; wise men: Earle Grover, Charles Redenberger, Paul Walker; little angels: Richard Bedient, Jane Engle, Martha Sue Glick, David Goetchius.

The Production staff under Prof. Johnson includes: supervisor, Miss Lois Esaley; student director, Clair Schaffner; angel movements, Mrs. Margaret Johnson; stage manager, John Long; lighting technician, Paul Good; make-up, Jean Bailey; properties, Doris Orner; publicity, Janice Wenger; head usher, Phyllis Link; Biblical costumes, Miller Costumier, Philadelphia.

The music in the pageant flows along continuously, integrating the solo, choral, pantomime and monologue passages. The public is invited to this annual event, to which no admission will be charged.

Is Excuse Machinery Adequate?

The old maxim that "you get out of something just as much as you put into it" holds true in the matter of attending classes as much as in anything else. Attending classes faithfully is necessary if you are to get the most out of your college years.

By cracking down on the number of excuses given this year Dean Rhodes, the administration and the faculty are doing the student a service by developing in him the habit of conscientious class attendance. It needs hardly to be mentioned that cuts are costly to the student and that they frustrate the teacher and bring confusion to the course.

So let us make it unequivocally clear that we have no arguments against the principle which has caused Dean Rhodes to deal firmly with the matter of unexcused absences.

It has come to our attention that other than illness and death in the family, the only excused absences are those for "College approved activities." Now a "College approved activity" is any activity such as choir or basketball schedule, which have been approved by the faculty at their regular meetings.

It would seem that presenting each request for bonafide excuses to the entire faculty for approval or rejection presents an unwieldy and unnecessary situation. Surely the faculty should control the issuance of excuses so that they are kept to a minimum. However, it is possible that a worthy project would come up suddenly and could not receive consideration by the faculty until it was too late.

Should Create Committee

If the faculty could create a committee to meet and consider each request for "College approval" as it came along on the basis of principles which they (the faculty at large) set up, this would allow the requests to be settled with dispatch. Or if the dean of students were given a set of standards to go by and could thereby issue excuses for worthy activities, this would also facilitate and clarify matters.

It should be realized that there are some worthwhile conferences and activities in which a student might engage which would take him from classes. These, of course, should be limited and therefore, should be picked by the student with great care.

When the student or students go before the faculty or a committee requesting "College approval" this should be granted or refused on the basis of the merit of the activity but also on the basis of how many times that particular student has absenced himself from classes through excused or unexcused absences.

Equal Number of Excuses

Each student who maintains a satisfactory scholastic standing and who attends classes faithfully should be considered for as many excused absences for worthwhile educational activities as someone else who participates in, let us say, basketball, debate, or A Cappella Choir.

Thus we suggest that the faculty set up a program that will make it possible that requests for "College approval" be considered with relative speed on the basis of set principles so that bonafide excuses may be extended to those students who want to participate in worthwhile activities which are not regularly scheduled but which come up from time to time. Also that the issuance of excuses should spread over a greater number of activities and individuals.

This would not increase the number of absences for any individual and would give more students participation in worthwhile activities.

Become A 'Parent'

It was said in the United Nations recently that the greatest disagreement has come when nations or individuals want to eliminate the existence of other nations or individuals.

This is a period of great disagreement—of war, tragedy, hate, prejudice, want. So it is important if we have any humanity in our hearts that we do something for the other fellow at Christmas time and throughout the year.

The Social Responsibility Commission of the JCA is planning and executing the Children's Christmas Party this year. The tradition which was started several years ago by the YWCA is a splendid way for us to make others and thus ourselves happy.

There are 58 boys and girls who want to come to the party to be held in the Social Rooms of the Stone Church next Friday night at 7:30. They will need "student parents" who will pick them up, take care of them at the party and see that they return safely home.

There should be an abundance of "parents" who want to make some boy or girl happy next Friday.

Ingratitude of Sledder

It has come to our attention that a friendly neighbor on College Hill loaned a sled to a Juniata student only to have it returned damaged. No explanation or amends were made for the damage.

Persons like these who have neither the responsibility nor the honesty to make a thing right inspire a lack of faith in human nature and discourage the spirit of sharing.

For almost ½ century serving Juniatians the best in Seafoods and Steaks.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Voters Should Be Informed

To the Editor of the Juniatian:

Undoubtedly those interested in Senate affairs are in the minority, but I feel that the main reason for this is that the majority know little about Senate affairs.

The proceedings of the Senate are for the most part routine, but when controversial topics do arise the electorate should know of them in advance so that it may form definite opinions. Why did we choose the Senate? Is it to be just a means of unloading from our shoulders the daily problems on more broader ones, or did we vote for those whom we thought would search out issues, ask our views and then vote accordingly?

Every considerate desk critic feels it his obligation to offer a solution to the questions he asks. So, I advocate that the Senate adopt a resolution prescribing that every issue of campus wide importance be published in the Juniatian one week prior to discussion.

Not only would this carry issues to the student body, but it would give them a most deserved opportunity to relate its views to the various Senators.

Your curbstone observer,
Bob Volpitto

TOMMYHAWK

Tuesday was a big day for doe hunters, both in the woods and in Skip's. The trouble is that some doe require the use of too many bucks. Not only did the weather bring on the Christmas spirit but also its outdoor frolics. Betty McKee and Dottie Humphreys were seen tugging their sleds behind them.

Don Robinson is going to visit a few snowball strategists. He missed the open window in the girls' dorm on fifty tries. And then came the deluge. It looked like the bombardment of the Bastille the way the snowballs hit the girls' dorm. Edie Talbot closed her window in time to stop a well directed snow bomb.

Tommy sincerely hopes that younger boys have discarded their t. n. t. charges which have been used quite frequently in the Lodge and Cloister.

Bob Morrissey took his wife and daughter home for Thanksgiving through the worst storm in New York's history. Frank Ollweiler was the pilot who blazed the way through the wind and rain. "Marko" Hanson went home to hot turkey and found a letter from Uncle Sam, and then felt like a dead duck. Uncle Sam is the only close relative whose fan mail is as welcome as a case of measles.

Nancy Newman was delayed enroute to class. Too many men wanted to shower their affections upon her with snowballs. How romantic can one be?????

I hope this isn't true, but it has been rumored that the senior lettermen were not allowed the football jerseys they wore this year. It's one of the few items they want and deserve to be given after their years of fine service.

Did anyone notice Jairo's black beret? At first it looked like a hangover hat. "Shorty" Isenberg is now wearing the color of the month—"Santa Claus Red." Christmas vacation is only a few weeks away and the postal rush to the North Pole has already put Santa in the red.

For Christmas Tommy wants—two silk stockings—filled, all A's including credit hours for extra-curricular activities and a beautiful girl with a nice figure—in her bank book.

I have just summoned my horse and sleigh to travel over the campus and through the woods in search of hidden gems of gossip.

Your ever-lovin snow Hawk,
Tom

Indians Upset Shoremen; Even Season Record

by Bob Myers

Playing their best game of the season, the Juniata Indians beat favored Washington College 19-13 at College Field on Saturday, November 18. Lundy Loschiavo scored twice in the last half to lead the Indians to their third straight win of the year.

The victory was not, however, due to the performance of any one individual. The entire team played with a spirit and determination unequaled in any of their previous contests. Coy Hicks was outstanding on defense, as were Ed Gould, Dave LeFevre, Joe Thomasberger and Gene Shaffer. Joe Dobal was back in form at fullback and was ably assisted by Co-captain Phil Chabody, Loschiavo, Dick Young, Fred Hamor and Reds Orler.

Indians Score First On Pass

Juniata took the lead in the second quarter, when Hicks, in a double safety, returned a punt to his own 39 yard line. Using a buck-lateral series, the Indians picked up 61 yards in just six plays. Chabody climaxed the drive by tossing a 21 yard aerial to Hamor in the end zone. Tony Segalovich missed the extra point and the score was 6-0.

As time was running out, Washington's two fine backs, John Wilson and Bill Miller, combined to battle the clock and JC. Wilson passed to Miller from the JC 41 and the latter swivel-hipped his way to the ½ yard line. Here the Indian's forward wall stiffened for three downs, but Miller skirted right end on last down for Washington's first score. Wilson kicked the point and the Shoremen led 7-6.

Loschiavo Romps 60 Yards

With Chabody sidelined with a leg injury, Loschiavo put Juniata ahead for the second time with a 60 yard romp to paydirt. Slicing off left tackle, Lundy cut to the middle, hurdled a host of players at midfield and raced down the sidelines for the score. He was ably assisted on the 15 yard line by a beautiful block by Hicks. The score read 13-7 as Segalovich kicked the point.

After holding for downs on the four yard line, Juniata attempted to get out of the dangerous territory by running from kick formation. Hamor ran for what appeared to be a first down, but fumbled on the 16. Washington recovered and took just four plays to knot the count. The TD came on a jump pass from Wilson to Wayne Millner on the first play of the final quarter. Wilson missed the point and the score was 13-13.

Many would have been satisfied if the game had ended this way, but not the charges of Bill Smaltz. With just four minutes remaining, Loschiavo broke off tackle for the winning tally. The try for the extra point was not good but Juniata ended a fine season beating Washington College 19-13.

Juniata Begins Basketball Sat.; Play Lycoming

The Juniata Indians will start their second season under Coach Arnold Greene tomorrow when they host the Warriors of Lycoming College, who are also beginning their season.

Six men, including five lettermen, are back from last year's team which won 11 and lost nine under Coach Bob Smith. Not only is Smith's squad large in number, but it is also tall, averaging over six feet in height.

Lycoming High Scoring

Bill Graff is the big gun for the Warriors, scoring 307 points last season. He works from a forward position and is fast and an accurate shot.

Jim Brodmerkel is playing his fourth year of college ball. He won his letter as a sophomore and junior. His 270 points scored last year gave him second place on the team in scoring.

Sowers 3 Letter Man

Jack Sowers is another letter man, having won three letters in his collegiate career. Other men returning from last season include Don Mosher, Tom Brennan and Stuart Kane.

Considerable help is expected from Joe Fazzar and Mert Wagner. Fazzar is a sophomore transfer from Miami University and he has a reputation for being a good rebounder. Wagner, another sophomore, was a high scorer for the JV squad last season. Ozzie Silna and Jack Van Cott also have lots of basketball experience and much is expected of them.

Trojans Leading In I-M Bowling

As Ray Korody led the way with a 201 single and 549 triple, the Trojans moved into first place in the IM bowling league by sweeping the NoNames 4-0. It was a busy weekend which saw five matches being rolled.

Last week's leaders, Les Miserables, fell into second place as a result of losing one of their games with the Aces.

This was the first time that all eight teams of the league were in action. The Faculty bowled for the first time and met with a 4-0 defeat at the hands of Les Miserables. Another team that just began to bowl, the Sliders, took third place as a result of their 3-1 victory over the Sneaks.

This week's schedule:

6:45—NoNames vs Aces
Sneaks vs Trojans
8:45—Sliders vs Les Miserables
Faculty vs Strikettes

The standings and first five individual averages:

'Team Can Pull Upsets'--Greene

"I don't know exactly what to expect, but the boys will be hustling." With these words Coach Arnold Greene gave his thoughts on the newest edition of the Juniata basketball Indians.

This is the last week of preseason practice and the starting five is still anyone's guess. Greene attributes mechanical errors to the few number of scrimmage under game conditions. Lately, however, the men are getting used to his system and have been making fewer mistakes. Experimenting will still have to be done in the first few games, however.

5 Men Return From Last Year

Five veterans from last year's varsity are on the squad and will probably see much action tomorrow night in the game against Lycoming College. These veterans include Captain Ray Korody, Dave Bayer, Lundy Loschiavo, Leo Kuhn and Jack Dickey.

Two junior transfer students, Tommy Green and Carl Parks, have been impressive in early practice sessions. Green is from the College of South Jersey, while Parks comes from the Johnstown Pitt Center.

5 Frosh Make Squad

Fran Townsend and five freshmen round out the squad. These include Fran Zimmerman, John Cook and three from Temple High School in Philadelphia, Harry Koehlein, Ed Feldkircher and Ed Weirauch.

Coach Greene is using the same system he used last year. Set play patterns will be featured on the offense, while Greene's HAZ defense will be depended on to keep the opposition from scoring too often.

Commenting on the season in general, Coach Greene says, "We should realize that many of the men are inexperienced in college basketball. If a few of these fellows come through Juniata may give the opposition some unexpected competition. In league competition we will be picked as the underdog, but with the spirit the team is showing we could very easily pull some upsets."

I-M Basketball Started Tuesday

At a meeting with club managers last week, chairman of athletics Bob Jones outlined the general formation of this year's Intra-mural Basketball League. According to Jones there would be 14 teams in the circuit with each team play 13 games. The games will be played Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights.

The scores for games played last Wednesday:

Trojans 30	YHO'S 28
I-7 31	Kroy Wens 29
Kroy Wens 18	BTO's 18
Tigers 37	Gunners 29

Loose ball handling and low scoring were outstanding in these first games. Bill Winans, Nick Rocco and George Kensinger did reach the two digit column in individual scoring.

Teams in the league include the I-7, Kroy Wens, BTO's, YHO's, Bridgers, Gunners, Trojans, Mercaptains, 54, Sneaks, Beta $/2, Hen Pecked, Tigers and BeBoppers.

Christmas Party, Hockey Play Day Among Future Plans For WAA

by Dottie Hummer

Dear Anti,

It certainly is nice to cuddle up in a cozy club circle these cold wintry nights.

The WAA is planning a Christmas party for next Thursday night. Hockey Play Day is being observed at the PCW in Pittsburgh Saturday, and many of the group are making arrangements to attend.

Miss Hummer

Tentative plans are being made for a class in basketball officiating which will be taught by Miss McCormick. If enough students are interested, provisions will be made to take tests and obtain certificates, enabling them to officiate at any future date. It was also announced that intramural basketball will start next week.

Miss Kathleen Foster, '49, a Huntingdon elementary teacher, will speak to the Alpha Beta Gamma Wednesday evening. Her talk will be centered on various teaching experiences she has encountered during the term.

An interesting program is being planned by the Lambda Gamma for their meeting Wednesday at 7:45 p. m. Several of the foreign students on the Juniata campus will relate their traditional Christmas observances in their home countries.

The Play Production Class will entertain the Masque Thursday evening with their presentation of "A Child Is Born." Helen Wentzler and Hobart Heistand have been given the leading roles, while Vernon Showalter will act as director. (See column one, this page.)

At 7 p. m. the same evening, the IVCF will meet in the Women's Day Student Room. An analysis of I Timothy, Chapter 3 will be led by Marv Taylor.

"Values of Accounting to a Businessman" was the topic discussed by Ralph Raible at the Tycoon Club meeting this past week. The club picture for the Alfarata was taken immediately after the meeting.

Leo. E. Brown, Executive Secretary of the Medical Society of Pennsylvania, led a discussion on Socialized Medicine at the Wednesday meeting of the Sigma Gamma.

A final report on the net profit made from Indian and booster tag sales was given at the J Club meeting Thursday evening. Mittens were distributed to be sold by each member at $2.00 a pair.

The Juniatian staff is making plans for an outing which will be held in the near future. The group is planning to go to Lewistown.

FTA To Hear Dr. W. A. Sutton

Dr. Willis A. Sutton, prominent public school educator, will lecture on "Education—The Foundation of Business" this evening at 8:15 in Oller Hall. Sponsored by the FTA and the Huntingdon County and borough branches of the PSEA, Dr. Sutton's talk is designed to be of special interest to business and civic leaders as well as teachers.

As former president of the National Educational Association and superintendent emeritus of the Atlanta, Ga. public schools, Dr. Sutton is regarded as one of the "truly outstanding educational statesmen in America." He was previously engaged by the Reader's Digest as guest lecturer for numerous teachers' meetings throughout the country.

Tickets have been sent to all service clubs and business houses in Huntingdon and Huntingdon County. It should be noted that tickets are for publicity only and are not required for admission.

'Kids' Guests At Party

Juniata students will become "parents for a night" tonight when the JCA holds the annual Christmas party for children of the Huntingdon community. Beginning at 7:30, the party will be held in the social rooms of the Stone Church. The evening's entertainment will include a Masque program and games directed by Beanie Roberts and Galen Keeney.

Scholarship Statement Released

The following statement was released by Morley Mays, dean of the College. It concerns the report on scholarship adopted by the faculty at their meeting Monday.

The statement:

"A report calling for continuation of Juniata's historical emphasis on good scholarship was adopted by the faculty at its meeting last Monday.

"The report recognizes that legitimate interests other than the academic often unduly crowd upon the latter to the detriment of the fundamental purposes of education.

"Continuing, the report declares, 'this is a question of priority, a question of how to put first things first. The values of the other parts of our program and the values which a student may find in the pursuit of his own legitimate interests are not to be nullified. It is contended only that they are to find their place in a proper perspective of student life.'

"Eight means of helping a student to retain primary emphasis upon his program are suggested by the report to the members of the faculty. Quizzes at frequent intervals, brief original papers, an emphasis on the two-hour preparation period and an insistence on absolute personal integrity are among the techniques proposed for implementing the program.

"The faculty also gave brief consideration to certain problems of extra-curricular life not explicitly covered by the report, but no action was taken on them."

Revisions Made In Curriculum For Next Year

Several revisions have been made in the curriculum to be offered this Spring, says A. William Engel, registrar. They include the following:

Introduction to economics 14 will be dropped. Students normally required to take that course may enroll in principles of economics 1 and 2, which will be given this Spring. The latter have been revised to meet requirements formerly met by economics 14.

Biology 13, mammalian anatomy, has been dropped.

Pre-med physical chemistry has been added. A three credit course, it will be taught by Dr. Raymond Davis. It is available to chemistry and biology majors.

The course in teaching of high school English has been reinstated by the curriculum committee and may be offered this Spring. This committee has also approved the addition of a new biology course, parasitology. To be taught in the Spring term by instructor Alexander Bartha, it will be a three credit course.

'Firefly' Set For Spring

Compton Selected Student Manager

Vera Compton, a senior from Arlington, Va., was selected student manager of the all-college presentation of Friml's "Firefly" by the Senate on Monday.

Miss Compton will work with Prof. Donald Johnson of the music department and Miss Lois Esaley of the dramatics department.

The Virginia co-ed will represent the students in the selection of the cast and appointment of the crews and committeemen. She is responsible for creating and maintaining general student interest in the production.

Miss Compton, who starred as Emily Kimbrough in the Masque production of "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," will be remembered for many other performances throughout her college career.

She has been a member of the Masque for four years and is a Masquer. This year she is vice-president of that organization.

Also she is a member of the Social Committee, Lambda Gamma and Sigma Gamma.

Light Opera To Be Given March 9, 10

Rudolf Friml's light opera, "The Firefly," has been selected for presentation this Spring, according to Prof. Donald Johnson. He and Miss Lois Esaley will stage the musical March 9 and 10, 1951.

This hit of 1912, which established the reputation of Friml as a composer, was chosen because "it can be produced in modern dress. A timeless story, it suits the student talents of Juniata," the director says. Other shows considered for Spring production and finally turned down for various reasons were "No, No, Nanette," "Rose Marie," and "Mlle. Modiste."

The book and lyrics for "Firefly" were written by a rising young lyricist, Otto Harbach, who was later to turn out some of Kern's and Romberg's best shows.

According to music critic Sigmund Spaeth, the score of this operetta contains "at least three hit songs. (They are) the unforgettable 'Giannina Mia,' a grateful vehicle for the best of sopranos, the lilting waltz, 'Sympathy,' and the sprightly 'When a Maid Comes Knocking at Your Heart.'"

Many years later, the musical became a motion picture with Jeannette MacDonald and Allan Jones. "The Donkey Serenade," which was not a part of the original score of "Firefly," was interpolated into the score of this film.

Pageant To Be Presented Sunday

"A Mystery for Christmas" will be presented Sunday afternoon at 3:30 in Oller Hall.

The Chapel choir under the direction of Prof. Donald Johnson will furnish the music for this Christmas pageant, most of which dates back to the 13th century. The works of Bach, Strauss and Cornelius and carols from various countries will be included in the program.

Soloists will be Donald Brinton, bass; Robert Frain, baritone; Galen Keeney, tenor; and Helen Wentzler, alto. There will also be a portion of the program devoted to caroling in which the audience will participate.

Chapel choir members include the following: sopranos—Margaret Barrington, Jane Garver, Martha Mallow, Helen Maust, Martha Petre, Katherine Plank, Judith Shanabrook and Virginia Yohn.

Altos—Jane Baker, Beverly Chamberlain, Phyllis Kulp, Janice Wenger, Helen Wentzler and Elaine Zook.

Tenors—Marcos Eddi, Leonard Hickman, Galen Keeney, Dwight Mishler, Clem Rosenberger and Fred Stauffer.

Basses—Donald Brinton, Robert Dwyer, Robert Frain, Robert Hatala, Wilfred Norris and Ray Siren.

Yuletide To Be Celebrated In Traditional Way

Plans are well underway for a full program of traditional Christmas celebration activities beginning Saturday in the social rooms and concluding a week later in the same place with hot chocolate.

The social rooms will be closed Saturday afternoon. Ardelle Hemming and her co-chairman, Leonard Hickman, will be working then with their committee to array the rooms in Christmas garb. A tree will be placed in the main hallway to the right of the fireplace. The fireplace mantel will be decked with greenery and traditional Christmas trimmings.

Main theme for the social rooms will be Nativity. A stable scene with Mary and the Child will be arranged at the wall beside the entrance to Dean Spencer's office. A picture appropriate to this scene will be hung on the hall wall. There are to be candles in the windows and small table-top

Graduate Exam To Be Given Feb. 2, 3

The next administration of the Graduate Record Examination is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Feb. 2 and 3, 1951, according to Dean Morley Mays.

Seniors who are considering graduate study should find out whether or not the graduate school to which they intend to go is interested in having the results of this examination.

All who are interested in taking the examination should see Dean Mays before Christmas recess. Application forms will then be secured from the office of the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N. J. These application forms must be returned to the Princeton office two weeks before the date of examination. Books of information will also be available with the application forms.

The Graduate Record Examination is administered at many points over the United States, the nearest to Juniata being Penn State.

Dinner, Formal To Be Held Wed.

The formal dinner and dance which have come to mark Christmas here at JC will be held Wednesday, Dec. 13. The dinner will get underway at 6 p. m. and will be followed by a short, varied program. Special guests have been invited to the meal, which is to be served banquet style.

The scene shifts to the "East Campus Dance Hall" (gym), where the College dance band will give out with the first downbeat at 8:30. Students attending this dance will find themselves in a winter-wonderland of evergreens and tinsel.

The Women's House Committee is sponsoring the dinner. The "Winterland Ball" is to be presented under the auspices of the Social Committee.

Tall Man, Taller Name:

Christian Ulrich von Kaltenborn Stachan---Gezundheit !

by Phyl Link

On Sept. 3, the day before Labor Day, Christian Ulrich von Kaltenborn Stachan (he is six feet one—tall enough to handle such a long name) arrived in the United States.

In less than three weeks he had learned enough English to supplement his previous training and so began a full academic year at Juniata.

Tall, blond "Cris" was born in Silesia, Germany, where his ancestors had lived for over 1200 years. Because Poland received that section of Germany at the close of the war, Cris, his brother and parents moved to Kassal, Germany.

And So To Juniata

It was there through the Brethren Service Commission, that Cris was offered the chance to attend JC. His chief hobby being traveling, he welcomed the idea. Giving up the presidency of the commercial academy he was attending, and also a job as a reporter, he boarded a plane in Luxembourg and 28 hours later landed in New York.

"A big happy family" is the 20-year-old German student's description of Juniata. He likes the United States too, especially Pennsylvania, for it looks much like Germany.

Not all his observations are pleasant though. He remembers distinctly carrying "little trunks" for the girls the first few days of school. And remembers, too, the 20 pounds he used to have that have disappeared and have been replaced by a new notch in his belt.

No Worries Or Frets

His philosophy of life permits him to accept such occurrences, however, without fret, for Cris is definitely living to enjoy himself. He never worries, and rarely plans ahead.

Like his uncle, Cris plans to spend his days engrossed in "radio, journalism and politics." He hopes to accomplish this aim through travel and by two years study of economics at Juniata.

Dr. Willis A. Sutton A Truly Great Soul

We would like to thank the Huntingdon county and borough branches of the Pa. State Educational Association and the PTA of Juniata College for bringing Dr. Willis A. Sutton, former president of the National Educational Association and former superintendent of the Atlanta, Ga., schools to the Juniata campus.

His talk in Oller Hall on Friday night was wise and inspirational. You could sense the desire of the audience to catch every bit of his profound, wisdom, mixed as it was, with a kind of spontaneous humor.

The applause was long and respectful—a tribute to the true greatness of this frank and friendly man.

Dr. Sutton's challenge to teachers and educators is the large part that they can play in raising the cultural standards of the world by cultivating the limitless power of the human brain and soul.

After his talk you were sure that education is one of the greatest forces for good in the world and that we should all be active in it.

We hope that his philosophy of life and of education and his challenge will not be forgotten.

Senate Prints Agenda

The action taken by the Senate on a "Letter to the Editor" which appeared in last week's Juniatian shows the concern and interest of the student lawmakers in the opinions and views of their electorate. This letter asked for the prior announcement of those items of Senate business which are considered to be of "campus wide importance."

Senators voted unanimously that all "controversial issues of general student interest" should be published in The Juniatian and posted on the bulletin board by the Friday before the meeting at which they are to be discussed.

This will give the students an opportunity to keep abreast of Senate business and to make their views known to the various Senators.

Democracy Can Work

The freshman class will have an opportunity to make democracy work when they choose their class officers next week.

These officers must organize and aid in such activities as the freshman party, All-Class Night, Move-Up Day and the collection of class dues. Also the class organization is the liaison between the class and its advisor and the Senate chairman of underclassmen.

The officers elected should be sincere, hardworking, clear thinking individuals who can captivate and maintain the enthusiasm of the class.

Democracy can work in the freshman class if voters choose their officers primarily on the basis of ability and capacity to organize.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Former Editor Praises Paper

To the Editor of the Juniatian:

Garber

It's about time that I have written and thanked you or the person responsible for sending me the Juniatian. It has been a weekly source of pride to me as I scan the makeup, read the articles and realize that you are doing a much better job on the sheet than I ever approached. Congratulations!

I consider Dot Hummer's club news section one of the outstanding features—an adequate answer to a problem that has plagued Juniatian editors from time to time. That, in connection with the "Campus Calendar," should keep all Juniatians well informed on campus events. A student body that is kept in the habit of being informed will carry that habit into other areas.

Needless to say, the first section I read is "Alumni Notes." However, your first duty is to the student body. We read the Alumni Bulletin for complete alumni news and the Juniatian for news of the college. Whatever alumni gleanings we see in your paper are welcome, but we won't expect it.

In all departments, from Carol Cook's news feature to Betty Snively's proofing, I can only praise and be proud that I once worked with most of you.

Sincerely,
Jess Garber, '49

Pauline Bane Shaeffer Wins $300 4-H Scholarship

A 4-H Club membership and a knowledge of clothing are worth $300. At least that's the experience of Mrs. Pauline Bane Shaeffer.

It all began three years ago when she turned in an achievement report as her first entry in the National 4-H Club Congress contest. This year she made her third try, and it paid off.

Mrs. Shaeffer's report, which told of her accomplishments and future plans in the clothing field, was judged top entry in the West Virginia state contest.

As a result, she and her report were sent to the finals in Chicago, held Nov. 26-30. The trip was sponsored by the Spool cotton Co. It was this company which awarded her a $300 scholarship when her report was judged the national winner in the clothing division. Other divisions included Forestry, Baby Care, etc.

TOMMYHAWK

This column is about everything in general and nothing in particular. Diane Bramhall, the cute little chick with a new feather wave. Ed Marshka, the kingpin of the bowling alley.

Scoop! Charlie Redenberger has selected his silver pattern. The sterling creation is called, "First Love." For Christmas Tommy would like to give Bill Bateson, a hankie that cuts off sound; to the pre-ministerial students, an alarm clock that plays a harp; to General MacArthur, a copy of Dale Carnegie's book, "How to Win Friends and Influence People"; and to those who go to breakfast, a cereal bowl that holds enough cereal for eight people.

Though the bad weather ruined much of the crops, brussels, sprouts, and cauliflower have survived, for we seem to be getting the state's full supply. Keith Binkley has joined the ranks of the expendable. It seems that the Army has more to offer these days; a good 24 hour working day, more time for travel and a practical course in far-eastern social relationships.

This actuallly happened:

Co-ed—Dr. Booth, what will the test be like?

Dr. Booth—I just told you. Were you asleep?

Co-ed—Yes.

A note of thanks to the person who put in the light under Founders Porch. It prevented a lot of "slippin around" during the past icy spell.

Phil Baughman is seeking an idea for the senior skit. Why not use a Saturday at Juniata as the theme. You know, "The Lost Weekend."

To Dick Young, who has left college to work. We wish you good fortune and good luck. We will always remember you as a good man on the field and on the campus. We hope you will return, soon.

As a parting shot, Tom would like to laud the dance band for their top music. It makes a dance what a dance should be. Now if they could only show-off in the dining hall. I know its subversive—but it's practical. Isn't it?

Be seeing you, I hope!

Support A Loser ?

by Bob Asan

Well, the first two games of the season have been played. Comments on the team are many and varied. One we'd like to make is this: why not wait a bit and let the team settle down and show what they are really capable of? Then, when we have a good idea of what they can do, we can praise them to the skies or throw them to the dogs. About throwing them to the dogs, "It takes a sport to cheer a loser."

Some Doe, But No Bucks

A couple of men on campus got themselves doe last week, but when buck season came no one got nuthin'. Rumor had it though, that there was more than a few of these "extinct" animals out behind Lion's Back. One was supposed to be an eight-pointer at least.

What! No Bowl Bids?

Juniata 38, Oklahoma 0. Sound impossible? Not at all. According to statistics compiled by Bill Carpenter, '51, JC is 38 points better than Oklahoma. This is on the basis of comparative scores of course, but 38 points is 38 points. The Indians are also better than Texas and Michigan, both of whom are headed for bowl games. Not so for the Indians though. It's a tuff break for the men of a great grid machine.

Pop Shot

How about Leo Kuhn's field goal to end the first half last Saturday! Any comments on that shot to end all shots? Too bad we didn't get a couple more. They all look good in the morning paper.

Vittles For Gridders

The football squad will really eat next Friday. That's when they'll be the guests of the VFW post downtown.

HAZ, A Trade Secret

For those in the dark about the Juniata HAZ defensive set-up: Doc Greene declines to reveal the exact interpretation of the initials, a trade secret. However, he will admit that it is a hazing type of defense built around half a zone.

Indians Lose To Bisons; Meet E-town Tomorrow

Bisons Trounce Indians, 87 to 54 Gallagher High With 29 Points

The Juniata Indians lost their second game of the season Tuesday night as they bowed to Bucknell University 87-54. The game was played in Davis Gym in Lewisburg.

Capitalizing on an excellent fast break, Bucknell outscored the Tribe in every period. The Bisons had a decided height advantage and put it to good use.

Gallagher High With 29 Points

Joe Gallagher and Don Strassner led a literally unstoppable Bison attack with 29 and 20 points respectively. Gallagher had 21 points in the first half and didn't get to see much action in the second.

JC started the game with a full court press and were able to hold down the Bisons. However, midway in the second period the Bisons broke loose, putting their fine fast break to effective use.

Green High Scorer

Tommy Green was high scorer for the Indians with nine points. Karl Park was runner-up with seven counters.

Brodmerkel Leads Lycoming To Win

With Jim Brodmerkel leading the way, Lycoming College scored a 70-63 win over the Indians in the opening game for both teams.

Three Lycoming aces, Brodmerkel, Stu Kane and Bill Graff, led the attack with 21, 16 and 13 points respectively. The offense for the Indians was paced by Karl Park, with 16 points. Also hitting for double figures were Tommy Green and John Cook, each with 13 points.

Juniata led in the very early stages of the game, with scores of 2-0, 2-1 and 4-3 after the score had been knotted at 3-3. Then Lycoming took a 5-4 lead and from then on they were never headed, ending the quarter with an 11-9 lead.

Last Home Game Before Trip; Foster and Haverstock Big Guns

After losing two straight games, the Indians will attempt to right themselves against Elizabethtown tomorrow night. This will be the last home game before the team leaves on a two game road trip late next week.

This edition of the Phantoms will average about six feet in height. They are led by three high-scoring aces, Don Haverstock, John Brunner and Bill Foster.

Foster Man To Watch

Foster is the man to watch. In the two games played last year he dropped 31 points in the bucket. Haverstock and Brunner scored 18 and 17 points respectively in one game.

Haverstock is a 6-1 senior, while Foster and Brunner, both juniors, stand 6-2. These two, along with Ike Royer at 6-2½, are the tallest men on the squad.

Two Up From JV

Jim Meminger, Bill Schnieder and two men up from the JV team will round out the squad. These men are Carl Lehman, 5-9 and Jack Bolton, who is six feet even.

Schnieder is 5-9½, while Meminger stands 6-1. Meminger is a junior and much is expected of him. In one game against JC last year he sunk 11 points.

Indians Split Last Season

In the two games played last season the Indians gained a split. They dropped the first game at E-town 67-53, but won the second at home 62-57.

Karl Park and Tommy Green, Indian scoring aces, probably will continue to pace the Indian attack. And, if the team plays as well as they did in the early stages of the Bucknell game they could easily come out on top.

Grovers In First Test Against HAZ

The Indians head west next week to take on two basketball foes on successive nights. The first of these is Grove City.

Juniata did not play Grove City last year and this will be the first time the Grovers will play against Doc Greene's HAZ defense.

This Grove City team is a different team from the one that won eight out of 19 games last year. Built around Tom Weaver, George Hill and Jack Leetch, the squad will average about six feet in height. These three men scored 466 points between them last season and they are expected to carry the brunt of the offense.

Weaver is the only one above six feet, being 6-1. Hill and Leetch are 5-9 and 5-10 respectively.

Two tall boys, Dave Robinson, 6-2, and Jim Winland, 6-3, are expected to help no little. Several freshmen on the squad are also expected to come through and win places.

JV Squad Loses To Bucknell

The Junior Varsity squad lost a thriller to Bucknell in the last few seconds of play. The Jayvees lost by a 47-46 count in a game dominated by fouls. Chuck Knox and John Thomas led the scorers for Juniata with 12 and nine points respectively.

Danced Theatre Mata, Hari's Life

by Peg Barrington

Ruth Mata and Eugene Hari cannot decide which of their dances they like best. When asked, all they could say was, "They're all wonderful, and each one is so different from the others."

They had been forced to put on their show after a 26 hours drive, and only three hours of sleep. After such an ordeal, one could see that they loved their work.

Touch Of French In Speech

Off-stage, Mata and Hari are quiet, earnest, and speak with a slight French accent. They are serious about their dancing, and are constantly trying to improve it. At present, they are working on two more numbers to add to their repertoire—a parody on Hollywood and a mystery thriller.

The group had almost as much trouble getting here as some JC students. They were marooned in Toledo, Ohio, while their car was undergoing repairs. Then they were delayed by a "terrible blizzard." They had to dance again the very next night.

Danced Theater 'Their Life'

Grueling though it may be, Tommy Marlowe, says of his work with the troupe, "It is an opportunity. The training in character portrayal is good experience for a dancer. Most important—you act, and speak, with your body." Mata summed up her feelings and those of her husband when she said that the Danced Theater was "our life."

Draft Status Of College Men Same As In Fall

The draft status of college men eligible for service in the armed forces remains the same as it was last Fall, says Pres. Ellis.

Students called for active service may have induction postponed until the end of this school year.

In commenting on the present world situation, Pres. Ellis said he feels that all students should complete as much of their education as possible. He added that Juniata will be offering a full summer session this year for those wishing to accelerate their education.

World War II Draft Refurbished

The draft law now in effect is much like that of World War II. Deferments from military service are granted students who are preparing for certain special professions. Those studying to be doctors or ministers, for example, are eligible for deferment if they maintain a satisfactory standing at college.

A committee appointed by Pres. Truman to study the deferment question made its recommendations a few months ago. It recommended that the top students in all fields should be deferred instead of all the students in a few special professions.

What Of Deferments?

When Congress studies the draft law, one of the big items to be decided will be the deferment question. Congress will have to decide if deferments will be made in accordance with the recommendations of Truman's committee or if deferments should continue as in the past.

In the Dec. 19 issue of Look dent of Harvard University, will give the reasons why he thinks all young men between the ages of 18 and 20 should be inducted into the armed forces immediately. In a later issue, he will be answered by another college president.

Frosh Snow-Time Party To Be Jan. 6

Low lights, soft music and your prettiest gowns, girls, will be the order for the day for the Snow-Time Party. The freshmen class will sponsor the semi-formal affair on Saturday evening, January 6.

John Cook, temporary chairman of the frosh class, and the freshmen committee have begun plans and arrangements for the dance. The music will be furnished by the JC dance band.

World Students Talk To County Service Clubs

The international students now on campus are making personal appearances this month at several civic and social club meetings in Huntingdon, Mount Union and Lewistown.

Wednesday the Mount Union Twentieth Century Club was host to a group composed of Naomi Kulp, a freshman from British West Africa; Marcos Eddi, a freshman from Panama; Hermann Pabst, a special student from Germany; and Jairo Silva, a freshman from Brazil. Connie Sherman presided.

Another group of foreign students will appear at the Huntingdon Kiwanis Club meeting Dec. 11. Appearing in this program, chaired again by Miss Sherman, will be Samuel Apprey, a sophomore from the Gold Coast of West Africa; Ragnhild Gravlie, a special student from Norway; Leilah Mullin, formerly of France; and Pabst.

Under the chairmanship of Jack Baldridge, Miss Gravlie, Miss Kulp and Pabst will speak at the Huntingdon Rotary Club meeting Dec. 12. That same day Baldridge will preside over a group presenting a program for the AAUW of Lewistown. This group will include Miss Gravlie, Miss Kulp, Silva and George Dolnikowski, a special student and displaced person from Russia.

The final appearance in this series will take place Dec. 14 at the Mount Union Rotary Club meeting. Here several of the students will tell about Christmas in their native countires. Participating in this program will be Baldridge; Dolnikowski; Christian Kaltenborn, a special student from Germany; and Philip Kulp, a junior born in British West Africa.

Senate Issues To Be Published When Possible

The Senate voted Monday evening that "all controversial items of general student interest" should be published in the Juniatian and posted on a bulletin board on Friday before the regular Senate meeting.

This action was taken as a result of the letter in the Juniatian last week asking that important items on the Senate agenda be made public. The new plan will enable students to follow Senate meetings and make their views known to the various Senators.

Senators also decided that dress for the formal dinner to be held Wednesday evening shall be evening gowns for the women and suits for the men. The suits should be dark, if possible. No jackets are allowed.

Receive Snider's Reply

The Senate received a reply to a letter sent to P. M. Snider, director of athletics, asking that something be done about the neighbor children who hang around the College gymnasium. Mr. Snider said that children should not be in the gym except for supervised parties. These, he said, do not conflict with student use of the gymnasium.

Mr. Snider asked the aid of students to keep children out of the gym. He pointed out that the west doors of the gym will be closed during the day and that students may enter by the dressing room entrance.

To Consider Unset Tables

Senate president Showalter appointed a committee to consider agencies which will receive JWSF money this year. This report and consideration of the problem of assigned tables which are not set up will be the items of Senate business for Monday evening. A list of these items and others which may come up are posted on the bulletin board today.

New table assignments go into effect on Monday.

Mays To Read Dickens' 'Carol' At 7:15 Tonight

The traditional reading of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" tonight will be one of the high points in the current round of yuletide festivities at JC, believes Senate chairman of general activities. Renie Hebrank.

This year Morley Mays, Dean of the College, has been asked to give the reading. He and his wife and daughter will be guests of the College at dinner tonight. After dinner there will be a short program of carol singing led by Clair Schaffner in the Social Rooms. Following this, at about 7:15 p. m., the reading will be given.

Tomorrow at 5:30 a. m., carolers led by Beanie Roberts will leave Founders porch to sing in front of the homes of the faculty and friends of the College. All students are invited to join the service. Wesley Diemer, Holmes Royer and Ray McHenry will provide instrumental accompaniment.

When the singers return from their mission, breakfast, including hot chocolate, will be served in the dining hall. For further thawing out, a fire will be lit in the Social Rooms fireplace.

Decorations in the Social Rooms were planned under the direction of co-chairmen Ardelle Hemmig and Len Hickman. Others on the committee were Jack Ulsh, Bob Bailey, Betsy Dively, Bob Wagoner, and Nancy Stephens. Assistants were Don Sikes, Ron Cherry, Jo Pentz, Mickey Monks, Janet Wiltshire and Frank Jarrett.

Outside decorating was in the hands of the freshmen class under chairman Bernard Petrusky. Aiding him were Frank Harlacher, Dallas Duffield, Millard Taylor, Fred Diefenbacher, Charles Dunbar, Howard Van Siclen, Joe Dunn, Dagmar Silldorff, Jess Gundeor, Larry Wright and Bob Flory.

Extra Vacation Day Given; Classes To Resume Jan. 3

A request from the Senate for an additional day of Christmas recess has been granted, according to an announcement by Dean Morley Mays. This has been done so that students may avoid travel New Year's Day.

Classes will be resumed Wednesday, Jan. 3, instead of the preceding day as originally scheduled.

In order to compensate for the loss of this class day, and also for the loss of a day on Monday, Nov. 27 due to the snowstorm, the administration and faculty have decided to postpone the beginning of the final examinations until Wednesday, Jan. 17, 1951. Originally these were scheduled to begin on the preceding Monday.

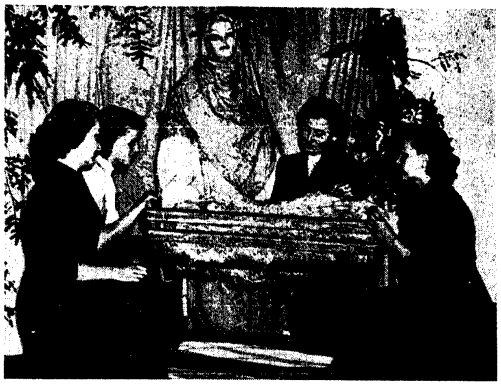
The exam period will close Friday, Jan. 26.

Classes Shortened Saturday For Christmas Vacation

In order that students may make train connections for the Christmas vacation, the following shortened class schedule for Saturday has been arranged:

First period—8 to 8:40
Second period—8:45 to 9:25
Third period—9:30 to 10:10
Fourth period—10:15 to 10:55
Lunch will be served at 11 a. m.

"Work for this day is to be regarded as normal and regular," according to the office of the president.



". . . . AND WHEN THEY WERE COME INTO THE HOUSE, they saw the young child with Mary, his mother, and fell down and worshipped him . . . ."—Gospel of St. Mathew 2:11.

Celebrating Christmas as it was in the beginning, with attitudes of reverence, are Lois Robinson, Marj Seidel, Shirley Nell and Dottie Hummer.

8 Point Program On Scholarship Set By Faculty

"Scholarship is our first business," states the report on scholarship passed by the faculty Monday, Dec. 4.

The preamble to the report points out that "the multiple activities of the students of Juniata College may very quickly and effectively confuse their sense of values. There is evidence that many of our students are now so confused.

Some of the college activities are good "pressures and attractions." Others are "trivial and irrelevant to our fundamental purposes."

Continuing, the report states that the administration and faculty may be partly responsible for this loss of perspective.

8 Point Program Listed

Faculty members were directed by the report to the following "program of emphasis upon scholarship."

The effectiveness of this eight-point program to help the student put his studies first "depends to a large extent upon a universial agreement as to their value and a universial application of them in practice."

1. quizzes—at least once a week to check class preparation and also library reading assignments.

Short Papers Frequently

2. papers—short papers at frequent intervals.

3. grades—an emphasis on the normal distribution of grades.

4. preparation—two hours of preparation for every class session.

5. effort—students should measure up to their abilities. "Any student whose performance falls below the level of his potential achievement, even though by the standards of the class his work may be wholly satisfactory, may be prompted to view his work as seriously deficient."

6. recommended work—superior students should be encouraged to do additional reading or research.

Senate Selects 5 Beneficiaries Of JWSF Fund

The World Student Service Fund, the Red Cross, missionaries Stover Kulp and Benton Rhodes, and the Foreign Student Aid Fund will be recipients of JWSF Drive funds this year according to Senate action taken Monday night.

At the meeting, Senators recommended that the administration furnish hooks in the entrance of the old dining hall and a new hanger in the entrance of the new dining hall to accommodate students' coats.

Ask Lights For Icy Steps

They also asked that lights be put on the steps to the post office and under Founders Porch. These areas, they concluded, are dangerous in icy weather.

The Senate passed a resolution asking that the administration look into the condition of the lavatory in the Mens' Day Student Room.

Senate president Showalter is confering with Miss Mathias on the question of unset tables and also on the question of why students are not eating their meals.

Asst. Announcer Named

The Senate appointed Hobart Heistand and Benton Newcomer as additional assistant announcers in the dining hall.

New table assignments go into effect Monday, Jan. 8.

According to Bud Kreider, chairman of the Senate concessions committee, all individuals who wish to do business must first have the approval of the committee.

Cook Elected Frosh Pres.

John Cook has been elected president of the freshman class. He was temporary chairman.

Also elected were Ray McHenry, vice-president; Diane Bramhall, treasurer; and Dagmar Silldorff, secretary. Miss Silldorff served as acting secretary during the first part of the year.

No Paper Till Jan. 6

The next issue of the Juniatian will be published Saturday, Jan. 6, 1951. This decision has been made because many of the staff will not return from Christmas vacation until Wednesday morning, Jan. 3, 1951.

'Gators To Host Tribe

The Juniata Indians will be seeking their second win of the season when they meet the 'Gators of Allegheny at Meadville tonight.

The Indians will be facing a team that is built around Bud McIndoe, a 6-5 sophomore who set the modern scoring record for Allegheny last year. Playing in little more than three quarters, McIndoe dropped 32 points in the bucket against Wooster. Over the whole season he scored 212 points for an average of 12.5 points per game.

Scored on 45% Of Shots

His field goal percentage was a sensational .451 and he hit for better than 65% of his foul shots. McIndoe's favorite shot is a jump from the pivot. He is also a good jumper and does a fine job off the boards.

Supporting McIndoe will be Art Lowrie, John Potter, and Rink Kofford, all of whom are six feet or more in height. Potter is the second tallest man on the team, standing 6-4. Rounding out the squad will be Jack Bynane, a 5-8 senior, Bill Courtney, 6-2 sophomore, and three men up from the JV team. These men are Bob Mowrey, Lee Parker and Don Werner.

'Gators Lose Last Start

The 'Gators have played two games this year already and in their last game they lost to Adinboro Teachers 64-52. In the one game played last year the Indians won by a score of 54-48.

Karl Park, Tommy Green and Ray Korody will continue to spark the Indians. With any amount of height the Indians could win this game and if they play the way they did last week will probably win it.

Hearty thanks go to the production staff, pageant cast and Chapel Choir for the results of their fine work in presenting the Christmas pageant this past Sunday. Park Has 12 In JC Loss Juniata's cagers met with defeat in the first game of their two game western trip. Grove City beat them 57-37 at Grove City last night.

Paced by George Hill, the Grovers got off to a 15-5 first period lead and were never headed. With a distinct height advantage, they were able to gain control of the backboards. Grove City also used a fast breaking type of offense that the Indians could not handle. At the end of the first half Juniata was down, 29-13.

Indians Score 16

The Indians managed to close the gap somewhat in the third period by scoring 16 points. This was the highest registered by either team in one period, but it didn't do the Indians much good as the Grovers hit for 14. The score at the end of the third quarter showed the Grovers ahead, 43-29.

Poor Average On Shots

The Indians had terrible luck making their shots good. They connected on only 14% of their tries, making 11 of 78. Karl Park led the Indians with 12 points, while Tommy Green was second with nine.

High scoring honors for the evening went to Hill of Grove City, who poured 16 points through the hoop.

1 Week JWSF Drive To Kick Off Feb. 19

The Juniata World Service Fund drive will kick off Feb. 19, the Senate has informed chairman Jay Benedict. It will last for one week.

Purpose of the JWSF drive is to "serve as a sort of Chest drive in which funds for many worthy organizations are collected through one effort," according to Benedict. Charities to benefit from this year's drive will be decided by the Senate.

Members of this year's JWSF policy committee, in addition to Benedict, are Art Allen, solicitations; Keith Binkley, treasurer; Bev Williams, secretary; and Jack Middour, publicity. Students interested in helping with either solicitations or publicity are asked to contact Allen or Middour.

Girls I-M Basketball To Be Tues., Thurs.

Girls' Intramural Basketball got under way Tuesday, Dec. 5. The games will be played each Tuesday and Thursday.

The end of the first week of play saw the "Brumbaugh Babes," "Geiger Gals," "Oneida Hot Shots" and "Motley Crew" in the win column, while the "First Team," "Blue Devils," "Pygmies," and "Hammer Heads" were on the low end of the score.

Barbara Snively and Dolly Shaffer were high scorers for the first two nights.

'All Class Night Scripts Due Jan. 8, 1951'—Korman

"Final deadline for All Class Night scripts is Jan. 8, 1951," says general chairman Bill Korman. The 20-minute skits submitted by each class will be read and approved by a student-faculty committee which includes Korman; his assistant, Kay Wright; Dean Edith Spencer and Dr. Donald Rockwell.

The only student written and produced show annually presented on campus, All Class Night has been set this year for April 21, 1951.

Football Squad Guests Of VFW; Engle to Speak

Juniata's football team will be honored guests at a banquet tonight. This will be the fourth of these annual affairs.

The dinner will consist of turkey and all the trimmings. After the dinner the men of the team will be introduced.

"Rip" Engle To Speak

Bill Engel, Juniata publicity director, will act as toastmaster, while the principal speaker will be Charles "Rip" Engle, head football coach at Penn State.

The coach has just completed his first season at State where his team won five, lost three and tied one. The last win was the sweetest as it was over State's biggest rival, Pitt.

Before coming to State, Engle was head coach at Brown University. This year he has been named assistant coach to Ray Eliot for the annual Blue-Gray game in Montgomery, Alabama.

Humorous Speaker

Engle is a humorous speaker with a wealth of football and athletic lore upon which he can draw. One of his favorite stories involves a football game played in his last year at Blue Ridge College. In that game the team lost 110-0. The humor of the story comes from the fact that the team didn't scrimmage that week, but spent all their time practicing extra points.

Movies of either the Pitt-Penn State game or the Rutgers-Penn State game will be shown. As added entertainment, the VFW quartet will sing some Christmas carols.

Indians Beat E-town, 41-39

Juniata dribblers won their season's first basketball game Saturday night. They downed E-town, 41-39.

Playing a HAZ defense, the Indians kept the visitors in check most of the evening. Karl Park and Tom Green handled the front court, while Ray Korody, Dave Bayer and Ed Weirauch took care of the back court.

Captain Korody led the Indians' scoring with 13 points.

Keyboard Artist To Appear Monday

Pressler Began Studies In Israel

Long acclaimed "poet of the piano", Menahem Pressler will appear in Oller Hall Monday night at 8:15.

This young Israeli artist has established himself both in recital work and as soloist with orchestra. He has played three seasons with the Philadelphia Orchestra, two with the Indianapolis Symphony and San Antonio Symphony, as well as with several other outstanding orchestras.

Israel His 'Adopted Land'

Born in Magdeburg, Germany, Dec. 16, 1923, the pianist was only ten when his family fled from Hitler to Israel, where the boy grew up and began his musical studies. Pressler says of his adopted land: "I owe it everything—liberty, education, cultural awareness."

Studying first under Eliah Rudiakow, he later worked with Leo Kestenberg, one-time Minister of Fine Arts in Germany. Meanwhile, he attracted the attention of Dr. Karl Salomon, music director of the Palestine Broadcasting Service, who became very instrumental in developing his budding career.

Sensitive to people and to art in every form, Pressler was laying the foundation for fame based on culture and humanity as well as musicianship and virtuosity.

Monumental in his career so far was his success at San Francisco's first international music contest in Aug. 1946. Seventeen-year-old Pressler entered the contest to compete for the $1,000 Debussy prize after he had mastered merely 19 of the required 27 compositions.

(See Keyboard—, Page 4)

POET OF THE PIANO—Menahem Pressler, second artist to appear here in the Community Concert Series, will present a concert in Oller Hall Monday night at 8:15. Trained in Israel, his crowning success so far has been his winning of first place at the First San Francisco International Music Contest, Aug. 1946. He was 17 at the time.

Truxal, Johnson 'Firefly' Leads

Joy Truxal and Clyde Johnson will sing the leading roles in the Spring musical, Rudolf Friml's "The Firefly," according to director Donald Johnson.

Miss Truxal will take the role of Nina, a street singer, and will be understudied by Laura Hollingshead. Johnson will appear as Geraldine's sweetheart, Jack.

Miss Truxal, a freshman music major, was chosen at Greensburg High School to sing in a special choir of 90 voices. As a member of this choir, she appeared in three operettas singing the lead in her senior year and in four variety shows singing solos in her last three years of school.

Member of Choruses

In high school Miss Truxal also was a member of the Westmoreland County Chorus, district chorus, band, orchestra and the Greensburg Choral Society. She took fourth place honors in the Greensburg Lions County Amateur Show.

After graduation Miss Truxal plans to become a choir director or a concert or radio singer. She says, "I enjoy singing for the public."

Johnson, also a music major, is a member of the junior class. He appeared in the last two years in both of the operettas, "Sweethearts" and "Pirates of Penzance."

Johnson Choir Manager

A member of the a cappella choir for the past two years, he is now the choir's manager. Johnson also sang in the Chapel Choir in his freshman year and is a member of the band. He has appeared in the Christmas pageants for the past three years.

The suporting cast of "The Firefly" will be: Helen Wentzler as Mrs. Van Dare; Laura Hollingshead (understudied by Josephine Chiodi) as Sybil, her daughter; Helen Rosengren as Geraldine, Mrs. Van Dare's niece; Joyce Grove, Suzette, Geraldine's maid.

Wesley Diemer as valet to Thurston; Gerald Hartzel as Thurston, Jack's uncle; Fred Stauffer, a confidential clerk; and Clem Rosenberger as Herr Franz, a choir master.

Six other small speaking roles will soon be assigned.

Dyer Saves Tot's Life

Juniata Freshman Helps To Rescue Drowning Girl

During the Christmas vacation, a Juniata freshman had a hand in saving a four year old girl from drowning. He was Robert Dyer, who was aided by a University of Maryland student, Robert Muller.

The girl was walking across thin ice when it gave way, and she plunged into the frigid water. Dyer and Muller were driving along the road when Dyer noticed the accident. The two immediately set out to rescue the girl, choosing different paths to reach her.

Broke Through Ice

Both broke through the ice several times, traveling in ice-cold water much of the distance to the girl. They managed to get the girl out of the water on to the ice.

Dyer half pushed and half shoved the girl back across the ice to the shore. There they were helped by policemen who had arrived a few minutes earlier.

The two college students suffered from the extreme cold and exposure, as well as slight cuts on the arms caused by jagged ice.

Natl. Press Got It Wrong

Dyer reports that national press accounts about his exploit contain many inaccuracies. Most accounts said that in the haste of leaving the car to go to the rescue, Muller slammed the door on Dyer's finger. "But," explains Dyer, "I had accidentally slammed the car door on my finger much earlier in the morning."

He added, "I'm a little wary now when I see a little girl out on ice. I certainly wouldn't want to have to go through all that again."

A business major from Haddonfield, N. J., Dyer is a member of the Outing Club, the Spanish Club and the Chapel choir. He also plays intramural football. He was graduated from Haddonfield High School where he was a three letterman in football and track.

Armed Forces Discussions Set

All men students are encouraged to attend a series of three meetings being planned to acquaint them with the opportunities offered by the armed forces.

The first meeting will be in the old Chapel Tuesday, at 5 p. m. Sergeant Stauffer, the local recruiting officer for the army and air forces will talk to all those interested in these services. He will answer any questions concerning schools and special training programs.

The second meeting will be Wednesday at the same time. Dean Rhodes will speak. The dean was a classification and Assignment Officers and also a Personel director in the army and will offer the "benefit of his experiences."

A third meeting is in the tentative stages and will try to bring the navy into the picture. Discussions parallel to those of the other meetings will be held.

Informal Frosh Party Tonight

Couples will swing and sway to the music of the college dance band at the freshman-sponsored Snow Ball this evening in the gym. Beginning at 8:30, the dance will be informal—that is, "dressy" but not semi-formal as previously announced.

Serving as committee chairmen for the dance are the following frosh: Betti Brumbaugh, decorations; Gene Felix, refreshments; Kay Kuehne, publicity; and Ray McHenry, music. Diane Bramhall and Dagmar Silldorff issued invitations.

John Cook, president of the class, is entertainment chairman and promises a program of outstanding talent from the class.

One Spring Course Dropped

"Teaching of High School English" will not be offered in the Spring term as was tentatively planned, the office of the registrar reports. A suitable instructor could not be found. Eight students had signed up for the course.

Radio Committee Plans Two 'Firsts'

The special feature of the radio committee for the year will be a series of programs on the development of Juniata College. The first of the series will be featured Jan. 10 on the "Juniata on the Air" program.

Another "first" next week will be the first radio workshop. Any students who are interested may attend the workshop and participate in the discussion on "Cooperation." Dr. George Clemens and Betty Longwell will lead the discussion.

Bob Champion and Betty Longwell will be teamed for the Tuesday session of Turntable Terrace. On Thursday, Fred Shamlian will jockey his regular program.

"These half-hour long record sessions each Tuesday and Thursday are open to any and all students of Juniata College who wish to try their hand at radio work," Miss Longwell says.

She is the chairman of the student radio committee.

Exam Rules Summarized

No changes have been made in the usual final exam procedure, a memo from the registrar shows.

Designed for "those who desire honestly to do their best" and to help students avoid "all acts that might raise suspicion of dishonest intention," the rules may be summarized as follows:

- Students must remain in the examination room until they are finished and have submitted their blue books.
- No student may leave an exam unless ill. If he must leave, he shall submit his blue book to the proctor.
- Students taking the same exam must not sit in neighboring seats.
- Proper alignment and position of chairs must be maintained, with one chair between each desk.
- No materials not necessary to the test may be taken into the examination room.
- Only one blue book will be disbursed at a time.

Organ Recital Set For Sunday

A public organ recital by the advanced students of Prof. Donald Johnson will be given tomorrow at 2 p. m. in Oller Hall.

In three of the dozen selections the organ is to be used "as an ensemble instrument in combination with other instruments." the professor adds.

These will be two organ and piano numbers—Bach's "Siciliano" played by Miriam Smith and Doris Orner; and Demarest's "Rhapsody," by Frances Beaver and Doris Orner—and a violin—piano—organ trio: Handel's "Aroso," by Charles Redenberger, Helen Wentzler and Earle Grover.

The remainder of the program will include the following selections:

"Prelude on 'Angels from the Realms of Glory,'" Mathews and "Night," Karg-Elert, by Miriam Smith; "Elegy," Youferoff, by Doris Orner; "Short Prelude and Fugue in B Flat," Bach, and "Before the Image of a Saint," Karg-Elert, by Frances Beaver.

"Festivity," Jenkins and "Andante from Sonata in C Minor," Rheinberger, by Earle Grover; "Prelude and Fugue in C Major," Bach, and "Canon in B Minor," Schumann, by William Weyandt.

Late Enrollment Cost $5

Previously enroled students who failed to register for Spring term classes before Christmas vacation must now obtain permission to do so from their respective deans, registrar A. William Engel says. A fee of $5 will be charged those who wish to register without this permission.

A Cappella Choir To Head West Jan. 26

An Interview

Hermann Pabst, German Student, Says US Is 'Fast'

by Peg Barrington

"It was all so fast," is how Hermann Pabst describes the two weeks in which he was graduated from high school, left Germany (for the first time in his life), and flew to the United States.

Pres. Calvert Ellis first told the young German about JC when he visited Pabst's home town, which is also the birthplace of the Church of the Brethren. When Pabst learned that the College had offered him a scholarship, and that the student Senate had contracted to pay his expenses, he decided to accept. Six weeks later he began his trip.

Stranded In New York

No-one met him at the airport, so he was unexpectedly turned out on the city of New York with barely enough money, four suitcases, and eight and one-half years of training in English "by the book," not at all like the language of the American streets.

First he went to the wrong railroad station, and then he tried to buy the wrong ticket, but things were finally straightened out and here he is.

Plans To Teach Music

When he receives his certificate of graduation from high school (it has been delayed), Pabst will be officially a junior at Juniata. When he completes his college training, he will return to Germany to teach his major, music. On the side, he expects to instruct in English and Latin.

Eyes twinkling, this international student adds the observation that American girls are a "different type" than he is used to, but that he is "very happy" here.

Is U. S. Losing Its Principles ?

The New Yorker Magazine reports that a recent Sears, Roebuck Catalog advertises a doll house with a bar in it. This is only another indication of the low morality of "life in these United States."

We spend billions annually on alcohol and tobacco. We wile away precious hours in front of television sets and the movie screens. We tolerate segregation in some of our large universities.

We call a railroad strike during one of the greatest period's in our national history. We talk of dropping the atomic bomb on Peiping or on Moscow and of a preventitive war.

We support the established regimes in Asia which, according to Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, in the current issue of Look, are, for the most part, the forces of conservatism, corruption and colonalism, against those of reform and liberty.

We Welcome All Comers

We welcome with open arms all comers who have divisions, regardless of the fact that some are fascist and totalitarian.

Then we wonder why we have so few friends in Europe and Asia. We wonder why the United States and the world is in the shape it is militarially and morally.

We have said that we stand for truth and freedom and we have demonstrated it many times in many ways.

Ideals In Danger

However, today our thinking and, consequently, our foreign policy has become so survival and fear-centered that we are in danger of giving up many of our lofty ideals in order to survive.

If we continue this thinly-veiled self-interest for survival which makes all peoples pawns in the American-Soviet struggle for world power then we will lose the respect and the friendship of the whole world.

A Positive Program

Therefore, besides armament, the United States should present the rebelling peoples of the world with democratic ideas and with a definite program for reform and industrial development. This would mean providing all peoples, regardless of political affiliation, with food, shelter and the opportunity to live and let live.

We, Americans, must do more than talk about democracy. We must show it can work here and we must foster it in Europe and in Asia.

America must never forget that there are principles greater even than expediency and survival. These are the principles of unselfishness, love and brotherhood.

Only can they win for us friendship and salvation.

TOMMYHAWK

At the rate at which men are being drafted or are enlisting, Juniata will eventually have to change it charter to a girls' college. All I ask is that I coach the football team. There would be a lot of completed passes, with no fake reverses. Among the draft possibilities are Dave LeFever and Harry Campbell. Bob Donaghy enlisted into the Army Quartermaster Corp and Art Shriver enlisted as a deckhand. Joe Beyer has been drafted. Seems as though the younger generation can't even get started. I quote the little girl who said, "Someday there will be a war and nobody wil come."

Tommy noticed that despite the title, the Winterland Ball was a warm and happy occasion for all. Among the many good looking couples were Nick and Vera.

Tommy's New Year's Resolutions: To ask Miss Mathias to put out weekly menus so we can see what we have eaten. To ask the administration to comply with the senate request for a light for the front of the post office entrance, and to have ten watt bulbs in the lamps in the Social Rooms. And cut no classes between semesters.

This nosey criter noticed the many smiles and looks of romantic expectations on the faces of the both sexes as they gathered in Skip's to see who else arrived back. The seniors were there contemplating the next semester's comprehensives (or the ones in action this week) and wishing they were once more happy freshmen. May you all pass Magna Cum Laude. I will probably make it with a Cum Lousy.

Till I see you again,

Tom

Meteorites, The Champs

Last year's champs in the intramural basketball league were the Meteorites. They finished with an 11-1 record. After winning the pennant, the leaders went on to sweep the playoffs. Playing for the Meteorites, who were managed by "Meteor Mike" Dzvonar, were Dick Young and Phil Chabody at the forwards. Dzvonar, Aldo Bonomi and Mike Mervis were guards, while George Smith was the center.

Dzvonar Bonomi

Don Robinson led the scorers with 226 points and an average of 18.8 points per game.

IM Bowling

With the first half of the intramural bowling league drawing to a close this is the way the teams line up:

	W	L
Trojans	8	0
Les Miserables	14	2
Aces	12	4
Strikettes	7	5
Sliders	4	4
Sneaks	2	10
NoNames	1	15
Faculty	0	8

Note that all the teams have not bowled all their games and more than a few must be made up to complete the records.

Pacing the keglers with an average of 171.2 for six games is Ray Korody. Then come Ed Marschka, Ron Hausman, Ron Clapper and George Cruser. Their averages are 148.9, 144.1, 144.0 and 143.1 respectively.

The second half begins January 12 and ends on March 2. A match matching the winners of both halves will be held then to determine the league Championship.

1st Half Leaders

The first half champs of the 1949-50 Intramural Bowling League were Les Miserables, while the Sliders took the honors in the second half.

IM Softball

The Daylights of Bob Appleby took first place in the Intramural Softball League, afternoon session, while the evening title went to the Rookies managed by Vernon Beam. Sixteen teams were entered in the league.

Trojans, Football Leaders

Ray Korody's Trojans came through the 1950 Intramural Football race undefeated and were named champs. They took both ends of a split season.

Other teams in the league were the Sky Pilots, Bruins, Whiz Kids, Red Skins and the Dirty Shirts.

Football Team Has Four-Record; Hicks And Chabody Co-captain Indians

Coy Hicks and Phil Chabody co-captained the last edition of Bill Smaltz's football Indians.

Long, Dzvonar Lead Indians Team Wins Seven; Loses Six

Bill Smaltz took over the coaching reins of the baseball team for the fourth year. Mike Dzvonar and "Squeeze" Long were named co-captains. Last year's team matched the record of the team before it, winning seven and losing six. Three of the scheduled games were rained out.

The pitchers were led by Dave LeFevre and Ken Wenger, each with three wins. LeFevre also led the hiters with a mark of .313. Long finished second with a .302 mark.

The team finished with a record of four wins and four losses. They lost their first two games by scores of 13-12 and 20-13. Then they beat Susquehanna 19-12. Two more losses followed before the team won again. They routed Lycoming 33-0 on Parents' day and then were never beaten, beating Grove City and Washington.

Coy Hicks was named to the INS third team of the all Pennsylvania small college team. Don Brumbaugh and Bill Waryck were given honorable mention. Joe Dobal was given honorable mention as fullback on the western Pennsylvania team picked in the Pittsburgh Press.

Harriers Fare Poorly; Beyer Breaks Record

The Indians won one out of four dual meets and one triangular meet last year. Also in the track season was the Interclass Meet and the Gold Medal X-Country run.

The sophomores took the interclass meet. The only high spot of the intercollegiate season was Joe Beyer's record breaking mile against Lebanon Valley.

Beyer has been running with the New York Pioneer Club since last summer. In the Connecticut State Championships he copped the second place medal.

As a student, Beyer set the mile and two mile records. The times are 4:38.6 and 10:04.6 respectively. He also won the Mike Snider Gold Medal X-Country Run in his last two years, setting the record as a junior.

Beyer ran the two miles in the Middle Atlantic Relays in 9:57, bettering the school record. This could not be counted, however, as he did not win the event.

Athletes Get Awards

Juniata's six most outstanding athletes of 1949-50 received a last spring. The awards were made for each of the following sports: football line, football back, basketball, baseball, track and golf.

Winning the awards were: Aldo Bonomi for football line, Mike Dzvonar for football back and Holmes Ulsh for basketball.

"Squeeze" Long

"Squeeze" Long won the award for baseball, while Joe Beyer took it for track. The golf award went to Ray Korody.

The awards have been established by Juniata Alumni for the purpose of recognizing, annually, the most outstanding athlete in each major sport. The donors of the awards are: George Weber, Dr. J. Harold Engle, Prof. Jack Oller, Charles Goodale, J. Foster Gehrett and Blair Miller, respectively.

JC Invitational Tourney Begun

Juniata sports were not too successful in 1950. Only two teams had winning records, golf and baseball. The football squad broke even over an eight game schedule, the first in quite a while. All the other teams had disastrous seasons. Maybe this year Dame Fortune will smile on JC and help bring back more athletic victories.

Juniata's golf team was one of the finest in the eastern states. The linksmen swept through undefeated, with only a tie against Pitt marring their record. They successfuly defended their title in the Western Maryland Invitation Tournament and finished second in the JC Invitational.

The baseball team started the season badly, but once they found themselves they were hard to stop and finished with a record of seven wins and six losses.

Athletic Awards Established, Gym Plans Announced

Plans for a new physical education building were announced in the Spring. Six new athletic awards were also established in 1950.

The football team was captained by Coy Hicks and Phil Chabody and capped the season with a three game winning streak.

Tennis tried to make a comeback on College Hill, but the team did not fare too well. In track it was Joe Beyer's year. He set two records in a dismal season that saw the Indians win only one meet.

The '49-'50 season was the first for Doc Greene as coach and the team didn't do as well as we hoped. The play of Holmes Ulsh was the only bright spot. This year, things look a little brighter.

Ulsh Paces Tribe In Greene's First Year

Last season, their first under Dr. Arnold Greene, the Braves won only four, while losing 13, basketball games.

Holmes Ulsh, captain of the team, was given an honorable mention on the 1950 AP All-Pennsylvania team. Ulsh scored 298 points this year for an average of 17.5 per game. In the three years that Ulsh played for the Indians he scored 822 points in 56 games. His high for a single game was 36, a feat he hit twice last season.

Stan Welch, Ray Korody, and John Stayer also topped the 100 mark in points scored. Welch hit for 150, while Korody and Stayer dumped in 117 and 103 respectively.

Golfers Undefeated; Win Md. Tournament

Juniata's golf team was captained by Ray Korody and coached by Dr. Ed Kiracofe last year. The team composed of Korody, Art Allen, Bob Rhodes, Frank Stasenko, Gordie Stroup and Dave Bayer swept to an undefeated season, winning eight matches and tying one.

The team also took part in two invitational tournaments, the Juniata College Invitational and the Western Maryland Invitational. Penn won the JC Invitational, while the Indians successfully defended their title in the Western Maryland event.

Thirteen teams and 53 golfers took part in the first annual Juniata Invitational Tournament. Penn won the tournament, while Juniata and Lehigh finished in a second place tie, two strokes behind Penn. Gordie Stroup led the Indians by finishing third.

Parks Leads Indians; Team Has Bad Breaks

Basketball has been rather unsuccessful so far this season, with the team winning only one game. However, with a break here and there the team could easily show a record of three and possibly four wins.

Players statistics as of Jan. 4:

	FG	FM-FT	Pts.
K Park	26	10-14	62
T Green	14	20-24	48

Beyer Drafted; 4 Others Enlist, Go This Month

Joe Beyer, assistant director of admissions has been drafted into the armed forces. He will leave sometime today for New York to report for duty.

Four students have enlisted and will go into service at the end of this semester. Several others are also considering enlistment to beat the draft. They include the following:

Harry Campbell, Kelsey Edwards and Ron Haga have enlisted in the air force. If they pass the physical examinations, they expect to go to San Antonio, Texas. Fran Townsend has enlisted in the navy and will report to Great Lakes, Illinois, Jan. 15.

Campbell, a sociology major, and Haga, business administration, both are from Bedford, Pa.

Edwards is a pre-veterinary major from Riverside, New Jersey. Townsend, Ocean City, New Jersey is majoring in business.

6 Nations Send Students Here

Of a grand total of 615 students at Juniata, 23.6% are from areas other than Pennsylvania, a recently issued report reveals.

Nine states, the District of Columbia and five foreign countries comprise these areas. The states are California 2, Connecticut 1, Delaware 2, Maryland 24, New Jersey 73, New York 13, Ohio 7, Virginia 6 and West Virginia 2. Of the foreign nations represented, Germany has 2 and West Africa, Brazil, Norway and Panama each one.

Forty-three Pennsylvania counties supplied 430 of the remaining students. Huntingdon County leads the field with 92, followed by Blair, 55. Other leading counties are Cambria, 32; Bedford and Mifflin, each 23; and Montgomery and Westmoreland, 22 apiece.

These bring the total to 597; 18 "Unlisted Specials," for the most part day students taking one music course complete the 615.

BY MAY???—As 1951 dawns, the chances grow brighter for this architect's drawing of Juniata's Memorial Gymnasium to become a reality by May. Steel, long delayed as a result of war-caused government priorities, has now reached the fabricators. If no further difficulties arise, weather stays clear, and the necessary construction material arrives next week, there is hope that the building may be complete in time for Juniata's Diamond Jubilee celebration April 17. "But remember, there's a war on," construction superintendent Kenneth Glasgow warns, to keep false hopes from growing.

New Gym By May -- Maybe; Steel Now At Fabricators

"Steel for the Memorial Gymnasium is now at the fabricators and should be here next week. If it arrives then, and if we have reasonable weather from here on out, the new gym should be finished by May. But don't count on it. There's a war on, you know."

These are the words of Kenneth Glasgow, superintendent of construction for Ritter Brothers, Harrisburg.

Priorities Cause Hold-Up

He added that government priorities have been delaying fabrication of the necessary beams, though the raw metal has been available for some time.

According to Glasgow, the job was contracted to be completed within a certain number of working days. This total was calculated to allow for weather and material delays and still permit completion of the job by May.

However, he pointed out, the margin has been reduced to the point where further unforseen delays may force revision of this goal. The College hopes to dedicate the new building as its 75th anniversary program April 17.

Weather A Delaying Factor

So far, weather has been an important delaying factor, though naturally the contract took Winter into account.

"We had to heat the water used in mixing cement to keep it from freezing," Mr. Glasgow says. He added that workmen do not work on severely cold days, as were found a few days ago.

"But the water from the rain and snow don't bother us," he added, since drains have already been installed. Special flooring will be put in later, he said.

Alfarata Seeking Photos

"We're looking for pictures!" says Alfarata editor Quayton Stottlemyer.

Emphasizing that the 1951 annual is to tell its story of Juniata's Diamond Jubilee Year with photos rather than words, Stottlemyer added that cash payment for pictures used is being offered as an incentive.

Particularly needed are shots of the campus, sports events, general or human interest, activities, personalities, etc.

Panamanian Here 'Smooth' Dancer

by Jeanie Tait

One of the newer additions to the Juniata College campus is Marcos Eddi, a smooth dancer from Panama, the land of the Mambo-Jambo.

Born in Colon, Republic of Panama, Eddi chose Juniata because it is a small liberal arts school. Majoring in the pre-medical course, he finds chemistry his favorite subject.

He first attended St. Joseph's College of the Brethren in Colon, but transferred when he was 13 to Monroe College, Jamaica, West Indies. He then spent a year at Pennington Prep School, where he first learned about Juniata. He says he prefers American schools as they are more progressive.

When not studying or enjoying the social life, Eddi relaxes with his favorite hobbies—stamp collecting and dancing. Quite the linguist, he speaks English, Spanish, French, Arabic, and reads Hebrew.

When asked what he liked most about Juniata, Eddi was quick to answer, "chemistry and the girls."

Debussy—In One Day

Upon arriving in New York from Israel, he buried himself in Debussy with only one day remaining before the contest. The rewarding result was his selection from 65 contestants by the judges, including composers Milhaud and Sessions, Cushing of the University of California faculty and Marjory Fisher, music critic of the San Francisco News.

Critic Linton Martin recently wrote in the Philadelphia Inquirer: "In poetic persuasiveness of performance Pressler relives the legend we have of Chopin. Indeed, it might not be surprising if some more impressionable symphony subscribers fancied they were present at a curious if not uncanny case of reincarnation. For in appearance Pressler remarkably resembles the great Polish pianist-composer."

The drunk stared into the grave and at last distinguished the form of the grave-digger.

"No wonder you're cold," he said, "You haven't any dirt on you."

7 Rings For 7 Lasses Found In Santa's Bag

by Carol Cook

With a bag filled with diamond rings Santa Claus and seven helpers landed on seven roof-tops, slid down seven chimneys, and dropped a ring into the stockings of seven JC coeds.

Three of Santa's helpers are JC campus joes, while the other four are "furriners."

Of the campus set, Bob Rhodes presented a solitaire to Gladys Gehman. Budd Rigg popped the question to Shirley Butler; and Harold Bowser is making plans for an "I do" ceremony with Betty Hyre.

Wenger To Wed

Janet Wenger received her sparkler from Huber Shetter of Chambersburg. Another "furriner," James Casteel, of Greensburg and a surveyor employed by the state of Pennsylvania, invaded the campus to place a solitaire on Jody Siemon's ring finger.

Peggy Dell gave the affirmative answer to the four word question popped by Sgt. Robert Tritle, now stationed at Lawson Air Force Base, Ga.

Dottie Hummer received her ring from John Englert, a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College, who is now doing post graduate work in absentia at the University of Havana, Cuba.

Lathrum-Strait

A "knot-tying" ceremony is also being planned by Louise Lathrum (ex '52) and Fred Strait.

Lois Robinson and Jean Staude received engagement rings during the Thanksgiving vacation. Miss Robinson is making plans with Clem Darby, a senior at Princeton University. Jean received her ring from William Kiewel, Jr., a Temple University senior.

Also a candidate for the Mrs. degree, Betty Carpenter recently became engaged to Cpl. Richard Johnson, now stationed at Camp LeJeune, N. C.

College Will Use New Permanent Record Form

A new permanent record form for students here will be placed into effect simultaneously with the new letter-grade system at the end of the present term, according to registrar A. William Engel, Jr.

The new form, which will serve as the individual's permanent record in the office of the registrar, will replace the duplicated end-of-term report. It will be used as the official transcript when it bears the college seal.

More detailed information on the student will be available on the new record, Engel stated. Among its features are:

- Grade, credit hours and quality points for all courses.

Summary Of Record Included

- Summary of record to include hours registered, hours passed, hours failed, quality points, net hours, net points, term average and average to date.
- Notation of competence attained.
- Summary of entrance units.
- Listing of grading system.
- Actions taken by review committees.

A copy of the same record also will be sent to the parent or guardian of each student.

In changing the system, it has been necessary to sacrifice time in order to obtain more complete and neater records, the registrar said. Hence, there will be a longer period (possibly ten days) between the end of the term and the issuing of reports. All records will be processed by typewriter and multilith machine.

Still Some Kinks

Until the kinks are worked out of the system, the new record may not carry the summary information in the lower right corner for the current term. However, the record will be "as up-to-date as possible."

Numerical grades and numerical averages previously obtained by upperclass students will appear on the record, but this term's grades will be recorded as A, B, C, D, or F. Freshman records, naturally, will show only letter grades.

Henceforth, the term average will be figured by a quality point ratio. A student who receives three B's and two C's in three-credit courses will have a total of 24 quality points for his 15 hours of work. His term average would be 1.60.

Further details on the averaging will be released later, according to Engel. A study must be made to determine such minimum averages required for Dean's List, Honor Society and to remain in good academic standing.

'51 Grad Named To Fill Position Left By Beyer

A new assistant director of admissions has been named to fill the vacancy created by Joe Beyer's departure for the Army. He is George Montgomery, Jr., of Holidaysburg, a senior here.

Montgomery's appointment will be only for the Spring term, since he has been accepted by Jefferson Medical College for 1951-52. A married veteran and a pre-medical student, he will be a candidate for a bachelor of science degree Jan. 29.

The position of assistant director of admissions entails serving as field representative for the College. This department also conducts the testing program in high schools throughout a three-state area.

Beyer, who filled this position since September, is the first member of the College staff to be called into the Army.

75 Anniversary Feature Aired

The Juniata-on-the-Air show this Wednesday will feature a rebroadcast of a program originally produced last Spring. This program was the first of the 75th Anniversary personality series and was dedicated to Charles C. Ellis, the sixth president of the Juniata system. The participants in the program are Dr. Norman G. Brumbaugh, Dean Morley Mays, Prof. J. Clyde Stayer and student announcer, Bob Champion.

Two Junior girls, Janet Boland and Jo Chiodi, will be bringing music your way when they spin records on Turntable Terrace this Tuesday. On Thursday Fred Shamilian will again be disc jockey.

Exam Week Brings Traditional P. M. Teas

The Women's House Committee will again hold afternoon teas during exam week, according to Miss Edith Spencer.

Under the direction of Connie Sherman, the teas will be held in the Social Rooms from 3:30 to 5 p. m. every afternon of exams except Saturday. Tea, coffee and cocoa will be served. Miss Spencer's traditional cinnamon toast will also be offered at several of the teas.

Cards and other games will be available in the Social Rooms.

Faculty and administration members are invited to join the students in these afternoons of relaxation.

Party, Movie On 2 Week Slate

Dr. Rockwell To Call Square Dance Tomorrow

"Swing your partner, then promenade home!"

Juniata's own caller, Dr. Donald Rockwell, will be heard issuing such phrases at the square dance to be held in the gym tomorrow night at 8:15. Sponsored by the social committee under the direction of Bob Elder, the evening's entertainment will include folk songs, dances and games led by Elaine Mock.

Jeans and shirts will be in order for the evening; and no date will be needed to enjoy the planned entertainment.

Working on the square dance plans are committee chairmen Phil Kulp and Bob Swindel, refreshments; Fred Shamlian, posters; and Bill Carpenter and Elaine Mock, music.

'A Double Life' Will Be Shown January 20

For that break between exams, the social committee is sponsoring a movie in Oller Hall, Saturday, Jan. 20 at 7:30 p. m.

"A Double Life," starring Ronold Coleman, will be the main feature. It was for his performance in this motion picture that Ronald Coleman won the Academy Award.

The films for this and a shorter feature to be screened were obtained from a different company than usual and should be of better quality than the last ones shown.

After the movie, the gym will be open for informal entertainment. Refreshments will be served.

Bridgewater Pres. To Present Commencement Address Here Jan. 29

Dr. Warren Bowman will be the commencement speaker for the 1951 Winter graduating class. A former Juniata faculty and administration member, he is now the president of Bridgewater College, Bridgewater, Va.

The doctor will deliver his address in Oller Hall Monday, Jan. 29 at 9:30 p. m. This will also serve as the convocation message for the term which will begin on that day.

For seven years Dr. Bowman was head of the department of education and psychology here, from 1930 through 1937. For five of these years he also served as dean of men.

He became president of Bridgewater July of last year. Previously he had held positions as pastor of the Washington Church of the Brethren and as a professor of education and psychology.

Known, as an author, church leader and especially as an educator, Dr. Bowman has taught during summer sessions at the George Peabody College for Teachers, Emery University, University of Va., and Duke University.

Educators At Confab

Discuss Draft Status Of College Students

Three of the top members of the College administrative staff are in Atlantic City this week for various conferences.

President Calvert Ellis and Morley Mays, dean of the College, attended meetings of the Association of American Colleges from Monday until last night.

Main topic of the conference was "The Role of the College in the National Emergency." The educators, meeting with high draft officials, are expected to help determine the future draft status of national college students.

As a member of the nominating committee, President Ellis will help the group nominate officers for the year at this meeting. In addition, he will take part in a meeting of Commission on International Cultural Relations, a branch of the Association.

Harold Brumbaugh, assistant to the president is in Atlantic City attending the District Two Conference of the American Alumni Council. This is not related to the Association conferences. It began yesterday and will close tomorrow.

Monday and Tuesday Dean Mays also attended sessions of the American Conference of Academic Deans.

Recital To Be Presented Sun.

The piano students of Mrs. Richard Linton and Miss Marion Thomas will present a public recital in Swigart Hall Sunday at 2 p. m.

The program will include the following selections: "Norse Song," Schumann, and "Sailor's Song," by Grieg, played by Wilda Widdowson; "Valse Sentimental," Schubert and "Under the Double Eagle," Wagner, by Mary Elizabeth Shearer; "Waltz" and "Puck," both written by Grieg and played by Rhoda Clemmer.

Senate To Hold Open Meeting; Students Invited

The Juniata College Senate will hold an open meeting Monday at 7 p. m. in the Women's Day Student Room.

Students interested in the tentative agenda given below and in seeing the Senate in action are invited to the meeting.

The agenda:

At this first meeting of the new year Senators will consider a petition for the organization of a rifle club.

Also the legislators will discuss a change in the procedure for electing the Senate vice-president.

Furthermore, president Showalter said that there would be a discussion of ways to increase student interest in the all-College Spring musical, "The Firefly."

Isenburg Is Air CadetCandidate

Clarence "Shorty" Isenberg was accepted Friday as a candidate for aviation cadet training by the Army Air Force. He is now waiting assignment from Scott Field, Ill., "probably to one of four Texas bases," he says.

On Nov. 8, his 20th birthday, he began proceedings, taking the Air Force mental qualifying exam Nov. 24. He completed the physical and moral exams Dec. 14 and 15.

These qualify him for a four month "honorary deferment." This is a special agreement between the Air Force and the local draft board, by which the board agrees to defer the candidate for four months. The candidate is not yet a cadet, and if the Air Force does not call him within that period he is again eligible for the draft, according to Isenberg.

'I Owe Everything To Palestine,' Asserts Pressler. Isareli Pianist

by Jeanie Tait

Menahem Pressler, brilliant young Israeli pianist who was so enthusiastically received in Oller Hall Monday night, began his piano study at the age of seven, under Eliah Rudiakow.

When only 10, he was forced to flee from Germany to Palestine. He says of the latter, "I owe everything." In his accented yet well modulated voice he states that conditions in his country have influenced him so that "I search for much more in music than I would in normal times."

First Appeared At 13

The pianist's appearance was in Tel-Aviv at the age of 13. In 1946 he flew to San Francisco where he won a $1,000 Debussy Prize in an international music contest. He was 17 then.

His future plans include further study; in fact, he says "I am always studying."

Off stage Pressler is quite short, young and not too talkative. In his poised manner, he calmly and quietly says, "I love America very much."

True Artist 'Recreates'

Voicing a few of his opinions about music, Pressler believes that the "artist recreates his music for his audience. True, he occasionally creates, but mostly he recreates." He feels that the members of a symphony orchestra are "not artists, but merely mechanics." About his audience at Oller Hall, he felt it was "excellent."

Following the JC concert, the artist expected to appear at the University of Duquesne in Pittsburgh. Then he will move on to Chicago, Ill.; Texas; and will end the season with the Philadelphia and New York Philharmonic Orchestras.

We Need To Be Honest With Ourselves !

Being "honest with oneself" means setting up the most important values in one's life and living up to those values in so far as is humanly possible.

I am afraid that many of us are not living up to this supremely important law of life. Many of us don't know what we believe and for what we are living. We owe it to ourselves and to others to pause in the whirl of life and to formulate those things for which we would live and fight and die.

Decide What You Value

Each of us should decide concretely what we value most highly and then to live up to that principle in so far as we are able. —a procedure which many of us do not follow.

Know What You Value Most In Life; Live According To Those Values

For example, take the matter of draft registration for Selective Service. Many young men drift into the service because of pressure from the army recruiting service or government propaganda, or into conscientious objector ranks because of pressure from preacher or pacifist propaganda.

US Recognizes Conscience

As you may know, like other democratic governments, the United States recognizes the sovereignty of conscience in matters of religious conviction.

A man may register as I A (available for military service), I-A-O (conscientious objector available for non-combat service), or 4 E (conscientious objector opposed to both combatant and non-combatant military service.)

Again, it is not for any of us to say that any of these groups is more or less righteous than any other. In a democracy the individual must decide for himself.

It is important that each man make this decision, not on the basis of propaganda, but on the basis of what, according to his Christian or other ethics seems to him to be supremely right.

Values Should Be Considered

The thing to be lamented is not so much the decision made but the fact that it is not made on the basis of conscience and of values duly considered. Many of us do not know for what values and principles we are going out to fight and on what basis we made our decision to go.

Today, as never before, a man owes it to himself and to his fellowmen to set up his values in life and to stick by what he believes to be right.

A man needs to be honest with himself!

'Stay In School'...

Ohio State Head Advises Students

In an effort to offset the "state of bewilderment" currently facing many male students at Juniata College because of impending calls to military service, Pres. Calvert Ellis today released to the Juniatian a statement from the president of Ohio State University.

The statement by Pres. Howard Bevis read in part:

"I know that many of our students are perplexed and troubled in this time of emergency and stress. Uncertain of the outlook, some wonder whether it is worthwhile to go on. Some find it difficult to concentrate upon their work. Their thoughts and feelings are not hard to understand.

"In sincere sympathy and friendship, let me counsel you to stay in school as long as you can and to do your work the very best you can. Whatever happens, this will make you of greater service to your country. Whatever happens, this will be to your best personal advantage. Should you be called to service, college credit, even short of graduation, will put you in better position for advancement.

"The armed forces will undoubtedly utilize university training for many proficiencies. Those continuing to do good work will have an obvious advantage."

How To Win Professors.....

1. Look alert. Take notes eagerly.

If you look at your watch, don't stare at it unbelievingly and shake it.

2. Bring the professor newspaper clippings dealing with his subject.

Demonstrate fiery interest and give him timely items to mention in class. If you can't find clippings dealing with his subject, bring in any clippings at random. He thinks everything deals with his subject.

3. Nod frequently and murmer, "I can see it now!" and "How true!"

To you, this may seem exaggerated. To him, it's quite objective and very proper.

4. Sit in front, near him.

(Applies only if you intend to stay awake.) If you're going to all the trouble of making a good impression, you might as well let him know who you are, especially in a large class.

5. Laugh at his jokes.

You can tell—if he looks up from his notes and smiles expectantly, he has made a funny.

6. Ask for outside reading.

You don't have to read it. Just ask for it.

7. If you must sleep, arrange to be called at the end of the class hour.

It creates an unfavorable impression if the rest of the class has left and you sit there alone, dozing.

8. Be sure the book you read during the lecture looks like a book from the course.

If you do math in psychology class, and psychology in math, match the books for size and color. Look up occasionally to give the impression that your attention is not entirely taken away from the captivating lecture.

9. Ask questions you think he can answer.

Conversely, avoid announcing that you have found the answer to a question he could not answer, and that it is in your brother's second grade reader.

10. Call attention to his writing and/or outside lectures.

Produces an exquisitely pleasant experience connected with you. If you know he's written an article, ask in class if he wrote it and mention its scholarly import.

.....And Influence Students

- Be a stickler for wanting papers in on time.
  Then wait weeks and even months before returning tests and term papers.
- Tell them every other day just where they stand with you.
  They like to know that you don't care whether they work or not and that, frankly, you don't think they care either.
- For variety, lecture them on their ignorance.
  Otherwise, they'll be just as cocky when you have them for comps as they were when you had them as freshmen.
- Wander off the subject in your lectures.
  This makes their notes easy to study at 3 a. m. before an exam.
- Give them a D and write "incoherent" all over the paper.
  This will help you attain a greater closeness to the class group, since they will all stop after class and inquire what it is you have written on their papers.
- Keep saying, "This problem is too easy. Let's move on to the tough stuff."
  This will build up the students' egos, especially after they have spent six hours the night before sweating out the answers to the first problem.
- Never give short assignments.
  There are at least three reasons for this. First, naturally yours is the only course of importance they have. Secondly, long assignments will give them something to remember you by when they come avisiting as alumni. Finally and perhaps most important, it will keep them too busy to find time to write features like this for the campus paper.
- Know it all . . .!
  They (your students) think they know it all, so why shouldn't you take the same attitude.
- But keep your knowledge to yourself.
  Bounce any student who tries to show you where you might be wrong.
- Teach 'em theory, not practice.
  After all, they won't be able to use any after they get out of college.
- Tell them your lectures deal with details that they needn't worry about; that the important things are in the book.
  But base your tests on your lectures.
- Develop a set of unique mannerisms.
  This will keep the students' minds off your lectures!

Musicals Highlight Local Movie Agenda

by Frank Harlacher

MR. MUSIC—For that weekday break from studies the Cineviewer suggests Paramount's latest Crosby picture, Mr. Music. Filmed in black and white, the movie furnishes Bing's usual crooning together with a fairly complicated plot for a musical.

The script has Nancy Olson, a relative newcomer to the screen, in the supporting role as the struggling college graduate secretary with a problem. She has to get a lazy, good natured composer, Crosby, back to work for his producer if she is to keep her job.

After success in the musical comedy line the composer had rested on his laurels for 15 years and was now resting just as comfortably on a stack of credit. A series of events spearheaded by the persistent, prim, and pretty Miss Olson, and the usual love complications eventually wind up in the conventional manner.

"Life Is So Peculiar," "Accidents Will Happen" and "Wouldn't It Be Funny?" are the songs offered in the Crosby formula. Appearing here and there through the film are such guest artists as Groucho Marx, Peggy Lee and Dorothy Kirsten.

The running time of this movie is 113 minutes, 23 minutes over the average feature length of 90 minutes. Mr. Music is rated excellent at the New York projection room, and is playing at the Grand Theatre Monday through Wednesday.

PAGAN LOVE SONG—MGM technicolor musicals are usually worthy of most moviegoers' indulgence. Pagan Love Song is the well known escape to tropical island, but to escape with Esther Williams is an idea which appeals.

Howard Keel, the up-and-coming-fast Annie Get Your Gun man, holds up his musical end of the film equally with Miss William's swimming. His voice is pleasing and natural, and his carefree manner is more likeable than the conceited role of his previous filmusical.

The Williams style has by no means lost any of its beauteous swim in technicolor. Around this tropical scene the title song weaves itself nicely. Filmed on location in Hawaii, the plot has Keel claiming an inherited plantation on the island of Tahiti. He falls in, out and back in love with a Tahitian born-and-bred white girl, Esther Williams, without the usual large number of complications.

Adding to the entertainment are such things as native hula dancers, humor with a runaway pig and adoption of a handful of kids. The slow, easy going, effortless life on this tropical island tends to have a very relaxing effect on the weary examinee.

Pagan Love Song runs 76 minutes and was rated very good by New York reviewers. It is playing Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 22, 23, and 24, at the Clifton Theatre.

TOMMY

The war of the south has started again. Harvey Miller's huge Confederate flag was removed during the nocturnal hours, from the buttress where it so gallantly flew. Workers of the south, arise.

Bob Elder and Vernon Showalter had a remodeling job done to their room. The magnificent mahogany door was removed and a white swinging door added. It looks like a makeshift western saloon. Ropealong Elder was too busy thinking of his new pardner, Miss Dottie, to give the door any attention.

Bill Waryck, Harry Campbell and Antny Segalovich are the polka prancers of Skips. "Legs" Segalovich is contemplating combining his talents with the Rockettes. It takes more than legs, Bub.

Nancy Meyers has sent her heart-throb to the Marines. There are many girls who have also sent away their loves, and you Nancy, along with them, will patiently wait for their return. When love is real, time is irrelevant.

Carole Hagen and Bob Donaghy were tripping lightly in the snow till Bob tapped her gently and smiled coyly as she flew through the air with the greatest of ease to land gracefully but firmly and flatly in the snow.

"Beanie" Roberts is forgetting the tensions of comprehensives by engaging the company of a few prominent males. It's a mixture of comprehension with apprehension. Claudia Ottoson is flying high with lover Sy.

Predictions to come: There will be snowbattles with firecracker sound effects during the week of tests, and there will be a lot of new looking books (which are odd things to own) which will be used for the first time this semester, next week.

That's it,
Tom

Intramural Step-Child

by Bob Asan

Bowling seems to be the step-child of the intramural sports program here at JC. It is the only sport that fails to function as smoothly as the others on the program. We wonder why?

It can hardly be due to lack of interest, as there is always a rush to get the league started. Only after the league is a few weeks old does it begin to falter.

The first half of this season was supposed to have ended last week, with the second half beginning tonight. However, 26 matches have yet to be rolled to complete the first half schedule. Surely that many emergencies could not have arisen over a period of seven Friday nights. Something ought to be worked out by the team managers and league organizer if anything is to come of the league.

This bowling league enjoys a unique position among intramural sports in that trophies are to be awarded for outstanding individual performances. Surely you bowlers can appreciate the fact that to get a chance at these trophies you must roll all your matches.

Let's start tonight and run the second half of the league right on schedule.

Another track record was set last year that we failed to mention in last week's issue. It was Don Brinton's record breaking accumulation of 51 points in a single season. We apologize, Don, for our oversight.

At Stevens Technical Institute the fencing team gets a unique reward for an undefeated season. The coach blows the boys to a dinner and champagne party. Competition for the team is quite keen and it has gone undefeated since it gained varsity status two year ago.

Motley Crew Wins; Beat Hammer Heads

Tuesday, Jan. 9 was a big night for the point getters of the girls' IM basketball league. In the only game played, the Motley Crew swamped the Hammer Heads by a score of 60-9. Dolly Shaffer and Ceci King each hit the basket for 25 points.

Three teams are now sporting undefeated records—the Geiger Gals, Motley Crew and the Oneida Hotshots.

Jayvees Bow, 80-60; Hackett Scores 19

Last Saturday the little Indians traveled to Johnstown to play the Pitt Johnstown Undergraduate Center. When the game was over the Indians were on the short end of an 80-60 score.

The game was close for the first half, with Johnstown ahead by three points at halftime. They pulled away in the second half, however, by scoring 51 counters.

Dave Gipe of Johnstown and Dave Hackett of the Indians led the scorers with 19 points each.

Tomorrow night the team will meet Lebanon Valley.

Hoopsters Return To Action; Meet Flying Dutchmen Tomorrow

Juniata's cagers get back into action tomorrow night, when they meet Lebanon Valley at Annville. Two other games then follow, which will end the first half of the season.

These games will be against Susquehanna on Jan. 20 and Drexel on Jan. 27. The Susquehanna game will be played at Selinsgrove, while Drexel will be met on the high school court.

The Indians begin the second half of their schedule on Jan. 31 by traveling to Carlisle, where they will meet Dickinson's Red Devils.

Lebanon Valley

The Indians travel to Annville tomorrow night for their first game since the holidays. They will meet the Flying Dutchmen of Lebanon Valley on the new LV Physical Education Building court.

Co-captaining the Dutchmen will be Larry Kinsella and Chuck Zimmerman. Both men are six feet one and know how to handle a basketball. Kinsella was the second highest scorer on last year's team, while Zimmerman was the playmaker. Most of Kinsella's 224 points were scored on his specialty, a drive in one hander.

However, the big man on the team is Al Murawski. As a freshman last year he played only ten games and scored 170 points. Playing the pivot, Murawski averaged 25 points per game in his first four games this season. He is six feet four inches tall and has a hook shot that is tough to stop.

Handling one of the forward slots is another high scorer, "Red" Langstaff. He stands six feet three and averaged 17 points per game for his first four tilts.

Other men returning from last year's team that won 12 games include Richie Furda, Eddie Frazier and Bill Tomilen. Tomilen is the tallest man on the team, standing 6-5. Furda is 5-9, while Frazier is 5-10.

To round out the squad are two men up from last season's junior varsity, Leon Miller and Joe Oxley.

Susquehanna

The Susquehanna basketball team that meets the Indians Jan. 20 will average six feet in height and is spearheaded by Norm Fleisher, 6-5 sophomore.

Fleisher, Stan Manning and Charley Zlock, 5-9, are expected to carry the scoring burden. Manning is a freshman and in the first game against Ursinus he netted 21 points, while Zlock got 15.

Ed Menapace, Bob MacNamara, Jesse Stone, 5-11, and Bob Henninger, 6-0, fill out the guard spots, while Richie Young and Dick Jones take care of the forward positions.

In both games last year the Indians came out on top. The games this season are expected to be closer since the Crusaders have added some scoring threats and improved their ball handling.

Drexel

When the Juniata Indians meet the Dragons of Drexel on the high school court Jan. 27 it will mark the end of the first half of the basketball campaign.

Captain Al MacCart, last year's second highest scorer, plays one of the forward positions and is especially effective with a one hand push shot. The other forward spot is usually handled by Vince Filliben. In the first game of the season Filliben set one Drexel record and tied another.

Two men, Basil Barno and Karl Schaeffer, share the center post. Both stand 6-3 and are excellent rebounders and each has the same specialty shot, a hook shot from the pivot.

Vying for a guard spot are Ed Imparto, Stan Laskus and Bernie McNamee. Imparto, at 5-9, is the only man under six feet on the team. The team averages 6-1. Laskus is an even six feet, while McNamee is 6-2. Imparto and Laskus are both set shot artists and excellent playmakers.

Reserve forwards are Mort Shafter, 6-1, and Bob Brewton, 6-2. Substitute guards are Joe Skurla, 6-1, and Syd Kane, 6-2.

Dickinson

The Indians begin the second half of their basketball season at Carlisle Wednesday, Jan. 31, when they meet Dickinson's Red Devils.

Leading the Red Devils will be Dick Zilling, a 6-1 junior who averaged 20 points a game last year, a Dickinson record. Supporting Zilling will be Bill Kinsella, Jack Slike and Marv Zucker. Zucker is the only one of the trio under six feet, going 5-10. Kinsella and Slike both are 6-2.

Willie Stark and Elwood Long head the reserves that include the Devil's ace quarterback, Wil Gobrecht. Long is six feet tall, while Gobrecht stands 5-11. The Dickinson team will average a little more than six feet in height.

THREE SHARP MUSIC MAJORS—(left to right) Jo Chiodi, second soprano; Doris Orner, alto; and Joan Weaver, first soprano made their debut last Spring as the 1950-51 edition of the Women's Varsity Trio. They have already sung before many groups this year and will be a featured part of their parent organization, the a cappella choir, on its forthcoming trip.

After Making Debut Last Spring Varsity Trio Is Now In Full Swing

At the Spring formal dinner last year, three songbirds made their debut on College Hill. Joan Weaver, first soprano; Jo Chiodi, second soprano; and Doris Orner, alto, were officially initiated as the Women's Varsity Trio. Clair Schaffner was, and is, accompanist for the group.

Working under Prof. Charles Rowland and as a part of the a cappella choir, these three girls have been practicing twice a week since the beginning of the year. They have sung before Rotary Clubs, and a Lions Club, at JCA meetings and at the square dance and freshman orientation programs in the beginning of the year.

On the choir trip this year, the trio will be featured singing "The Green Cathedral." Their specialty numbers include "Mood Indigo," "Night and Day" and "Let's Dance," a paraphrase of chop sticks.

This 1950-51 edition of the Women's Varsity Trio is a trio even as far as their dress is concerned. For the first time in the trio's history, the girls appear uniformly in beige wool jersey skirts and dark green wool jersey blouses.

The three girls are all music majors and potential music teachers. Miss Weaver, a junior from Windber, has been singing with the a cappella choir since her freshman year. The other two—Miss Chiodi, a junior from Hot Springs, Va. and Miss Orner, a senior from Huntingdon—are now members of the choir for their second year.

Juniata College Student Weekly

Vol. 27 | Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa., Feb. 2, 1951 | No. 14

$25 Prize For Essay

To Be Written On The Past of Juniata Valley

Twenty-five dollars in prize money is now waiting for the author of the winning entry in the annual Dr. E. J. Stackpole Contest, the history department has announced.

This prize is to be awarded to the student "who by vote of the faculty has made the most important contribution to the history of the Juniata Valley" through research.

The plan of the contest is as follows:

"Limits of the area of the Juniata Valley should carefully be defined and determined. Its time-honored historic institutions should be ascertained so that a specific field of study may be appropriated, care being taken that an undue overlapping of subjects be avoided from year to year."

Old records, personal interviews with well-informed people and old or new photographs will also add to the work, it is suggested. Research time is limited to Feb. 1 through March 1.

Deciding factors in the contest will include logical arrangement of materials, relevant diagrams and/or pictures used, English mechanics displayed and proportion of subject matter.

Three copies of each report should be made, one each for the donor, the College library and the student contributor.

H. Wagner To Reminisce On J.C. Story, '98-'24

Harry Wagner, the second of the 75th anniversary speakers, will appear in Chapel Monday. He will "reminisce" over the second period of Juniata's history—1898 to 1924. The late Dr. Harvey Green was the first period speaker.

Mr. Wagner graduated from Juniata in Normal English in 1901 and received his AB degree in 1907. Since that time he has had a variety of businesses, including lumber, real estate, hotel, farming and his family. At present he owns and operates the Hotels Huntingdon and Lewistown.

Trio Set For Wed. Chapel

A musical trio will appear in Chapel Wednesday. Members of the group will be Mrs. Mary Ruth Linton, piano; Jean Bailey, cello; and Prof. Jack Brammer, violin.

Prof. G. Wayne Glick will speak in Chapel Friday.

A past president of the Alumni Association (1933-34 and 1934-35), Mr. Wagner has had a long-time affiliation with the organization. He is also prominent in civic and religious activities in Huntingdon.

According to Harold Brumbaugh, "Mr. Wagner's loyal and personal interest in affairs of the College make him the fitting man for this anniversary occasion."

Exam For Med School Slated

Candidates for admission to medical school in the Fall of 1952 are advised to take the Medical College Admission Test in May, according to the Educational Testing Service.

These tests are required of applicants by a number of leading medical colleges throughout the country. They will be given Saturday, May 12 and Monday, Nov. 5 at more than 300 local centers in all parts of the United States. However, the Association of American Medical Colleges recommends that candidates for admission to medical school in the Fall of 1952 take the May test.

The tests cover such fields as general scholastic ability, understanding of modern society and achievement in science.

Application forms and a Bulletin of Information are available from Educational Testing Service, Box 592, Princeton, N. J. Completed applications must be received by April 28 and Oct. 22 respectively for the May 12 and Nov. 5 administrations of the test.

Dr. Green Dies Jan. 23

Dr. Frances Harvey Green

Dr. Francis Harvey Green, oldest former professor of the College, died Jan. 23 a few minutes after collapsing in the Pennington School's Chapel. He was speaking before an audience of about 225 students and faculty members. Dr. Green, 89, was headmaster emeritus at Pennington for the past seven years.

Was Author-Lecturer

Widely known lecturer, author, educator and wit, Dr. Green served as professor of English at Juniata (then known as the "Brethren Normal School") from 1884 to 1888. The College awarded him an honorary Doctor of Law degree in 1931.

Dr. Green's lifelong association with the late I. Harvey Brumbaugh brought him to Huntingdon on many occasions in later years. His last appearance at the College was on Oct. 4, 1950 when he spoke in Chapel.

After leaving Juniata in 1888, Dr. Green joined the English Department of West Chester Normal School. In 1922 he became headmaster at Pennington and held that position for 21 years.

Funeral services were conducted last Saturday in the Shaw Memorial Chapel at Pennington School.

AN OPEN LETTER

'Firefly' Co-ordinator Asks Students' Help On Musical

"Americanza," presented here in 1948, was almost entirely a student sponsored and student-directed show. "Sweethearts" and "Pirates of Penzance," given in 1949 and 1950 respectively, were under faculty supervision but they were still the students' show.

Our show this year, as you know, is Rudolf Friml's light opera, "The Firefly." It will be given March 9 and 10.

The Senate, acting in our interests, appointed me as student co-ordinator of our show. I am working now with Prof. Johnson of the music department and Miss Lois Esaley of the speech department on many phases of the production.

Since "The Firefly" is our show, it will be successful only if we take more than a passive interest in it.

We must give freely of our time and talent and suggestions and support if this show is to be the success that it can be, and must be.

The students of Juniata College are presenting a benefit opera, the profits of which are to support the worthy agencies of JWSF. We should all be a part of this production.

Leaks In Roof Damage Organ

"Approximately 15 of the (Oller Hall) organ is out of commission," Prof. Donald Johnson says. This is a result of leaks which developed in the roof above the organ chamber.

The trouble was first noticed after Christmas, but was not investigated thoroughly until last week when the pipes began to "gurgle." It was found that water had dripped into pouches of pliable leather in the pipes on the left side of the hall, drying them out.

Ten rows of reed pipes—the trumpets, vox humana, etc.—have been blocked off, the brass and copper reeds corroded. Repairing this damage will entail considerable expense, both Johnson and Paul Friend, business manager, believe.

It will take two weeks to dry out the damaged pipes. The damage should be repaired by the end of the month.

New System Delays Grades Until Feb. 8

Grades will be distributed sometime after Feb. 8, according to the registrar's office. The delay is a result of the new system of recording permanent marks by a multilithograph process.

Antique Glassware Librarian's Hobby

by Gwen Hartzel

The printed page takes second place to a collection of rare and beautiful glassware in the "after hours" of a college librarian.

In her moments off duty as librarian at Juniata College, Miss Lillian Evans has assembled a valuable collection of antiques including a prize assortment of over 100 pieces of glassware.

Began With Cupboard

A handsome cherry corner cupboard containing antique glasses first aroused her interest in glassware and it now houses her hobby. One of the oldest pieces is a slender glass candlestick more than 150 years old. Another antique is an unusual wick lamp bearing the thumbprint design.

"Usually such antique pieces go unrecognized for years until someone accidentally discovers their worth," Miss Evans revealed. Such was the case with a lovely amber flask bearing pictures

Profs Plan Counseling

JCA Sponsors New Service For Advising Students

A student counseling service is being set up under the sponsorship of the JCA. This counseling group, which was introduced at the JCA meeting Tuesday, is to be directed by Prof. G. Wayne Glick, Prof. Alfred Goetschuis and Dr. Tobias Henry.

Counseling will be in such fields as vocational guidance, personality adjustment, adjustment to college life and marriage guidance. It was stressed that students should feel free to go to any of these counselors for help with their problems.

Students may arrange to have an interview with a counselor during his regular office hours or they may call him at his home and schedule a conference.

Dr. Henry, Prof. Goetschius and Prof. Glick issued this statement regarding the new service:

"At the request of the Juniata Christian Association, and according to the general outline of their suggestion, we have agreed to make available to students an interview service.

"We wish to make clear our willingness to discuss with students any personal interest or problem which may concern them. These problems might deal with personality adjustment, with courtship and marriage decisions, with personal religious uncertainties, with the contribution of religion in the making of decisions.

"We wish to emphasize especially that such interviews will be strictly and unequivocally confidential. In no case will any information be either publicly or privately divulged."

Senate Requests New Speaker; To Dine Monday

The Juniata College Student Senate held its regular meeting in the Women's Day Student Room Monday evening.

At the meeting it was announced that Move-up Day would be March 21.

After a committee on the re-classification of campus jobs reported, it was decided that all campus offices should be re-classified on the basis of work accomplished rather than on the basis of the prestige of the job.

Senators also approved a resolution asking that President Ellis look into the possibility of installing a loud speaker in the serving room so that the waitress and kitchen staff can hear the announcements.

Monday the Senate will hold a dinner meeting. At this meeting they will discuss re-classification of offices and election procedures.

Also the Senate will review the constitution of the Sportsman's Club.

NumberEnrolled Drops 9 Percent

Enrollment for the Spring semester is "approximately 560," according to the office of the registrar. This is a drop of slightly more than nine percent from the 617 enrolled in the Fall.

Eight freshman, transfer and former students have entered. All are Pennsylvanians.

From Indiana State Teachers College come Anna and Ruby Kimmel, while Nell Shoop journeys from Lock Haven STC. George Schetrompf has transfered from Penn State and Patrick Smith from the Penn State Extension course at Harrisburg.

New freshmen are Emma Chase, from Girls High, Philadelphia, and Charles Williams, Saxton High.

Returning to the campus is Mrs. Helen Potter, who was a student here in 1935.

Brown Replaces Beaver

Miss Audrey Brown, of Huntingdon, is now secretary to Harold Brumbaugh, replacing Miss Yvonne Beaver. She was formerly Miss Beaver's assistant.

Miss Beaver has accepted a position as secretary to the director of building and maintainance at Miller and Rhoads Department Store, Richmond, Va.

Peace Through Federation.....

by Dave Armacost

"To achieve permanent peace; and thus

To free all people from the fear of war, through universal disarmament enforced by law;

To release for the satisfaction of human needs the resources that at present must be used in continuous preparation for war;

To maintain and promote human freedom, and to mobilize support for free institutions among all peoples;

To secure to all peoples the right to develop according to their own customs and traditions;

To unite in a common purpose all peoples who genuinely desire peace;

To these ends: We reaffirm our continuing support of the United Nations, and

We call for the United States immediately to declare that it is a fundamental objective of United States foreign policy to support and strengthen the United Nations and to develop it so that it shall have the power to make, enforce, and interpret world laws adequate to maintain peace and prevent aggression."

United World Federalists

The above is a statement of the purposes of the United World Federalists of America.

I had known about UWF in high school but it was not until I was picked up by the Maryland State Chairman of United World Federalists while hitch-hiking home last week, that I realized the significance and importance of their cause.

My benefactor picked me up outside of Frederick. He was going to a meeting of federalists in Baltimore.

A young man—a university graduate—he was extremely well-acquainted with history and with current events. He was friendly and warm and quite talkative.

Naturally, he started talking about world government and how it could be accomplished. His enthusiasm was over-whelming. It was all that I could do to get in a question now and then.

"World government is the only solution to world peace," he stated. "Armament races and power blocs have always led to war and that is where the Soviet Union and the United States are leading today." He did not discount the necessity for defense preparations, though.

No Enthusiasm For This War

He observed that there is no enthusiasm for this war. He felt that the American people are ready to give up a limited amount of their sovereignty in order to achieve lasting peace. "Our leaders are way behind their people. They lack vision."

I am inclined to agree with this enthusiastic young American. The world is headed toward very costly preparations for war for many years to come when there is such desperate need for even the necessities of life among millions of people. With the present trend this is the best that we can hope for. An atomic war that will level American and European cities is a real possibility. The nations of the world must delegate their war-making power to a world government if there is to be lasting peace.

Need Change of Heart

It might be added here (and it is perhaps more important than the machinery for world government) that peace also requires a change in men's hearts.

World government and a change of heart are vital to every American in a time when the situation is serious enough to merit the recent installation of an atomic bomb warning system which will go off simultaneously in dozens of eastern cities upon atomic attack and children are being given atomic bomb raid drills in the public schools.

Adventure, Comedy Slated Next Week

by Frank Harlacher

KIM—For those who thrill to the mysteries of high oriental adventure, the Cineviewer recommends Metro Goldwyn Mayer's "Kim." This screen portrayal of Rudyard Kipling's stirring novel promises the moviegoer some quick-moving and interesting entertainment.

Perhaps the greatest asset of this movie is its Technicolor qualities and local color. Filmed on location in India, it presents a job well done in authentic history and realistic photography. The exotic Technicolor paints a glorious picture of mysterious lands that are no more and furnishes the consumer an escape into adventureland.

According to the plot, Russian agents are trying to stir up local tribesmen against the existing British government. It deals with the elaborate British spy system and their enlistment of "Kim," played by Dean Stockwell. He is discovered by Mahbub Ali (Errol Flynn), who is posing as an adventurous horse trader, but is really a British spy.

The boy Kim is the orphan son of a British soldier who has spent his life with the natives and lives with the faith of a miracle heard from his dying father's lips. When a wise native priest (Paul Lucas), tells him of his search for infinite wisdom, the boy becomes devoted to him and tags along in hopes of discovering the miracle. This portion of the plot combines itself nicely with the spy system to make many exciting adventures.

Kim's running time is 91 minutes and was reviewed as good in New York. The picture opens today at the Harris Clifton Theatre at the Grand Theatre Feb. 5.

AT WAR WITH THE ARMY—In the comedy line Paramount's team of jokesters, Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, present entertainment in their usual slapstick manner. The two comedians have had their share of success in the recent "My Friend Irma" pictures, in radio and television. "At War With the Army" puts them at the top of the billing and gives them ample opportunity to present their talents.

The simple plot has the comics as sergeant (Martin) and private (Lewis) going through their usual comedy routines, gags, musical interludes and amusing chatter in an army training station. An imitation of a Bing Crosby-Barry Fitzgerald scene from "Going My Way" probably heads the merriment.

"At War With the Army" was rated good at a sneak preview in the Ritz Theatre, Los Angeles, Cal. The 92 minute feature starts at the Grand Theatre Feb. 8.

Towering Titans Oppose Indians; Team Averages 6-2 In Height

Westminster's Towering Titans come to town tomorrow with a record of 11 wins and four losses and intend to make the Indians their twelfth victim. And, with the Titans boasting four of the district's top 15 scorers is doesn't look to good for the Indians. The game is scheduled for 8:30 p. m.

Although the Westminster team has lost four starters from last year's team by graduation, they will still be able to floor a team of tall veterans. Heading the list is Pat King. King stands 6-3 and in 15 games this season has netted over 250 points, playing the pivot spot.

Supporting King up front will be Jerry Sybert. Sybert is 6-3 and has a side court shot that has accounted for 159 points in 15 games. In the back court will be Don Meyers who made the team as a freshman last year. So far this season the 6-1 sophomore has canned 160 points.

Abraham Makes Fast Break

The other guard spot will be handled by Johnny Abraham, a short boy at six feet. Abraham is a good dribbler and is the boy who makes the Titan fast break work.

Heading the reserves will be Jerry Hyder, 6-1 senior who is regarded by Coach Grover Washabaugh as the best defensive player he has ever coached. The average height of the team is about 6-2, with seven men over that figure.

Last season the Titans played in the NAIB Tournament at Kansas City and have set their sights higher this year. Included among their victims are such teams as George Pepperdine of Los Angeles, Carnegie Tech, Detroit, St. Joseph's and Arizona State. In their last game, against St. Francis on Tuesday, the Titans were upset, 92-65.

Upset By Pitt

Pitt also got the Titans on an off night and hung a 68-62 defeat on them. Duquesne and St. Bonaventure both had their hands full before they copped the win, Duquesne winning by one point in the last 15 seconds.

Last season the Indians lost by a 92-52 count at Westminster, where the Titans have not been beaten for 74 games.

Jayvees Lose, 71-44; Hackett Scores 13

In a game played at Carlisle Wednesday, the little Indians were overpowered by the Dickinson Frosh, 71-44.

Dickinson jumped off to a 19-4 first period and that was all the men of Wes Overholt, former Red Devil cage ace, needed. The halftime score read 34-17 against JC.

Dave Beaver of Dickinson led the scorers with 15 points. Dave Hackett of the Indians and Chuck Miller took runner-up honors with 13 points each.

Contributing ten, eight and six points to the Indian total were Dave LeFevre, Chuck Knox and John Thomas respectively.

Tribe Beaten In Three Of Last Four Tilts; Lose To D'son, Drexel And Lebanon Valley

The Indians lost three out of their last four games, one a one point loss to Dickinson in overtime. Drexel Tech and Lebanon Valley beat them by scores of 65-50 and 74-60 respectively. In their lone win of this series the Indians trounced Susquehanna, 61-50. Karl Park scored 88 points in the four games.

Dickinson

By scoring four points in an overtime period the Dickinson Red Devils beat Juniata 62-61 Wednesday at Carlisle.

The Indians scored 20 points in the third period while holding Dickinson to only six. This overcame a 38-29 halftime deficit and gave the Indians a 49-44 lead to start the last quarter.

Dickinson hit for 22 points in the first quarter to take the lead at 22-15 at the end of the period. In the second quarter the Indians were again outscored, 16-14.

After the Indians scored 20 points in the third canto, the Red Devils outscored the Tribe 14-9 in the fourth quarter. This made it 58-58 and necessitated an overtime. Juniata could only score three points in the overtime and that was the ballgame as Dickinson canned four.

Karl Park led the scorers with 23 points. He was closely followed by Dick Zilling of Dickinson with 21. Tommy Green, with 11 points, was the only other Indian to hit double figures.

Ray Korody, John Cook, Ed Weirauch and Dave Bayer added nine, seven, six and five points to the Indian total.

Drexel

Jumping off to a big 22 point first period, the Drexel Dragons beat Juniata 65-50 last Saturday night.

In the same period the Indians netted 14 points, but Al MacCart and Basil Barno offset this by sinking 15 points between the two of them. This was the spark the Dragons needed and they took advantage of it.

The Indians managed to cut the margin slightly in the second quarter by outscoring the Dragons, ten to eight. This made the score read 30-24 at halftime. And that was as close as the Indians came all night.

MacCart led the scorers with 18 points, while Karl Park of the Indians took down second honors with 16. Barno finished with 14 and Tommy Green hit for ten.

This was the last game of the first half and the team now shows a record of two wins, six losses.

Susquehanna

The Juniata College basketball team traveled to Selinsgrove Jan. 20 and beat the Crusaders of Susquehanna, 61-50. It was the second win of the season for the Indians. With Karl Park leading the way, the Indians jumped off to a 15-14 first quarter lead and were never headed.

Indian plays were not being worked as well as they have been, but this was offset by a strong defense and control of the boards. The Indians' control of the boards was usually in the hands of Ray Korody, Dave Bayer and Ed Weirauch. Jack Dickey, John Cook and Park took care of the work from the field.

Conspicuous because of his absence was Norm Fleisher, 6-5 center. Since the start of the season he and four other men have left the team for the service. This could easily explain the little use of plays made by the Crusaders, who shot from almost anywhere on the court.

Leading the scorers was Charley Zlock of Susquehanna, with 21 point. Park led the Indians with 20. Dickey and Cook added 19 more points to the Indian total.

Lebanon Valley

The Flying Dutchmen of Lebanon Valley beat the Juniata cagers, 74-60, Saturday night, Jan. 13. The game was played in the new Physical Education Building at Annville.

The game was close throughout, with Lebanon Valley leading by only four points at the end of the third quarter. They pulled away in the fourth period however, with Al Murawski hitting for nine big points.

Karl Park of the Indians led the scorers with a total of 29 points, 22 coming from field goals. Murawski hit the hoop for 24 to take second place.

Lack Of Height HandicapsTeam

Height and Home Floor Would Help Says Greene

by Bob Asan

"Our biggest handicaps in winning ball games are a lack of height and a home floor." That in a nutshell is how Coach Doc Greene explained the Indians' record for the first half of the current season.

Of these handicaps, the lack of height is the more disturbing. There has been no team that the Indians haven't spotted at least an inch per man and "you just can't win when there are two fellows on the other team who are bigger than ony one of your own men."

Need Tall Men

In more than a few games the Indians outplayed the opposition only to be tripped up by a lack of height. Coach Greene said that one tall boy, about 6-4 or so, would really make this team click.

Some coaches think the home floor is worth about 15 points. Greene doesn't believe the figure is quite that high. He thinks it is about eight or ten points, which is still enought to win ball games. According to the coach the new gym should help the team considerably.

Team In Shooting Slump

Commenting on the low shooting average Greene said, "the team is in a shooting slump right now and there isn't much we can do about it. Once we start hitting again things should look better."

In regard to the question of the schedule being a bit rough, Coach Greene said that Juniata has been playing most of these schools a long time and has won her share of games. In the past the Indians were on the winning side, but now it is their turn to take the lickings.

The team will face some pretty strong teams in the second half and the boys will really be giving all they have to come out on top. And they'll need lots of fight when they tackle such teams as Westminster, Albright and St. Francis.

College Catalog Now A Biennial; For Economy

The Juniata College catalog, which has been the chief official publication of the College, will be published only once in every two years hereafter, it is announced by Dean Morley Mays.

Biennial publication of the catalog is being undertaken as an economy measure. About 75% of the content of the catalog remains the same from year to year; hence it is thought the new plan will not impair the usefulness of publication. A number of colleges and universities are already following this practice.

In the off-year the College will probably publish a small supplement which will announce changes in faculty, course offerings, costs, etc., the dean said.

Dean Mays advises all students to retain possession of the new catalog which will appear within the next few weeks, since copies will not be issued to students again next year.

Magazine Offers Cash For Fiction

Again this year Mademoiselle will award a $500 fiction prize for each of the two best stories submitted between now and April 15.

The contest is open to women undergraduates. Stories that have appeared in undergraduate publications are acceptable if they have not been published elsewhere.

The stories are to be 3000 to 5000 words, typewritten, double-spaced on one side of paper only. The contestant's name, home address, college address and college year must be included.

Only those stories accompanied by stamped, self-addressed, legal sized envelopes will be returned.

Has Developed Skill

On the basis of comparison and study, Miss Evans has developed the skill to recognize true antique pieces. It is her belief that the most identifying characteristic is the rough, unfinished edge caused by improper hand molding.

Traveling has become a secondary interest to the librarian and she has visited many European countries and each of the 48 states. During the war she served as librarian in various army and navy libraries in California. It was on these travels that she acquired many pieces for her collection.

Garber Now Army Reporter

Jesse Garber, '49, former Juniatian editor, reports he has been assigned to the staff of the Ft. Jackson Journal. He expects to handle sports.

3 From Here Judge 2 Plays

Miss Lois Esaley, instructor in English, Vera Compton and Phyl Link judged two one-act plays for the Pennsylvania Music and Forensic League at Burnham Wednesday evening.

PMFL is an organization which conducts annual contests on a county, district and state-wide basis to stimulate interest in music and speech events.

The event Wednesday was a contest between Derry Township and Bratton-Oliver-McVeytown High Schools. The latter high school presented "The Valient." "Sparkin'" was offered by Derry Township.

This was judged the better play from a technical point of view, but "The Valient" was artistically more effective.

"Sparkin'" is a light-hearted comedy of a mid-Western farm family dominated by an unusual tobacco-chewing grandmother. "The Valient" is a story of a convicted man about to be executed.

His obviously false manner of hiding facts about his background leads to public interest in his case and to a test of his courage.

This choice list of cultural definitions has been scrounged from the Wilkes College Beacon.

Helicopter: An eggbeater with ambition.

Clubs

Sportsman Club Formed For Gun Enthusiasts

bu Dot Hummer

Isn't this a wonderful week? A new curriculum, a change of professors and another opportunity to add spark to your favorite club.

The most recent addition to the Juniata campus is the formulation of the Sportsmen's Club, which will be affiliated and chartered by the NRA. As a sporting affair, there will be rifle and pistol competition that may later lead to intercollegiate and national matches. The club is planning to build a rifle range, although there is a possibility of using the indoor range in town for the present time.

Miss Hummer

Tuesday evening, the group elected their new officers. Steve Dolak won the office of presidency, while Doug Martin is vice-president; Louise Gehman, secretary; and Stan Wass, treasurer. Dr. Donald Rockwell will serve as faculty advisor.

The Sigma Gamma has a "different" program planned for Wednesday evening. Trial comprehensives will be given to two senior students with three students acting as the board. The first examination will be given to Nancy Meyers with Bill Carpenter as head of her board, and the second to Joe Hulgus with Barbara Warner acting as chairman of the comprehensive board.

A business meeting is the theme for the Masquers next Thursday evening. There will be a discussion of workshop and script-in-hand plays, plus a resume of one-act plays presented by various groups. The duties of a director will be analyzed, viewing the abilities and training necessary for a good director.

The IVCF is scheduling a trip to Penn State next Friday evening to hear the Rev. Robert Smoot of Baltimore. He will speak on the topic "Who Has Eternal Life?" Bill Carpenter led the discussion of I Timothy, Chapter 6 at the meeting held last evening by this club.

Tonight the Outing Club will hold their regular monthly meeting. A report on the outing held this past weekend will be given by several of the club members. Activities for the new semester will also be reviewed. According to reports, the cabin is ready for occupancy except for the fireplace which is not fully completed. It was also announced that the club plans to have a hot dog concession in the men's dorm within the next few weeks.

The Lambda Gamma held a business meeting Wednesday evening, at which time a report was made on Home Ec Day to be held on the campus Feb. 27. After the meeting the girls held a taffy pull.

The Women's House Committee entertained new women students at a party last Wednesday evening.

IRC Grants $200 For Study Trip To Europe

Juniatian

Juniata College Student Weekly

Vol. 27 | Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa., Feb. 9, 1951 | No. 15

Benedict States Purpose And Aim Of Club Offer

A study tour of Europe this Summer is a possibility for some Juniata student as a result of a plan proposed by the campus International Relations Club. This organization has set aside $200 to help defray expenses of such a trip, according to Jay Benedict, president.

Action was taken by the IRC last year to create such a fund, and a grant-in-aid of $100 was originally planned. Because no award was made last Summer, the fund has now reached a total of $200, all of which will be awarded to the student chosen to make the trip.

To Promote Knowledge

In a statement made at the fund's conception the IRC declared that the purpose of the award is "to promote and to advance on the campus our knowledge of other nations, our sympathy with their problems, and thus to exert a real influence upon the attainment of international understanding and good will."

The award is expected to be an asset to the entire college community, because its recipient is obligated to return to the campus to share his experiences of cultural contacts, Benedict added.

In choosing the person who is to receive the award, preference will be given to those students who are:

- Active members of the IRC.
- Of unusual intellectual ability, mature character and industrious habits.
- Pursuing a course of study which enters in the general area of the social studies.
- Trained in modern foreign languages and planning to study international problems, or the language, history and culture of a particular country.
- Zealous to share the knowledge and experience of cultural contact with students abroad and

10:30 P. M. Deadline Set For Frosh Girls

The Freshman Committee has decided to extend the 10 p. m. deadline for freshman girls to 10:30 p. m. on weekdays for the second semester, it was announced by Senate chairman of underclassmen Chuck Allison.

According to the dean of women, this privilege has generally been offered in the past on an informal basis to second semester freshmen girls. "It will of course be revoked if abused," Dean Edith Spencer added.

2 Join Men's House Comm.

Frank Catanese and Ray Tesi will replace Fran Townsend and Jerry Africa on the Men's House Committee, it was announced this week by Men's House chairman Bud Kreider.

Brains May Cut Classes

Members Of Dean's List Granted Special Rights

Students who are named to the Dean's list of distinguished students will be given the privilege of optional attendance in the succeeding semester, according to an announcement by Dean Morley Mays.

The faculty at its meeting Monday took action to delegate to the students thus named the responsibility for attending their classes. The privilege will extend for the one semester following their placement on the Dean's List.

This action was taken in order to give them the opportunity of exercising their judgment as to what portions of their work they could master for themselves.

Each student, however, will be required to take all tests and examinations. Moreover, Dean Mays pointed out that physical education classes, English Conference and private lessons in music will be excluded from the area of the new privilege.

Spring Musical Chrm. Named

The following committee chairmen have been named for the Spring musical, "The Firefly":

Stage manager and assistant, Glenn Felix and John Long; stage crew, Ron Cherry and Bob Bailey; set construction, Ron Cherry and Phyllis Link; lights, Homer Evitts; costumes, Esther Weaver; properties, Miriam Barnes.

Advertising, Clare Nolan and Ruth Reid; ticket sales, Betty Longwell and Elaine Mock; business manager, Phyllis Baughman; house manager, Bernard Petrusky; and program, Jim Streiner and John Long.

As yet there has been no one selected to design the set. Anyone interested should contact Miss Lois Esaley, Prof. Donald Johnson or Vera Compton.

Frosh Meet 2:45 P. M. Today

According to a statement from Prof. Alfred Goetschius, freshman orientation assembly will resume meeting today following Biblical history. This assembly will meet at 2:45 p. m. every Friday until further notice.

Mim Smith Starts A Ball Rolling; Result: Skating On Tennis Courts

by Marj Seidel

Thanks to Mim Smith and several other persons, Juniata now has in ice skating rink for the first time in several years.

The idea originated one day last week when Mim was walking up to Swigart Hall with Miss Marion Thomas. In the course of their conversation, Mim happened to express her love of ice skating. To this, Miss Thomas suggested, "Why not flood the tennis courts as I understand they used to do?"

Talk To HB And Mike

Upon her suggestion of a talk to Harold Brumbaugh, Mim lost no time in calling as soon as they reached Swigart Hall. He in turn referred her to Mike Snyder who gave the idea its final stamp of approval with, "Sure, come ahead and flood it!"

Under the direction of Berkey Smith, a crew of men students shoveled the snow off the courts —with Dr. Raymond Davis's shovels incidentally. After working from 7:30 p. m. Thursday to 1:30 a. m. Friday Berkey supervised the flooding of the courts.

"And Having Fun"

Mim modestly states, "I only shoveled three shovelfuls." She is very glad that the project has been so successful. "It took me years to learn to skate; but," she says in amazement, "students who never skated before in their life have been skating around the pond like there is nothing to it—and having fun, too!"

According to Mike Snyder, ice skating used to be a popular sport around Juniata years ago. Students could skate for miles up and down the Raystown Dam. However, the tennis court "pond" later proved to be much safer. Now with the initiative of Mim Smith, the rink has once again become "a great success."

Rev. John Marvin, Lewistown Pastor, To Speak 8 Times

The Rev. John Marvin, of Lewistown, will be the guest speaker at Juniata during the annual Spiritual Emphasis Week. Scheduled for Feb. 12 to 16, Spiritual Emphasis Week is arranged "in order to deepen and strengthen the spiritual life of the student body."

This year, the meetings consist of a series of three Chapel talks by Rev. Marvin and five evening meetings set for 7 p. m. in Founders Chapel. Rev. Marvin has announced the following topics as subjects for his series of addresses:

Speech Subjects Listed

For Chapel on Monday, Wednesday and Friday he will speak on "With Malice Toward None," "Vice-Versa" and "It's Contagious," respectively. His evening addresses are "The $64 Question," "Miracles for Sale," "Couples: Married and Unmarried," "Give 'Em Hell" and "Have You Got What It Takes?"

Supplementing the scheduled meetings will be two teas to be held at 4:30 p. m. Tuesday and Thursday of next week in the I. Harvey Brumbaugh House. At these occasions, to which all students and faculty are invited, members of the faculty will address those present on topics related to the Spiritual Emphasis Week purpose.

Paving the way for the Spiritual Emphasis Week program will be discussions held in faculty homes on Sunday evening. These student-led discussions will be centered around the topic "Why Bother With God?"

Interviews May Be Had

Interviews may be arranged with Rev. Marvin by those students who desire to discuss their problems with him. Those desiring to speak with him should schedule the time in advance, if

Three students from here collected prizes at the anniversary door prize drawing held at Skips Tuesday evening.

Carole Hagen received a box of valentine candy as first prize. A pair of Jaycee and Jancee statuettes went to Eddie Gould as second prize. Third prize was a cigarette lighter to Charlie Towns

Layer cake was also distributed to patrons as proprietor Joe Chiampa, a former student at the College, celebrated his first year as owner of the "campus hangout."

Winter Formal To Be This Saturday Night

JC will make merry Saturday at the winter formal. The social committee is presenting this frolic, and it has chosen for the theme, "Hearts In Melody." From 8:30 to 11:30 p. m. the guests will dance amid red and white hearts, while the melody will be supplied by the dance band.

Those attending will be treated to refreshments and varied entertainment, while spice will be added by some "novel" ideas which have not been disclosed.

Since this is a special occasion, the girls will be granted 12 p. m. lates. Corsages will be in order.

'It Was All A Wonderful Experience--Socially And Spiritually'

By DORIS MICKLE

Here's a bit of news of our choir trip as it happened, day by day:

We leave Friday evening, Jan. 26, heading for Everett to give our first concert, properly seasoned with Smith Brothers cough drops.

Saturday—Somerset and shopping. Johnny seems to prefer walking to driving and dislikes flat tires on the Hudson.

Sunday—Meyersdale in the morning and Uniontown this evening. Our concerts are better as we continue. Carol Lowdermilk seems to know most of the audience, so we all feel at home. That Robinson boy's nice, mellow voice is discovered here, and here we almost lose Pete.

"Boom, Boom, Boom"

Monday—Uniontown High School. Our male quartet makes quite a hit with Whitey's "I Don't Know Why" and Bob's "boom-boom" in "Coney Island Babe." We go on to Greensburg, another home town in which our concert is welcomed with the Chatauqua Salute. "There Is A Balm" turns out to be one of the outstanding numbers here; and incidentally, Clyde Johnson does a nice job on the solo.

Tuesday—Greensburg High School. The boys in the balcony seem to enjoy especially the girls' trio; "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" is accepted with much enthusiasm. Then on to KDKA where we make tape and wax recordings, which turn out very well. After the church concert, Albert entertains Rhoda, Wilda and Bev; but Prospect Park's young-couple tenants are wonderful hosts and hostesses—pretty too, aren't they, Wes?

Wednesday—On to Canton, Ohio after passing through Maryland and West Virginia. Timpkin High School vocational building is our first stop. Our program is recorded. Landes becomes the celebrity now after a girl swooner

Kneel In Faith, Rise In Peace

by Dave Armacost

Today, Juniatians will join the peoples of 94 countries in a world day of prayer sponsored by the United Council of Church Women.

Today, the churches of Huntingdon will be open all day. At 7:30 p. m. at the Fifteenth Street Methodist Church we can take part in the world day of prayer service which will be conducted universally throughout most of the world.

Today, most of us, unless we simply give lip service to Christianity and put on or take off the teachings of Christ as we would our clothing, will want to go to this service or at least pause a moment to ask faith and guidance from a higher Being.

The theme of today is "Perfect love casts out fear." Let's read from the universal service:

"Christians, in this turbulent world of today, let us come humbly and unitedly to the altar of God—to pray. Let us worship and bow down before the Lord our Maker, whose love alone can cast out the fear in our hearts and minds.

"We kneel, yearning for peace in our distraught minds, and peace among the nations: We rise, knowing each one must pay a price for Peace.

Yearn For Unity In Church

"We kneel, yearning for unity in the Church—Christ's body; We rise with the will to do the deed we left undone.

"We kneel, blinded with pride of race and culture; We rise, scales dropped from eyes, enabled to see strength and beauty in all.

"We kneel, wrapped about with personal grievances; We rise filled with gratitude for gifts of God everywhere about us.

"We kneel, in fear; We rise with faith."

If People Would Unite In Faith

What a wonderful thing it would be if the people of 94 countries of the world would unite in faith and in love. If only people would live Christianity and stop talking about it.

You and I can do our bit toward that goal today—and tomorrow. Why not let people know you are a Christian. The measure of your belief in Christianity will be the effort you put forth to propagate it every moment of the day.

Today is your day of prayer for peace.

Juniata's Own RockefellerPlaza

Last weekend the tennis courts were turned into a veritable Rockefeller Plaza.

Many students took advantage of the ice and thus engaged in a wholesome recreational activity that hitherto had been almost unknown here in the last few years.

Flooding the courts was an old idea. However, the idea is not the important thing. There are a great deal more dreamers than there are doers.

So we take our green eyeshades off to doers—Berkey Smith, Chet Gomeringer, Mim Smith, Bob Hatala, Lowell Hackman and others who gave physical or moral support to this project.

All those who worked on "Operation Rockefeller Plaza" deserve the thanks of the student body for providing much-needed group recreation here at Juniata.

IRC To Make Study-Travel Award Mar. 15

The deadline for applications for the Juniata Foreign Study-Travel Award is March 15, IRC president Jay Benedict announced this week.

This award, which was set up by the International Relations Club last year, will provide a Juniatian in good standing with a minimum of $100 for study and travel abroad.

The purpose of the award is "to promote and to advance on the campus knowledge of other nations, our sympathy with their problems, and thus to exert a real influence upon the attainment of internations understanding and good will."

From all those who meet the qualifications set up by the club (see story, page 1) and whose letters of application are approved by the IRC cabinet and faculty advisor, one student will be chosen by club members for the award.

Although the award was not made last year, it is hoped that many Juniata students will make application this year.

A student, who in his junior year could go abroad and study and travel among our foreign neighbors, and then return here for his senior year, could make an invaluable contribution to international understanding.

TOMMYHAWK

The tennis court was turned into Rockerfeller Plaza and all passersby stopped and spent a few minutes watching the arteests perform. Berkey Smith did his fancy twirling during the nocturnal hours, and Bev Chamberlain, Rhoda Clemmer and Mrs. George Baker took top honors in showing off some fancy figures.

After the sun departed to peek at China, and all good little students were tucked in bed counting A's, a band of gremlins stole upon the ice deck and performed their wonders under a wintry moon. Master elf Hanson banded his fairies together and then "Slippery" Martin and "Shoeless" Weiller played tag—with clubs.

Third Brumbaugh is a mare's nest with Gloria Amatoooli spouting off her humorous dialect. Say Gloria, what do you mean when you yell tally ho across campus? No spikada hinglish.

The congestion in second floor students hall could be avoided if the third floor were excused at seven minutes before the hour, the second floor at six minutes before the hour and the first at five minutes before. Me, I just want to be excused at five after.

Dagmar Silldorff and Chet Gomeringer seem to enjoy fencing in the post office and both have joined the Sportsmans Club. I'll join if they have wrestling. I just love that call, Two Arms!!!

Nancys Newman and Rogers showed off their beaus last weekend and believe me there were many hearts broken. This going steady may be all right—on a desert island.

If Prof. Stayer needs anybody to trace those textbooks which haven't as yet arrived, I'll gladly search for them. I would first travel to Huntingdon, (West Virginia) by way of India. Expediency would be the keyword and I would waste no time in getting away.

Freshmen court is in full swing, mainly to remind those daring frosh that the diagonal is Juniata's version of the 38th Parellel. Decisions concerning acts of violation will be tried by the masked court. The masks or hoods are worn to save face or to hide them. It's a tossup.

Miss Spencer was seen wearing a blouse which is usually seen worn at Waikiki Beach. It put a lot of color into things and caused an occasional smile. If Harry Truman can get away with wearing one on the Potomac, then Miss Spencer can surely wear hers while strolling along the Blue Juniata.

Tommy noticed that there are a group of energetic extroverts who walk into the library whistling and humming. To them "silence" means that all should keep still so they can be heard. I wonder where they get the energy.

At the rate at which the best-sellers are being tossed off the press, I predict there will be a library for love novels only. It's easier to select your love especially when it is well stacked.

John Cook and Nancy McCahon were seen exchanging ideas and glances in the rear booth at Skips. You can't mistake John. He combs his hair with a shoe shine brush. (Editor's Note: So does Art Shriver.)

For many moons Edie Talbot has set her eyes toward Cumberland, where the moon-glow is the brightest.

Nancy Rogers seems to attract many cold-suffering men, most of them from the Cloister. As soon as they enter the infirmary, they are suddenly caught with fever. From the cold???? This is off the record, but look in Nancy's high school yearbook. You'll find an interesting nickname belonging to her.

Now that many of the Lodge residents have moved to the Cloister, the Lodge should be a better place to live. More room to study and play cards.

The spirit of culture at Juniata has reached it epitome. About 1/5 of the student body is enrolled in music appreciation classes.

NEVER A DULL MOMENT—

For those who saw "The Egg and I" and enjoyed this type of story, RKO's motion picture "Never a Dull Moment" will probably fulfill the task of furnishing an enjoyable evening of entertainment in movieland.

The film deals with the usual problem which faces the successful career woman when she attempts to adjust herself to country life. Her difficulties take the form of comedy and has such scenes as being chased by cattle, thrown by horses and smoked out of kitchen by her own baking attempts.

Alls Well That Ends Well

The plot portion of the movie marries a Broadway song writer (Irene Dunne) to a rodeo bronc rider (Fred MacMurray) and brings her to face trials and tribulations on his broken-down ranch in the west. Such things as trouble with a neighbor (William Demarest) and her attempts to mother MacMurray's two young daughters of his first marriage add to Miss Dunne's complications, but all's well that ends well and thats how it ends.

The action in the beginning of the picture is somewhat slow, but by the time its 86 minute running time is consumed it has picked up considerably. "Never a Dull Moment" was reviewed Very Good in New York and is playing at the Grand Theatre next week.

HALLS OF MONTEZUMA—

Many motion pictures have come out of Hollywood telling of the horrors of war. Most of them are the fairy-tale type which take the hero into action, has him kill all the enemies single handed, rescue the native girl from her captors and then return to be decorated.

Some, however, as "Battleground" and "Breakthrough," portray a realistic picture of the strife and heroism of American boys in World War II. Twentieth Century-Fox's Technicolor attempt at this task, "Halls of Montezuma," measures up nicely.

Battle Despite Headaches

The story tells of a band of United States Marines fighting on a Pacific island during World War II. The central role is played by Richard Widmark with a great deal of distinction. He takes the part of a battle-hardened lieutenant, who leads his men into battle despite torturing migraine headache attacks.

The supporting cast does an outstanding job of portraying actual marines engaged in a life and death struggle. As deaths occur the audience is made to feel something of the tragedy and loss felt by the victim's combat buddies.

"Halls of Montezuma" is 113 minutes long, a little long for the average picture, but perhaps this is balanced by its fast moving action. Rated Superior in New York, it will open next week at the Harris Clifton Theatre.

A Home For—

by Bob Asan

Juniata's athletic trophies have now found a new home. They are to be taken from the various administration offices and put in a new trophy case in the Memorial Lobby of the new gym.

This new trophy case will be four feet by ten and will have overhead lighting. It will be built at a level about three and a half feet from the floor. When all the trophies are assembled in the case it should become a center of attraction in the gym.

The reason why these trophies are not on display now is that no-one is exactly sure where they are all located. Don't laugh, it isn't funny. Some may be seen in various offices on campus, while others are in the J-Club room. It is about time that they are brought together and displayed as a unit, which will be a reality when the gym is finished.

Falling Star

Big Bill Wanish of the St. Francis Red Flashes is having a hard time of it this season. The all-state cage ace hasn't even been making the starting line-up for a few games. The Frankies aren't suffering too much as a result though. John Bodner has taken over and is doing almost as good a job. Bodner played in Wanish's shadow last season, a la Lou Gehrig.

Tribe Faces Vet Five At Loretto

When the Juniata College basketball squad takes the floor at Loretto Wednesday they will be facing one of the strongest teams in the state. The St. Francis Red Flashes have won 13 of their first 15 contests this season.

The Frankies will enter the game with their entire 1949-50 team intact. Eleven veterans have returned to make the Frankies a powerful opponent.

Two Players Score 190 Points

John Bodner plays one of the forward positions and has scored over 190 points this season. Bodner is 6-2 and teamed up with Bill Wanish last season to really give the opposition nightmares. Wanish has cooled off somewhat this year and is not doing so well as he did last season.

To make up for Wanish's lapse the Frankies have Ed Sharick who also has scored over 190 points. He operates from a guard position and stands 6-5.

St. Francis will probably floor a starting team that will average slightly more than 6-2 in height. Andrew Hleba at 5-11½ will be the shortest, while Sharick is the tallest player.

Frankies Upset Westminster

This year the Red Flashes have lost only to Georgetown and Waynesburg, while scoring such impressive victories as the 92-65 upset of Westminster and a 67-61 triumph over the Quantico Marines.

The Indians will probably go with the same lineup they have been using for the past few games; Karl Park and Tommy Green at the forwards, Ed Weirauch at center and Ray Korody and John Cook at the guard spots.

4 Teams Vie For Lead In IM Hoop League

The Trojans and the BTO's continued their winning ways last Wednesday night and retained their top positions in the Intramural basketball league. The Trojans trounced the Tigers, 50-16, while the BTO's poured on the heat in the second half to take the Gunners, 39-30.

Westminster Overpowers Indians

by John Dale

Despite an 83-64 loss to the Towering Titans of Westminster College, the Juniata College cagers played their best game of the year on the local hardwood last Saturday night.

The height superiority of the Titans enabled them to maintain control of the backboards, although the Indians also pulled in some rebounds. JC may be comforted by the fact that it had the scoring leader in Karl Park who netted 27 points. Tommy Green aided Park's performance with 12 more points.

The Titans had four men break into double figures: Pat King with 22, Johnny Abraham with 19, Ed Halas with 18 and Don Meyers with ten.

Titans Lead From Start

Westminster took the tap and jumped off to a 3-0 lead on Jerry Hyder's shot and King's lay-up. The Indians came back to knot the score at 3-3 on Park's foul and quick lay-up. From there on the Titans were never headed, jumping off to a five point lead and by the quarter were leading by nine points.

Westminster, one of the best teams in the Tri-State area, further widened the lead in the second quarter, scoring 16 counters while holding JC to nine, making the half-time count 41-25.

Second Half About Even

The Indians almost played the Titans to a standstill in the second half, lagging in the third quarter by 20-17, and knotting the final quarter 22 all.

Juniata played a slow, careful game which at times had the point-hungry Titans on edge. The Westminster team had trouble stopping JC's fast break led by Park and Green. Park also was "dead" on set shots.

However, Westminster's height, fancy passing and deadly shooting, both from the outside and lay-ups, were too much for the Indians to overcome.

Les Miserables Upset; Lose Two To Faculty

In the biggest bowling upset of the year the Faculty beat Les Miserables in two games last week. These were the first Faculty wins and knocked Les Miserables out of first place.

Three teams, the Sliders, Strikettes and Trojans, each won three points. They beat the Sneaks, Aces and NoNames, respectively.

Ray Korody and Ed Marschka did not bowl and therefore did not add to their first and second place averages. The third and fourth place men, Ron Clapper and George Cruser, both added to their totals however.

Tonight's schedule:

6:45—Sliders vs Les Miserables

Lions Big Test For Indian Five

Saturday the cagers of Juniata College will journey to Reading where they will vie with the Roaring Lions of Coach Eddie Gulian.

Having beaten such teams as Dickinson, Scranton and Elizabethtown and losing by only six points to LaSalle, the Albright quintet is one of the best combinations the Indians will face this season. The Lions had won ten and lost five games as of Jan. 30.

Team Is Experienced

This Reading team is built on experience and height. Featured in the guard positions from which they have operated for the past two years are the Bieber brothers, Pat and Dan. Standing 6-2, Dan is the shortest member of the starting five.

At center Gulian will start Captain Lee Cappel, another veteran. Cappel, 6-4, has scored over 160 points so far this season.

Ruoff Is Leading Scorer

The forwards are Bobby Ruoff and Gerry Potts. Potts is the tallest member of the squad, standing 6-5. He is also the team's second leading scorer with 181 points in 14 games. Ruoff leads the team in the scoring department with 195 points.

The number one substitute is Al "Red" Pollack. He stands an even six feet and has scored 109 points this season.

Little Indians Bow To Johnstown Pitt, 62-47

The Juniata College Juniors bowed again to the Johnstown Pitt Center last Saturday on the high school court. Johnstown poured on the heat at the end and won the game, which was close for three periods.

At the end of the first quarter the score was tied at 11-11. The Indians outscored Pitt in the second stanza to put them ahead 31-29 at the half.

The score at the three-quarter mark was 44-43 for the Jayvees as Tom Sanders, Dave LeFevre and John Thomas teamed up to add to the total.

Pitt outscored the Tribe in the last quarter, 19-3, and went on to win 62-47. Dave Gipe of Johnstown was the high scorer for the evening with 28 points, while Sanders had 18.

Grades Will Be Delayed Two Weeks Hereafter

There will be a two week interim between the end of each semester and the issuance of grades henceforth, the office of the registrar states.

Ten copies of each grade sheet must now be run off on the multilith machine. Then 20 to 25 more sheets must be run through to clean the master before another can be inserted. Thus a mixmum of only about 15 grade sheets per hour can be processed, according to Keith Binkley, operator of the machine.

In a statement issued with the new grade form, the registrar's office asks students to report any errors because "this is an exact reproduction of the permanent record now on file at this office." If desired, further information on "the summary of (the student's) record, competence notations or actions" may also be obtained from the registrar.

One advantage of the new system, it is pointed out, lies in the fact that transcripts now may be processed in three to four days instead of the ten days required under the old system. This is because a permanent record can now be simply multilithed instead of requiring extensive typing.

JWSF Aims For DP Scholarship

The World Student Service Fund, one of the four agencies of JWSF, has announced that a goal for 1951 is securing more scholarships for DP students.

Since 1949 the WSSF has beeen helping DP students obtain an opportunity to continue their studies in this country. Operated on behalf of the National Committee for the Placement of DP Students, this WSSF project has brought almost 400 of them to the US.

This year is the last for American students and American schools to offer a future to these students. The DP law expires on June 30, 1951, and all arrangements for students to come must be made by March 1.

Last year Juniata College contributed over $500 through JWSF to be used by WSSF. This year again, contributions can be made through the Juniata World Service Fund; the campaign drive starts Feb. 19. Opportunity will be made for students, faculty, and administration to take part in "world service."

Two Students Enter Service

Don Brumbaugh, a sophomore, has joined the navy. Another sophomore, Bob Swindel, has enlisted in the air force, according to his room-mate, Carmon Sollenberger.

From the Adelphi College newspaper, "an unlimited cuts system for students on the dean's list has been unanimously approved by the college faculty."

Therefore the conclusion can be drawn that if you go to class and pay attention, you won't have to go to class and pay attention.

From the Ursinus weekly:

The baby-sitter had two charges that night. The four-year-old was contented with his picture book, but the baby was practically knocking the walls down with her yelling.

"Did the angels send baby down from heaven?"

"Yes," said the frantic baby-sitter.

The four-year-old summed it up nicely when he said, "They like to have it nice and quiet up there, don't they?"

The staff of the Polytechnic Reporter from the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn is now sponsoring a contest to provide a nickname for the school. So far they've met with dubious success—three entries have been presented. Could it be that the students just like to write out that long title every time?

Clubs To Close Down For Week

by Dot Hummer

Club doors will be closed next week due to Spiritual Emphasis Week. However, let's take a peep and see what happened this past week.

Miss Williams, an exchange teacher from England, will speak to the FTA this evening at 7 p. m. in the Old Chapel. Her topic will be centered around education and related subjects in the many schools. Refreshments will be served.

The Alpha Beta Gamma held their regular meeting Wednesday evening. Letters from various alumni teachers were received and read, giving the group an opportunity to hear about teaching experiences. The group also enjoyed a light snack.

Cabinet members of the WAA recently held a meeting. It was decided that some of the club members would be sent to Penn State Feb. 24, to represent basketball, bowling, swimming and badminton teams. During the month of March a project in archery will be conducted, with people from downtown instructing the groups. The WAA held a short business meeting Thursday evening.

Choir—

in the audience hollers, "Isn't he cute!" Shelly enjoys this part of the trip since Canton is her home town.

Snow, Snow, Snow

Thursday—We all awake to find the ground covered with 10 to 14 inches of snow. Trip to Youngstown is delayed and finally called off entirely due to the weather and road conditions. Most of this free day is spent in letter-writing.

Friday—Leave Canton at 9 a. m. and slide our way to Windber. The bus stops at Butler for a concert, and a new organization performs—the men's trio. It seems that Gerry and his carload didn't know about the concert until the air is suddenly filled with familiar music—that of the choir, or at least part of it. Our concert here is, nevertheless, effective, especially the number "Where He Leads Me."

Saturday—We broadcast over WCRO for a half hour. As soon as this is over, all the married men and "Eek" head for home. The afternoon and evening are free, so Robbie holds a party for us.

Sing, Sing, Sing

Sunday—We have three excellent concerts today. The whole choir seems to be in the spirit of the music. Louise Cray, '50, and Tom Shoemaker, '50, join us in singing the benediction this afternoon. Robbie's folks have refreshments for us after the concert, and then we start back to Huntingdon.

During the course of the trip, Ben Newcomer and Johnny get lost in the Greenburg church; Dan Ziegler has the same trouble in Uniontown; Whitey finds several soft shoulders to sleep on; many talents are discovered such as the "Wheezers Male Chorus"; and a bit of match-making takes place.

We are all sorry it has to end so soon, for it was all a wonderful experience, socially and spiritually.

2 Students To Give Reading Next Friday At Alumni Banquet

Janet Boland and Phyl Link will journey to Altoona next Friday to participate in a program for the annual banquet of the Juniata Alumni Association.

In conjuction with the 75th anniversary year, a special program is being planned in which these two Juniata students will take part. They will be featured in a dialogue from the current Broadway play, "The Voice of the Turtle" by John van Druten. The skit centers around the conversation between two girls who are both trying to win the same man and the tactics they employ in their pursuits.

Both Miss Boland, a junior elementary education major, and Miss Link, a sophomore secondary education major, have been active in various dramatic presentations on campus. This is the first time they have given a reading together. However, they are planning to do more of this team work in the future.

Elder Releases Social Calendar

The social calendar for the Spring semester has been released by Bob Elder, chairman of social activities.

Tomorrow night the season opens with the Winter Formal (see separate article on page 1). As a part of Spiritual Emphasis Week the movie, "Angel On My Shoulder," has been obtained for presentation Feb. 17. The following Saturday, Feb. 24, is the scheduled time for the basketball game between Juniata and Franklin and Marshall.
